UNCLE SAM AFTER STEAMSHIP TRUST

CHARGED WITH BIG CONSPIRACY

Details of Gigantic Monopoly Are Outlined in the Complaint Filed in New York.

New York, Jan. 5.—The federal government brought suit in the United States circuit court under the Sherman anti-trust law against 13 of the principal trans-Atlantic carriers, estimated to control 90 per cent of the steerage traffic, worth $55,000,000 a year. Twelve officers of the defendant companies, all resident in America, are named as co-defendants.

There 13 companies, the government charges, entered into an illegal contract February 5, 1908, at London, England, by which they constituted themselves the Atlantic conference, with power to apportion traffic and impose heavy fines for violation of any of the articles of agreement.

As a result, it is alleged, the Russian volunteer fleet, plying between New York and Libau, was driven out of business, and the Russian-American line was forced to enter the conference.

Suit was brought under instructions from United States Attorney General Wickersham. In its petition the government asks that the defendants be restrained from combining to destroy the business of any person carrying steerage passengers between the United States and Europe. Further, that each of the defendant steamship lines be forbidden to enter any port of the United States or its possessions, so long as they continue to operate under the alleged conspiracy.

Defendant Companies.

The defendant companies are: Allen Steamship company, capitalized at $3,220,000, which plies between Liverpool, Boston and Philadelphia and Glasgow and Montreal; the International Mercantile Marine company, the International Navigation company, the Anchor Line, the Canadian Pacific Railway company, capitalized at $200,000,000, which operates between Montreal and Liverpool, the Cunard Steamship company, the British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation company, the Hamburg-American line, the Holland-American line, the North-German Lloyd Steamship company, the Red Star line, the White State line and the Russian East Asiatic Steamship company.

In the apportionment of this commerce, westbound, as given by the government, the North German Lloyd line with 26.53 per cent has the largest single share. The other German line, the Hamburg-American, is next with 19.61 per cent. The Cunard line follows with 13.75 per cent. The others have small percentage.

In the apportionment of eastbound traffic the Cunard line with 12.77, the Hamburg-American line with 12.35 per cent, the North German Lloyd line with 18.79 per cent, and the White Star line with 15.49 per cent are the leaders.

Steerage Traffic Divided.

Under the contract the lines agreed, it is alleged, to divide their steerage traffic.

To provide against violations a penalty of four pounds sterling ($20) on each excess passenger was provided.

The alleged contract exacted from each of its signatories the deposit of £1,000 ($5,000) for each 1 per cent of traffic allotted. Upon withdrawal of any member without permission this deposit was to be forfeited. It was also subject to forfeit if any member failed to pay his fine.

"It is charged," said District Attorney Wise, "that the lines agreed to act together to destroy competition and that for the accomplishment of this purpose a committee of three should be created with power to select steamships to be known as 'fighting steamers' and to advertise such fighting steamers to sail at the same time as the steamers of competing lines and to advertise rates far below those advertised by such independent line."

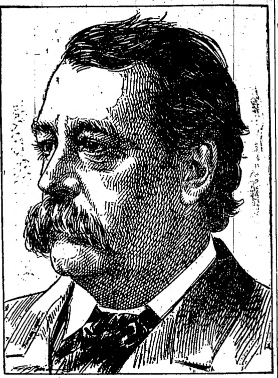
The contract has operated, it is charged, to maintain rates at an artificial level, monopolize traffic at the highest return possible and to deprive the public of the benefits that would naturally result from free competition. All the competitive devices of the conferences are alleged to be in full force at the present moment against the Uranium Steamship company, which plies between New York and Rotterdam, touching at Halifax.

ENGLISH ABBOT COMING.

Father Gasquet to Lecture on the Vulgate.

Rome, Jan. 5.—The pope received in private audience the Rt. Rev. Francis Aidah Gasquet, the Abbot president of English Benedictines. The Abbot Gasquet is head of the commission appointed to revise the text of the Vulgate. He said that he expected to make a trip to the United States next summed, when he would deliver lectures on the revision of the Vulgate.

PROGRESSIVE SENATOR GETS ANOTHER TERM.



MOSES E. CLAPP.
United States Senator from Minnesota.

SENATOR CLAPP RENOMINATED

VICTORY FOR THE PROGRESSIVES

Harmony Prevails and Talk of Opposition Comes to Nothing—Action of State Convention Regarded as Binding.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—United States Senator Clapp will succeed himself in the senate for another term of six years. This was determined at a caucus of the Republican members of the house and senate, who met in joint caucus in the hall of the house of representatives, state capitol.

Notwithstanding the fact that the caucus was cut and dried and the result definitely known beforehand, there was a dramatic character to the gathering. There had been talk of opposition to Senator Clapp and it was well recognized that his election was a victory for one element of the party which is opposed by another.

Mr. Clapp's Career Outlined.

Moses E. Clapp, junior United States senator from Minnesota, was born at Delphi, Ind., in 1857. His parents removed to Hudson, Wis., where he attended the common schools and graduated from the Wisconsin Law school in 1873. He commenced the practice of law in New Richmond, Wis., and two years later removed to Fergus Falls, Minn.

He was elected attorney general of the state in 1886, 1888 and 1890. He removed to St. Paul in the spring of 1891 and was elected to the United States senate June 23 of that year, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Cushman K. Davis. In 1905 he was re-elected for the six-year term and is now a candidate to suceed himself.

In the senate Mr. Clapp has been prominent among the insurgents.

17 DIE IN CHURCH PANIC.

Mexico City, Jan. 4.—Fire and panic during a New Year religious celebration in a church near San Luis Potosi cost the lives of seventeen and serious injury to more than eighty, chiefly women and children.

The church was packed to its utmost capacity. In the course of the ceremonies a candle fell from its socket and ignited a quantity of dry moss with which the building was decorated.

The flames spread quickly to all parts of the interior. Of those who escaped death by burning or suffocation, a number were killed or injured by being trampled in the narrow entrance. Few escaped without injuries, more or less serious.

LITTLE ROCK AFIRE.

Lack of Water Hampers Blaze Fighters.

Little Rock, Jan. 4.—Fire, originating in the Hollenburg Musical Company's building, destroyed an entire block of buildings here, the loss on the buildings and stocks of goods amounting to $1,000,000. The burned buildings were owned by Governor Donaghey, the Fulk estate and the Elizabeth Shall estate. Lack of water made the firemen's work difficult.

IOWA STANDPATS TO CONFER

WILL DECIDE WHETHER TO CAUCUS WITH PROGRESSIVES.

Cummins' Stand Makes Question o. Compromise Candidate Difficult One.

Des Moines, Jan. 4.—A conference of the standpat members of the Iowa legislature and their leaders outside of that body has been called for Thursday evening to discuss the United States senatorship and to determine the advantageous thing to do with respect to going into a caucus with the progressive Republicans who are in the majority. Upon their decision depends, probably, the election of a senator to fill out Dolliver's term. If they go into caucus they must elect a progressive and they now plan to prevent a caucus and to propose the election of one of the party veterans who will not be a candidate for reelection in 1912 to which year the political contest over Dolliver's seat may be transferred.

Henry Wallace, president of the national conservation congress, is discussed favorably. It is said that the Democrats also would favor his selection.

Senator Cummins issued a statement declaring that he had expressed no preference among the progressive candidates for senator. The politicians credit him with engineering the plan to bring out A. B. Funk and Warren Garst, to split northern Iowa and W. S. Kenyon's congressional district in order to defeat the Taft administration trust buster. All of the Cummins advisers were in the plan to bring out Funk as the most available man with whom to defeat Kenyon.

The fact that Senator Cummins favors Funk, as against Kenyon has become so apparent that standpatters have abandoned the idea of supporting Funk as a compromise candidate of the factions and if they do go into caucus or do not as a result of their conference Thursday night, it is probable that they will swing to Kenyon rather than to any other progressive Republican.

Strike Policeman Is Shot.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Another victim, the fifth in the strike of garment workers, met death by violence. Fred Reinhart, a special policeman employed as a guard, was shot to death while escorting two non-union workers to their homes from the plant. The two non-union men fled to their homes, but later declared the policeman had been shot by strikers who approached from the rear. The police were unable to locate the murderers.

Michigan Lumberman Fails.

Bessemer, Mich., Jan. 4. — Andrew Emerson, for years the leading lumberman of Gogebic county, operating saw mills, stores and camps at Dunham, 12 miles east of this city, has made an assignment for his preferred creditors. Net total indebtedness is over $100,000 of which some $50,000 is secured.

New York Editor Dies.

New York, Jan. 4.—Frederick Bonner, a son of the late Robert Bonner, and for 10 years before his father's death editor of the New York Ledger, died of pneumonia. Mr. Bonner was graduated from Princeton university in 1878.

New Chief of Choctaws.

Washington, Jan. 4.—David C. McCurtain was appointed by President Taft as principal chief of the Choctaw Nation in Oklahoma. The new appointee suceeds his father

RUSSIAN CITY IS WIPED OUT

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE DESTROYS ENTIRE TOWN.

Nearly Every House in Vyerny (23,000 Population) Razed or Damaged.

Tashkent, Asiatic Russia, Jan. 5.—A violent earthquake was felt in various parts of Russian Turkestan from 4 to 5:30 a. m.

Many buildings were destroyed and there were a number of fatalities, though the loss of life is not yet known.

Great fissures opened the ground.

Practically all of the stores and residences in Vyerny, the capital of the territory of Somioyetchenski, were destroyed or damaged. The city has a population of 23,000.

Communication in the disturbed district is interrupted.

Tashkent, capital of the government of Russian Turkestan, is an important trade center with a population of about 157,000. Vyerny, which appears to have suffered most, is a fortified town situated at the northern foot of the Trans-Illi-Ala-Tau, about 50 miles from the river Illi and about the same distance from Lake Issyk-Kul. It was badly damaged by an earthquake in 1897.

GRAIN RATE COMPLAINT FILED.

Milwaukee Discriminated Against in Favor of Duluth.

Washington, Jan. 5.—On behalf of Milwaukee, as a grain center the Chamber of Commerce instituted a proceeding against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway and the Northwestern carriers, declaring discrimination was being practiced against Milwaukee, in the matter of freight rates on grain from points in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota. Substantially more favorable rates from the points of origin are given by the railroads to Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., than to Milwaukee, the complaint to the interstate commerce commission charges.

All three of these places trans-ship the grain to eastern destinations by water. The petition of the Chamber of Commerce urges that under the law, that city is entitled to as low rates on grain from the points named as Duluth and Superior, and the commission is requested to readjust the grain rates on a basis of equality.

BANDITS ENTER MAIL CAR.

N. P. North Coat Limited Is Boarded Two Highwaymen.

Auburn, Wash., Jan. 5.—Two masked highwaymen entered the mail car on the North Coast limited train No. 2 on the Northern Pacific just as the train was leaving Seattle.

As soon as the first robber got in the door he levelled his gun at Mail Clerk Harry O. Clark and ordered him to throw up his hands. He fired before Clark could obey the command. As Clark fell, the two robbers turned their attention to the other clerk, C. E. Reid, and covered him.

Both Clark and Reid were then locked up in a closet at the end of the car where they were not discovered until the train reached Auburn.

Mail pouches and registered mail were scattered about the car, but it was impossible to ascertain what had been taken.

Aeroplanes Burned.

Breslau, Jan. 5.—Fire destroyed three areoplanes and five hangars at the Wilhelmsruhe aerodrome. The benzine tanks exploded. Incediarism is suspected.

Wind and Snow Over Chicago.

Commodore McCrackin, U. S. N., Dies.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 5.—Commodore Alexander McCrackin, U. S. N., retired, died in his home after a short illness. He was 60 years old.

U. S. Pensioner Hanged in Ireland.

Cork, Ireland, Jan. 5.—William Scanlan, an American army pensioner, was hanged for the murder of his sister-in-law in 1909.

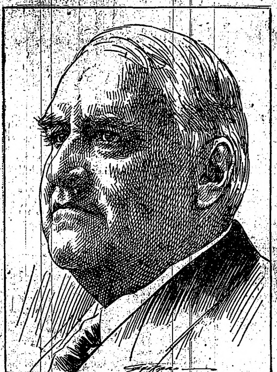
WEST VIRGINIA SENATOR ANSWERS LAST ROLL CALL.



STEPHEN B. ELKINS.
United States Senator from West Virginia.

SENATOR ELKINS PASSES AWAY

BLOOD POISONING AND COMPLICATION OF DISEASES ARE CAUSE OF DEATH.

CONSCIOUS ALMOST TO THE LAST

Entire Family Is at Bedside—Was Harrison's Secretary of War—Had Notable Career.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia, died at his home here. At his bedside were his wife, his daughter, Katherine, and four sons, David, Richard, Stephen and Blaine, and the physicians. Death was due to septicaemia or blood poisoning. He was conscious until within a half hour of death.

Senator Elkins became ill in the early summer at his home at Elkins, W. Va. He was kept in strict confinement there and only the members of his immediate family were allowed to see him. On Nov. 9, when he was removed to Washington in a private car, physicians declared that he might be able to take his seat in the senate at the opening of congress. Though no funeral arrangements have been announced, it is probable that the senator will be buried at Elkins, W. Va.

During a large part of the time of his service in the senate, Mr. Elkins was chairman of the important committee on interstate commerce. As the head of this great committee he had charge of the Hepburn rate regulation bill of 1907 and of the administration bill of 1910. A railroad builder and owner himself, Mr. Elkins had intimate knowledge of the questions affected by this legislation.

He was the champion of the bill of 1910 and as such fought for its passage for many months.

Mr. Elkins was as popular on the Democratic as on the Republican side of the senate chamber. Nor could he be persuaded to deny to any one an opportunity to be heard, no matter how great the delay or inconvenience caused by granting all demands for time. Hence, when, after the passage of the bill, the late Senator Dolliver, who had been one of the chief critics of the measure, warmly complimented Mr. Elkins, there was universal approval of his commendatory remarks.

Mr. Elkins took a special interest in legislation which dealt with the tariff, the railroad regulation and the development of the natural waterways.

He was one of the first movers for an investigation into the high cost of living, which was inaugurated during the second session of the sixty-first congress.

Some Achievements.

Among the achievements standing to Senator Elkins' credit is the passage of the Elkins anti-trust bill soon after he entered the senate, legislation providing for many important improvements of the Ohio, Kanawha and Big Sandy rivers; innumerable amendments to the railroad bills of 1907 and 1910 and many modifications of the tariff. He it was who first suggested the use of the corps of engineers of the army in building the Panama canal.

Mr. Elkins was born in Ohio in 1841. While still very young he went with his father's family to Missouri. He was one of the first graduates from the University of Missouri and as early as 1864 went to New Mexico, where he lived for a number of years, becoming in succession attorney general, United States district attorney, territorial senator and delegate in congress from that territory.

While serving as delegate in congress Mr. Elkins married the eldest daughter of Henry Gassaway Davis, then senator from West Virginia. Soon after his marriage he established his home in that state, and there he built up a great fortune, largely thru the development of the resources of the state. He came into possession of extensive coal and timber areas and was most active in putting their products on the market. He also assisted in building many railroads in and out of the state.

The Republican party of West Virginia owes much to Mr. Elkins. He was chairman of the Republican national committee which elected Benjamin Harrison to the presidency, and became Mr. Harrison's secretary of war. His first election to the senate took place in 1895.

While in Missouri Senator Elkins as a school teacher had for pupils, Jim and Cole Younger, who afterwards became notorious as the most daring of the band of outlaws led by the James brothers. They later rescued him from a squad of Confederates, who were about to hang the future senator as a spy.

When, after the close of the war, the Youngers were captured and sent to prison on a life sentence for robbing a bank in Minnesota, Mr. Elkins recalled their kindness to him. He exerted his influence to procure their release and ultimately succeeded.

Senator Elkins' friends believe that the recent publicity connecting the name of his daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, with that of the duke of the Abruzzi, was a source of much embarrassment to him, but if such was the case, he never indicated it by his manner.

Hale's Successor Nominated.

Augusta, Maine, Jan. 5.—Charles F. Johnson, of Waterville, Democratic candidate for governor of Maine in 1892 and again in 1894, and a prominent lawyer was nominated on the first ballot at the Democratic caucus to succeed United States Senator Eugene Hale on March 4, next. As the Maine legislature is safely Democratic, his nomination is regarded as equivalent to an election. He will be the first Democrat to represent Maine in the senate since 1847.

Deadlock in New Hampshire Senate.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 5.—Republican members of the incoming senate adjourned after casting thirty-six ballots in an unsuccessful effort to break a deadlock for president.

Chas. H. Woodman, Author, Is Dead.

New York, Jan. 5.—Charles H. Woodman, author of books for children, is dead at his home here. He was 63 years old and a veteran of the Civil war. His most popular works were "Boys and Girls of the American Revolution" and "Defense of Turkey."

D. J. Cameron Dies in La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 5.—D. J. Cameron, retired millionaire railway contractor, died, aged 83. Mr. Cameron had large holdings in real estate, banks and other corporations.

"Drys" Make Gains in Ontario.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5.—Revised returns on the local option vote in Ontario show twenty-six municipalities to the "dry" column. The 816 municipalities of the province are now divided as follows: No liquor license, 436; license, 380.

Thirty-Eight Horses Burned.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Thirty-eight horses were burned to death, ten families rendered homeless and seven buildings destroyed by a fire which originated in a livery stable.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Duluth. — Hibbing reported 20 below. Virginia reported 28 below. Sixteen below was the record in Duluth.

Duluth. — Loren Olson, a pioneer business man of Virginia, died at the age of 50. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

St. Paul.—Judge David F. Simpson, of Minneapolis, took his seat on the state supreme bench, succeeding Justice T. D. O'Brien, of St. Paul.

Waverly.—Mrs. Mary McNeeley, an old settler of Woodland, Wright county, died at the home of her son in Woodland. Mrs. McNeeley was born in County Mayo, Ireland, in 1808.

Ocean Park. — Francis A. Seeley, former adjutant general of Minnesota, is dead in the Soldier's home near here aged 78 years. He served one term as a member of the Minnesota legislature.

Hibbing.—Mike Starkovich is dead as the result of trying to carry a keg of nails upstairs. In some manner he slipped and fell with his load, fracturing his skull. He died a few hours later.

Winona.—The attempt of villagers of Lewiston to prevent the Mount Vernon Farmers' Telephone company from entering has failed as a result of a decision handed down by the district court.

St. Paul. — The Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban Railway company, one of the Twin City rapid transit corporations has filed articles, increasing its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Marshall.—Andrew S. Dokken, of Swede Prairie, sold one load of poultry which brought him $117.47. The load consisted of 706 pounds of turkeys and 277 pounds of chickens. They were marketed at Minneota.

Fergus Falls. — Morton G. Tryon, a furniture dealer at Morris filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court in this city placing his assets at $1,844.08 of which $300 is exempt, and his liabilities at $4,620.18.

Minneapolis.—"Checkers," one of the most emphatic hits of the past seven seasons, will be seen at the Bijou the week of January 8th. The company is a big and capable one it is safe to say that no stronger organization will be seen at the Bijou this season.

Two Harbors.—Whitney Bros. & Hill of Superior have been awarded the contract for the concrete work and driving the piling for the rebuilding of No. 1 ore dock for the Duluth & Iron Range railway here and will commence work at once. Their bid was nearly $250,000. The steel work contract will be let later and will cost over $1,000,000.

Little Falls.—John Stumpf, a former state legislator, died at his home in Pierz, this county, of Bright's disease. Mr. Stumpf was 73 years old. He had been a member of the Minnesota legislature, having been elected to the lower house in 1877. He was also a member of the board of county commissioners for Morrison county from 1883 to 1895. Seven children survive.

Minneapolis.—University of Minnesota diplomas given the 1911 graduating class will be signed by Dr. Cyrus Northrop as president, although Dr. George Edgar Vincent will be active president at the time of graduation in June. The seniors petitioned Dr. Northrop to sign the diplomas, as he will be president for the greater part of the college year and he granted their request.

Mankato.—Thomas Fox of this city has been appointed to a cadetship at the military academy at West Point, and has been ordered to report at Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, Jan. 10, to take the entrance examination. Fox is 19 years old and graduate of the Mankato high school. His brother, Milo Fox, was appointed to the United States naval academy at Annapolis two or three years ago, and is making a record there.

East Grand Forks.—Fred McGrath, aged 21 years, fell thirty-five feet from the top of a pier of the Northern Pacific bridge, breaking bones about the chest and receiving other serious injuries that may cause his death. He was standing on a beam twelve inches wide engaged in assisting another workman in handling a heavy piece of lumber, when he missed his footing. The family is prominent locally.

St. Paul.—The first inland wireless telegraph station in the West has been opened at 377 Robert street. Six strands of fine wire, 250 feet in length, have been stretched between two towers, one on the roof of the Chamber of Commerce building at Sixth and Robert streets; the other two towers, one on the roof of the on the roof of the building in which the receiving and dispatching instruments and coils are placed.

Duluth.—Clifford Schaefer, of Ely, son of John Schaefer of that city, a lad of 15, was induced to drink whisky by a woodsman he and two other boys met while hunting, and as a result the Schaefer boy became lost and froze to death. The authorities are seeking the woodsman.

New York, N. Y. — A. Homer Byington, once part owner of the New York Sun, and a friend of Abraham Lincoln, died in the home of his son in Flushing, L. I. He was 84 years old and for 60 years was editor of the Norwalk, Conn., Gazette.

ADMIRAL DEWEY and STAFF

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S FAVORITE CORNER

ADMIRAL DEWEY, head of the United States navy, has an especial reason for feeling in a festive mood during the merry Yuletide season. It brings him a double holiday. Not merely, you understand, the dual celebrations of Christmas and New Year's day, but another one besides. The explanation of surprise of red letter days in the admiral's calendar at this season of the year is found in the circumstance that the birthday anniversary of the hero of Manila bay occurred on December 26, the day after Christmas. Moreover, the Admiral's friends make as much of the birthday anniversary as they do of the general holiday that just precedes it.

The highest ranking officer of our naval service is quite in conceit with the idea of having his birthday anniversary fall in the same week as the holiday of gifts. If he had any say in the matter it is doubtful if he would change things, for he has found that far from being overshadowed by the more generally observed holiday, as many persons might expect, his holiday actually takes on an extra significance by reason of close proximity to the general holiday.

For one thing it affords Admiral Dewey exceptional opportunities to see old friends, and the admiral is a man of strong friendships. Ever since his return from the Philippines he has made his home at Washington—which is the common headquarters for retired as well as active officers of the service. And those officers who do not live there make it a rendezvous, particularly at holiday seasons, and thus it comes about that there were in the capital at Christmas week an exceptional number of friends and acquaintances of the admiral—officers who served with him in the Pacific and elsewhere. Of course they called upon him on his birthday and he met them at social functions during the week.

As for the admiral himself, he lives very quietly these days and he does not introduce many frills in his celebration of his birthday anniversary. On that day, as on every other, he devotes a good share of the late afternoon to a long carriage drive, probably handling the reins himself. Formerly the admiral indulged in a horseback ride as his daily outing, but with advancing years he has almost abandoned this strenuous exercise. In addition to his daily ride he is wont to walk more or less each day, walking to and from his office at the Navy Department Annex building and in this walk, on his birthday, he had as his companion his only son, regarding whom the public has heard so little.

The big event of the day, however, was the admiral's dinner party in the evening. The most prominent men in the nation gathered around the festive board and the president of the United States was a guest. The dinner was prepared by the admiral's famous Chinese cook, who has been with him ever since the stirring days at Manila bay, and who is famous for his appetizing dishes. The informal anniversary banquet—with its gorgeous birthday cake—was served in the dining room of the admiral's present home—the house to which he removed when the dwelling given to him by the nation, in gratitude for the victory of May 1, proved rather too small to enable him to entertain his friends as he desired to.

This dining room is a very imposing apartment, with green wall hangings, heavy carved furniture and a lofty ceiling studded with electric lights. On one of the long walls of this apartment there is arranged the admiral's famous collection of Filipino weapons, including knives, spears, shields and other pieces of decided decorative value. Conspicuous on the opposite wall is a mounted moose head and an ingenious map of the world fashioned from hemp by Filipino weavers. Opening from this room is the breakfast room, which is used by the Deweys for all family and informal dinners.

In some respects the most interesting room in the admiral's home is the "blue room," a sort of combination "den," library and living room. The wall coverings, draperies, etc., are all of brocaded silk in the delicate robin's egg tint, and the upholstery is in harmony with this color scheme. Here are the admiral's reading and writing table and his "favorite corner," containing his lounging chair brought from the Orient and a collection of prized pictures, including original war sketches, autographed photos and other mementoes. Seated here the other day the admiral, who does not look within ten years of his seventy-three years, said: "I relish the little birthday celebrations I have enjoyed in recent years, all the more because as a boy my birthday anniversary never meant much to me. My relatives were wont to combine it with Christmas in so far as gift giving was concerned. I do not recall that, as a boy, I ever received a birthday present and I thought it pretty hard luck then."

UNIFORMS IN THE NAVY

Both the officers and the crews of the older navies used to dress pretty much as they pleased. In Nelson's time an attempt was made to get the officers arrayed with some sort of system, but the sailors wore whatever they could get hold of.

That the dominant colors in dress in the British navy (and resulting in the navies of other countries) were determined by a woman's influence is shown in English records. The Hon. John Forbes, admiral of the fleet, said:

"Adverting to the establishment of naval uniforms, I was summoned to attend the duke of Bedford and, being introduced into an apartment surrounded with various dresses, my opinion was asked as to the most appropriate. I said red and blue, as they were our national colors.

"'No,' replied his grace, 'the king (George II.) has determined otherwise, for having seen my duchess riding in the park a few days ago in a habit of blue faced with white the dress took his majesty's fancy, who has appointed it for the uniform of the royal navy.'"

While wearing a uniform himself, Nelson was jealous in guarding against further encroachments on the sailor's prerogative in the matter of dress. About the time of the French revolution epaulets began to be worn in continental navies; at first only on one shoulder, according to the officer's rank. In 1783 Nelson, while in France, wrote to his father:

"Two noble English captains are here. They wear fine epaulets, for which I think them great coxcombs. You may suppose I hold them a little cheap for putting on any part of a Frenchman's uniform."

It was only a few years after this, however, that Nelson himself was wearing an epaulet, not only on a single shoulder, but on both.

In the United States navy uniforms were prescribed from the outset—but with the very wise clause, inserted as a parenthesis, "if they can be procured." By a resolution of the continental board of admiralty captains were to have a coat of blue cloth with red lapels, slashed cuffs, a stand-up collar, flat yellow buttons, blue breeches and a red waistcoat with yellow lace.

Officers of the marines were to have a uniform consisting of a green coat faced with white, round cuffs, slashed sleeves and pockets with buttons around the cuffs, a silver epaulet on the left shoulder, skirts of the coat turned back (like the uniform of the continental soldier), buttons for the facings, white waistcoat and breeches edged with green, and black gaiters and garters. The marines were to wear green shirts.

But it is highly improbable that these prescribed uniforms were ever worn except in cases of great ceremony or where the officer was sitting for his portrait.

The facts in the case seem to be that John Paul Jones, Nicholas Biddle, John Barry and other nautical heroes of the revolution achieved their greatness in red or blue flannel shirts and in any other clothing that came handy; doubtlessly patched by the ship's tailor, not too neatly, with sail cloth, by the assistance of a marline spike and spun yarn.—Bluejacket.

Old Man Had a Good Memory

At a recent dinner Richard Croker told a story of an Irishman who, making his fortune in this country, thought to re-visit his old home in Ireland.

As he strolled about the little place where he was born, it seemed to him that things had not changed much since his departure for America. He even observed an old chap, named Malachi Coughlin, sitting outside his cottage, just as he had done in the old days. It occurred to him that Malachi must have attained the age of one hundred by now. Going up to the old fellow he said:

"Forty years ago?" queried Malachi. "Who bo ye?"

"Don't you remember Micky Doolin? I'm he," said the returned one.

"Micky Doolin as used to live on the hill, behind Conley's saloon?"

"The same Micky Doolin," replied the newcomer pompously, but with an air of suspicion.

"Oh, ye are, are ye?" suddenly yelled the aged Celt. "Then take that, ye spalpeen," accompanying the remark with a blow on Doolin's nose that brought blood quickly.

"It's what I owe ye for the rotten turnip ye fetched me in the eye the day ye left for Ameriky," said the old fellow. "I suppose ye'd forgotten that, eh. Take me word for it, I haven't!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

If you had an eye behind you, you might see more detraction at your heels than fortunes before you.—Shakespeare.

INDUSTRY AND MECHANICS

LOCKING PINCER IS LATEST

Little Tool That Locks When Closed Requires Considerable Force to Open Just Invented.

A pair of pincers that lock when they are closed and that require considerable force to open have been invented by a California man, and men who use pincers that need a tight grip will appreciate the implement. The jaws are locked by dovetail tongues that enter sockets at their inner ends. Nor is this tool only to be used as pincers. On either side of the jaws are a hammer and punch, and the dividers are removably attached and are held in place by thumb screws so that they can be taken out at any time when they are likely to be bent by the work to which the tool is being used or to scratch the user. Midway up the handle, too, is the rule by which the spacing of the dividers can be regulated. Going back to the pincers it should be mentioned that their jaws are so curved that when closed they surround a circular opening by means of which pipes or other round bodies may be accommodated, though, of course, the jaws will not lock if they do not meet at the outer ends.

ATTACH WHEELS TO SLEIGH

Conveyance That Is Handy When One Is Caught Miles From Home After Snow Is Melted.

Any person who has been sleighing up to the eleventh hour and got caught miles from home after the snow had melted will appreciate the invention of a Minnesota man here described. This invention is nothing less than a wheel attachment for sleighs which enables the driver to get home without difficulty, even if the snow is all gone. Two pairs of wheels are attached to the body of the sleigh, with the front and rear crank axles mounted on pivots. A bar running through the two axles is adjustably connected to the rear support of the sleigh body. A strong spring keeps the wheels clear of the ground when they are not in use, but when needed they are let down, and the connecting bar locked so that the sleigh rests on the wheels and the runners are several inches above the ground. It takes only a few minutes to make the change and the vehicle may be used comfortably in places where the conditions of the road vary.

Utilize Manufacturing Waste.

To utilize manufacturing waste is in some cases a serious problem, and a committee of the American Chemical society, under the chairmanship of G. Alleman, Swarthmore, Pa., has undertaken a solution. Manufacturers are to report the waste available. Each kind will be given scientific investigation, and it is expected that materials hitherto lost will become economical new sources of chemical elements and of various profitable new products.

Non-Inflammable Celluloid.

A noninflammable celluloid has been patented by Prof. A. Gautier. The chief feature of the process is the employment of an ether silicate instead of pure ether, which is ordinarily used with alcohol as the solvent in the agglutination of nitrocellulose fibers by means of camphor.

New Manhattan Bridge.

The total length of the new Manhattan bridge connecting the boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn is 6,855 feet. The total cost of the bridge, including real estate, is $15,833,600. The weight of the cables is 6,300 tons.

Memorandum Pads.

For the convenience of frequent users of memorandum pads a simple attachment has been patented to hold a pad on the wrist, but enabling it to be readily swung out of the way on the back of the arm.

TEMPERED COPPER PUZZLES

Recent archaeological investigations in the Babylon territory have been made in the lowest stratum of the ruins of several ancient cities, notably Nippur, Bismya and Telloh, and with the excavations the old puzzle of tempered copper has once more been brought to the attention of students and workers in metal. The implements which were found and the jewelry are about 6,000 years old, and just three metals seem to have been known at that time—silver, rare gold in abundance, and copper for all practical as well as ornamental purposes.

Bronze was quite unknown, but the remarkable part of the copper implements is that they seemed to be so tempered and hardened that the jewel cutters and cameo engravers were able to cut the hardest substances as delicately and intricately as a modern artisan can with all his appliances. A careful analyzation of the copper tools gives no evidence of an alloy, and the lost process remains a mystery to moderns.

The jewelry discovered, including gold filled hair pins, necklaces and numerous beads, copper rings of all sorts, and pins and gold rosets set with stones, is beautifully designed and proves that the smiths of that most remote age were skilful and artistic workers.

Even such implements as scythes and other implements of agriculture as well as weapons have been found made of pure copper and hardened to wear and cut like steel.

COT FOR TRAVELING INFANT

Can Be Hung Over Back of Car Seat—Permits Child to Sleep in Peace and Comfort.

The problem with what to do with baby on a long railroad ride has been solved by a California man. He has devised a collapsible cot, which can be hung on the back of the seat in front and in which the child can sleep in peace and comfort—for himself, his parents and the other passengers. This cot or berth consists of a bottom to support a tiny mattress and hinged sides to fold down upon it when not in use and open up for supports when the cot is in use. Around the whole affair goes a metal hanger frame, from which arise two U-shaped hooks, which hook over the back of the seat ahead and support the little berth without interfering with the occupants of the forward seat. As this article takes up little room when folded, it will be found a blessing by mothers who have to take infants on long trips, as it can be adjusted in a few moments and the little one allowed to take his rest without encumbering his parent.

Hardened Steel Dies.

Hardened steel dies are produced by electrolytic etching in a recently patented German process. A die-block of hard steel is first made, and this is placed in contact with a plaster of Paris reverse model made conducting by saturation with sal ammoniac. With the special dynamo, with a capacity of 30 amperes at 1 to 15 volts, the die-block is etched to a depth of one-sixteenth inch in four or five hours.

TO FIT THE EPICURE

DISHES THAT WOULD HAVE PLEASED LUCULLUS HIMSELF.

Austrian Goulash Never Dreamt of in Ancient Gourmand's Philosophy, Nor East Indian Salmon and Oriental Meat Balls.

Austrian Goulash.—Boil a calf's head in salted water until tender; then take the meat from the bones. Fry two fair sized onions and two white potatoes, cut in dice pieces; stir in a scant tablespoonful of flour and some of the water in which the veal head has been cooked. Let these boil up, then add the head meat, one teaspoonful of paprika, a full teaspoonful of butter and salt to taste; let all cook together 15 minutes and serve with dry boiled rice.

Salmon, East India Style.—Slice one pound of boiled salmon. Then heat one ounce of butter in a stewpan; add two small onions chopped fine, one ounce of cocoanut and two hard boiled eggs chopped well. Let these cook a few minutes, then put in half a pint of cream, letting this boil up once. Put in the fish, one teaspoonful of curry powder, paprika and salt to taste. As curry is already hot, be careful and stir in two tablespoonfuls of boiled rice. Serve very hot on toast.

Oriental Meat Balls.—Chop one pound of raw beef; season with salt, pepper, a little fresh celery, onion and parsley chopped fine. Mix in two beaten eggs, one-half cup of stale bread together. Roll into balls, sprinkle these with flour and cook in hot butter or beef drippings until done. Serve on a bed of boiled rice and pour over all a highly seasoned tomato sauce.

Jewish Soup.—This is made with dumplings which are called crebchen. Beat three eggs with two tablespoonfuls of water and a pinch of salt; add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Work well with flour, and roll out very thin; then fold double, cut into square pieces and fill each with cooked minced veal or chicken. Sprinkle the filling with chopped parsley and bits of butter; put in the dough squares and fold edges securely. Boil up some good soup stock and when this is ready put in the dumplings and boil till done. Serve all together.

Curried Eggs.—Cut hard boiled eggs in halves; then fry a small onion and one cooking apple, chopped, in butter; add toasted breadcrumbs, cream, curry powder and salt to taste. Then put in the eggs and let them get hot. Serve with fried bits of bread and a parsley garnish.

Veal Souffle, French Style.—Heat two tablespoonfuls of butter and mix in two tablespoonfuls of flour, stirring until smooth; add a cup of milk and let it boil up. Then put in minced veal, parsley, salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Then stir in the yolks of two eggs. Remove from fire and let cool. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth and put them with the meat. Then put the mixture in a buttered dish and bake 20 minutes. Serve piping hot.

Italian Risotto.—Boil one cup of rice in plenty of salted water until soft. Grate Parmesan cheese and cover the rice with it. Let the dish steam in the oven five minutes, then pour over highly-seasoned tomato sauce and serve with fried veal chops.

Sago Pudding, Baked.

One and one-half pints of milk, three tablespoons of sago, rind of half a lemon, three ounces of sugar, four eggs, 1½ ounces of butter, grated nutmeg, good pie crust. Put the milk and lemon rind into a stewpan by the until the milk is flavored. Strain, mix with it the sago and sugar, and simmer for 15 minutes. Let the mixture cool a little, and stir into it the eggs well beaten and the butter. Line the edges of a pie dish with a good crust, pour in the pudding and bake from 45 minutes to one hour, or more, if the oven is slow. Serve with stewed prunes.

Soft Gingerbread.

One cup molasses, one cup butter, one cup pulverized sugar, one teaspoonful ginger, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful cloves, one teaspoonful nutmeg; all of the above should be pulverized; the yolks of three eggs. Beat these ingredients together, stir in three cupfuls of flour alternately with a cupful of sour cream. Dissolve one teaspoonful of baking soda in the cream; add the whites of the three eggs, beaten light. Bake one hour.

Surprise Dates.

Select some nice large dates and remove the stones. Fill some of the cavities with chopped candied cherries; some with chapped raisins, figs, nuts and so forth; try to have the variety of fillings as great as possible. Fondant with different flavorings can also be used. Dip some of these stuffed dates in chocolate fondant, some in different colored fondants and some in plain white. Every date eaten then will prove to be a surprise and delight.

To Remove Mildew.

If kid gloves have become spotted with mildew they should be placed in a bottle with a lump of ammonia about the size of a walnut; cork the bottle tightly and leave them for a short time, when the mildew spots will quite disappear. If left too long, however, the ammonia will rot the stitches; so they must be watched. An air-tight box will do equally well as a bottle.

Drying Celery Tops.

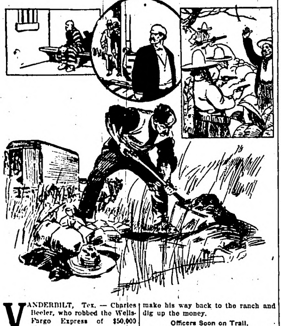
Celery is some times very scarce, and a very good plan is to save the tops of the celery this time of the year.

Cut and wash the nice leaves, tie with a cord and hang up to dry. When dry put them in a paper bag and save for seasoning soups or dressings.

Hard Sauce.

Beat less than one-quarter of a pound of butter with seven or eight tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, adding by degrees one wineglass of sherry. It should be white and light. When serving pile on a plate and dust nutmeg over the top.

A THIEF WHO HID $47,000 AND FORGOT THE HIDING PLACE



VANDERBILT, Tex. — Charles Beeler, who robbed the Wells-Fargo Express of $50,000 eleven years ago, is running an engine on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad. He is apparently suffering no pangs of conscience over his crime. The penalty which he paid for taking the money was five years in the penitentiary, the court giving him that sentence on a plea of guilty.

What became of the $50,000 is a mystery to the Wells-Fargo people and the detectives who have been searching for it ever since, says the New York Press. It is known that Beeler never has reaped any benefit from the stolen money. From the time he left the doors of the penitentiary until a short time ago there was not a day that he was not shadowed by detectives. At last the express company is said to be convinced that the man lost or misplaced the money. Now the company has given up all hope of ever obtaining possession of it.

The story of this robbery and the events relating to it form one of the most remarkable in the criminal annals of the country. Beeler was a driver of a Wells-Fargo & Co. wagon in San Antonio and had been in the employ of the company several years. One dismal evening in the winter of 1899 packages of currency and bags of gold amounting to $50,000 were counted out to Beeler by the local cashier in the San Antonio office of the express company, with instructions to haul the money in his wagon safe to the Southern Pacific Railroad station and deliver it to the pay car of that road. Local money deliveries of this kind had been made many times, but the express agent always accompanied the driver. It happened on this particular day that the local agent was not in the office, and Beeler drove off alone with the money.

Succumbed to Temptation.

He says he had no sooner left the office than the thought flashed through his mind that here was his chance to get a fortune. He did some rapid thinking while his horse was traveling toward the railroad station, and he decided to make way with the money. It was a stake worth playing for, even should he be captured and made to serve a prison sentence. He turned the horses' heads in an opposite direction from the station and drove through the alleys and quiet streets until he reached the outskirts of the city. Darkness had settled down and he drove the horses and wagon out into the country for a mile and entered a mesquite-covered thicket. Tying the horses to a tree, he soon had the safe open and the $50,000 in his possession. It was a comparatively easy matter to carry the currency, but the gold coins made a weighty bundle. In order to prevent his trail being followed Beeler started away from the wagon on foot. He headed south, Mexico being his objective point. He claims that when he reached a ranch a few miles below San Antonio he buried all of the money except $3,000 in bills. He says that he placed the gold in tin cans and carefully marked the spot where he hid it. It was his plan to use the $3,000 to make his escape into Mexico and to live there for a time until the excitement over the robbery had subsided, when he would secretly make his way back to the ranch and dig up the money.

Officers Soon on Trail.

Having relieved himself of the gold, Beeler purchased a horse at the ranch and started off on a wild ride to gain the other side of the Rio Grande and the mountains of Mexico. Within an hour after Beeler left the office with the money the express company had spread the alarm, but it was not until along toward noon next day that the abandoned horses and wagon were found in the brush. Meanwhile a dozen detectives were busy, and the peace officers along the border were notified by wire to keep a lookout for the fugitive. The trail of Beeler was picked up at the ranch south of San Antonio, where he claims to have buried most of the money. G. A. Taft of Houston, state superintendent of the Wells-Fargo, and one of the company's best detectives, Eugene Yglasias of Laredo, were in hot pursuit. Between the ranch and the Rio Grande crossing Beeler wore out three horses. The Mexican officials on the border kept a sharp lookout. Beeler says he thought it was all up with him when one of these officers suddenly came upon him and, drawing down on him with a gun, ordered him to surrender. Beeler bribed the officer with $100 and not only was released, but was directed to the shortest cut into the distant mountains.

Captured by Brigands.

In the vicinity of Lampazos, Mexico, Beeler fell into the hands of a band of brigands who made their rendezvous in caves in the mountains near Bustamantte, about 175 miles south of the point where he had crossed the Rio Grande. They robbed him of all his money, except a few cents. Circulars, printed in Spanish, describing the fugitive, had been widely circulated over northern Mexico. Through this means the bandit chief learned that their American captive was wanted for stealing $50,000. The brigands made a demand upon Beeler for the money, threatening to kill him if he did not turn it over to them. In order to save his life, he told them he had buried all of it except that which they had found upon his person and taken away from him. When their threats became pronounced he agreed to escort the robbers to the spot where he had hidden the money. A start on the return journey of more than 300 miles was made and the little party had reached the Texas side of the Rio Grande when they learned that posses of officers were out all over the border country searching for Beeler. They escorted their prisoner back to their mountain caves to await a more favorable opportunity for hunting for the buried treasure.

Apprehension in Mexico.

Meanwhile, Mr. Taft and Mr. Yglasias had traced Beeler. Going to Gen. Bernardo Reyes, governor of the state of Nueve Leon, Mr. Taft asked his assistance in capturing the fugitive. Governor Reyes sent for the alcalde of the Bustamante district and told him that unless he caught the missing American robber within 36 hours his office would be declared vacant. The alcalde sent out men to scour every part of his district, and Beeler was captured in the camp of the brigands.

Waiving extradition, Beeler was hurried across the border. He made what purported to be a confession to Mr. Taft and Mr. Yglasias and agreed to go to the spot where he had buried the plunder and turn the money over to the express company's representatives. The night following their arrival in San Antonio with the prisoner they took him secretly from jail and drove to the ranch. Beeler searched around for the gold, but no trace of it could be found. The disgusted officers took him back to jail, where he remained until his trial and sentence to prison for five years.

Unable to Locate Money.

Wells Fargo & Co. sued him and obtained judgment for the amount of the stolen money. During the time that he was in the penitentiary detectives kept a constant watch on Beeler's wife, thinking he might have turned the stolen money over to her. When he stepped out of prison two detectives met him and accompanied him to San Antonio. Beeler worked at odd jobs for a time, and then obtained a place as fireman on a locomotive on the Trinity & Brazos railroad. A detective rode on every train that his engine pulled. Beeler was watched day and night. He went to the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico railroad from the Trinity & Brazos Valley, but they followed him. It is now six years since he left the penitentiary, and until a few weeks ago there never was a moment in all that period that he was not being spied upon by detectives. It is said the express company is at last convinced that Beeler's story of some one finding the buried money and getting away with it is true. As a locomotive engineer this former express robber is performing good and faithful service.

WANT ORLEANS TO BE KING

Camelots Du Roi Are a Riotous Crowd of Royalists and Frequently Create Excitement in Paris.

The offshoot of the Orleanist party, calling themselves the "Camelots du Roi," which every now and then get up a little excitement in Paris by assaulting ministers, would seem to be the French equivalent of our suffragettes, says an English paper.

They are supposed to be agitating for the overthrow of the French republic and the return of the Duc d'Orleans as king, but it is very doubtful indeed whether this sort of thing is likely to help the duke up the steps of a throne.

The society is composed of all sorts and conditions of men and women, from members of the old French nobility down to waiters and artisans. The Marquise de Vasselot de Regue is a prominent member, and so is Count Bonin de Castellane.

The marquise is one of the "martyrs" of the cause. A few months ago she was awarded five days' imprisonment for "the use of insulting terms" and for riotous behavior at a royalist demonstration.

Nobody was more pleased than the marquise herself at the sentence. She was sentenced during her absence from Paris, but she promptly returned and was presented with sheaves of flowers by admiring royalists as she entered the prison.

The "hawkers" generally confine themselves to "riotous behavior," occasionally indulging in special little excitement, like the attempt of Mattis, a waiter, to pull M. Fallieres' beard, "because he would make him look so ridiculous."

Another of their little attempts to reinstate the Duc d'Orleans on the throne of France was perpetrated one dark night, when the conspirators sallied forth with pots of paint, and Paris woke up next morning, to find that a number of statues, erected to the memory of senators and other harmless folk, had been daubed with brilliant coats of red paint.

Such performances have, in fact, made the duke appear not a little ridiculous at times, and a few months ago he was moved to declare in an interview that "these tactics do more harm than good."

Accuracy of Unaimed Bullets.

Unless you have considerable experience with firearms you may discharge a small caliber rifle a hundred times at a target and never put a mark on it. You may fire one of the trifling little 22s direct into a fleeing rabbit's carcass and he'll run away with the bullet and waggle his ears at you derisively. But let a living man come anywhere near you when you're playing with the otherwise harmless gun, and you'll not only hit him every time but you'll inevitably find a vital spot and lay him low the very first shot.

If some wise student of trajectories and ballistics and other mysteries of gunnery could puzzle out the principle that underlies this phenomena he would add something to the world's knowledge that would preserve his name for the admiration of generations to come.

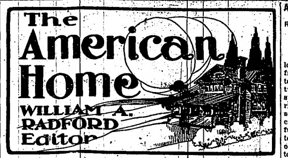
WILLIAM A. RADFORD Editor



Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Home building is pretty apt to be a matter of sentiment, especially for young people planning their first house. They always have the advice of a good many loving friends, not to mention the efforts of the real estate dealers, to the effect that to acquire a house by easy monthly payments is far greater business wisdom than to pay rent. Yet, no matter how strong and logical such arguments may be, the fact remains that it is sentiment that has the greatest influence in making them decide to build.

The joy and satisfaction of actually owning a plot of land and a snug little dwelling; the magic influence of the word "home," these are the things that seem important.

Still, castles in the air have to be brought down to earth before they can be built. It is a great pleasure to dream of having a fine home and to make plans for all the luxuries of home building that sentiment might inspire; but young people can't afford to really build in that way. It is right to start as soon as possible to build a home, but don't think that it has to be a mansion. Love in a cottage is best, especially in the early years, for there the responsibilities are less, the work of housekeeping is slight, and the cost, both for the house itself and for its upkeep and management, is within reach.

There are so many urgent uses for money in these days that every one should be interested in planning and building a house as economically as possible. There are some places where it is good to economize, other places where economy is very shortsighted, and it is a strange thing that the inexperienced builders usually pick out those features to economize on where the saving of a few dollars in the first cost will result in hundreds of dollars of added expense throughout the life of the building.

An instance of this is the heating plant. One of the first parts of a dwelling to be slighted, if any economizing is to be done, is usually the heating plant. Competition is so keen between the heating contractors themselves that they have got into the habit of figuring the furnace size just as small as possible so as to keep the amount of their bid down. Yet, even after that, the owner in his shortsightedness often induces the heating man to put in a still smaller size furnace, so as to save $10 or $15 on the job. Really the safe way is always to insist on having a size larger than the furnace contractor recommends. A furnace of good size will heat a house easily without crowding the fire, and besides heating the house satisfactorily burns less coal than the small size furnace crowded hard to heat the building during cold weather.

The furnace is just one instance of the false economy that is often practiced. The plastering is often slighted in much the same way, and when it comes to the painting of the house, both interior and exterior, too frequently poor materials are used because they can be had from some unscrupulous paint dealer who claims they are "just as good," at a saving of $15 or $20 on the entire job.

These are economies pertaining to the quality and amount of materials used that are very shortsighted. Real economy in home building comes through selecting the proper design for the building. In a dwelling, such as is illustrated herewith for instance, practically $300 is saved by using the gambrel roof coming down low almost to the first story instead of having the walls go straight up to a full two-story height with a gable roof attic above. Three hundred dollars is a pretty big price to pay for an attic, which has very little use, except to store away old furniture in, and young people have usually very little of this.

Such a design as this is also economical in that its general outline is very nearly square in form. It is not "cut up" as so many houses are, and the carpenters find such a building much easier to frame and finish and so are able to do the work very much less. At the same time a residence of simple square outline contains a maximum of usable space inside, and if properly laid out the rooms are very convenient and home-like.

So we see that there are real economies which should be considered in home building and some false economies to be avoided. It is sentiment that urges the building of the home to start with, but it is sound business sense that carries the building project to a successful completion.

The advice and counsel of a reliable architect who has made a special study of residence work is invaluable in this connection. The writer has been able to give practical advice to thousainds of home builders in every part of the country that has saved them a great deal of money. In offering the accompanying design, which is estimated to cost $2,200, he feels confident that many helpful ideas, both as to convenient arrangement of the interior and attractive outside appearance may be gained by those who will build the coming year.

Tea in the British Embassy.

Hot bread is served instead of cold sandwiches at the afternoon teas in the British embassy in Washington. Mrs. Brice has set a new fashion in this respect. Steaming milk toast and sweet muffins are always part of the tea in the embassy. Then comes rich plum cake or golden pound cake. Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador, serves her coffee in dull chased brass on hammered brass tables. Her cups are of dull gold porcelain and all the uttensils are of gold. The coffee is "a la Turque," that is, the grain is pulverized and a spoonful is stirred into each cup with boiling water. Then the sugar and cream are added. Cheese sticks and honey cakes are tasty with coffee, followed as they are by creamy cake. On formal occasions the countess and her daughter, Countess Alexandra, serve fruit ices in crystal punch cups.

Bang Goes Altruism.

Because he was too soft hearted to ask his poverty-stricken landlady to buy new rugs for his room, the altruistic young man bought several small rugs and spread them over the floor. Immediately after the next sweeping day she presented a bill for the week's expenditures. Items, room rent, breakfasts, laundry and beating rugs, 25 cents.

"Hello," said the altruistic young man, "what does this mean?"

"Just what it says," she returned. "If folks must cover their floor with extra rugs they'll have to pay for beating 'em, that's all. I can't afford to do it for nothing."

Found after Twenty-Two Years.

Twenty-two years ago the Bohemian poet and dramatist, Emanuel Bozdiech, disappeared from Prague leaving not the slightest clew behind him. He has at last been found in a monastery in the Balkans, where he has been living ever since he dropped out of sight.

AN OLD COLONIAL CAKE

Recipe for Yellow Loaf Said to Have Come From Family of Washington.

An old colonial recipe for yellow loaf cake, said to come originally from the family of George Washington, calls for one cupful of butter, two and a half cupfuls of granulated sugar, six eggs, a cupful of cream or rich milk, one even teaspoonful of soda, two of cream of tartar, four cupfuls of pastry flour and one cupful of seeded raisins. Cream the butter and sugar, then stir in the yolks of the eggs. Add the cream of tartar to the flour and sift them together several times. Add the soda to the milk and stir the mixture into the butter, sugar and yolks. Then beat the whole into the flour and cream of tartar. When smooth add the raisins and finally fold the whites of the eggs, whipped to a very stiff froth, through the batter. Do not stir the cake after the whites are added. Butter a large tube pan and fill it half full. After it has baked and become cold, ice it with a heavy snow white icing that will contrast prettily with the yellow of the cake. Citron sliced in thin strips may be used instead of raisins or in combinations with them.

This confection may be used as a birthday cake and is very attractive for the purpose.

TURPENTINE MOST USEFUL

All Sorts of Ways in Which It Can Be Used About the House.

Turpentine can be used in all sorts of ways. Here are some:

Spirits of turpentine will restore the brilliancy to patent leather. Bags and boots rubbed with a rag moistened with it look almost like new.

A few drops in boxes and cupboards will keep moths away.

If a few drops are added to starch, it will prevent the iron from sticking.

A flannel dipped in hot water sprinkled with turpentine and laid on the part affected will often relieve lumbago and rheumatism.

Turpentine mixed with beeswax makes a good floor polish.

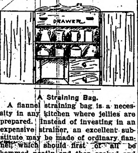
HANDY KITCHEN CABINET



A Straining Bag.

A flannel straining bag is a necessity in any kitchen where jellies are prepared. Instead of investing in an expensive strainer, an excellent substitute may be made of ordinary flannel which should first of all be hemmed neatly and then soaked and wrung out in boiling water. When it is used, it should be laid inside a large bowl and the fruit or liquid jelly poured into it. The four ends of the flannel should then be tied together and a stick passed through the knots. The bag can then be suspended over a bowl by means of a couple of chains and left to drain slowly until all the liquid has passed through. A blanket should be thrown over the top in cold weather, so as to prevent the jelly from setting too soon.

Cream Carrot Soup

Wash, scrape and cut in slices enough carrots to fill a pint bowl. Boil these in a quart of water, slightly salted, till soft enough to rub through a sieve with the potato masher. Mix together in a thick saucepan two tablespoons of flour and one tablespoon of butter, stirring with a wooden spoon till they begin to bubble. Gradually stir into this a pint of milk and the carrot pulp. Add hot water to make one quart of soup. Put the yolk of one egg and a tablespoon of chopped parsley together in the tureen, turn in the hot soup, stir gently, and serve at once.

Indian Pudding.

Take three pints of milk, of which two are scalded, adding three heaping teaspoonfuls of Indian meal wet in a little of the cold milk. Boil a minute or two before removing from fire, then add two-thirds cup molasses, two-thirds cup sugar, two eggs, a little cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake slowly four or five hours. When it has been in the oven about an hour, stir in the remainder of the cold milk and one-half cup pearl tapioca, previously soaked in a little cold water. To be served with cream, either plain or whipped.

Cleaning Bamboo.

Now that bamboo furniture is used so universally a suggestion about cleaning it may not go unnoticed. This cleansing should be done with soap and warm water, to which salt has been added. And the mixture must be put on with a brush and then wiped off with clean rags until the article is dry and glistens. Ordinary laundry soap will remove the natural gloss of the wood and leave it dull if salt is not added.

Nut Bread.

Nut bread—Fifteen cents worth of nuts (pecans), four cups of flour, two cups of milk, three-quarters cup of sugar, one of two eggs, three teaspoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt. Mix all dry things together, then add milk and eggs. Put in pan, let raise for one-half hour. Bake in moderate oven for about one hour.

Care in Using Acid.

As hydrochloric acid has an injurious effect of some fabrics, it is always best to test its action on a corner of the material before treating the stain. Keep all acids away from fire and never pour water on them.

REALLY OPENED THEIR EYES

Rev. Henry R. Rose in the Newark Star tells the story of a young minister who had recently taken charge of a small parish in Vermont. He aspired to greater things and a large field, and in the hope that his reputation would travel beyond the limits of the village to which he had been sent he threw into his sermons all the force and eloquence at his command. He was, however, totally unprepared for what was intended for a compliment, but which was put to him in such a way that it left him in doubt as to the real impression he had made. One Sunday morning, after an especially brilliant effort, he was greeted by an old lady, who was one of the most faithful attendants at all services. Approaching the young minister, she said: "Ah, sir, we do enjoy your sermons so much, they are so instructive. Do you believe it, we never knew what sin was until you came to the parish."

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

CLEARED THE CLOUDED MIND

Hypnotism Cleverly Used to Banish Hallucination That Was of Long Standing.

In the course of his article in the American Magazine, in which he deals with cures by four great medical experts through the means of hypnotism, Mr. H. Addington Bruc describes some of the interesting cases that have come before their attention, notably the following, which was successfully treated by Dr. Pierre Janet, the noted Parisian specialist:

"In another case that gave him far more trouble, the patient suffered from a persistent hallucination of seeing a man in the room with her. Her relatives believed that she was insane, and occasionally manifested suicidal tendencies. But Dr. Janet diagnosed her case as one of hysteria, and with the aid of hypnotism made the interesting discovery that the hallucinatory image which she thought she saw was the figure of a lover who had deserted her several years before. It appeared that every night she thought of her faithless sweetheart, his image rose before her.

"To Janet it seemed a perfectly simple matter to 'suggest' away the hallucination, by impressing upon her, during hypnosis, the idea that when she awoke she would no longer see the imaginary form. But he found that for some reason the suggestion would not 'take.' Day after day he patiently hypnotized her, always without success.

"Finally, he began to suspect that at bottom she did not want to be cured, and that the passionate desire to see her lover if only as a phantasm constituted too strong a 'self-suggestion' to overcome by direct attack." Another method would have to be tried.

"'Very well,' he one day said to her, while she was hypnotized, 'if you want to continue seeing your lover, you shall see him. But, remember, you will always see him with the head and face of a pig.'

"He then brought her out of the hypnotic sleep into her natural state. Five minutes later she uttered a cry, and covered her eyes with her hands.

"'What is the matter?' inquired Janet calmly.

"'It is terrible! Terrible!' she exclaimed. 'I see a man standing in the corner of the room, and his face is like a pig's!'

"'How absurd!' said Janet.

"After this he left her to her own devices, no longer hypnotizing her. For a few days she saw the man with the face of a pig. Gradually the hallucinatory image faded, and at length entirely disappeared, leaving her restored to perfect health. As Dr. Janet afterward explained, the grotesque hallucination which he had succeeded in impressing upon her had brought about a profound revulsion of feeling. Manifestly, she could not love a man with a pig's head. She no longer wanted to see her sweetheart, or to think of him, and in proportion as she ceased to think of him the hallucination disappeared."

GOT IT.

Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Pennsylvania woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two. I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was the coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it.

"One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said:

"'Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee.'

"I said, 'What is Postum?'

"Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since, I began to improve immediately.

"I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink."

Take away the destroyer and put a rebuilder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason."

The legislature convened Tuesday. The house organized by the election of H. H. Dunn as speaker with the "interest" in full control, so the chances for an equitable reapportionment seen mighty small.

United States Senator Clapp is to succeed himself, which is one redeeming feature of the opening work of the legislature. To have turned him down would have been a loss in the halls of congress the state could not afford.

The Pennington county commissioners at their meeting this week awarded the county printing to The Spectator, it being the lowest bidder. The Thief River Falls papers came forward with a proposition for a compromise which would have given them the lion's share of the little proceeds, which was promptly and decisively rejected, and the result was as above stated.

A comparative study of alfalfa in Minnesota, involving cooperative work with farmers in representative sections of the state, is being planned by the agricultural division of the experiment station. As a preliminary step to this investigation, it is desired to get in touch with all who are at present raising alfalfa in Minnesota, even though on a small scale, and with those who have tried it with only partial success or with complete failure. It is hoped that each reader of this notice will kindly send the names and addresses of any who have had, to his knowledge, any experience with the growing of alfalfa in Minnesota, to A. C. Arny, Assistant Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Anthony Park, Minn.

The Result of The November Election

How is the last election to be regarded? No inference can safely be drawn from it, unless it be that the American people are once more and perhaps a little more earnestly than ever, in a revolt, not so much against protection as a fiscal creed, as against its political accompaniments. For the rest, while Mr. Roosevelt, as he fully expected, has been beaten, neither he nor his policy of the "new nationalism" is done for.

On the contrary, and apart from New York, where the conditions were exceptional, the states in which the republicans most successfully held their own were precisely those in which their program and organization were most completely under the control of the radicals. It seems reasonable therefore to expect that Mr. Roosevelt will work harder than ever to inoculate the republican party with his own advanced views; and nothing that happened on November at the election makes one regard the effort as hopeless or Mr. Roosevelt himself as outside the presidential possibilities of 1912. The election virtually eliminated Mr. Taft as a presidential candidate; it cannot by any means be said to have eliminated Mr. Roosevelt.

Creamery Topic—Why Cream Tests Vary

(By N. N. LARSON, Buttermaker.)

The constant variation in cream tests is a question which causes uneasiness and sometimes dissatisfaction among the creamery patrons, who can not see the cause for such variation, and as a general rule place the blame upon the buttermaker who does the testing. This question takes in a large scope of facts, and the patron never regards himself as furnishing any of the vital causes of this variation. The separator and operator together constitute the main cause. The density of the cream depends on the following reasons; Speed of separator, temperature of milk when skimmed, percentage of fat in milk, the amount of milk allowed to flow through the separator, the vibration of the separator bowl, the amount of flush water used at each skimming, the amount of acid in milk etc.

The Kansas experiment station has issued a bulletin (No. 1[illegible]) on this subject. In the conclusion of this we find the following statements:

"The temperature of milk makes a difference of from 1 to 6 per cent in the test of cream at average skimming temperature, greater variation being caused in extreme cases.

"The amount of flush water used in average skimming temperature makes a difference of from 1 to 3 per cent; in extreme cases makes a difference of 10 per cent.

"The variation in steadiness of the bowl makes a difference of from 2 to 16 per cent, depending on the amount of vibration.

"The variation of the speed of the bowl causes a difference of from 2 to 14 per cent in the test of cream, depending on the variation in speed.

"The amount of milk allowed to flow through the separator bowl, from one half to full capacity, makes a difference of from 1 to 6 per cent, depending upon the divergence from full capacity of the machine.

"The amount of acid in the milk causes an irregular variation in the test of cream, depending upon the amount of acid it contains. Where the acid reaches a high point—3 to 4 per cent for instance—and the separator is used continuously for an hour or more it will eventually clog, the same as in the case of cold milk. The cream will then become thick, until the separator becomes entirely clogged. The extent of the clogging will depend upon the amount of acid in the milk and the size of the machine. The higher the acidity and the smaller the machine the sooner the separator will clog."

It will be learned from the above that the condition of the milk has a great deal to do with the skimming, and it will be impossible for every patron to observe all these points of vital importance, but they must expect a variation in their cream test and not think that the creamery or the buttermaker is crooked. It is our observation that the amount of flush water used in general practice has the greatest influence upon the variation of cream tests; also the wearing of the cream screw makes a big difference.

The sample taken for testing must be right. Unless we obtain a fair average sample of the cream delivered the test, while correct of the sample, will not be a correct test of the cream. Therefore the first requirement of a correct test is an accurate sample.

It must be understood by every patron that frozen cream, sour cream, too thick cream—such as from 35 per cent and up—will not make accurate samples for testing, and while we have these conditions to contend with you must not accuse us of not getting correct tests, as it is every farmer's duty to avoid such conditions. When we are confronted with such material we can only do our very best.

There is much left to say on this subject, but if every patron will do more thinking and less complaining we will realize greater results and more happiness to all concerned. Let harmony prevail, which is the keynote of success.

We hereby wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

Oak Farm

The Red Lake Falls Dramatic club presented their comedy drama here on Tuesday evening, to a well filled house, the severe weather notwithstanding. Had the weather been fine the house could not possibly have accommodated the crowd, but it is the common consent of all who heard the performance that the troupe were well deserving of the best of treatment. Every one is loud in praise of the play and the players. The interest of the audience was closely held from start to finish and the many laughable situations kept the play from becoming tedious.

Miss Rose Hurren as Mrs. Weatherby and Miss Erma Schreiter as Cynthia Warner played their parts to perfection. Miss Marie Cadieux presented an ideal characterization of Helen Trumbull, the heroine of the play. Miss Cora Paul played Sallie Smart, and she certainly was smart.

Clem Brunelle, as Donald Weatherby, was the hero and he took the part fine. Vern Healy made his postmaster out a very wicked individual, while Graham Kindseth, as the eccentric physician, furnished amusement for all, actors and audience alike. Clem and Morris Brunelle and Robert Zaiser were well up in their parts.

We understand the play will perhaps be presented at Thief River Falls and other points. It is really an exceptionly good amateur production, and as such we bespeak for the troupe a cordial reception.

County Division

Yesterday the question of whether or not Mr. Ed L. Healy begun his county division contest proceedings under the right statute was argued at St. Paul before the supreme court. The outcome is awaited with interest.

The seventy sixth year of its existence finds the Toledo Blade more popular than at any period of its remarkable career. It is now read each week by more than a million people. Its field is not circumscribed by state boundaries, but involves the length and breadth of the United States, giving it an unquestionable right of claiming to be the greatest national weekly newspaper in the country.

The Weekly Blade is distinctly a family newspaper. The one object of its publishers has always been to make it fit for the American home, for the fireside, and of interest to every member of the family. To fulfill this purpose it is kept clean and wholesome. The news of the world is handled in a comprehensive manner, and the various departments of The Blade are edited with painstaking care. The household page is a delight to the women and children; current affairs are treated editorially without prejudice; the serial stories are selected with the idea of pleasing the greatest number of fiction lovers; the question bureau is a scrap book of information; the farmstead columns are conducted with the purpose of giving the patrons a medium for the exchange of ideas and information on farm topics. No department is neglected, but every feature is taken care of with the idea of making The Blade worth many times the price of subscription—one dollar a year.

DIED

Arne Skeie died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Skeie, at St. Hilaire on Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1911, at 10 o'clock p. m.

Mr. Skeie was born in Hardanger, Norway, August 31, 1881, and was consequently past 28 years of age at the time of death. He was unmarried. He had for the last ten years been suffering from rheumatism, which disease was the cause of death. He leaves a father, mother, two brothers, and seven sisters to mourn the loss of a beloved son and brother.

Funeral services will be held today at 1:30 p. m. by Rev. M. S. Gjerde at the United Lutheran church.

Misses Glynn Sinclair of Warren and Helen O' Brien of Thief River Falls have been guests of Miss Katie Patterson this week,

Surveyors have been engaged of late in platting the waterpower and millsite, and all sorts of rumors are rife as to what this action portends. The guess that finds the most favor is that it means another sawmill in the near future. We hazard the conjecture that we are about to be "gobbled up" by the water power trust.

Miss Marie Hooper entertained sixteen of her friends on New Years eve. The evening was spent in games and dancing. At midnight the cry of "Happy New Year" echoed through the rooms. Lunch was served, the hostess being assisted by the Misses Myrtle Blaine, Hazel Wilson, and Mr. Joe Martz. After lunch the boys stood guard at the door under which mistletoe had been hung, causing many blushes.

HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR HIDES

ST. HILAIRE, MINN

WANTED—A RIDER AGENT IN EACH TOWN and district to ride and exhibit a sample Latest Model "Ranger" bicycle furnished by us. Our agents everywhere are making money fast. Write for full particulars and special offer at once.

NO MONEY REQUIRED until you receive and approve of your bicycle. We ship to anyone, anywhere in the U. S. without a cent deposit in advance, prepay freight, and allow TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL during which time you may ride the bicycle and put it to any test you wish. If you are then not perfectly satisfied or do not wish to keep the bicycle ship it back to us at our expense and you will not be out one cent.

FACTORY PRICES We furnish the highest grade bicycles it is possible to make at one small profit above actual factory cost. You save $10 to $25 middlemen's profits by buying direct of us and have the manufacturer's guarantee behind your bicycle. DO NOT BUY a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone at any price until you receive our catalogues and learn our unheard of factory prices and remarkable special offers to rider agents.

YOU WILL BE ASTONISHED when you receive our beautiful catalogue and study our superb models at the wonderfully low prices we can make you this year. We sell the highest grade bicycles for less money than any other factory. We are satisfied with $1.00 profit above factory cost. BICYCLE DEALERS, you can sell our bicycles under your own name plate at double our prices. Orders filled the day received.

SECOND HAND BICYCLES. We do not regularly handle second hand bicycles, but usually have a number on hand taken in trade by our Chicago retail stores. These we clear out promptly at prices ranging from $3 to $8 or $10. Descriptive bargain lists mailed free. COASTER-BRAKES, single wheels, imported roller chains and pedals, parts, repairs and equipment of all kinds at half the usual retail prices.

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

CALUMET

INSTEAD OF CHEAP AND BIG CAN

BAKING POWDER

You simply cannot get as good results from the cheap and big can kind—the baking cannot be as evenly raised—it cannot be as delicious—it cannot be as pure and wholesome—because the quality is not there. And it cannot be any more economical. Calumet is medium in price—the standard 1-lb. size can costs 25c. Less of it is required and the baking is certain to be better. Try one can—if not satisfactory your money will be returned.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

A few dollars added to the price of something good is soon forgotten, while the quality long remains. In the case of a cow, if she is young she will long remain on the farm herself, while her stock will live on indefinitely. Sometimes it is worth an amount that cannot be correctly given in figures to get a start in a good milk strain.

Swine parasites congregate around the ears and along the spine, and if a mixture of lard and kerosene, half and half, be dripped on the animals at these points while they are feeding, as often as lice are seen, the parasites will soon disappear and not return.

Many people lose their bulbs in winter, even after following some directions supposed to be safe. This is because there are variations in conditions of temperature or moisture which the directions did not cover.

If we are to succeed in breeding any sort of live stock or grain, we must, above all things else, maintain the vigor or vitality of the stock, or else eventually be defeated in our purpose.

Many farmers have discarded all fowls and cater to the duck business altogether as they will produce twice as many eggs in the run of a year than any flock of hens, regardless of variety or breed.

There may have been a time when the cow, in order to protect herself from wild animals, needed horns, but at this day and age there is no longer need for them, for this purpose.

The rule for feeding grain in the Wisconsin experiment station dairy herd is to give as many pounds of grain as the cow produces pounds of butter-fat per week.

Young pigs are so partial toward foods rich in protein that they will acquire an excess of that element if given an opportunity, thereby stunting their growth.

Do not neglect to keep the feet of the driving horses sharply shod. It may save bad wrenches and will greatly add to the comfort of the animals.

Never allow the chickens to drink from a vessel in which the ice must be broken, because they will not drink enough to supply their needs.

Every farmer must realize that he must keep sheep that have fleeces which weigh at least 10 pounds, before this industry will pay him.

A variety of pasture and food makes a pig thrifty, and he will take on flesh faster than where he is fed on corn and confined in a dirty pen.

Where it is possible it is best to defer the selection of sow pigs for the breeding herd until they have made considerable growth.

Good use can be made of newspapers when through reading by putting them on outside of henhouse or hog pen to keep wind out.

When cows are given less food than they require for maintenance and milk production the milk production must suffer or the cow.

The primary principle to be observed in the preservation of eggs is the protection of the inferior from contact with the air.

What the farmers want is a hog that will give the best returns for the feed which is given him, either big type or little type.

It is useless to attempt to raise early chickens for the market unless you have provided a place to care for them.

The dairyman who does not understand the elementary principles of feeding is not abreast of the times.

When the foal is taken away from the mare, he should have a box stall that is well lighted and ventilated.

Dairy cattle present a flattering field for the man who is prepared to give his attention to that industry.

Cleanliness in the poultry house and around the ground will cause the flock with health to abound.

The one important factor necessary for the proper curing of corn is an even circulation of air.

Grass is mighty good for sheep, but they should not be allowed to fill up on frost-bitten grass.

To those wishing flowering hedges, there is a wide variety from which to choose.

You can gain two or three cents a dozen by shipping your own eggs.

About six months of age is the proper time to wean a strong foal.

Corn and alfalfa alone fed to beef cattle will make very large gains in weight, while at the same time the use of well-cured corn fodder in addition to corn and alfalfa will cheapen the ration of corn and make the gains less costly because of the low market value of the fodder, and in this way it is usually more profitable than corn and alfalfa alone.

When colt training is done as it should be, eight or ten half-hour lessons given in systematic order will accomplish more, and put a colt in condition to stand more severe tests than the haphazard go-as-you please methods now commonly practised can do in two years.

Don't try to see how warm you can make your hog house this winter; but see how well bedded you can keep it and how well you can ventilate it. Fresh air is needed by the hog as much as it is by any other animal on the farm.

A day is coming very soon, when butter won't sell as rapidly and at as high prices as it was bringing formerly. And when that day comes, the question of quality in determining sales is going to be more important.

Paint the outside of the buildings in the autumn after the hot weather is past, or in the winter. Oil paint, under cold, hardens so as to be much more durable than when it dries under heat.

The disposition—the likes and dislikes of each cow—may be studied carefully while the animals are around their keeper, and one can then feed and care for them accordingly.

It will not do to allow ducks to share the common lot of poultry in general; not that they require more attention, but rather a different manner of handling and feeding.

There is one thing which vermin cannot stand, and that is fire. The nest-boxes and roosts held over a big blaze for a moment or two will be entirely rid of the pests.

Build your barns a little larger than you need at the present moment. Few men ever get too much barn room. Plan for future growth, and then see to it that you grow.

Drafts of air cause bad colds, and that means a cessation of egg making. To stop all cracks and crevices with paper and rags in wisdom on the part of the poultryman.

Sheep are extremely sensitive to heat. In hot weather their fleece is a burden to them. They are a cold country animal under the most natural conditions.

The profit in poultry raising for market lies in hatching early, pushing the chickens forward as rapidly as possible, and marketing them early in the season.

Do not wash eggs before packing them. Washing removes from the shell the mucilagenous coating which nature provides for their temporary preservation.

Among the essentials of the successful management of a farm flock of mutton sheep are that we treat them in a manner adapted to their nature.

Make a feeding platform for the hogs eight inches high with a two-inch protecting board all around to keep the feed out of the winter's mud.

There is no kind of animal breeding that will pay better than the breeding of horses, but horses that will sell, not dunghills or misfits.

The increase in a flock of sheep represents almost entire profit to the man who has no rentals to pay and keeps his sheep on government land.

Nest eggs are not needed to induce hens to lay. They have no influence whatever over the hens, and have been discarded on most farms.

We must cool the milk in order to stop the ravages of what is now known to be the bacteria that so soon work injury to new milk.

Pregnant ewes should never be kept in the enclosure with the rest of the flock, because accidents are liable to cause loss of the lambs.

The mare should be fed at all times with a liberal ration of clean and nourishing feeds, and should have an abundance of pure water.

Remove the harness and heavy collars during the noon hour. To go over the horses with a stiff brush at noon revives them.

Keep the egg record up every day. If you skip one day, even, the rest will all be a guess, and guessing isn't like business.

The three great constituents which plants remove from the soil are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash.

Selling the younger heifers that the other dairyman wishes most to buy is grading the herd downhill.

Clean away the droppings each morning and lice and disease are not apt to bother the biddies.

In the last hundred years wonderful advancement has been made in the breeding of live stock.

The shelter for swine may be about as cheaply made as that which is made for our sheep.

Early mating of the hens gives plenty of time to test the eggs in regard to fertility.

Crops grown to turn under as manure are cheap and valuable sources of humus.

FOR THE COOK TO TRY

RECIPES THAT ARE BOTH NEW AND SIMPLE.

Orange and Grape Conserve.—To six pounds of grapes allow two pounds raisins, four oranges and four pounds of sugar. Cut off the thin yellow rind of the oranges and cook together with the seeded raisins until tender. Pulp the grapes and cook until soft enough to rub through a collander. Add to the skins, cook 15 minutes, put in raisins, orange peel, juice and sugar and simmer gently until jellied.

Metheglin.—Pour over twelve and one-half pounds honey, eight gallons of boiling water. Let it stand for two days, stirring occasionally, then add one-quarter of a compressed yeast cake, softened in a few spoonfuls of water, and spread on a slice of dry toast. Cover closely and let stand for two or three weeks, then rack off and bottle.

This is considered a strengthening drink for the aged, as it is the honey mead of the ancient Germans, who, according to Tacitus, attributed health and great age to its use.

Bisque Tortoni.—Make a custard, using a cream or rich milk, the yolks of six eggs and a cup of sugar. Heat the cream to the scalding point, add a pinch of soda. Beat the yolks thick and smooth, add the sugar to the beaten yolks and beat again five minutes, then stir little by little into the scalding cream.

The moment it chickens set off the fire. When cold stir into the custard a gill of maraschino. Put into the freezer, turn the crank until the cream is stiff, when the freezer should be opened and a pint of whipped cream stirred into the contents of the freezer. Fill a mold with the mixture, repack in ice and salt and let it stand for three or four hours before serving.

Oysters Au Gratin.

Now that oysters are in season the recipe for oysters au gratin will be a helpful hint to the cook who has never prepared them in that way. This recipe is enough for six people. Eighteen oysters, eighteen mushrooms, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon red pepper, one cup white sauce. Melt two tablespoons butter in the frying pan and fry the mushrooms in it until they are a delicate brown. Put three oysters on an oyster shell with three mushrooms and pour over them some white sauce. Sprinkle cheese and cracker crumbs over them and bake until brown. Serve hot. In case it is not possible to obtain the oyster shells use the shells which may be bought in the stores for about 15 cents a dozen.

Pie Crust.

Put one pint of pastry flour, a little salt and a level teaspoon of baking powder into the sieve and sift. Then add two heaping tablespoons of lard and chop up with the spoon into chunks about the size of a nutmeg. The lard should be cold enough to be firm and the spoon heaped pretty high. Then add water by the spoonful until the flour is all taken up. It should be stiff enough to stay in shape. I consider pie crust more wholesome with a little raising in it. Common causes of tough pie crust are the use of bread flour, too little shortening, too much water and too hot a fire. The heat should be about the same as for cake.

Camphorated Vaseline.

In the early stages a cold can frequently be broken by rubbing the afflicted parts with camphorated vaseline. This is especially good to relieve the stuffy, tight feeling of a cold in the head.

The grease should be well rubbed in the bridge of the nose, particularly between the eyes, and on the upper lip and upward on each side.

An incipient raw throat, often a precursos of bronchitis, is also relieved by thorough greasing of throat and chest with camphorated vaseline or oil.

Both of these mixtures can be bought at a druggist's and should be included in every medicine closet. For an emergency the mixture can be made at home; 12 drops each of turpentine and spirits of camphor into two tablespoonfuls of yellow vaseline.

Orange Marmalade.

One each orange, lemon and grape fruit. Shave very thin, rejecting seeds and cores. Use all peel and pulp. Measure, add three times the amount of water and let stand in an earthen dish over night. Next morning boil ten minutes, let stand another night, in morning add an equal amount sugar and boil until it jellies. The jelly should be amber colored and strips well defined. This makes twelve glasses.

Nut-Date Bread.

To one cup hot cooked oats, add three tablespoons brown sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter, add one-fourth cake of yeast, dissolved in four tablespoons luke warm water, and flour to knead. Let rise over night. Next morning add two-thirds cup each of English walnuts cut small, and stoned dates, cut in small pieces. Shape in loaf, let rise and bake in a moderate oven 50 minutes.

Delmonico Potatoes.

Two two cups cold boiled potatoes cut in one-half inch cubes, allow one and one-quarter cups white sauce and one-quarter cup grated cheese. Put a layer of potatoes in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and one-half the cheese. Pour over half the sauce. Repeat. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown. Very nice.

Dumplings.

One quart flour, three teaspoons baking powder, Mix with sweet milk, as soft as you can handle. Put them into water when water is boiling. Leave uncovered 10 minutes, then cover and boil 5 minutes more.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

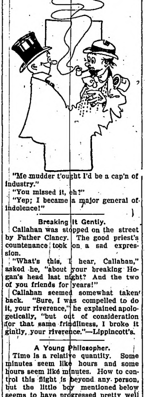
Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-269 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE.



"Me mudder t'ought I'd be a cap'n of industry."

"You missed it, eh?"

"Yep; I became a major general of indolence!"

Breaking It Gently.

Callahan was stopped on the street by Father Clancy. The good priest's countenance took on a sad expression.

"What's this, I hear, Callahan," asked he, "about your breaking Hogan's head last night? And the two of you friends for years!"

Callahan seemed somewhat taken back. "Sure, I was compelled to do it, your riverence," he explained apologetically, "but out of consideration for that same frindliness, I broke it gintly, your riverence."—Lippincott's.

A Young Philosopher.

Time is a relative quantity. Some minutes seem like hours and some hours seem like minutes. How to control this flight is beyond any person, but the little boy mentioned below seems to have progressed pretty well for a youngster.

The teacher was surprised to see that he remained perfectly idle all through recess, and accordingly asked him why he did not play.

"'Cause," he said, slowly, "it makes recess too quick if I play, and I want it to la-a-ast!"—Youth's Companion.

GOT HIS SOBRIQUET EARLY

"Honest John" Kelly Proved His Right to the Title Long Before Manhood.

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-umpire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a New York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face. "I think the first time I was ever called 'Honest John' was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenuous countenance I presented to the world and hailed me. 'You look honest, boy,' said he. 'What might your name be?' 'John,' said I, quite simply. 'John,'—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink. But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore thirst, and they took the tinware. And then they came back and took the cushions off the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away. True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse.'"

Young Age Pensions.

Young age pensions! Why not? Titles, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a Labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

GOT THE BEST OF THE ELDER

Apt Quotations of Brer Reuben Saved His Mule and at the Same Time Rebuked Sin.

Elder Harris was making another attempt to induce one of the members of his flock to trade horses with him.

"Dat pony o' you'n, Brer Reuben," he said, "is jes' what I want, an' my big bay hos is jes' what yo' want. I kin git over de groun' faster wid de pony, an 'you kin haul a bigger load wid de hoss. Hit'd be a good trade fur bofe on us, 'ceptin' dat it'd be a leetle better fuh you dan it would fur me. You take de bay and give me de ches'nut sor'l."

"De pony suits me well 'nough, elder," averred Brother Reuben, for the twentieth time. "I don' keer t' make no swap."

"But I jes' natchelly got t' have dat pony, Brer Reuben."

"Elder," spoke the other, after a period of profound thought, "I been wantin' t' ast yo' a question for a long time."

"Well, what is it?"

"I know w'at one o' de 'postles says 'bout de law bein' done away with, but ain't we still livin' undah de ten comman'ments?"

"Brer Reuben," solemnly averred Elder Harris, "we air."

"Well, one o' dem comman'ments says we mustn't covet anyt'ing w't b'longs t' our neighbors, an' you're covetin' dat li'l chestnut sor'l pony o' mine, Brer Harris!"

Then the elder gave it up. Clearly the tenth commandment was against him.—Chicago Tribune.

"No, I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?"

"Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?"

"What's that?"

"Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it."—Cleveland Leader.

Ended the Controversy.

On the steeple of an old Universalist church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enquirer recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?" "Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond, "I can't say that I ever did; but did you ever see one without them?"

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified has been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point attys. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Martin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified has been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Barley. Attys. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use.

Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo.

Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?

A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?

A. I do not think I would. No.

Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly."

But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products, Grape-Nuts, Postum, and Post Toasties, that they, themselves, make?

Gotham Spends a Billion for Gifts

GOTHAM HAS THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT ALL RIGHT

NEW York.—That $1,000,000,000, or an amount equal to the annual expenses of the national government, has been spent here this year to fill Father Knickerbocker's 5,000,000 Christmas stockings and those of relatives and friends of residents in his domain is the estimate of experts who have carefully followed one of the most remarkable holiday seasons in the history of the country.

Reports from other parts of the country reflect similar conditions and indicate a holiday business of $10,000,000,000 or more for the country at large. In spite of the alleged unsatisfactory business situation, Santa Claus has been patronized in a most lavish manner this year.

Even in this billion-dollar Christmas outlay, however, the much-talked-of increased cost of living has had a marked effect. Presents in the form of luxuries are fewer than ever before, and such articles as automobiles, expensive jewelry and high-priced decorations generally have given way to articles of more general use. In a word, Santa Claus is becoming more of a business manager every year.

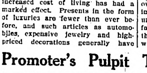
The stores and shops report this season that the greater part of the money has been spent for useful articles such as wearing apparel, and a proportionately smaller amount for jewels, autos, high-priced pictures and the like. Toys, as might be expected, account for an ever increasing amount, while candies are a close second.

Merchants in all parts of the country agree that the Christmas shopper, whatever the cause, is learning to spend his money to better purpose than formerly.

Whatever other customs may change, there is one Christmas practice which goes on, apparently, forever. Santa Claus may come by reindeer-drawn sleigh, automobile or airship as modes of travel progress, but the Christmas tree on which his packages are hung continues to increase in popularity.

This year, indeed, New York has set a new record in this respect, since over 500,000 Christmas trees were imported to meet local demands. Figuring five members to the average family, this means that at least half the homes in the city had a tree this winter.

Promoter's Pulpit Talk Brings Coin



IT'S TH' FINEST COPPER MINE IN ARIZONY -!-?-!-

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—This city has always liked a "live wire" promoter, one who can go out and get money where money isn't if necessary, but Ben Blanchard played the game too strong. Fifty business men of this city who have invested $600,000 in an Arizona copper mine on Blanchard's seductive representations will be mighty glad to get back what they put in and will willingly sacrifice their hopes of gigantic profits.

Once, in Kansas City, he was in church, a stranger, when the minister was trying to raise enough money to send a missionary abroad. The contributions came so slowly the minister was discouraged and about to give up when Ben Blanchard arose and with the seductive voice that charmed so many into buying his stock, asked how much it would require to put this missionary on the heathen firing line and keep her there for a year. With a weary voice the pastor named the amount.

"Only that much?" asked Ben. "Why, if that is all that's worrying you come here and get the money. I believe I have that much in my pocket and if I haven't I'll give you a check for the balance."

"Will the kind brother please come forward," asked the pastor, while the congregation struggled to get a glimpse of the man with the money

Innate modesty kept Blanchard from going forward until three pillars of the church came to his seat and escorted him to the pulpit. There he made an eloquent speech on the happiness it gave him to be able to send a missionary among the heathen, not neglecting to tell his audience how easy it was for him to do this because providence had been kind enough to put him in possession of a copper mine in Arizona rich enough to send missionaries to the furthermost ends of the earth and keep them there till all the heathen had seen the light.

It was a notable effort, delivered with convincing simplicity and before the congregation was through with Blanchard he had sold $8,000 of stock. The expense to Blanchard of sending the missionary was $1,800, so that the day's work showed a good balance in his favor. This was the beginning of the Blanchard mining boom.

Kansas Has Champion Fresh Air City

WONDER WHY THEY BUILD HOUSES AT ALL?

WINFIELD, Kan.—This town, which has been known for years as the Athens of southern Kansas, because of its colleges, is now adding a health laurel to its crown. Winfield claims the distinction of having more bath tubs and more sleeping porches than any other town in Kansas.

In addition to its sleeping porches, Winfield has living tents. Those who cannot afford either sleep with their windows up.

Winfield, which is credited with having one of the best, if not the best, municipal waterworks systems in Kansas, officially encourages cleanliness by furnishing water for a six-room house, including bath and sewer connections and sprinkling, for less than a dollar a month.

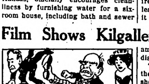
Sleeping porches in Winfield are now the rule rather than the exception. When a new house is erected a sleeping porch is provided for as a matter of course.

M. W. Friedenburg, president of the state board of pharmacy, is preparing to outdo all the others in sleeping porches. He will construct a big sleeping porch extending around three sides of his residence. The porch will have have guest rooms, divided by screens.

Several citizens last summer started a new departure in outdoor living. A small house, half canvas and half screening, with canvas roof and floor, is erected on the lawn and the members of the family spend much of their time there, instead of in the house.

Winfield is becoming known as a fresh-air town as well as a center of learning, and isn't certain of which it is proudest.

Film Shows Kilgallen Kicking Count



CHICAGO. — Persons who attend moving picture shows will soon have a chance to see the Chicago romance of Count de Beaufort thrown upon the screens of 5 and 10 cent moving picture theaters. The Count has posed for a picture story of his affair with the Kilgallen heiress of Chicago and says he is going to get $25,000 and royalties for the venture.

The first scene shows the Count and Countess in the home-coming act. Pa Kilgallen is evidently surprised when his daughter bounces in with her prize. In the next scene the Count is shown as a working man—just to win the old man's favor. He is switching cars and the foreman is evidently telling him if he doesn't like his job he need not worry because he will be killed before he has had time to become really disgusted with it.

In the next scene the Count is shown presenting a fountain pen to Pa. Pa tells the Count that the pen is of no use to him because he has writer's cramp from signing checks and the banks won't accept his rubber stamp signature. Pa changes the subject and hopes the Count will find it convenient to get out before it becomes necessary to fill his coat tails full of boots. Of course, the Count doesn't pose as one of the brightest men in the world, but he is bright enough to catch the drift of Pa's remarks and drift away.

The scene at the hospital, where the Countess was taken when injured, shows the Count trying to "butt in," disguised as a Red Cross attendant. His nemesis, Pa Kilgallen, ever on the job, is there and disperses the Count.

The last scene shows the Count literally rolling in wealth and two men with shovels such as are used by laborers in Pa Kilgallen's steel mills are keeping the Count from being buried by a flood of gold.

Hindoo Sailor and His Chicken.

"I recall an amusing incident in connection with a Hindoo sailor. He was very anaemic and meat was ordered for his diet.

"It was finally learned through an interpreter that he would eat a chicken if it were brought to him alive and he were allowed to wring its neck after a bloodless manner of his own. With some difficulty a live chicken was procured and taken to the patient behind a screen in the ward.

"The bird escaped and flew directly over the bed of a partly delirious negro, who thought his time had come! He leaped out of bed and gave chase, wildly shouting 'hallelujah!' and in a moment the whole ward was in a turmoil, in the effort to calm the excited negro the astonished chicken and the disappointed Hindoo who saw himself being so suddenly deprived of his meal!"

FARM AND BEES

SUCCESS IN BEE MANAGEMENT

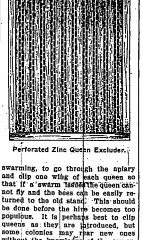
Profit Not Now Measured by Increase by Swarming as Formerly—Various Methods.

(By E. F. PHILLIPS, PH. D.)

The excessive rearing of brood at the wrong season or increase in the number of colonies greatly reduces the surplus honey crop by consumption. The ideal to which all progressive bee keepers work, when operating simply for honey, is to stimulate brood rearing to prepare bees for gathering, to retard breeding when it is less desirable, and to prevent swarming. Very few succeed in entirely preventing swarming, but by various methods the situation can be largely controlled.

When a swarm issues, it usually first settles on a limb of a tree or bush near the apiary. It was formerly common to make a noise by beating pans or ringing bells in the belief that this causes the swarm to settle. There is no foundation for such action on the part of the bee keeper. If the bees light on a small limb that can be spared, it may simply be sawed off and the bees carried to the hive and thrown on a sheet or hive cover in front of the entrance. If the limb cannot be cut, the swarm can be shaken off into a box or basket on a pole and hived. If the bees light on the trunk of a tree or in some inaccessible place, they can first be attracted away by a comb, preferably containing unsealed brood. In these manipulations it is not necessary to get all the bees, but if the queen is not with those which are put in the hive the bees will go into the air again and join the cluster.

It is desirable early in the season, before any preparations are made for swarming, to go through the apiary and clip one wing of each queen so that if a swarm issues the queen cannot fly and the bees can be easily returned to the old stand. This should be done before the hive becomes too populous. It is perhaps best to clip queens as they are introduced, but some colonies may rear new ones without the knowledge of the owner, and a spring examination will insure no escaping swarms.



Perforated Zinc Queen Excluder.

When clipping the queen's wing is not practiced, swarms may be prevented from leaving by the use of queen traps of perforated zinc. These allow the workers to pass out, but not drones or queens, which, on leaving the entrance, pass up to an upper compartment from which they cannot return. These are also used for keeping undesirable drones from escaping, and the drones die of starvation.

Queens sometimes die during the winter and early spring, and since there is no brood from which the bees can replace them, the queenless colonies are "hopelessly queenless." Bee keepers in the north can frequently buy queens from southern breeders early in the spring, and naturally this is better than leaving the colony without a queen until the bees can rear one, as it is important that there be no stoppage in brood rearing at this season.

USEFUL SELF-DUMPING DRAG

Handy for Hauling Stones and Other Heavy Materials and Is Easily Overturned.

This sled works either side up, and form either end. It is handy for hauling stones and other heavy materials, and it can be overturned very easily and quickly. By putting a clevis in both ends it can be drawn both ways, and be adapted to a variety of uses.

Self-Dumping Drag.

Preventing Damp Corn.

It often happens that corn must be put in the crib while damp or not thoroughly dried out. In such cases injury often results from mold and freezing. I recently came across an excellent way of overcoming this difficulty, says a writer in an exchange. On a farm which I visited I noticed several buildings which looked like silos upon stilts. They were raised about four feet off the ground and had what appeared to be a spout at the bottom. Inquiry showed that the owner had made a slat bottom of 2 by 6 stuff and covered this with a wire net of one-quarter-inch mesh. Below this a tight bottom was placed and connected to a blower run by a 1½-horsepower gasoline engine, which forced a stream of air through the corn. He did the same thing with oats, which he completely dried in 1½ days. When put in the oats were very wet, but so successful was the method that he sold the whole crop for seed and did not have any kicks. The blower used was similar to that employed for small forges. These bins were 16 by 16 by 14 feet.

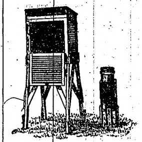
OBSERVE WEATHER ON FARMS

Common Thermometer, Properly Sheltered, Is Very Useful in Ascertaining Conditions.

(By DEWEY A. SEELEY.)

Realizing his dependence upon weather conditions, the farmer should know what warmth of soil is necessary to start germination and the amount of heat and moisture required later to bring the crop to successful maturity. Beginning with this knowledge, the need of actual observations through the use of accurate instruments follows in natural sequence, that he may be able to determine how nearly the weather conditions experienced are measuring up to the ideal.

Such records cannot be made, however, without the aid of good instruments, since the senses are more or less unreliable as weather recorders.



Thermometer Shed and Rain Gauge.

Even out-of-door workers are often misled regarding the temperature of the air or the amount of rainfall during a shower. Some days seem warm when the thermometer reads comparatively low, and others cool, although the temperature may be much higher. The thermometer alone can be depended upon to give the true temperature.

No matter how good a thermometer may be, it will not indicate the true temperature of the air unless it is properly exposed. The variations in temperature reported by neighbors in discussing how cold or how warm it was at a given time are more frequently due to lack of uniformity in the exposure of the instruments than to errors in the instruments themselves or to actual differences in temperature at the various locations.

In a proper exposure the thermometer should be protected from the direct rays of the sun as well as from the reflected heat of pavements, walls, etc., and at the same time should receive a free circulation of air all around it. If the sun shines upon the thermometer, the glass portions and the mercury are heated above the temperature of the surrounding air. In the same way the heat from the side of a building or from the surface of the ground may make the thermometer warmer than the free air.

The best place to expose a thermometer is in the center of a slat-sided box, two or three feet on a side, with a door opening to the north and having a double roof with an air space between as shown in the illustration.

In case such a shelter cannot be secured or constructed, the next best exposure is on the north wall of a building where the instrument will be protected as much as possible from the sun's rays and from the heat of surrounding objects.

Stingless Bees.

Mexican stingless bees are to be introduced into the state of Missouri as an aid in fruit culture.

Missouri has not realized until recently the absolute necessity of bees in the raising of fruit.

Millions of fruit trees have been planted over the state without a corresponding increase in the number of bees, the result being that only a small per cent. of the blossoms becomes pollenized, and consequently the fruit falls prematurely.

Soil Fertility.

One of the greatest problems before our country of the present time is the conservation of soil fertility; and its economical increase. Another half century of the wasteful and reckless manner of using the soil, as has been done in all sections of our country, will see the highest cost of living that has ever afflicted any nation.

The Potato Bits.

Look after the pits where potatoes and the like are stored, and make sure that there is enough earth or litter on them to protect the contents from the coldest weather. Neglect may cause serious loss.

Manure the Fields.

Manure the rhubarb and asparagus fields. Both crops do best where there is an abundance of vegetable matter in the soil.

FARM NOTES

The community proposition has much to commend it.

Keep the paint brush going until every implement on the place is covered.

If an agent tries to sell you tree paint chase him off the place. Trees do not need paint.

A pound or two of nails will make the fences all tight and save loss and hard feeling between neighbors.

Is the harness tied up with string anywhere? Take them off and do the best job of repairing you ever did.

Get out some stuff for whiffletrees. Keep a little on hand all the time, for you may need them before you know it.

If you have no silo, get a feed cutter and a gasoline engine, at any rate. They will pay for themselves in a single season if you have any animals to feed.

Have a bottle of rubber cement on hand and some good glue. Fix things, and do it while the other work is not pressing.

"What luck, my boy?"

"Oh! pretty fair. I got six winders, two lamp posts and one silk hat already."

His Ruling Passion.

The young man waited for the millionaire's reply.

"I don't blame you for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now how much do you suppose you and she can worry along on?"

The youth brightened up.

"I—I think," he cheerfully stammered, "that $200,000 well invested, would produce a sufficient income."

The millionaire turned back to his papers.

"Very well," he said, "I will give you $100,000, providing you raise a similar amount."

And the young man went away sorrowing.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time. Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful.

GOVERNOR EBERHART'S MESSAGE

MINNESOTA CHIEF EXECUTIVE GIVES OUT HIS ANNUAL COMMUNICATION TO THE LEGISLATURE.

St. Paul—The annual message of Gov. A. O. Eberhart was read to the legislature. In brief he said:

The people of Minnesota in the election of 1910 have seen fit to place the control of all branches and departments of state government in the hands of the Republican party, thereby charging that party with a double responsibility. This act of confidence on the part of the people confers upon the legislative and executive branches of our state government, not only the opportunity, but the solemn duty and mandate of helpful and responsive co-operation to the end that the will of the people and their highest public interest and welfare shall find a prompt and hearty response in wise and progressive legislation as well as vigorous and efficient administration. In this cause I pledge you the most earnest and effective co-operation within my power as chief of the executive department, and to you I look with the utmost confidence and expectation for support in carrying into legislative enactment the practical reforms which the needs of our commonwealth and the progressive thought of our time demand at our hands.

I believe that the time has arrived in the history of this state, when the public good, or, to use the language of the constitution, when the security, benefit and protection of the people demand a radical modification and reform in certain phases of our state administration.

We have just completed the first half century of our development as a state. We are no longer dependent upon pioneer experiments and ancient makeshifts. We are prepared to establish our system of state government on the most scientific and progressive principles of civics and economics. Before the installation of any reform, however, we wish to assure ourselves that it can stand the test of experience as practical and business like, that it conduces to public economy and efficiency, and that it represents the true interests, welfare and prosperity of the people as a whole.

Importance of Efficient Administration.

The Governor is the chief administrative officer of the state, and is rightly held responsible by the people for the enforcement of the laws and the efficient administration of the business affairs of the state. Under our present laws the Governor is by law constituted an active member of sixteen boards, some of which administer business affairs during the year running into the millions. Anyone can readily see that it is absolutely a physical impossibility for the governor to be advised with reference to the details of such enormous business transactions that he may act intelligently for the best interests of the people of the state. As prominent examples I would mention the drainage and timber boards. The state of Minnesota spends large sums of money every year for drainage, and I have every reason to believe that the expenditure of this money by the drainage board of this state has brought the best results, but as a member of the board I cannot of my own knowledge assure the people of the state that the best results have in all cases been obtained.

In the case of oil inspection, this department should be entirely abolished and its work performed by the dairy and food department. In the case of boiler inspection, this work should be performed by expert inspectors in the labor department, who should be amply compensated for their work and who should travel throughout the state in the performance of their duties, devoting all their time thereto. The fees collected should be based on boiler capacity and paid into the state treasury. With reference to the inspection of logs and lumber, this could be performed by inspectors under the forestry commissioner, and the fees collected therefor turned over to the state as in other cases.

Bureau of Public Domain.

An examination of government land office records from the date of the first homestead act down to June 8, 1909, indicates that something over one-third of our total state domain, or approximately 18,000,000 acres, has been patented to settlers under the several homestead acts. Timber culture entries in Minnesota, under the act of 1877, aggregate approximately 2,100,000 acres, and timber and stone entries, under the act of 1878, account for 1,275,000 acres additional.

The amount of unappropriated lands belonging to the general government open to settlement in Minnesota, as shown by the land office report of 1909 is 1,450,955 acres, of which 187,000 are unsurveyed.

Minnesota State Lands.

Under the various acts of Congress granting lands to the several states, Minnesota is entitled to 9,680,118.47 acres, as follows:

School lands	2,977,523.39
Agricultural college lands	124,429.28
Internal improvement	500,000.00
Swamp lands	5,853,520.68
Public building lands	6,395.12
Salt spring lands	46,080.00
University lands	92,160.00

Up to July 31, 1910, patents had been received from the general government for the several classes of state lands, as follows:

School lands	2,950,060.77
Agricultural college lands	94,439.28
Internal improvement land	499,652.51
Swamp lands	4,492,941.48
Public building lands	6,395.12
Salt spring lands	44,920.60
University lands	91,682.96
	8,181,102.72

This leaves a balance of 1,419,015.75 acres, according to the record of the state, yet to be approved and patented.

Approximately 2,800,000 acres of school, university, agricultural, college, internal improvement, swamp and salt spring lands have been sold, and the proceeds invested for the various educational and other permanent trust funds, which on July 3, 1910, are reported by the Auditor, as follows:

Permanent school fund	$21,002,571.27
Permanent university fund	1,448,798.97
Internal improvement land fund	2,944,597.57
Swamp land fund	1,581,255.20
	$27,077,223.41

The Auditor, as ex-officio state land commissioner, reports on hand unsold in the possession of the state and its institutions at this time 2,426,405 acres, as follows:

School land	910,570.54
University land	22,170.95
Internal improvement land	7,757.71
Swamp land	1,515,906.14

In addition to the above holdings, the auditor estimates that there is still due from the general government 600,000 acres of selected swamp and indemnity school lands, bringing the total up to approximately 3,000,000 acres, as the total public domain to be administered in the interest of our public schools and other state institutions, as well as the general public.

Department of State Lands.

The necessity of amending our present laws and methods of handling state lands, with the organization to that end of a separate state land department, is now generally admitted. If the State of Minnesota expects to sell its land, and induce settlers to buy the same, in my opinion the law should be so amended as to permit of sales being made every day in the year by the respective county auditors, and upon terms, that, while fair not only to the state and the settler, will also be in the nature of inducement to the latter, and a separate land department organized.

Department of Forestry.

The original forest area of Minnesota is estimated at over one-half of the total land surface of the state, or approximately 28,000,000 acres. The present forest area may be estimated as covering less than one-fourth of the state, or approximately 13,000,000 acres.

Of our total wooded area 1,294,486 acres are set aside as a national forest reserve and nearly 2,000,000 acres more represent unsurveyed government forest lands largely in the Indian reservations, making a total of over 3,000,000 acres of national government holdings in Minnesota. The state forest reserves aggregate about 40,000 acres. The total standing timber in twenty-one counties now partly covered by forests is estimated by the forest commissioner at about twenty billion feet, nearly one-half of which is supposed to be pine. At the present average lumber cut of a billion feet a year, it would take about twenty years, without the help of forest fires, to complete the denudation of a state which once had one of the greatest and most varied forest areas.

It would seem as though the necessity of placing the public forest under scientific and business like administration were so plain to the general public and to the members of this legislature, that argument should be unnecessary. The state has just experienced another chapter of horrors in connection with the Rainy River Valley forest fires, which should be sufficient to demonstrate the necessity of improved forest administration. But the Hinckley, Chisholm and Beaudette fires, with their losses aggregating millions of dollars worth of property and many human lives, tell only a part of the sad story. To this we must add losses by trespass and depredation, and loss by neglect of growing forests as well as loss of opportunities for reforestation. It is estimated that the aggregate forest resources of Minnesota are worth $100,000,000, which is the strongest possible argument for adequate methods of protection, development and administration.

The forest problems of our state have been sadly neglected. For protection against forest fires, Minnesota spends less than one-fourth of what is required for effective results, and in the way of practical forest administration conducts only a few scattered experiments with nothing like a comprehensive, scientific and businesslike system of forestry. The cost of forest fire protection should be borne by the benefitted forest property on the basis of an insurance risk, private timber holdings paying their pro rata share of the cost. On this basis, the cost of fire protection need not be materially increased against the general taxpayer, and then only as he gets liberal returns for insurance against loss.

As showing that our timber lands justify on business grounds reasonable expenditure for administration, I present herewith the auditor's statement of pine lumber cut from Minnesota state lands for the past six years:

	No. of ft.	Amt. obtained	Average per M
1905	52,518,325	$352,992.23	6.72
1907	54,244,210	446,539.70	8.23
1908	70,260,550	549,559.97	7.81
1909	25,692,170	217,011.26	8.45
1910	14,265,600	116,732.05	8.19

The above receipts are from pine logging only. Expert forestry administration would largely pay for itself in utilizing grades and classes of timber, pulp-wood and fuel, which the state as yet makes little attempt to market. Revenue from wise and scientific cuttings and sales, and the removal of dead and down timber, would pay for cost of administration, while at the same time aiding the growth of young timber of desirable classes. I believe that, even from the beginning, Minnesota will find scientific forestry a source of revenue, instead of expense, and that, if we stop the present loss and depletion without further delay, we shall each year find our state forest a growing source of public revenue, and a blessing to the people instead of, as today, a source of peril to life and property.

Department of Geology and Mines.

After mining and shipping to the furnaces 254,000,000 tons of iron ore, the world's record of production, Minnesota has now definitely located a body of ore, amounting to 1,347,596,000 tons, which is one-third of the available and merchantable ore of the United States and upon which taxes are paid into the state treasury. Minnesota iron ore shipments this season exceed 30,000,000 tons, which is 72 per cent. of the total production of the Lake Superior region, about 60 per cent of that of North America, and perhaps one-fifth of that of the world. And yet Minnesota has no state department of mines, and not even, in operation at this time, the usual geological survey, found in most of the states of the Union.

From the standpoint of good business management there can be only one thing to do and that is to establish a new geological survey and department of mines, and, following the example of Wisconsin, Michigan and Missouri, make such appropriations from year to year as are necessary to maintain a department of geology and mines worthy of our great mineral industry and resources.

Departments of Waterways.

One fifteenth of Minnesota's surface consists of lakes and streams. Our water area approximates 4,000,000 acres. It is estimated that the aggregate power of known available falls and rapids in Minnesota is about 500,000 horse power, of which considerably less than one-half is now utilized for industrial purposes. In other words, the available waterpower of the state, as at present surveyed, is equivalent to over 3,000,000 tons of coal per annum, developed into industrial power.

Besides the resources of our water powers, there are the resources of our waterways. The Mississippi River as a water power developed Minneapolis, Little Falls and other milling towns. The Mississippi as a waterway created St. Paul, St. Cloud, Red Wing, Winona and a score of other river towns. But the greatest waterway asset of the state is Lake Superior. The cheap and easily available transportation facilities of the Great Lakes system are wholly responsible for the development of our iron ore wealth and for the larger share of our logging, lumber, coal, wheat, flour and general jobbing business. As compared with the average rail charge of $7.50 per ton for a haul of one thousand miles, the Great Lakes route transports a ton of iron ore one thousand miles for 80 cents and brings back a ton of coal for 30 cents. This is the miracle of transportation, which has been perhaps the greatest factor in northwestern development. It is our great transportation asset, Lake Superior, that places Duluth for all business purposes as near as Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard, while situated five hundred miles nearer the markets of the Pacific and the great trade empire which lies between Lake Superior and Puget Sound.

Department of Agriculture and Immigration.

Minnesota possesses the greatest agricultural resources of any state in the Union, and yet it is one of the few states which have no centrally organized department of agriculture. Of her 45,000,000 acres of agricultural lands, less than 50 per cent are under cultivation, and this 50 per cent should yield, under proper methods of administration, from 50 to 100 per cent greater returns than are now realized.

As showing what other states are doing in this line, Missouri has one of the best organized departments of agriculture, in charge of ten officers and specialists. This department works in harmony with the agricultural schools and colleges, the livestock breeders, corn growers, state dairy association, swine growers and breeders, sheep breeders, highway engineers, and home-makers conference. The Pennsylvania department appears to be modelled somewhat after that of the general government, with a secretary of agriculture, and such special bureaus, as dairy and food, livestock, veterinary science, agricultural chemistry, and specialists in all the various branches of agricultural science and industry. Before the organization of that department in 1895 there had been a steady decrease in the value of the state farm production for over twenty years, the value of the 1890 product being one-third less than that of 1870. The wonderful results of this organization appeared immediately in the census returns of 1900 when the farm products of Pennsylvania showed a gain in value over 1890 of 70 per cent.

Minnesota in 1909 turned out an agricultural product estimated as worth over $427,000,000, or about $215.00 per capita.

Minnesota is the first state in the Union in wheat production, with a record yield of 94,000,000 bushels; but the 1909 average of 16.8 bushels per acre, though above the average for the country at large, is only half that of the best wheat sections of Europe or even that of Minnesota in the earlier days.

The state has done much to encourage scientific agriculture; what we now need is to make co-operative and effective under a well-directed central organization the many lines of agricultural activity now in progress in the several directions. We have one of the greatest agricultural colleges and farm schools in the country, with three fairly well-equipped experiment stations, and a farmers' institute or traveling lecture course.

That greater organization in agricultural education and industry is absolutely essential, is well known and generally admitted. An appalling annual loss of soil fertility from unscientific methods of tillage has been demonstrated to a mathematical certainty. The late federal census returns show an actual decrease in number of farms in several of our older counties, amounting to as high as 200 to 300 farms per county. As many as twenty-eight Minnesota counties, located not only in the older southern districts, but in the central and western sections of the state, show less population in 1910 than in 1900.

Department of Public Highways.

We have made a modest beginning in the development of a state highway system, and are moving slowly in the right direction. In four years, under the 1-20 of a mill levy, $264,000, or an average of $66,000 a year, has been available as state aid and distributed among the counties on the basis of $1.00 paid by the state as against $2.00 by the county, and nearly all the counties have availed themselves of this allotment and complied with the regulations of the State Highway Commission. Under the ¼ of a mill tax, which is available under the Constitutional Amendment, on the condition of the State paying one-half the cost of the state roads, it is possible for this legislature, on the present state valuation, to provide the state highway system with an annual appropriation of $300,000. This provision will place Minnesota in the rank of the eight leading states in good-roads legislation.

Doubtless there will be laid before you during this session a bill for a greatly improved and strengthened state highway act. One of its purposes is to serve as an enabling act to put into effect the new constitutional amendment. Another provision will authorize the county board of each county to appoint a competent road builder as county superintendent of highways, who shall act under the supervision of the state highway commission, in harmony with the plan successfully adopted by some of the Atlantic States. The act may likewise authorize the state highway commission and its engineer to name district engineers for the various sections of the state in accord with New York, Massachussetts and Connecticut plan. Certainly, the proposed act should give our state engineer a salary more nearly commensurate with his responsible expert duties.

According to the report of the state board of health, there occurred in this state 3,075 deaths frmo preventable disease during the year 1908, and 3,426 deaths during the year 1909.

The great problem to be solved is one of prevention rather than cure, and consists largely in the enforcement of sanitation laws in our cities, schools, and homes. That the present board of health has been efficient and rendered the state inestimable service there can be no doubt, but the possibility of the future cannot be measured by the achievements of the past. In this department, perhaps more than in any other, it is absolutely essential that there should be co-operation with other departments. Scarcely a question of any importance in the departments of education and labor comes up for consideration that does not also involve some question of public health. Under the present system of organization, this co-operation is very difficult. The state should encourage closer relations between its educational institutions and the administrative service, thereby not only insuring better service to the public but strengthening the institutions. In the sanitary inspection of cities, schools and hotels, in planning and constructing city water and sewers systems, and in the analysis of drinking water, the university should furnish a large amount of expert help, and the benefits resulting from such co-operation would be mutual. The function of a great university is not merely academic. It provides scientific aid and means of development in every phase of vocational, business and professional life.

The state health department should be authorized to inspect and control sanitation of hotels in the state. Under the present statutes, hotel inspection has been very unsatisfactory. The inspection service in hotels, as elsewhere, should be on a salary basis and the fees collected paid into the state treasury. But this department can accomplish little when handicapped by such lack of support as in the past. The importance of the department warrants larger appropriations and no member of the legislature can justify himself in refusing to appropriate the necessary funds for protecting the health and life of his constituents. I therefore earnestly recommend for your most careful consideration the needs of this department.

Department of Education.

Forty per cent of the entire volume of revenue collected and disbursed in Minnesota during the past year for state, county, city, village, and township government, approximately, $16,000,000,—was expended for public education. The state appropriations for education were $5,200,000, being two-thirds of the net cost of state government. Almost exactly 22 per cent of our population, or about 441,000, is enrolled in our high and graded, semi-graded and rural schools, as compared with 17 per cent for New England, and 16 per cent for New York. As showing the per capita investment for education in our various schools, the superintendent of public instruction finds that we paid last year $18.79 per capita for 222,000 pupils in semi-graded and rural schools, $34.72 per capita for 218,000 pupils in high and graded schools, $31.30 per capita for about 3,600 in normal schools, and $177.39 per capita for 5,369 attendants at the state university and agricultural schools and college. The investment in our 8,500 school houses exceeds $28,500,000, there having been constructed during the past two years 520 buildings, at a cost of $4,200,000. Our permanent school fund today exceeds $21,000,000, an increase of $1,293,000 from proceeds of timber, mineral and agricultural lands during the past two years. The teachers number over 15,000, and the school libraries contain 1,200,000 volumes.

No state department has more important functions to perform than that of education, and yet there is perhaps not a department today which is handicapped in its efficiency by such complicated executive machinery.

The expansion of the public school system and the increasing multiplicity of educational institutions call for greatly increased administrative force and greater specialization of work. Thirty-three states have enlarged the scope and powers of the state department of public instruction by creating state boards of education. Arduous demands upon our state department of public instruction in supervising a school system which calls for the expenditure of nearly $16,000,000 of local taxes and state appropriations annually, suggest that the time has come in our educational history, when the administration of all educational affairs should be placed in the hands of a strong state board of education. This board should be non-partisan and removed as far as possible from politics by giving the members six-year terms, terminating alternately one every two years. The board members should have specialized training and duties; one a specialist in common and industrial schools, another in higher education, and the third in school finance. To this board should be entrusted the management of all educational affairs and institutions of the state with the exception of the normal schools and the state university. It should appoint the state superintendent, the state librarian, and all inspectors in the entire school system, all of whom should be likewise selected with reference to educational qualifications and without regard to political affiliations. These considerations seem to me sufficient to urge upon the legislature the establishment of such a board and the submission to the people of the necessary constitutional amendment. A similar provision should be made with reference to county boards of education, so that the county superintendent can be selected purely with reference to merit and qualifications. If the legislature deems this inadvisable, there should be submitted for adoption by the people a constitutional amendment requiring county superintendents to possess specific educational qualifications.

The advantages of the consolidated school system are so well known as to make anything but a mere mention unnecessary. The principal argument used against the consolidation of the rural school is that of expense. The experience of eighteen hundred completely consolidated schools and two thousand partially consolidated schools in thirty-two states of the union, has completely demonstrated that the average expense is very little above that of the best district school, and when the items of transportation of pupils to and from the consolidated schools, and the study of a large number of branches not taught there, as well as the greater efficiency, are taken into consideration, the consolidated school becomes the cheapest school in our entire educational system.

Department of State Institutions.

During the past biennial period there has been no occasion to criticise the management of our state institutions and the state board of control is entitled to great credit for its work.

The hospitals and asylums are crowded beyond capacity, and the legislature should provide for the necessary extensions. Perhaps the greatest neglect on the part of the state is in failing to provide a reformatory for women. The suggestion made by the board of control that a new institution be provided with two separate departments, one a reformatory and the other a prison for women, should be adopted, as it is essential in the proper treatment and reformation of these inmates.

Another question of considerable importance with reference to the care of criminals is the enactment of a law authorizing the court, except in case of murder, to impose an indeterminate sentence. I am firmly convinced that there would be more convictions for murder in the first degree if either capital punishment were abolished, or imposed only in extreme cases, and then only upon the order of the court or the unanimous recommendation of the jury.

TAXATION AND COST OF GOVERNMENT.

Cost of government in Minnesota for the last fiscal year, ending July 31, 1910, as estimated by the state tax commission is as follows:

State government	$7,527,000	$3.36
County and township	19,606,000	8.75
City and village	16,259,000	7.26
Total	$43,392,000	$20.00

So far as the general taxpayer is concerned, the state government cost last year only $3,250,000, or about $1.50 per capita, and one-fifth of this was borne by the steel company and iron ore interests. As compared with $3,250,000 which general taxpayers paid into the state treasury last year, the state collected more than four times as much, or $14,800,000 form all sources, distributed as follows: $3,250,000, general taxes; $5,640,000, special taxes, such as taxes on corporate earnings and inheritances; $2,500,000, earnings of departments and institutions; and $3,410,000, receipts from lands, royalties, stumpage, investments, interest, and miscellaneous. Accordingly, in return for the $3,250,000 contributed by general taxpayers, the state government reimbursed this amount and collects $11,550,000 additional from other sources. In disbursing these collections, the state government distributes to general taxpayers in the 85 counties $5,200,000 for education, $3,400,000 for institutions of correction and charity, while the three main divisions of state government, legislative, judicial and executive, require for support only about $1,200,000, or less than 10 per cent of the aggregate collections.

The total assessed valuation of Minnesota, as equalized by the tax commission for 1910, is $1,222,400,000, an increase of $130,780,000, or 12 per cent, over 1909. Of this valuation, approximately $210,000,000 is personal, an increase of nearly $17,000,000 over 1909. Real property is assessed for 1910 at $1,012,400,000, an increase of $113,300,000. Increases in real values over 1908 were $44,400,000 on mineral properties, $44,900,000 on city property, and only $24,400,000 on acre property.

Iron-ore valuation for 1910 is $224,669,000, an increase of $20,100,000 over 1909 and $44,400,000 over 1908. In 1906, before the organization of the tax commission, iron ore valuations were $64,400,000. In four years taxable iron ore valuations have been increased by the tax commission over $180,000,000, or 280 per cent. Omitting reference to the much larger revenues which iron mines turn into local, county, city, village, township and school district treasuries, than into the state treasury, the latter alone now receives from the steel company and other iron interests, as the state's share of the 1910 tax, over $618,000, as against $180,000 in 1906, an increase of $435,000, or 240 per cent. in four years. Farmers and other land owners of Minnesota may be interested in the fact, that, of the total assessed valuation amounting to $592,000,000 on lands exclusive of city and village lots, $224,600,000, or not quite 40 per cent, represents mineral land values. All things considered, Minnesota under present laws and administration appears to be making good in the direction of scientific and just taxation.

Your honorable body will receive from the tax commission an exhaustive report on state taxation, one of the ablest and most comprehensive ever submitted on that subject and contains a number of excellent recommendations.

Telephone taxes for the two years ending July 31, 1910, were $284,000, compared with $195,000 for the two years ending July 31, 1908, an increase of $89,000, or 45 per cent. Examination by the public examiner's department, pursuant to supreme court decisions, recovered $22,554 of net revenue. Under the authority of the 1909 gross earnings act, the joint administration of the tax commission and public examiner's department, relative to telephone accounts and taxes, resulted in adding to the tax list for the year ending July 31, 1910, as compared with 1909, a total of 187 new companies, $1,047,680 of additional gross earnings, and $31,260 of increased taxes. Further legislation is now desired giving statutory form to the executive rules and decisions construing and applying the gross earnings act, especially with reference to co-operative, mutual and rural telephone lines and telephone accounting, in order that all classes of companies may be dealt with justly and in accord with their respective business conditions.

State Finances.

At no time in the history of the state were the finances in better condition. The revenue fund is greater by nearly a million dollars than it was a year ago. I fully agree with the state auditor and the investment board that $850,000 should be appropriated for the purpose of retiring state capitol certificates. This will reduce the interest-bearing debt of the state and place this amount in the school fund where it can be loaned to counties and municipalities for public improvements. A large number of loans approved by the investment board are still pending for lack of funds, and since it is unquestionably poor business policy to sell bonds owned by the state on a depressed bond market, I would respectfully recommend that the legislature immediately authorize the retiring of capitol certificates in the amount suggested, so that the pending applications for municipal and county loans can be granted to that extent.

Department of Public Examiner.

As a check upon irregularities in accounting and illegal expenditures, the legislature of Minnesota many years ago created the department of public examiner, to whose scrutiny the great volume of financial operations by the state are subjected. The public examiner is also required by law to check and verify the statements of all corporations paying gross earnings taxes, which implies the examination of about $150,000,000 of corporation earnings annually. He also exercises supervision over school districts, township, and village accounts, upon request of the county board. The law creating the department is fully justified by results, and other states are following Minnesota's example. From a financial standpoint, this department has been an exceptionally good investment, as it has recovered into the state treasury enormous sums of money, but even though it could not discover one mistake in a year's transactions, its existence as an accounting office is fully warranted.

Reapportionment.

Of all the important questions to be decided by the present legislature, that of reapportionment will be watched with the greatest interest by the people of the state. Our government was founded upon the principle, that taxation without representation is unjust, and every step forward since has been in defense of that great principle. Since the organization of our state there never existed greater inequalities as to representation. In some sections of Minnesota 12,000 people elect a senator, and in other sections it requires 62,000; in some sections 5,000 people elect a representative and in other sections it requires 32,000. Section 2, Article IV. of our Constitution guarantees to the people fair representation in the law making bodies, and that guarantee should be sufficient authority for legislative action at this session. In addition thereto both political parties have pledged themselves in the strongest terms possible to carry the will of the people into effect as expressed by their representatives in both conventions and to give the people of the state a fair reapportionment law at this session. With these conditions confronting us there cannot possibly be a valid excuse for any member to oppose the enactment of a law supported by every principle of right and justice, secured to the people by the constitution, and definitely promised by both political parties through their representatives in convention. Nothing but purely personal and selfish excuses can be reasons for opposition to this measure. It is true, small districts are unwilling to give up their present ration of representation, but there is no way in which that ratio can be maintained without very large increase in both the senate and house of representatives. No increase should be made in the senate or house of representatives, especially in the former. The Minnesota senate is already too large as compared with other states in the Union. In the interest of better legislation, as well as adequate representation, Minnesota would be better off with a constitutional limitation of fifty senators and from 120 to 125 representatives. That number would be sufficient for all purposes, and, as applied to the senate, as great as other states in the Union.

Relief of Forest Fire Sufferers.

Reference should be made at this time to the effects of the forest fire disaster in northern Minnesota, and the necessity for relief of the settlers who lost their homes and personal effects in that disaster.

The prompt and generous response of the people of Minnesota to my call for relief has so far provided means for meeting the temporary needs of this situation, but I am advised by the Red Cross Relief Committee that something in the way of further aid must be extended to these people. I would therefore urge the legislature to consider this matter at an early date and extend such relief as shall be adequate and equitable.

Trials of the Bank Clerk

Through Them All He Sticks to Post, Preserves Self Respect and Respect of Others.

One occasionally hears of a defalcation on the part of a clerk in a bank, trust company or other financial institution; but, considering the number of men so employed, the proportion that fail of absolute honesty is small indeed. The young man who is always neat, always courteous, always at his desk to enter your credits or point out your errors seldom forgets that he is dealing with the property of other people; yet as bad influences, as bad environment, as bad examples as are brought to bear upon him from any source frequently emanate right in banking circles, possibly within the very institution which he serves faithfully for a very small salary.

Unfairness in administration is perhaps before him every day; handling of securities and money by the heads of institutions in ways that would be thought improper (not to say dishonest) if employed by the bookkeeper or check clerk is often done with his knowledge and with the knowledge of his fellow clerks; yet he sticks to his post and seldom fails to preserve his self respect and deserve the respect of others.—I. F. Ferris in Leslie's.

Smarter Than Most.

The Old Guy—"Huh! Driving an automobile, eh? Young man, when I started in life I had to walk." The Young Chap—"You were smarter than most, sir. When I first started in life I couldn't walk."

Something.

"Can you keep anything on your stomach?" the ship's doctor asked. "No, sir," he returned, feebly, "nothing but my hand."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Here's a Real Jail De Luxe

Yorkville, N. Y., Provides Free Telephones, Baths, Napkins, Postage and Paper for Prisoners.

Workmen have been installing electric lights in the cells of the Yorkville police court prison as a part of the scheme to make it comfortable and pleasant for the men and women who are either fortunate or unfortunate enough to be locked up there.

They are able to take a shower bath or a tub bath with hot or cold water. Their meals are served to them in their cells and along with each meal a napkin is now supplied.

"Say, waiter, where's dem cigarettes I ordered? De grub's all right, but I must have me smoke," said one of the prisoners who had been arrested for sleeping in a hallway a few days ago.

The telephone in the prison is kept pretty busy for sometime after the prisoners arrive. Under the law each prisoner is entitled to one telephone message free. They must be told their rights. Some of them never think of the telephone until informed of their rights, and then they want all that is coming to them.

"I want to telephone to Rafferty at the Olive Tree Inn that I won't be out for ten days," a prisoner said to a keeper.

He was allowed to use the phone, but Rafferty was not at the inn. Nineteen telephone calls were sent out in one morning.

Each prisoner is entitled to a postage stamp, sheet of paper and envelope. They all take what they are entitled to and the letter carrier on that route now carries a larger bag.

When the electric lights are completed it is likely that the prisoners will demand that the city furnish daily newspapers and magazines to relieve the tediousness of the time in the cells.—New York Evening Sun.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—The thirty-seventh session of the Minnesota legislature is open at the state capitol.

The first day's business covered the routine, that of preliminary organization and the formal election of the Republican nominees for legislative offices who were selected at the caucus.

Members Sworn In.

At the opening of the session Chief Justice Start swore in the new members of the senate and Associate Justice Brown swore in the members of the house. In the house the election of the speaker was first considered. H. H. Dunn was placed in nomination by George A. MacKenzie of Gaylord. E. L. Kelley placed Albert Pfaender in nomination for the Democrats and Representative Morton nominated C. L. Selerud of Halstad for the Prohibition party. The roll call showed a vote of 80 for Dunn, 23 for Pfaender, and one Prohibitionist not voting.

H. H. Dunn was given an ovation when the result was announced. Julius Schmahl, secretary of state, who presided during the preliminary organization, appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. George A. MacKenzie, Robert C. Dunn, Wescott, O'Brien, and Keefe, to notify Mr. Dunn of his election and escort him to the room.

Mr. Dunn spoke briefly, thanking the members for the honor conferred upon him. He immediately called for the roll of business. The slate of house employes nominated at the Republican caucus Monday night went through without a hitch.

R. C. Dunn introduced a resolution providing that the rules adopted by the last legislature obtain at this session pending the report of the rules committee. The resolution also provided that no bills be introduced on the first day of the session. It was adopted.

Speaker Dunn then appointed the committee on rules, whose membership is as follows: McKenzie, C. E. Stone, Congdon, Fowler and Wescott. The request of the Democratic members to have a representation on this committee was denied.

Speaker Dunn announced the following house employes: Mary Gibbons of Princeton, clerk on general assignments; Fanny Larson of St. Paul, stenographer to the chief clerk; George J. Schillo of Sibley county and C. W. Borgey of Hennepin county, doorkeepers, and William Lovely of Hennepin clerk of the gallery

Other Officers.

Chief Clerk—Oscar Arneson, Seventh district.

Assistant Chief Clerk—G. O. Hage, Ninth district.

Enrolling Clerk — R. J. Thoreen, Fourth district.

Engrossing Clerk—Crawford Sheldon, Sixth district.

Postmaster—William Scanlon, Minneapolis, Fifth district.

Assistant Postmaster—O. O. Holman, Second district.

J. D. O'Brien of St. Paul who was elected chairman, appointed the following steering committee to handle the interests of the Democratic members: Albert Pfaender, New Ulm; C. Robinson, St. Charles; J. D. O'Brien, St. Paul; Frank Minnette of Sauk Center and Lawrence Wisnewski of Foley.

A moment after noon, Lieutenant Governor Gordon took his chair in the senate. He was followed by Chief Justice Start, who administered the oath of office to the senators. Senator Culler, of Shakopee, a Democrat, was elected temporary secretary. The slate adopted by the Republican senate caucus was carried without incident.

The following senate employes were selected without opposition:

President—Lieut. Gov. S. Y. Gordon, Browns Valley.

Secretary—George W. Peachey, Owatonno.

First Assistant Secretary — W. A. Simonton, Glenwood.

Second Assistant Secretary—C. A. Anderson.

Enrolling Clerk—Carl Anderson, St. Paul.

Sergeant-at-Arms—J. H. Ege, Minneapolis.

Chaplain—Rev. Andrew D. Stowe, Minneapolis.

Secretary to Lieutenant Governor—J. S. Arneson.

Mr. Gordon then announced the appointment of the committee on rules, as follows: Rockne, Clague, Cashman, Gunderson, Fosseen, Johnson, V. L. Haycraft, Rustad and Boyle. He also announced the appointment of the following senate employes:

A Native Son.

When Speaker Dunn stands up in his "chair" in the house, his head will be somewhere up in the dome. He is probably the tallest man that ever occupied that chair.

If there ever was an "Abe" Lincoln type of man in Minnesota politics, H. H. Dunn is the man. He is as tall as the rail splitter and just as thin. His face is smooth shaven, and his features are keen and rugged. His bushy black hair falls over on one side and looks like a shock of alfalfa that has been dyed black.

The new speaker usually wears a long black coat and a black string tie completes the sombre effect. It is only when the Albert Lea man gets into action that the sombreness fades away and then he is all fire and action.

Mr. Dunn is a native of Minnesota. His father's people were Scotch-Irish and his mother's people came from Virginia, which possibly accounts for Mr. Dunn's typically Southern appearance.

The man who will be speaker, unless the unexpected should happen, was born in Jackson county, Minnesota, Oct. 29, 1876, 43 years ago. His parents were pioneers. Mr. Dunn was born in a sod shanty and he still owns the old farm on which he was born in Jackson county, and the sod shanty is still standing.

Mr. Dunn went to Fairmont, where he practiced law for six years, and made his first entrance into politics. Frank A. Day, head of the Democratic organization, had become lieutenant governor, when Governor Knute Nelson became United States senator and Dave Clough became governor.

Mr. Day was president pro tem of the senate and the claim was made that he was no longer a senator and Mr. Dunn was elected to his place. Both Mr. Day and Mr. Dunn were Republicans in those days.

In 1898 Mr. Dunn went to Albert Lea and formed a law partnership with the late John L. Lovely. When Mr. Lovely was elected to the supreme court Mr. Dunn took over his law practice, and after Mr. Lovely's retirement the partnership was resumed. After Mr. Lovely's death Mr. Dunn continued the firm.

Senate Employes Named.

Messenger to lieutenant governor, F. G. Tuttle; second assistant secretary, C. A. Anderson; third assistant secretary, E. A. Nelson; fourth assistant secretary, D. W. Meeker; assistant enrolling clerk, N. E. Hutchinson; assistant engrossing clerk, William E. McGee; first assistant sergeant-at-arms, A. A. Christianson; second assistant sergeant-at-arms, S. E. Fay; clerk engrossing committee, Henry Lokensgaard; janitor senate chamber, W. H. Lake; assistant janitor, John H. Dillingham; postoffice messenger, Anton Hanson; keeper of cloak room, Albert Boerner; doorkeeper, Ole Anderson; assistant doorkeeper, M. F. Doty; sergeant-at-arms of retiring room, John Bucknell; sergeant-at-arms of committee rooms, Steve Ecklund; file clerk, O. E. Dieson; assistant file clerk, Alfred O. Schmidt; clerk of judiciary committee, W. H. Hodgman; assistant clerk judiciary committee, James D. Doran; clerk committees on railroads, municipal corporations, rules, C. E. Johnson; clerk committees on taxes and tax laws, federal legislation, public parks, manufactures, F. A. Koel; clerk committees to be assigned, Anna Connors; stenographer to judiciary committee, Edward Hagen; stenographer to finance committee, Harry Lemont; general stenographers, Miss K. H. Hansen, Mrs. W. A. Nowed, Anna Fering, Alta Kingsley and Emma Paulson.

The governor's message was read Tuesday noon.

IOWA WIFE SLAYER IS CAUGHT

Recently Released From Asylum and May Be Returned.

Keokuk, Iowa. — After shooting and killing his wife in a fit of insane rage at New Boston and keeping deputy sheriffs at bay for hours, Christian Schock, a farmer, was captured and was brought to the Keokuk jail. Schock had recently been released from the insane asylum at Mount Pleasant and probably will be returned to the hospital.

Aged Mail Clerk Dies.

Kingston, New York. — James S. Dean, said to be the oldest railway mail clerk in active service, died here at the age of 76. He was a Grand Army veteran and had served on the staffs of several national commanders.

Cornell Gets Third Victory.

Chicago, Ill. — The Cornell university hockey team made it three straight victories over Yale here when it won the final game of the series, 4 to 2. The contest was the roughest of the series.

TAFT ENTERTAINS NATION

New Year's Reception Marred by Unpleasant Weather.

Washington, D. C. — The New Year's reception at the White House, when the doors of the historical mansion are thrown open to the humblest citizens who may care to pay his respects to the chief magistrate of the nation, was held under weather conditions that tended to materially cut down the number that usually passes the receiving line in the blue room.

Francis Hayden Passes Away.

Chicago, Ill. — Francis A. Hayden, author of a number of volumes on Masonry, died at his home here, aged 76 years. Mr. Hayden was made a Thirty-third degree mason in Washington, D. C., in 1866.

Will Have New Hospital.

Mason City, Iowa. — The reorganization of the City Park Hospital company, the purchase of a lot at Washington and Sixth streets, and the proposal to erect a building to cost $75,000 was announced by the members.

WINS HONOR MEDAL

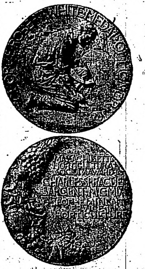
Harvard Professor Gets First George Robert White Award.

Given by Massachusetts Historical Society to Prof. Charles S. Sargent, Director of Arnold Arboretum for Eminent Service.

Boston.—An important event in the horticultural world is the establishment of the George Robert White medal of honor for the maintenance of which a suitable fund has been given to the Massachusetts Horticultural society, and the medal is to be awarded by the executive management of that organization.

Mr. George Robert White of Boston in his deed of trust accompanying the fund states that he has long thought that there was an opportunity for broadening the field of influence of the Massachusetts Horticultural society and of extending the interest in its work if some suitable recognition were made of those persons who have accomplished important results in horticulture; the award to be made independently of, or in addition to, any prizes or certificates of merit that may be bestowed by the society in the course of its regular schedule of premiums.

He has therefore founded the George Robert White medal of honor fund, the income of which is to be devoted annually for the specific purpose of providing a substantial gold medal to be awarded to the man or woman, commercial firm or institution, that has done the most during the year or in recent years to advance the interest in horticulture in its broadest sense.



MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY AWARD TO CHARLES SPRAGUE SARGENT MCMIX FOR EMINENT SERVICE IN HORTICULTURE

White Medal of Honor.

The first award of the medal has been made to Prof. Charles S. Sargent, director of the Arnold Arboretum, Boston, whose service in horticulture is generally recognized both in this country and abroad. His great work has been the introduction into this country of many desirable ornamental trees and shrubs and the testing of their hardiness in this latitude.

The George Robert White medal of honor will take rank with the Victoria medal of honor of England and the medal of the Legion of Honor of France, and will have a strong influence in promoting the horticultural activities of the country.

The medal itself was struck at the United States mint in Philadelphia, from 24-karat gold; is 2¾ inches in diameter, five-thirty-seconds of an inch thick, and weighs between seven and eight ounces.

On the face the figure symbolizes, not the ordinary horticulturist as much as the scientific intellect, whose aim is to improve nature, even to create, if that is possible. The trees in the background represent the allied branch of arboriculture. On the reverse, in the inscription, the name is so designed that it can be replaced by another name each time the medal is awarded.

The George Robert White medal was executed by Mr. John Flanagan, a native of Newark, N. J., and a student, first of Augustus St. Gaudens, later in Paris, at the Academy Julien, under Chapu, and the Atelier Falguiere, at the Ecole des Beaux Arts. During the course of these years of study Mr. Flanagan was awarded many coveted prizes, and acted as an assistant to MacMonnies on his fountain for the Chicago World's fair of 1893. Since then he has received commissions for many medals, portrait busts and other works, among the best known being the Brinton medal, the Langley memorial and the Hudson-Fulton and Pennsylvania society medals. Several of Mr. Flanagan's medals have been acquired by the Musee de Luxembourg, the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and recently by the Museum of Fine Arts at Ghent.

Another New Cult.

Brussels.—Two hundred thousand persons in the mining district of South Belgium have signed a petition to the government, asking permission to erect churches for a new creed called Antoinism. Antoine is a miner. A few years ago he inherited a little fortune, and started "curing" people gratuitously of all diseases by spiritual means. His method is the laying on of hands and making passes. He claims that a mysterious fluid emanation works the cure. Antoine's followers are multiplying and the new religion promises to sweep Belgium.

One of Brigham Young's Widows.

Salt Lake City.—Harriet Amelia Folsom, seventh wife of Brigham Young, died recently in this city, aged 72. She was a native of Buffalo. She was 21 when she married the Mormon ruler. She was a tall, stately, handsome woman and had great influence over her husband. Like Young's other widows she was a staunch believer in the Mormon faith.

Vice President Sherman and a party of his friends were held up by Maryland officers just beyond the District of Columbia because their automobile was not provided with a Maryland license for 1911.

Will the duke of the Abruzzi renew his suit for the hand of Miss Katharine Elkins, now that her father, whose insistence that his daughter should not wed the Savoy prince unless he was given full recognition as a duchess, has passed from the scene? It is confidently believed among his intimate friends in Washington that he will.

That the railroads of the United States have not demonstrated that their management is both efficient and economical is the contention made in a brief filed with the interstate commerce commission by William D. Haynie and H. C. Luston on behalf of the Illinois manufacturers' association in the pending investigation of proposed advance in freight rates by carriers.

Secretary MacVeagh's plan to stop coinage of gold and permit the secretary to issue gold certificates against gold bullion and foreign gold promises to become law at this session of congress. Secretary MacVeagh has written a letter to Senator Aldrich suggesting a bill, and Mr. Aldrich has asked him to appear before the senate's finance committee and explain the plan fully.

SENATOR HUGHES IS DEAD

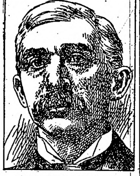
Pernicious Anemia Assigned as Cause of Death.—Had Been Ill For a Year.

Denver, Colorado. — Charles James Hughes, Jr., junior United States senator from Colorado, died at his home in this city after an illness of nearly a year. He had been unconscious several days.

The immediate cause of death was pernicious anemia. A trip to the Hawaiian Island last fall failed to improve his health, and shortly after his return home he was confined to his bed.

Senator Hughes leaves a widow and four children. The news of Senator Hughes' death was received with marks of sorrow. At the state house, the flag was half masted, and the house and senate soon adjourned.



Senator Hughes of Colorado.

The funeral will be held next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be private. For two hours preceding the funeral the body of the dead senator will lie in state at the capitol.

PEARY WITHIN MILE OF POLE.

Skilled Geodetic Surveyor Reviews Explorer's Observations.

Washington, D. C. — The house committee on naval affairs completed its examination of Captain Robert E. Peary on his claim to attainment of the North pole. Hugh C. Mitchell, a skilled computer of the coast and geodetic survey, testified that he handled Peary's observations. Mr. Mitchell said that he had figured that Peary when he made his furthermost camp was less than five miles from the pole, and that in his marches on the day of the climax of his trip he passed within one and one sixteenth miles of the actual pole.

Mr. Mitchell believed that Peary's observations could not be faked. The committee will hear Admiral Chester and review the testimony in the case at an early executive meeting with a view to passing on the bill proposing Peary's retirement as a rear admiral.

CAPITOL RING RETURNS CASH.

Restitution to the Amount of $1,300,000 Made by Defrauders.

Harrisburg, Penn. — Restitution to the amount of $1,300,000 and the surrender of warrants aggregating $200,000 upon which payment had been stopped were made in the Dauphin county court by the men convicted or otherwise implicated by the state of Pennsylvania in the capitol frauds. The commonwealth agreed to drop all criminal action against the defendants with the exception of the case of Architect Joseph M. DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

St. Paul, Jan. 5.—The first primary election bill of the present session of the senate by Senator John Moonon, of Waseca. The bill amends several sections of the present bill, leaving only the primary features of the law. It provides for the voting for candidates who have not been placed on the ballot by any previous announcement, the calling of a meeting of all the candidates nominated at the primary election for the purpose of promulgating party platforms and selecting state central committees and prescribes the rules of registration.

The primary election system is extended to all elective offices with the exception of officers of towns, villages and cities of the fourth class, and members of school, park and library boards in cities less than 100,000 population. The day of the primary election shall be the first day of registration. Party candidates for the office of United States senator shall be nominated in the manner provided for in the nomination of the state officers.

"The blanks for registration of voters for general election shall have two additional columns, one headed 'party affiliations' and the other headed 'Primary election.' No names of voters shall be placed upon the registers prior to the day of such election, nor shall any be placed on the register upon said day, except the names of those who appear in person before the boards of registration for that purpose.

"It is made the duty of the judges of each primary election to ask each person who applies to be registered the question, 'What political party do you desire to affiliate with?' and the political party given by such person so applying shall be recorded on the books of registration in the column headed 'party affiliations.' In case the judges of election do not believe that the person applying to be registered has answered such questions truthfully or the person applying to be registered is known to have other party affiliations then it is made the duty of the judges to administer the following oath:

"'You solemnly swear that you will fully and truthfully answer the questions put to you concerning your party affiliation?' The judges shall then again propound the question, while such applicant is under oath and the name of the party affiliation given shall be entered.

"In case the person applying to be registered does not desire to state his party affiliation he shall not be required to do so as a bar to his purpose of voting at the general election, but he cannot cast a ballot at the primary election.

"The candidates for the various state offices, for the office of United States senator and for the state senate and house of representatives of each political party shall meet at the state capitol at 12 o'clock on the second Tuesday after said election to formulate a party platform, elect a state central committee and perform such other business as may be necessary. The platform of each party shall be framed at such time and be announced not later than the day following such meeting."

Senator John Moonon introduced a joint memorial asking congress to provide an amendment to article 1 of the United States constitution to allow the state to elect United States senators by direct vote of the people instead of by the legislature.

Senator Wilson notified the senate that the bill covering employers' liability, which has been framed by the employers' liability and compensation commission, will be introduced Jan. 20.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—The first real day's work done by the legislature was featured by the announcement of senate committees, which aroused considerable comment because the ultra-radicals were given choice assignments; the adoption of the rules in both branches and the warm debate occasioned in the house when Representative Nolan attempted to have one amended, and the introduction into both branches of some radical legislation.

In the senate, bills providing for direct legislation were introduced by a Democrat, Senator Moonan of Waseca, while in the house, Representative Kunze, of Hennepin introduced a measure providing for the nomination of United State senators by popular vote. There were also introduced into the house two measures that are calculated to draw the fire of the railroads, since they are advanced legislation along that line.

With but one important change, the report of the committee on rules was adopted by the house. The change provides that every bill, other than for appropriations, claims or reapportionment referred to a standing committee, shall be reported therefrom within 20 days after its receipt by the committee. Any such bill not so reported within such period, unless the period is extended, shall be delivered to the speaker five days after any member gives notice that he requires such bill to be reported, with or without a report, and lie on the table of the house. This rule is even stronger than that recommended by the senate committee, where the 25-day limit was invoked.

The bills providing for the initiative and referendum, the recall of all public officers the people deem recreant to their trusts were introduced into the senate by Senator Moonan of Waseca.

The recall measure provides that when 25 per cent of the voters who cast their ballots at the election at which the official was chosen signify by petition it shall act as notice that unless the official shall resign within five days of a special election shall be held to determine whether he shall be recalled. The reasons set forth for his recall and his defense shall be briefed on the ballot in not more than 200 words for each charge.

Bills aimed at the railroads were introduced by Senator Cashman of Owatonna. These provibe that rates for transportation of passengers and freight shall not be more for a short haul than for a long haul, and that freight transportated over two or more lines cannot be transferred when in carload lots to another car at the junction point.

Senator Moonan introduced a bill providing for the erection at his home town of Waseca of a schol of agriculture that shall be identified with the state university.

House Bills.

The following bills were introduced into the house:

By Cal. E. Stone, For the Minnesota State Trades Industrial school for dependent orphans. The amount asked is $125,000.

By George McKenzie, To amend the law relating to corporations.

By R. C. Dunn, To appropriate money to defray the cost of publication of the proposed amendments to the constitution in October, 1910.

By W. A. Campbell and F. L. Palmer, To prohibit the locating or maintenance of cemeteries within one-half mile of the state university or any of any of its colleges or the Soldiers' home.

By W. A. Campbell, Providing for the correction of election returns in counties, cities and municipal corporations in which voting machines are used.

By W. F. Kunze, Providing for the nomination of United States senators by popular vote.

By W. A. Campbell, To oblige street railway companies operating in towns of 50,000 or over to maintain a watchman at all crossings with railroad tracks.

By W. F. Kunze, Providing for educational and professional qualifications for county superintendents of schools.

By O. Hauge, For an amendement to the act providing for the appointment of a state highway commission.

By C. R. Fowler To amend the act to pension the citizen-soldiers of Minnesota who participated in the Indian massacre of 1862.

St. Paul, Jan. 10—Election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, according to the Oregon plan, was proposed by Senator Works of Mankato in a bill presented to the senate. Senator Murray of Bird Island introduced a bill providing for voting on United States senators at the party primaries.

In the senate, in addition to the two bills dealing with the election of United States senators, a bill was introduced by Senator Works, providing for the pensioning of all citizens who took part in the Indian wars from 1862 to 1865, for a period of 10 days or more. Senator Peterson of Litchfield introduced a bill reducing the penalty for murder in the first degree from hanging to life imprisonment.

The Works bill for the election of United States senators provided that 20 days before any general election, during which members of the state legislature were to be elected who would in turn elect a United States senator, the names of candidates for United States senator should be filed with the proper officials and placed upon the ballots. The legislature then, the bill provided, would be compelled to elect to the United State senate the man receiving the highest number of votes at the primary, whether or not he was of the same political party as the majority of the members of the legislature.

He covered about 25 miles in 64 minutes.

INDIAN COUNTRY LID OFF

SALOONS RESUME BUSINESS WITHOUT DELAY.

Results of W. E. Johnson's Work Wiped Out By Willard Decision.

Detroit. — The restraining order given the Indian country saloon men by Judge Willard, of the U. S. court at St. Paul, against Indian agent, W. E. Johnson, has resulted in the saloons in the Indian country re-opening.

Under Judge Willard's decision, the four saloons of this city opened for business promptly utilizing what stock had been planted for private use and what could be hurried in from adjoining points.

Saloon keepers here estimate a loss of $2,000 each as a result of their two month's enforced idleness. This covers a loss of profit on business, leakage, transportation on returned goods, etc. The decision comes as a thunderbolt to the anti-saloon people, and liquor men are correspondingly jubilant.

Detroit at present has four saloons, paying a license fee of $1,500. It will now be allowed six saloons under a state limit, and the license fee will probably be fixed at $1,000. In the absence of a complete text of the decision, no plans have been formed for the instituting of a suit against the government for damages resulting from the closing order of William E. Johnson, in case the government is found liable. A large stock of supplies has been ordered by the saloonkeepers.

Cass Lake Ready to Resume Business.

Cass Lake. — Judge Willard's decision annulling the Indian "lid" did not cause much excitement here. The fice saloonkeepers made preparations to reopen and had license applications already published for hearing before the village council.

Cass Lake has been working quietly the last month on the proposition of reopening, on the grounds that Cass Lake is not on Indian land and does not come under the Indian treaties, as the townsite was sold under special act of congress and the provisions did not contain a liquor clause, but comes under the Nelson act of 1889. This territory included Cass Lake, Bena and Ball Club.

At the time of Johnson's closing action, eight saloons were doing business. Five closed 15 months ago, the balance on November 23, last. The estimated loss to the saloon keepers and other business amounted to $192,000, over half being spent here by transients, while liquor destroyed was valued at more than $5,000. License at the present time is $1,500

Business Loss Is $30,000.

Brainerd. — An examination of the records of the city clerk shows that 24 saloonkeepers of the city have licenses in force, and that two have made application for renewals. Interviewing the saloon men, as well as the Coates Liquor company, a wholesale house, and the Brainerd Brewing comany, the actual loss to these business interests caused by the "lid" enforcement is placed by them at $30,000. The saloons estimate their loss at $1,000 each, and the Coates Liquor company and the Brainerd Brewing company at $2,000 each. The loss includes trade lost by closing, injury sustained to their business, loss occasioned by express and freight shipments, damages to business connected with saloons, such as hotels which ran bars. All the saloons will reopen.

It has not been decided if any suits or actions will be commenced by the local liquor interests. A meeting will be held to determine their action in this regard.

STATE PLUM IS PLUCKED.

St. Paul. —Insurance Commissioner Preus has announced the appointment of Ira C. Peterson of Minneapolis as chief clerk in his office to succeed F. B. Matlach of St. Paul.

Mr. Peterson is a graduate of the University of Minesota and has been practicing law in Minneapolis for four years. He was a classmate of Mr. Preus. H. L. Phillips, the actuary in the department, will be retained. Mr. Preus has not yet decided on a deputy insurance commissioner to succeed M. C. Tifft.

Kelsey Chase, superintendent of banks, has announced the appointment of Harry S. Quiggle of Winnebago, as bank examiner. He was assistant bank examiner under Superintendent Galarneault and succeds A. L. Roth, who resigned.

Ames Case Judge Dead.

NORTHWEST MEN TO ATTEND.

Convention of National Tariff Commission Association

Washington, D. C. — Minneapolis St. Paul and the general Northwest region are to be well represented at the convention of the National Tariff Commission association on January 11 and 12. Delegations representing the commercial organizations of that territory will come to Washington next Tuesday and will participate in the sessions at which many notable speakers will be heard, including President Taft, Henry C. Emery, chairman of the tariff board, and others.

Henry T. Wills, secretary of the association, is being advised daily of the additions to the list of those who will be present at the meetings.

The Minnesota delegation will be headed by Prof. E. V. Robinson of the University of Minnesota, who has been chosen by Governor Eberhart as the representative of the state. Dr. Robinson is a director in the association.

Others already named so far are as follows: Commercial club of Minneapolis, B. F. Nelson; Commercial club of St. Paul, Eli S. Warner; Commercial club of Wheaton, Minn., Victor E. Anderson; St. Paul Business league, Paul Doty; Duluth Board of Trade, A. W. Frick, W. C. Poehler, W. J. McCabe; Mower County Agricultural society; Austin, Minn., E. H. Smith, C. L. Rice.

The St. Paul Jobbers' and Manufacturers' association and the Commercial club of Osakis are affiliated members of the association and intend to have representatives here.

MORTON SETTLERS.

Door of Opportunity Wide Open in the Big Slope County.

Mandan.—A single county in North Dakota capable of producing a quantity of flax equal to one-fifth of the entire production of that seed in the United States, with enough arable land to produce 22,000,000 bushels of wheat in a single year, 18,000,000 bushels of oats, rye, corn, potatoes and other crops in proportion, is the manner in which W. C. Gilbreath, commissioner of agriculture and labor, looks at the future of Morton county—the largest county in the state now that Ward has been dismembered.

Comprising 2,303,817 acres, only one-twelfth of which is being farmed, Commissioner Gilbreath bases his belief of future greatness on statistics available on the county's production from the present acreage under cultivation. Only 225,885 acres of Morton county land are under cultivation today.

The commissioner does not undertake to say what the future of the county in its dairying pursuit may be. The fact that one-seventh of the creameries of the state are in Morton county indicates that dairying will always be one of the important resources of the county.

TO REVIVE OLD SUIT.

Crookston Mayor Would Collect Water Company's Unpaid Taxes.

Crookston.—The city of Crookston and the Crookston Water Works, Power and Light Company, of which W. J. Murphy of Minneapolis is the head, are about to clash. The company has paid no taxes since 1906, it is said, and back taxes, without penalties attached, now amount to $39,000.

The trouble arose over back taxes assessed four years ago, in which the company's personal property assessment was materially increased, wires, water mains and other equipment being assessed back for a number of years. County Attorney Maybury four years ago started a suit which was taken to the supreme court, but not vigorously prosecuted. County Attorney Hagen did not take it up, and now City Attorney Loring is about ready for action.

Mayor McKinnon called a special meeting of the council to discuss the case. The present administration is determined to bring the matter to trial at the present term of the district court.

To Run Corn Special.

Albert Lea.—The agricultural department of the Albert Lea high school will run a "corn special" through southern Minnesota the week of January 16.

The train, consisting of three coaches, a dining and sleeping car, will be in charge of Prof. Theodore Sexauer of the agricultural department of the high school, assisted by Prof. M. L. Bowman of Waterloo and Prof. B. W. Crossley of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and will start at La Crosse, Wis., on January 16 over the Southern Minnesota division of the St. Paul road, concluding the trip at Pipestone.

If it is found, when the schedule has been completed, that it is possible to run the train from Wells to Farmington in the same week, so as to conclude the trip by January 22, that addition will be made to the route. Lectures will be delivered on the train on the selection, care and testing of seed corn.

FEW FIRES AT SAUK CENTER.

Loss for a Year Is Only Two Thousand Dollars.

Sauk Center—With a balance of $755.96, consisting of $649.93 in bank certificates, drawing 4 per cent, and $107.03 in cash, the Sauk Center fire department began the year in splendid condition. Chief George Fish reported twelve fires last year, with a loss only of about $2,000. At the annual meeting George Fish was re-elected chief for the eighth time.

Commissioners' Proceedings

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Nov. 25, 1910.

Pursuant to the proclamation of the governor of the state, declaring Pennington county, Minnesota, a duly organized county, the commissioners elect met at the city of Thief River Falls, the county seat of said county, at the municipal court rooms in the auditorium building in the said city for the purpose of organizing the county board of said county and the transaction of such business as might properly come before said board. Commissioners present, Daniel Shaw, Ed A. Aubol, Olaf Larson, Peter C. Wold, and Peter Hedeen. Each of said commissioners having subscribed to the oath of office, the board was called to order and Commissioner Shaw was nominated and elected clerk of said board.

It was moved and carried that an informal ballot be taken for the position of chairman of the county board, which informal ballot resulted as follows, to wit:

For chairman Ed A. Aubol 4, Daniel Shaw 1; whereupon it was moved and carried that the informal ballot be made formal, and that Ed A. Aubol be declared the duly elected chairman of the county board. A ballot being taken for vice chairman, Olaf Larson was declared the unanimous choice for vice chairman.

Moved and carried that the board proceed to the appointment of the county officers of Pennington county, and the following named persons were appointed:

County auditor, A. H. Fasel.
County treasurer, Andrew Trovaton.
Register of deeds, E. L. Qaist.
Sheriff, W. J. LaBree.
County attorney, E. M. Stanton.
County surveyor, C. H. Martz.
Coroner, Dr. C. Swanson,
Superintendent of schools, E. A. Mostue.

On motion the board took a recess until 1 o'clock p. m.

NOV. 25, 1910, 1 O'CLOCK P M

The county board reconvened at 1 o'clock p. m., all members present. It was moved that the county officers be required to furnish a surety bond as follows, towit:

County auditor, in the sum of $2,000; county treasurer, in the sum of $25,000; register of deeds, in the sum of $[illegible]; sheriff, in the sum of $[illegible]; county attorney, in the sum of $1,000; surveyor in the sum of $[illegible]; coroner, in the sum of $[illegible]; clerk of district court in the sum of $1,000. And until said bonds are [illegible] the personal bond of said officers with approved sureties for the amounts [illegible] accepted in lieu thereof. Motion carried unanimously.

M[illegible] carried that the board take a recess [illegible] morning at 10 o'clock.

County board reconvened at 10 o'clock Nov. 26, 1910, all members of said board present.

H. E. Ives was, on motion made and carried, appointed clerk of the district court and his bond fixed at the sum of $1,000.

The bonds of county auditor, register [illegible] county attorney, and sheriff being presented and found in conformity to law and with sufficient sureties were on motion ordered approved.

Recess taken until 1 o'clock p. m.

Farmers' Institute

Arrangements have been made for the holding of a Farmers' Institute at St. Hilaire on Thursday, Jan. 26. Sessions will commence at 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m., sharp. This institute will be conducted by F. B. McLeran of Wrenshall, Minn., a man who has had a great deal of farming experience in northern Minnesota, and who is well able to act as an instructor at the institutes in this part of the state. He will be assisted by E. W. Smith and E. F. Marshell. These three men will discuss the different lines of farming that are of interest to the people in this section—such as dairying, hog raising, potatoes, clover, horticulture, poultry, etc. Every farmer who can possibly attend can count on getting much information that will be of value to him.

Farmers' Institute Annual No. 23 will be distributed to those attending the morning session of the institute. This new book is devoted largely to corn growing and using, but also contains much material on other lines of farming. It is easily one of the most valuable books ever distributed to the farmers of Minnesota, and every farmer in the neighborhood should have a copy of it. The annual is free.

The lectures given will be amply illustrated by charts and photographs, so that all points will be made as plain as possible.

There is no expense whatever to those who attend the institute. All of the local expense is taken care of by the business men, and the state of Minnesota furnishes the speakers and the books. Every one is invited to attend—men, women, boys, and girls. The speakers will have something to say that will be of great interest to every one.

Don't forget the date—one week from next Thursday. Be on time for each session. Come yourself, bring your family, and get your neighbors to come also.

It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.O.D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.
Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.
IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.
DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

A Little Mixed.

Admiral Evans, at a luncheon in San Francisco, said of a naval policy he disliked:

"It is mixed and illogical. It reminds me of Bob Backstay, who became engineer on a submarine.

"'Bob,' said a friend, 'don't you find it dangerous work, this knocking about in a submarine deep beneath the sea?'

"'Yes, very dangerous,' Backstay admitted, 'but a man's got to do something, you know, to keep his head above water.'"

LONE PIGEON LEFT

One Ohio Bird Survives Breed of Several Billions.

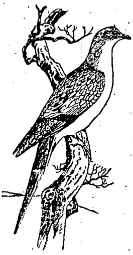
Cincinnati, O.—One solitary passenger pigeon, ending her life at the Zoological garden in Cincinati, is today all that remains of an American species that early in the last century swarmed over the continent in flocks numbering billions. With the death of this sole survivor of a bird tribe, whose nesting places often covered hundreds of square miles, there will soon disappear the last race of the wild pigeons that have been slaughtered by the million by men who fed their hogs upon the carcasses they could not carry away. Though it is too late to save this species, special efforts are now being made by the Audubon workers to bring about the restoration of other birds of economic value that must otherwise share the same fate.

For many months systematic search has been made throughout the continent by officials of the Audubon association for relics of the once prolific passenger pigeon. Members of the organization headed by Prof. C. F. Hedge of Clark university have made a standing offer of $1,500 to anyone discovering a nest of this species; but, though thousands have been trying eagerly for the prize, not one single claimant has appeared. In response to a recent inquiry by T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon societies, the authorities of the Cincinnati Zoo have just furnished the last chapter in the tragic tale of these butchered birds. The "Last of the Passenger Pigeons" is a female, eighteen years old, whose mate died recently without issue at the age of twenty-four.



Passenger or Wild Pigeon.

As late as 1877 what is now known to have been the last nesting place of these wild birds was found in the state of Michigan, where their nests thickly covered the trees over an area 28 miles long and four miles wide. Residents of New York declare that in 1850 they flocked over Manhattan Island in such numbers that they obscured the sun and that ships loaded in bulk with the bodies of these birds lay at the wharves selling them at a cent apiece. Audubon is quoted as observing a roosting place of wild pigeons in Kentucky early in the last century that extended 40 miles and was three miles in width. On its edges men with guns, nets, clubs and torches slaughtered the roosting birds, each often bagging 500 in one day.

Declaring that practically all the gulls and terns in America today have survived solely through the work of protection and restoration at their reservations, leaders of the National Association of Audubon societies are now appealing to the people of this country to support the work of preserving dying species of native birds which they have already begun. The Upland Plover, Cabot's Tern and the Least Tern, they assert, can now be saved to the nation by quick emergency measures for which special funds are to be raised.

Popularizing the Potato.

Paris.—When potatoes were introduced into France the natives had been told they were poisonous and that it was death to partake of them.

To overcome this prejudice Parmentier gave a big banquet in Paris, at which every dish was made from potatoes. There were 16 courses in which potatoes played the major or minor part. Even the brandy and liquors were the product of this vegetable. King Louis XIII. was among the guests and gave his host land on which to cultivate potatoes near Paris. As the tubers grew to size Parmentier posted guards around the fields by day and withdrew them at night so that those who lived around them could steal them at night, eat the vegetable and thus become convinced. So, unconsciously, the French were converted to the dish and never gave it up.

World's Largest Room.

The roof is a single arch of iron and the architecture is considered one of the wonders of the world

CONSTIPATION

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25 cents.

CHILD'S GIFT REAL CHARM

Rescued Father From Despondency and Proved the Foundation of Fortune.

A certain business man has a curious little charm for his watch chain. He wouldn't sell it for $1,000; no, nor two, nor three. His little child gave it to him one day when, as he says, he was "down."

"I had lost every cent I had in the world, and there at my desk, my head on my arms, I was thinking of a possible way to end it, when my little child came up to me and asked: 'What does "ruined" mean, papa?' And then I knew I had ben groaning loud enough to be heard and understood. 'You said "ruined" paper. What does it mean?'

"'It means I haven't any money, baby. Papa's a poor man.' The little feet pattered away, then back again, and here on my watch charm is what she gave me. Not a great fortune—no, but the foundation of one. Whatever I've got since came from it, for it gave me courage."—The Christian Herald.

STUBBORN ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well up that the burning sensations were disappearing, I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for a wash for them, and I think by using the Soap and Ointment I was much benefited. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone.

"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me and I will give them the name of my physician, also the hospital I was treated at." (Signed) Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, Que., Sept. 14, 1910.

Due Precautions.

In a town in Georgia there was an old preacher whose knowledge of the world was not wide nor deep, but who conceived it to be a place where, if one should trust his fellow men, he should at the same time keep an eye on his own interests.

One hot day he pulled off his coat and preached a vigorous sermon, under the pines, in his shirt sleeves. At the close of the open-air service one of his admirers approached him and said, regretfully:

"I don't suppose that you knew that the editor of one of the big New York Sunday papers was here when you pulled off your coat."

"I reckon I knew it well for I've been told of it," said the preacher, calmly. I don't believe he's as bad as he might be, and anyway, I put my coat on the chair close by and had it right under my eye all the time."—Youth's Companion.

Absent-Minded.

The professor had just sneezed for the thirtieth time, and it naturally attracted some attention.

"What's the matter with the professor?" asked the visitor. "He appears to have a bad cold."

"Oh, no," said Madame la Professoress. "It is only his fearful absentmindedness. I left him in charge of the baby for a few moments this morning, and when he cried he gave him the pepper-pot to play with instead of his rattle."—Harper's Weekly.

OLD COMMON SENSE.

Change Food When You Feel Out of Sorts.

"A great deal depends upon yourself and the kind of food you eat," the wise old doctor said to a man who came to him sick with stomach trouble and sick headache once or twice a week, and who had been taking pills and different medicines for three or four years.

He was induced to stop eating any sort of fried food or meat for breakfast, and was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, leaving off all medicines.

In a few days he began to get better, and now he has entirely recovered and writes that he is in better health than he has been before in twenty years. This man is 58 years old and says he feels "like a new man all the time."

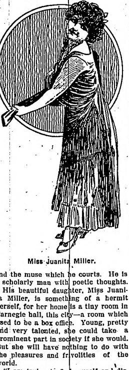
LIVES FOR SAKE OF HER ART

Poet Joaquin Miller's Daughter Woos the Muse in a Cheap New York Lodging.

New York.—Everyone has heard of Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, who lives with his birds and his books in a little cabin on the mountain side above Oakland, Cal. Once in a while the aged and bewhiskered hermit-poet comes into civilization and entertains people with his undisguised contempt for society, but in the main he prefers to commune with nature and the muse which he courts. He is a scholarly man with poetic thoughts.



Miss Juanita Miller.

His beautiful daughter, Miss Juanita Miller, is something of a hermit herself, for her home is a tiny room in Carnegie hall, this city—a room which used to be a box office. Young, pretty and very talented, she could take a prominent part in society if she would. But she will have nothing to do with the pleasures and frivolities of the world.

"I am trying to find myself and discover what I am here for," she says. "I am severely criticized by my friends for trying to live my own life, but to me freedom is above all else to be desired. My greatest horror is the possibility of being a sheep and following a leader. Society women do not order their own lives. I am well and happy and just now am living a life which tends most to happiness. I have solved the problem of high prices. I pay $4 a week for my room here and as there are no bathing facilities I go to a Turkish bath once a week. My clothes I buy on Fourteenth street and pay almost nothing for them. My food costs me only $2 a week; so I may say my total living expenses amount to but little more than $7 a week. I make my own coffee in the morning. At noon I go over to Sixth avenue, where I get an egg sandwich for five cents and a good stew for ten cents. In the evening I make my coffee again and have some fruit.

"Once I was drifting and was bored. Now I am happy. I have done some water colors which my friends say are good. I can sing and I can play. Now I want to know which thing I can do best and then follow that line. Why should I consult my friends about my own destiny? I couldn't stand my old life in society any longer and I broke away. I decided to earn my own living and be absolutely independent. I pay my way by giving piano and mandolin lessons and have lots of time for myself. My father is heartily in sympathy with me."

Miss Miller's mother is very fond of life and society, but cannot induce the girl to give up what seem to her to be very peculiar notions. Evidently Juanita is a feminine copy of Joaquin.

GRAVE IN A CHICAGO PARK

Massive Couch Mausoleum Stands as Last Vestige of the City's First Cemetery.

Chicago.—Familiar as are most people, whether visitors or residents, with Lincoln park, this city, and its principal features, there yet remains one object therein which causes wonder and question by many who go there, and which still stands an unexplained mystery to thousands. During the early days of Chicago's history the present site of the park was occupied by a cemetery. About 1865 interments ceased and the lot owners were given lots in other cemeteries. So the park became a pleasure instead of a burial ground. Among the pioneer settlers who ultimately found a resting place in this old cemetery was one Ira Couch by name, who built a mausoleum for himself and his family. When, however, the cemetery became a park the commissioners found that the Couch family objected to the removal of the tomb. Those circumstances finally settled the question of removal. So with its heavy blocks of stone and massive iron door it has stood for over half a century the last vestige of Chicago's first cemetery.

Tightly-Laced Shoe Bursts Artery.

FLAX IS PROFITABLE

Wonderful Paying Proposition in Western Canadian Prairies.

So much is heard of the wheat, oats and barley grown in the prairie lands of western Canada, and so much has been told of the wealth to be made out of the raising of cattle on the succulent and rich grasses of those fertile plains, that a most important product has been almost lost sight of, Flax. Recent press reports advise us that on one of the last boats to clear from Fort William (at the head of Lake Superior) for Buffalo, there were 241,000 bushels of flax valued at $583,220, and on another boat leaving the same day there were 288,000 bushels valued at $720,000. There has been a big demand for Canadian flax this season, and the lake movement has been very heavy. Flax is always a sure crop, and gives to the farmer who is anxious for quick return after getting on his land, the chance he is looking for. There is opportunity for thousands yet, on the free homesteads of 160 acres, and many of these are available within short distance of the lines of railway that are already built or under construction, either on the main line or branches. Besides these free grant lands there is an opportunity to purchase from railway and land companies at reasonable prices.

The display of western Canada's grains in the straw as well as threshed grains and grasses recently made at St. Louis was an excellent demonstration of what the country can do. It proved splendid as an illustration of the resources of that vast prairie country, which during the past year has again proven its ability to produce excellent yields of wheat, oats and barley—and flax. Not only this, but the splendid herds of cattle are a source of large revenue. There is a fund of information to be had by reading the Canadian government literature, copies of which may be had free by applying to your nearest Canadian government agent.

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherrybark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate, or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

N. D. EX-OFFICIAL UNDER ARREST

FORMER TREASURER BICKFORD ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLING $60,400.

PLACED MONEY IN HIS OWN BANK

"I Will Be Vindicated When All Facts Are Known," Says Bickford in a Public Statement.

Bismarck, Jan. 19.—G. L. Bickford, who was succeeded by Gunder Olson as state treasurer on Jan. 3, was arrested on a warrant issued following the complaint of County Attorney W. L. Smith of Burleigh county charging embezzlement and misappropriation of funds to the extent of $60,000.

Immediately following the service of the first warrant, a complaint was sworn out by Andrew Miller, attorney general, containing the same general charges, only making the amount $60,400.

When the second warrant was ready, word was sent to the sheriff, who was with Bickford, and they went to the attorney general's office in the capitol, where the preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Pierce was held.

Bickford appeared to have made no preparation for the arrest, as he was apparently wholly at sea as to procedure.

Bail for Bickford's appearance was put at $10,000, which was secured in a couple of hours.

First Hint of Trouble.

The first hint of trouble in Bickford's office was had before the primary election when charges were made during the campaign in which Bickford was defeated for renomination that there was some lax practice in the methods of handling state funds.

There was nothing thought of the matter at that time, as it was supposed to be purely a political charge. When Olson was about to take charge of the office, however, the matter took a more serious turn, and he claims to have discovered securities which were of no value whatever.

As near as has been able to be worked out from the various reports of the shortage, Bickford has taken state funds and placed them in his bank at Bowbells to the amount of over $60,000 more than the law allows. It is this money that he has been unable to raise.

Friends have been working hard to get hold of the necessary cash and it has been reported several times that it was raised, and it is probably true that there is a major portion of it in Bismarck at the present time.

Bickford, when seen, said: "There is nothing to it but politics and I will be vindicated when all the facts are known."

G. Luther Bickford is 34 years of age, was born June 14, 1874, at Wilson, Niagara county, New York, and came to North Dakota and settled at Larimore. He is a graduate of the state university and while there was a leader in athletics. He was at the time of his election president of the banks at Bowbells and Coteau. He was county superintendent of schools in Ward county for four years. Bickford is married and has one son 6 years old.

The following bondsmen were secured for both cases: Henry Tatley, proprietor of the Grand Pacific hotel; F. O. Hellstrom, warden of the state penitentiary; W. H. Mann, railroad commissioner; John A. Johnson, farmer, of Washburn; John Yegan, merchant, Bismarck; S. W. Bond, retired real estate dealer and banker of Minot.

RATE RAISE SUSPENDED.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The interstate commerce commission has decided to postpone until March 15 the effectiveness of the increased freight rates on sixty commodities recently announced by railroads operating between Chicago and the Missouri river. The increases, which would cost western shippers several million dollars annually, were to have become effective Feb. 1.

FIREMEN SAVE 155 CHILDREN.

Prompt Rescue Work Accomplished When Institution Burns.

Binghampton, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Prompt work by firemen and attendants of the Susquehanna Valley home saved the lives of all of the 155 inmates when fire broke out in the boiler room of the dormitory building. After a careful search of the building the firemen failed to reveal any bodies. Dozens of the children were carried out unconscious from suffocation.

AEROPLANE LANDS ON CRUISER.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Aviator Ely started from Selfridge field, twelve miles south of the city at 10:45 a. m. to make an attempt to land on the deck of the cruiser Pennsylvania, anchored in San Francisco Bay. Sixteen minutes later Ely landed safely on the deck of the cruiser. This is the first time the feat has been accomplished in the history of aviation.

HEROES FOUND IN NORTHWEST

DECORATIONS AND MONEY BESTOWED ON AMERICANS.

"Big Bill" Edwards Rewarded for His Defense of Mayor Gaynor.

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—The Carnegie hero commission named 26 new heroes and heroines. Sixteen bronze and 10 silver medals were awarded, together with almost $15,000 in cash and several pensions of good size. The state of Wisconsin and Minnesota are represented in the awards.

One of the most interesting awards is that of a bronze medal and $1,000 in money, to be paid out as needed, to Charles R. McCabe, Jr., an insurance agent of Chicago, for an act of bravery performed at Sayner, Wis., June 28, 1909. McCabe was but 20 years of age and on the day mentioned heard George M. Cummins, a clerk, who was in the water at Lost lake, cry for help. Cummins was taken by a cramp in the arms and was sinking when McCabe, who wore heavy top boots, reached him and tried to save him. Cummins wrapped both arms and legs about his would-be rescuer and they went to the bottom together. McCabe managed to break the hold of the drowning man and they both came to the surface separately. Instead of deserting Cummins, McCabe, who was almost drowned himself, tackled Cummins once more and managed to swim some distance with him when a boat came to their rescue. After helping Cummins into the boat, McCabe fainted and was saved with difficulty.

The mother of Robert C. Woods at Mankato, Minn., is given a bronze medal and $25 per month for the next five years for the bravery of her son, Robert C. Woods, who lost his life at Southbend, Minn., on July 17, 1910, while trying to save Harry A. Strom, a 16-year-old schoolboy from drowning.

Two Saved Four Persons.

James T. Mason and George K. Muir of Grand Rapids, Wis., are each given a bronze medal for their heroic work on the night of May 26, 1909, when they saved the lives of four persons who had been swept over the dam of the Wisconsin river at that point by the capsizing of their launch. The persons saved were Mary F. Dolan, Von L. Holliday, Carol V. Rector and William B. Sweet, all young persons. It was midnight when their launch went over and Mason and Muir had to row about 600 yards among rocks, etc., to get them.

Jerome Miller, an Oshkosh, Wis., contractor, is awarded a bronze medal for his heroic work in saving the life of William G. Staple, from burning at Oshkosh, Oct. 16, 1908.

Guy F. Empey, a 15-year-old schoolboy, of Merrill, Wis., is given a bronze medal for saving the life of Cornelia E. Denne, aged 11, Nov. 29, 1906. The girl had broken through the ice of the Wisconsin river, where the water was very deep, and the boy in trying to reach her broke through the same hole. She caught him about the neck and he was just going under when he struck her in the face, breaking her hold and sending her under the ice. Young Empey then showed great presence of mind by breaking the ice to where the now unconscious girl was and he supported her until some other boys shoved him a sled which he held to with one hand, the other holding to the girl, and they were both pulled to safety.

One of the unusual awards was that of a silver medal to William H. Edwards (Big Bill), the famous old college athlete, now commissioner of street cleaning in New York city. Edwards' act of heroism consisted in his tackling the man who shot William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York, on board a steamship in Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 9, 1910. Edwards was shot himself in the struggle, but he undoubtedly saved the lives of others, as the shooter had evidently not finished.

SIX KILLED IN MONTANA BLAST.

Two Miners Badly Hurt in the Workings at Keating.

Helena, Jan. 19.—As a result of an explosion in the Keating mine at Radersburg, 40 miles from here, six miners are dead, two are badly injured and there is an unconfirmed rumor that two more men are somewhere in the workings. The dead are Ed Ryan, shift boss; Dan Ryan, his brother; Dan Whyte, Percy Way, Louis Tucker and Harry Abbott.

Pending an investigation, officials of the Keating Gold Mining company said that only the men named had been killed and two others injured, that no one below the 300-foot level was hurt and that all of the bodies had been recovered.

It is thought that the powder magazine in the mine exploded. This magazine, which was said to have contained between 500 and 800 pounds of dynamite, was on the 200-foot level.

FOR EXCLUSION OF ASIATICS.

Retention of Present Laws Is Urged in California.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 19.—A joint resolution offered in the California state assembly by Assemblyman Wilson and referred to the committee on federal relations, urges congress to retain the present Asiatic exclusion laws and to "extend the terms and provisions thereof so as to include all unassimilable and undesirable immigrants of other countries and races."

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—Moses E. Clapp was re-elected United States senator for another term of six years.

Representative Kunze introduced a bill providing that cities of the first class might assess abutting property owners for park improvements, collecting 20 per cent of the tax per annum and collecting interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

Representative Palmer presented a bill giving authority to cities of 50,000 or more to issue bonds for $800,000 for their park systems, but limiting the amount to be issued yearly to $250,000.

Mr. Palmer brought forward another bill authorizing a city to acquire land within a mile and a half of the city limits by gift, devise, condemnation or purchase. The bill applied not only to lands, but to streams and lakes also. It contains a proviso that not more than 40 acres outside the city limits can be obtained under the provisions of the act by condemnation or purchase.

Mr. Fuchs represented the firemen and policemen with a bill permitting street railway companies to grant free transportation for firemen and policemen.

The bill providing $17,000 for the St. Peter asylum for the dangerous insane, which had already passed the senate, passed the house.

John P. Nash introduced a bill abolishing the office of oil inspector. "It is an expense to the state of $40,000 or more for which the state receives no return. It has outlived its usefulness," said Mr. Nash, in discussing the bill.

Governor Eberhart recommended in a message to the Senate, that legislation be formulated to provide state funds for the schools of Koochiching county equal to the amount of taxes that state lands in that section would pay were they taxed. He did this on petition from residents of Koochiching county.

Senator Elwell introduced a bill authorizing cities of 50,000 or more population issuing bonds of the value of $600,000 par for the purchase and improvement of park property.

The official report of the majority of the members of the Minnesota Workingmen's Compensation commission on a workingmen's compensation bill to be presented to the legislature is announced.

The principal question at issue is the section governing the indemnity fund. Mr. McEwen and Mr. Mercer favor a plan by which the employer shall contribute all of the indemnity fund for the compensation of injured workmen. It is said Mr. Gillette hold such a stand would be too great a burden upon employers, and that it should be an insurance proposition with the workingman contributing 20 per cent and the employer 80 per cent of the fund.

The bill, as favored by two of the members, fixes the amount of benefit to be received by the workingmen who are injured. The scale gives a miximum of $3,000 for death, a maximum of $5,000 for total or partial disability. In certain cases, such as the loss of both arms, legs or eyes, additional compensation is given. The following computations are made as an illustration:

Maximum compensation for a man earning $900 a year is $2,250 for death, $450 anually for a maximum period of five years for permanent disability; for total permanent disability by loss of legs, arms, or eyes, $3,150; for the loss of a leg, arm or eye, $2,787.50.

Compensation for partial disability is 50 per cent of decrease in annual wages during the continuance of partial disability. If a man earning $900 a year in a normal condition is forced, owing to injury, to take a position paying $600, then the compensation is to be 50 per cent of the $300 difference or $150 a year for five years. The maximum compensation under the bill for disability based upon the annual wage of $2,000 would be $7,000.

The bill extends to all dangerous employment. Every employment in which an accident, arising in and growing out of such employment, occurs is declared to be dangerous. This includes agricultural pursuits and house servants. The employer is made liable for compensation, in all accidents arising out of employment except those purposely inflicted. No compensation is paid for the first two weeks of disability. The employer is liable, however, for medical and hospital expenses limited to $100 during the first two weeks of disability.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—All three contested electoral seats have advanced a step towards settlement. Arguments in the Ahmann-Emmel contest were heard. The Farrington-Froshaug contest was set for 2 p. m. Thursday and it was decided to take up the Stephens-Saugstad contest as soon as the others were out of the way, by the elections committee of the senate last night.

Attorneys for Dr. Froshaug, incumbent, gave notice that they would combat the Farrington claims on the ground that notice of contest was not filed within 40 days of the election, as prescribed by law; that the Farrington adherents had failed to give regular statutory notice of intention to contest; that the specifications of contest were too indefinite, and that the conestants had not laid proper foundation for the introduction of ballot boxes from many small towns into the testimony.

A. B. Jackson, attorney for Mr. Emmel, the contestant against Senator Ahmann, contended that, in the preliminary contest at the scene of the election, Ahmann had no right to refuse to answer questions put to him concerning his age.

Ripley Brower, attorney for Mr. Ahmann, contended that Ahmann was justified in refusing to testify when "a penalty or forfeiture" might be incurred by testifying. The question involved was whether or not Ahmann became a citizen of the United States by his father's naturalization. Emmel adherents claimed that Ahmann was over 21 years when his father was naturalized and so did not become a citizen through his father's naturalization. A meeting will be held by the committee today, at which a decision in the Emmel-Ahmann contest may be given.

Representatives Mattson, of Roseau county, introduced a bill providing for an annual appropriation of $20,000 to carry on the expense advertising the natural resources of the state. The bill provides that the appropriation shall be divided equally among the counties applying for the money.

Thousands of pamphlets setting forth the opportunity in each county are to be circulated throughout the United States. The bill is proposed to stimulate immigration to Minnesota.

Two house bills increasing the gross earnings tax of railroads from 4 to 5 per cent were introduced in the house. A bill presented by Representative C. P. Warner of Aitkin, calls for an increase of 5 per cent with the provision that the additional 1 per cent tax be placed in the road and bridge funds.

A step forward in the campaign for clean milk was taken when Senator Johnston introduced a bill in the senate that would prohibit the shipping of cream more than 30 miles over any railroad line unless pasteurized or shipped in a refrigerator car properly iced and in a sanitary condition.

A concurrent resolution was introduced by Senator Coller directing the Minnesota tax commission to draft proposed laws that would reveal all property subject to a personal tax except gross earnings of railroads and other corporations and inheritances, bequests, legacies and gifts. The tax commissioner was further ordered to draw up proposed acts for an equitable gross earning tax on all corporations and an income tax.

Senator Wilson of Minneapolis, introduced a bill, by request, providing that a marriage license must be taken out at least five days before the marriage ceremony is performed, but making it optional with the judge of any court of record to shorten the time between the granting of the license and the performing of the marriage ceremony.

A resolution providing for an increased membership of the rules committee was submitted to the house. It provides for the appointment of an additional member from each congressional district and names the following legislators: John Rustad, First district; W. A. Just, Second district; A. V. Anderson, Third district; C. N. Orr, Fourth district; W. A. Campbell, Fifth district; J. E. Lee, Sixth district; A. J. Peterson, Seventh district; H. A. Putnam, Eighth district and J. N. Johnson of the Ninth district.

Representative Brown introduced a bill withdrawing Morrison county from the Seventh judicial district and adding it to the Fifteenth judicial district.

Speaker Dunn has announced the appointment of Representative Mattson, Ferguson and Spooner as o committee to represent Minnesota at a conference with Wisconsin and Michigan officials to discuss proposed forestry laws.

Fire Destroys Rail Engines.

Marshalltown, Iowa.—Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the roundhouse of the Iowa Central here, causing an estimated loss of $100,000. Twelve locomotives were destroyed.

ANOTHER MEXICAN BATTLE.

Government and Revolutionists Fight Sixteen Hours.

Chihuahua, Mexico.—A 16-hour battle between 70 government volunteers so-called and 100 revolutionists occurred at the village of Coyome. This report reached General Hernandez, commanding the military zone. No details were given but from the duration of the engagement it is presumed the losses were considerable.

CHILDREN BURNED IN HOME.

Overheated Stove Starts Fire During Absence of Parents.

Boyne City, Michigan. — During the temporary absence of their parents, two young children of William Johnson, a farmer living near Boyne Falls, were burned to death in their home. The fire, which probably started from an overheated stove, was discovered by Mrs. Johnson when she returned after a half hour's absence.

BIG CANAL SCHEME

REPRESENTATIVE SPOONER INTRODUCES RIVERS BILL IN MINNESOTA HOUSE.

COMPLETE WATERWAYS SYSTEM

Power Worth Three Million Annually Will Be Developed According to Author of Bill.

St. Paul, Jan. 18—Planning the construction of an intricate canal system, which shall form a complete network over Minnesota, Representative L. C. Spooner introduced a bill which may have incalcuable influence on the internal development of the state.

Mr. Spooner's bill calls for an appropriation of $40,000 and authorizes the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor to investigate the feasibility of the proposed plan.

This is what is known as the Mershon system of canalization and was first presented to the state legislature by F. D. Mershon two years ago. It involves connecting the Lake of the Woods with the Red River of the North, draining the Red River valley, carrying the water to the Minnesota river, developing the Minnesota river from St. Cloud to the Twin Cities and then connecting by means of the St. Croix and other streams and the necessary artificial channels with Lake Superior. It is planned to make this channel deep enough to carry vassels plying on the lakes. Connected with this idea is a plan to develop the Mississippi river from Minneapolis to the gulf.

Route is Outlined.

The explicit route of the proposed system of canals involves connecting the Lake of the Woods with Lake Traverse at interstate crossing, constructing a large canal connecting Vermillion lake with Red lake and developing water powers along the line.

Then comes another barge canal, connecting Red lake with the barge canal first mentioned. A dyke or dam about 20 feet high is to be constructed near the interstate crossing, and another dam is to be built near Granite Falls, 80 feet high, in the Minnesota river, creating between the two dams a permanent inland sea in the valley of the Minnesota river, while a ship canal is to connect this sea, or lake near Sauk Rapids or St. Cloud with the Mississippi river.

Drainage canals are to be constructed to carry the flood or overflow water of the surrounding country into the barge canal, or into the inland lake.

Intercity Harbor Needed.

The plan calls for the construction of an intercity harbor in the gorge of the Mississippi river below St. Anthony falls. The canal system north to Lake Superior will run by way of the Rum, Kettle and Snake rivers, running northeasterly from St. Cloud, connecting with the upper St. Croix river; thence down the Bois Brule river to Lake Superior, the ship canal to be connected with the St. Croix river by a channel navigable for the river boats.

Reapportionment Is Up.

Reapportionment hopes of Northern Minnesota were advanced at the joint session of the house and senate reapportionment committees.

Senator Hackney, chairman of the senate committee, was made chairman of the joint committee. He immediately asked Representative Congdon to read three rules that the two had agreed on as tentative means of limiting the field of activity within broad lines.

The first was that the maximum for membership under the new repportionment should be 63 senators and 126 representatives. This would leave the senate unchanged numerically, but would increase the house by nine.

The second was that county lines should be left intact as far as practicable. In Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties the county lines would have to be cut; or, where there were cities like St. Cloud, situated in three counties, the county lines would have to be severed, but whenever possible the county lines should be kept.

The third was that, in fixing the bounds of legislative districts, after grouping of counties for the purpose of allotting senators and representatives on a population basis, each such group should have the privilege, by its representatives, of suggesting to the chairmen of both house and senate committees how the groups should be divided into districts. The written statement of Mr. Congdon said the reason for this provision was that the different sections understood the conditions in their own parts of the state better than anyone else could, and to have each section of the state divide itself would save the entire committee a lot of work. All three rules were adopted as tentative guides.

J. A. A. Burnquist, recently defeated candidate for speaker of the house and chairman of the committee on normal schools, introduced his first bill for an appropriation of about $600,000 for the maintenance of the five state normal schools of the state. The appropriation is to be distributed as follows: Winona, $73,950; Mankato, $193,050; St. Cloud, $161,350; Moorhead, $142,200; Duluth, $69,500.

Representative Fisher, of Minneapolis, has introduced a bill which would restrict the expenditures of candidates for election to state and county offices.

Robbing the Paymaster

True Story of the Secret Service

By COL. H. C. WHITLEY
Former Chief U. S. Secret Service

I WAS on duty as special agent of the United States government at New Orleans in the summer of 1862. Maj. Gen. Benjamin F. Butler was department commander and ruling this then turbulent city with an iron hand. Everything down there including the weather was sizzling hot. Thugs and thieves were being severely dealt with. Martial law was in force and summary punishment was being meted out by the provost judge. Several house robbers had been hanged by order of General Butler and there must have been a ticklish sensation about the necks of the unruly.

It was one of those blazing hot mornings for which New Orleans is famous that Major ——, a United States paymaster on duty in that city, left his office in the custom house carrying a portemonnaie containing just $20,000 in gold coin. The major was one of those economical men who thought a penny saved was as good as a penny earned. Gold at this time was at a premium, hence a saving could be made by making an exchange of gold for paper currency. Besides, he may have thought paper money more convenient for the soldiers' use. As he passed down the custom house steps he paused a moment as if to determine the course to pursue. He hailed a passing cab, and entering it he instructed the driver to take him to the bank of Jacob Barker on Camp street. The cab drew up directly in front of the main entrance.

The paymaster went inside. Stepping around the end of the counter he met and shook hands with a stockily built man whose locks were long and white. This was Jacob Barker whose name at this time was familiar to every banker in the United States. Uncle Jacob blinked a welcome as the shining pieces were spread upon the table.

Two young men now came forward to make the count and pile up the treasure. The work completed, bundles of greenbacks were crowded into the portemonnai to take the place of the gold coin. Then there was a side transaction and a package that looked like money was stowed away in the paymaster's breast pocket. The major as he reentered the cab did not notice that the driver was casting longing eyes upon the bulging portemonnaie.

He was then taken to the post office, which was located in the custom house. He got out of the cab and stepped inside, where he remained just long enough to unlock and remove the mail from his letter box. Returning to the street he was greatly astonished and nearly paralyzed with excitement to discofer that the cab in which he had left the $20,000 had disappeared. He looked up and down the street stupidly at first. Recovering himself he madly rushed around the corner. There was no cab in sight. He then started on foot at a lively pace for the office of the provost marshal general on St. Charles street.

I chanced to be in the provost marshal's office at this time. I listened to the paymaster's story and was the first to undertake the recovery of the money. It was one of those smooth easy robberies with little or no clue for a starting point.

I started out on what seemed to be a rather difficult case, less than an hour after the theft.

I had an abiding faith that if I could meet the guilty man face to face while the affair was yet warm on his mind I could pick him out from the many cab drivers in the city.

The paymaster thought the driver of the cab an Irishman, but was not quite certain. He knew that he had been separated from his money and that was about all the information he could give. The capturing of the thief and recovering the money seemed now to rest upon the telltale eyes.

It was now noon-day and feeding time. The most of the cabs were off the streets, but I chanced to secure one, and I started out to visit the many cab stands in the city. When I met a driver of one of these vehicles I looked him over carefully, but saw nothing in the face of any of them to arouse suspicion. My mind might have been a little romantic in those days, but I thought the thief would have a disturbance on his face by which I would be able to pick him out. When at last I had met nearly all the cabbies in the city, and discovered nothing upon which to base suspicion, the driver with whom I was riding chanced to speak of a man who had quite recently started in the cab business. His stable was at his own home on St. Peters street. He knew the place and I told him to drive to it. Arriving there, I entered the yard and discovered wheel tracks that appeared to be freshly made. There was a small stable in the rear of the lot near which was a pile of litter. The top of this pile had recently been disturbed. With a pitch-fork I overhauled some of it. I can give no explanation why I did this. I made no discovery. I then ascended the stairs leading up on the outside of the house to the portico, and entered a living room in the second story. There was a woman lying upon the bed. She appeared quite feeble and had recently given birth to a child.

"Who lives here?" I inquired.

She answered, "Patrick O'Rafferty."

"What is his business?"

"A cab driver."

"Did your husband come to his dinner?"

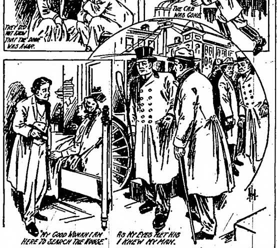
I then said, "My good woman, I am a government officer, and am here to search your house for concealed arms."

"You can search as much as you please, but you will find nothing of the kind in this house."

I cast my eyes about and saw that I was in a home that seemed destitute of the common comforts of life. I stepped into an unfurnished adjoining room and swung open the door of a small dark closet. There were only a few articles of clothing hanging upon the wall. Feeling about in the hope of discovering something, I chanced to put my hand on a pair of Attukapas pants that were damp about the waist.

My suspicion was aroused a little then, and considerably more so since I was informed by Mrs. O'Rafferty that there had not been a man in the house since early morning. She stared at me as though trying to comprehend the situation.



THEY DID NOT KNOW THAT THE DOOR WAS AJAR.
THE CAB WAS GONE BANK
"MY GOOD WOMAN I AM HERE TO SEARCH THE HOUSE."
AS MY EYES MET HIS I KNEW MY MAN.

Not wishing to worry her with any further explanation I excused myself as best I could and left the house. As keen and discerning as I might have been I could not for the life of me understand the reason why the woman should attempt to deceive me unless she had some object. The moisture about the waist of the pants was to my mind unmistakable evidence of a man in the house only a short time before. Why did the woman deny it?

I ascertained that O'Rafferty's usual stand was on the levee not far from the custom house and I directed the driver to take me there at once. On arriving at the designated spot I was fortunate in finding O'Rafferty at his usual stand.

I sprang out of the conveyance in which I was riding and stepping briskly up to him, I boldly charged him with stealing the leather bag. As my eyes met his I knew my man. Nothing short of proof to the contrary could have cleared him had I been his judge.

His statement differed materially from the one made by his wife: On questioning him he said he had been at home in the middle of the day. Had fed his horse, cooked his own dinner and waited upon himself. Talked with his wife and changed his pants. He could give no reason why he made the change, except that he did so. He stoutly denied carrying the paymaster and swore by all the saints in Christendom that he hadn't carried a passenger on that day.

I could not budge him in the least; the more I crowded him the keener was his denial. He deeply resented the charge I had made and braced up to me in a spirit of defiance. He was Irish sure enough. Being tinctured considerably with the same blood myself, and with the United States government at my back, I had the advantage of him. Yet he might have downed me had it not been for the pants. This discovery as simple as it was loomed up as a matter of great importance. I arrested him and locked him up in the First district station. I was confident he was the thief, but when he was brought into the presence of the paymaster I was almost knocked off my base when the major was unable to recognize the prisoner, besides which he had the amazing stupidity to admit it in his presence. He was evidently one of the negative, wabbly sort, and may have been overly conscientious. He refused to make a charge. Consequently I took the responsibility of holding the prisoner and locking him in a cell where he was not allowed to converse with any outsider.

After a few days of confinement he appeared quite down-hearted and begged to be permitted to see his wife.

The meeting between the husband and wife at their home was quite affecting, yet there was no development that would suggest guilt. I now determined to give O'Rafferty a little jolt for the purpose of frightening him into a confession.

In the corridor, at a little distance from his cell, a person inquired: "What are they going to do with O'Rafferty?" In as earnest a manner as I could command I answered that he was to be hung on the following morning at nine o'clock, by order of the commanding general. O'Rafferty, of course, heard the conversation that was intended for his ears.

There was at this time a prevailing fear among many that General Butler was liable to hang almost anyone. My ruse had its effect, as O'Rafferty now began to sob and groan. I stepped inside his cell and made an effort to console him, assuring him that I was very sorry, but that nothing could be done to help him unless he would give up the money.

He was a Catholic and begged that he might see a priest. I thought he wanted to make a confession, and went at once to the custom house to consult Major ——, and chanced to meet the postmaster, who was General Butler's brother-in-law. When I explained the situation and the possibility of a confession, he said it would do no good to let him confess to a priest, who would divulge nothing that was told him, and suggested Major Farr, chaplain of a Connecticut regiment. "Don't try to fool a Catholic," I said, "but let us secure a real priest."

Upon my agreeing to take charge of this part of the program, it was finally concluded that a priest should be sent for and that he was to meet the prisoner in a room in the custom house. There was a number of large wardrobes, or armoires as they were called in New Orleans, in the room. These were used for storing books. Some of them were removed from one, giving room for a man to enter. When the good father and O'Rafferty came and took a seat near this armoire, they surely did not notice that its door was just a little ajar.

Father M—— soon came out of the room. There was an expression of sadness upon his face, but he said nothing that could throw any light upon the robbery; yet it was quite apparent that something unusual had happened. Something had, and I now possessed the clue I needed.

It was dark when I arrived at the corner of White and Clio streets and knocked at the front door of a small dwelling house, which was soon opened by a middle-aged man. I informed him that I was a government officer and that I had come there to arrest both him and his wife and seize their house, which would be forfeited to the government. I told him that O'Rafferty had confessed everything. He now turned to his wife and exclaimed in an excited manner: "What did I tell you, Margaret? You see the bad business your brother has got us into?"

"Where's the money?" I demanded.

"It's under the house, and I will bring it to you."

"Be lively about it," I said in a commanding tone. He now went into the kitchen where he raised a small trap in the floor. Reaching down, he pulled out a corn sack. Hastily examining its contents I found it contained about $6,500 in paper money. I demanded the keys of his house and they were handed to me. The bigger the bluff the greater the scare, I thought. I took the man and his wife to the First district police station where they were locked up together in a comfortable room. A messenger was at once dispatched to bring Father M——. When found he was at the house on the corner of White and Clio streets endeavoring to arouse the occupants. He came immediately to the police station, and I acquainted him with the fact that a portion of the money had been recovered, and the persons in whose possession it had been found were in custody. He was unquestionably much surprised by this arrest. It may well be presumed that Father M——, having received O'Rafferty's confession, was in the act of reaching out for the restoration of the stolen money when accosted by the messenger. Believing himself to be the possessor of the only information that would lead to this important event, he was of course somewhat puzzled at what had taken place, but he convinced me that he was quite anxious to render any assistance in his power to recover the rest of the money. At my request he went in to talk with the man and his wife. I assured him that they would be released and not further molested if they would give up the stolen money. I went farther than this and said that if he could promise me that the money would be returned within the next twenty-four hours I would at once release the two prisoners. After interviewing them, he came outside and requested me to let the man and his wife go home. He said everything would be well at 12 o'clock on the following day, and his request was complied with. The good father was greatly concerned about what was to become of O'Rafferty.

"This," said he, "is the first great sin of this young man's life. On account of the sickness of his wife he has been greatly pressed for money. In a moment of weakness he yielded to temptation." The father did not say it, but I inferred that with him a full confession and restitution meant repentance, forgiveness and a pardon from God. In this particular case, however, a law made by man stood in the way. How was it to be overcome?

I realized that affairs were very much mixed at this time, and that there were many otherwise honest people who might find a ready excuse for a thief from the United States government. While a condition of this kind could not be plead as a bar to O'Rafferty's punishment, it might be offered in palliation of the crime; he might have remained an honest man had not the opportunity been thrust upon him. I had made promises to the good father and I might have imagined the confession of the culprit a solemn absolution of his sin; hence my deep sympathy and determination to procure his release.

The balance of the money was all returned by the priest as promised, but the difficult point in the case was yet to be accomplished. How was O'Rafferty to be let out? I might have unlocked his cell door and allowed him to walk out, but he would not be free, as he would be liable to be arrested by other officers. He had now openly told the simple story of the robbery and there was nothing further to detect.

He said he had no thought of stealing the sack when the paymaster stepped out of the cab, but when left alone the idea flashed through his brain to drive to his home with it, where he made an attempt to bury it in the litter pile. Abandoning this plan, he drove to his brother-in-law's house. On arriving there he found his sister washing clothes in the yard. He told her in a hurried manner that he had brought a big lot of money and that he would leave it with her to take care of. He put the portemonnaie in a box under the shed in the yard and covered it with hay. There were two of the husband's brothers sleeping in the house at the time; they were bakers by trade, working nights and sleeping in the day time. When they got up in the afternoon the sack containing the money was pointed out to them. They cut it open and divided its contents, as near as they could guess, into three equal parts. Leaving one-third for the sister, they hid the other two-thirds for themselves. Poor O'Rafferty, who really did not know very much about the contents of the sack, was left out in the cold.

The city of New Orleans was under martial law at this time, and offenders were being handled severely in the provost court. The judge was puritanical in principle and clothed with almost unlimited power. He was considered quite unapproachable, yet I determined to visit him at his house on behalf of O'Rafferty. I found him a much more generous man than I had thought him to be. He listened attentively when I told him the story of the robbery and the part the priest had taken in recovering the money. I put up the best plea I could for the prisoner and his sick wife. I was certain that the judge was interested and his heart softened. He said he would take the case under advisement, but said nothing to indicate what his decision might be.

A trial in a provost court at New Orleans in that day was a rather brief affair. It consisted mostly of an accusation and a sentence. When O'Rafferty was arraigned, he pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing the $20,000. In a few brief moments the judge made an order for his confinement at Fort Jackson for a period of years. I felt quite sore on account of this decision, but was a little surprised when he called me up and thrust the order for the prisoner's commitment in my hand. I saw that I was charged with his delivery to the commanding officer of the fort, a feature of the program that was certainly not in my line, and I jumped at the conclusion that the responsibility for his release was resting upon my shoulders.

Two days afterwards I returned the order of commitment with a report of the prisoner's escape indorsed upon its back. The judge smiled his seeming approval. O'Rafferty's release may have been illegal, but I believe it was justified by the pardon he received through the intercession of the good father.

Bad Handwriting.

Every man who has his living to earn or any work in the world to do ought to be made to understand that if he does not write legibly at least, if not beautifully, it is entirely his own fault, and that if he is made to suffer for it he has only himself to blame. The pestilent theory that bad writing is the sign of a great mind ought to receive no countenance from men of common sense. It is sometimes, no doubt, the result of extreme pressure of business; but in most cases it is the sign either of bad training or of a contemptible perversity in fashion or of a careless and unstable disposition which will display itself sooner or later in things much more important than handwriting. In no case is it to be commended; in only few cases is it to be even excused.

"Howdy, Zeb?" quoth the stogie native. "Hear 'bout th' fuss down to th' courthouse?"

"Nope," drawled the man with the pipe. "What was it about?"

"Why, Jim Simpson has been suing Abner Hawley for alienatin' th' affections of his wife, an' Judge Musgrove told th' jury to bring a verdick of six cents' damages, 'cause he thought that was all the damage was worth to Jim. An' Jim's wife got mad an' threw a chair at the jedge, an' he had her arrested an' put in the cooler."

"But didn't jedge go a leetle too far when he fixed her value so low?"

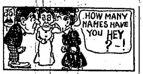
TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Sad-Faced Swindler Haunts Funerals



HOW MANY NAMES HAVE YOU HEY ?-!

NEW YORK.—A well dressed young man with downcast eyes has recently been visiting homes on the East Side that have been visited by death, exchanging sympathy for a square meal. In most cases he left the houses richer not alone by food but by substantial gifts of money and clothing. His last experience, though, sent him away somewhat less sympathetic than when he approached the mourners.

It is customary in Jewish homes for the husband or wife and the children of a dead person to observe a period of seven days' mourning, in which they sit constantly together in one room. In these seven days, called the "Shiva," the mourners' grief is unrestrained save for such comfort as they can draw from their religion.

In the midst of this period of mourning there recently appeared at one house a rather good looking young man with infinite pity in his sad brown eyes. Like all other comers at such a time, he was ushered directly into the room of mourning, where the widow and orphans sat.

"I am so sorry, dear madam," he said, with a slight German accent, to the widow. "I read about your dear husband's death in the newspapers. It may seem strange to you that I have come here, for you probably do not know me, but I feel almost as if I have a personal interest in your dear husband's death. As a matter of fact, I bear his very name. He was my namesake."

In the course of the next half hour he managed, in answering the kind questions that were put to him, to disclose the fact that he had only recently come from Germany, bringing his wife and several children with him, and that both he and they were at present badly stranded and without more than a few cents for the next meal.

Just then a woman among the assembled friends who had been trying to place him looked up with a glance of sudden recognition.

"Excuse me, my dear sir," she said, tapping the sympathetic young man on the shoulder. "I am a little hard of hearing. What did you say your name was?"

"So?" exclaimed the woman in a voice of high pitch, foreboding a hysterical scream. "And you are the namesake of my dear sainted husband, too, who died last year. Yes?"

"I don't understand you, my good friend," protested the watery-eyed young man, edging toward the door.

"You ate your fill at my house when we were sitting 'Shiva' for my poor husband!" cried the woman. "And you knew how to be his namesake and swindle us out of a memorial gift at that time, didn't you? And now you come to be somebody else's namesake, with your wife and seven children, and to try to dupe them, too!"

But he had gone.

Stray Letters Puzzle "Nixie" Clerk

WELL OF ALL TH—

CHICAGO.—Working away like the proverbial trooper, the "nixie" clerk was discovered behind a battlement of pigeon holes, in the Chicago postoffice. He was plying his trade of finding the destination of misdirected letters and of letters whose addresses other clerks had been unable to decipher. He was too busy to talk.

"The 'nixie' clerks run a haven for wayward epistles," explained a self-appointed guide. "When a misguided letter is discovered it is sent to 'nixie,' where the clerks give it the proper treatment and send it on its way."

That more information regarding the "nixie" department might be gained, C. A. Mallory, assistant superintendent of the city delivery, was sought his office.

"The 'nixie' clerks," explained Mr. Mallory, "form an important part of Uncle Sam's postal service. They work out puzzle after puzzle in hieroglyphics and erroneous addressing and through their efforts much mail matter that otherwise would be lost lands where it should.

"For explanation we will say that a railway postal clerk find a letter addressed to John Smith, Chestnut street, Illinois. That letter, incompletely addressed, is thrown into the 'nixie' pile in the postal mail car and finds its way to the 'nixie' department, in this case, say, in Chicago. The 'nixie' clerk consults a tabulation, which lists the various Chestnut streets in Illinois and tells in what towns they will be found. He then consults the directory of each of those towns—a supply of directories is kept on hand—until he finds a John Smith living in Chestnut street. Then the letter is readdressed and sent. Should this chance to be the wrong John Smith and the letter is returned a similar process is followed. Before every method is exhausted you may feel reasonably sure that the right person has received the letter.

"Yes, sir," laughed Mr. Mallory, "the fellow who called the 'nixie' department a haven for wayward epistles struck it about right."

"Approximately how many 'nixies' do you receive in Chicago a day?" Mr. Mallory was asked.

"Oh, from 300 to 400, I should say," was the reply.

Gigantic Smuggling Scheme Exposed

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—A plot to defeat the immigration laws of the United States more far-reaching than any similar scheme ever before unfolded in the southwest has just been brought to light by the federal authorities. Innocent and guileless as the Chinese appear in contrast with white persons when brought in contact with them, the government agents give credit to this race for having organized the most gigantic coolie-smuggling system ever known to exist. The federal officers for the southern district of California are confident that they are in possession of the entire plan by which the hordes of Orientals have been poured into the United States by the way of the Mexican border.

The conspiracy against the immigration regulations is understood to reach from Texas and California through Mexico, across the Pacific and into the heart of China, and to involve Chinese of high caste and immense wealth. Two of these alleged smugglers, who were in charge of the last bunch on the "underground railway," are awaiting trials in the United States district court. Two of their tools, Mexicans, are in jail here.

At the head of the band of smugglers are Chinese of high caste who reside in Hong Kong. They are said to be enjoying royal revenues from the traffic and the pleasant feature of their occupation is that they are immune from arrest. Others members of the gang rely on protection from American laws on the soil of Mexico.

The coolies are procured from the interior of China. They are gathered easily there and shipped across the Pacific to Mazatlan, Mexico, where they are unloaded. They are marched through Mexico to Mexicali, just across the border from Calexico. Here Nug Fun and Wong Chin Dock have pretended to carry on a store, but it has really been a resort for contraband Chinese, the point at which they were sneaked into the United States.

Fun was taken in custody several months ago while in company with several coolies. Dock did not take heed from the fate of his partner and he was recently taken in custody in Imperial valley.

Judge Decrees That Wives Must Obey

I'LL OBEY NO MAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—In granting a decree of divorce to Samuel C. McGee, a policeman, against Mrs. Louisa S. McGee, Judge T. A. Frank Jones, in the Circuit Court, arraigned wives who have shown themselves to usurp the authority of their husbands. He dwelt upon the relationship that should exist between husband and wife, and traced this relationship from the day of the cave man through the ancient common law of the Anglo-Saxons. He declared that the law of today has made little change in the fundamentals of this relationship as it was in the times of Holy Writ, when the command, "Wives, obey your husbands," was made. The husband alleged general indignities, which the wife denied. The judge said:

"A man is the master of his own household. The law vests certain authority in him. When a woman marries she voluntarily gives up many of the rights she had as a single woman, and she must submit to her husband's authority. She agrees to submit to his dictation and she must submit to it so long as it is not arbitrary and tyrannical.

"Whenever a wife works for money, she is bound to give part of it to help support the family. So long as she does not work for money, she has a right to demand that her husband support her properly. But when she does work outside her own household for gain, she forfeits that right and must, in the discretion of her husband, help pay the way of the family.

"It makes no difference if her husband stays at home, does the cooking and the housework and she makes the living. Under the law, the husband is still the master of that household and she must submit to his authority."

"The evidence shows that one time Mrs. McGee went to her husband's superior and asked that a certain division of her husband's salary be made. She had no right to do that. That was none of her business. A wife has no right to say how much of his money a husband shall give to her and how much he shall spend for himself. Although he is compelled to support her by law, the law makes him the judge as to what part of his income shall go for that purpose."

BIRTHPLACE OF THE PRUNE

First Trees Were Imported From France and Planted in the Santa Clara Valley, California.

San Jose, Cal.—It is possible that there are people compelled to live in city boarding houses who will not think that the man who introduced prunes into America deserves to rank as a public benefactor. Whatever the "boarders" may think about it, it is certain that boarding house keepers will regard him as one of the great men of the past century. In that opinion California orchardists will heartily concur, as he was the pioneer in an industry that now represents an investment of more than $50,000,000 in improved orchard land, equipment and packing plants, and pays large dividends on every dollar. The first prune trees ever planted in California were imported from France and planted in the grounds of the Pellier nursery, in San Jose, in the year 1863. Mr. Pellier has long been dead, but his old home is still standing, and ought to be regarded as a sacred landmark by all purveyors and consumers of prunes. The old frame house is now the center of 100,000 acres of prune orchards, grouping in the Santa Clara valley. Not far from 10,000,000 prune trees grow in the valley. In comparison with these figures, the prune orchards of France, Spain, Germany, Austria, Servia and other prune-growing countries are hardly worthy of mention. California now dominates the world's prune trade, not only supplying the markets of the United States, but exporting millions of pounds annually.

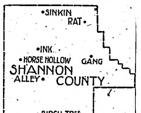
ODD NAMES OF THE OZARKS

Designation of Towns in a Missouri County Either Very Purposeful or Very Purposeless.

Kansas City, Mo.—Whether imagination or lack of it is more evident in the names of Ozark towns might be debated. But there would be no dispute about the fact that the result is something unusual. Hack writers who delight in putting proper names together in foolish sentences would find a long journey in the Ozark region as full of delightful possibilities as a walk in a diamond field. With what enthusiasm would they string together something like this:

"If he is clever, the Fowler in the Timber may Dent a Zebra; if Not that his Blue Eye may fill with Joy to find Lamb and Pease on the same Trail. Though Fate be Barren, if he's Witty he may Bluff and say the Ark holds yet a Rat, a Swan and Birdsong from the Congo. And Manysprings, and a Rill Diggins, Gold and Pleasant Hope, perhaps are Only about Halfway to Evening Shade. And so—Goodnight."

In a single county of Missouri this large collection of the literal label is shown: Rat, Ink, Gang, Alley, Timber, Horse, Hollow, Sinkin, Birch Tree, Timber and Low Wassie. More imaginative, perhaps, are Not and Congo. Mountain View represents the humorous department, for it is in a hollow where there is neither view nor mountain.



Map of Shannon County, Mo.

For shortness of name, the region is no less remarkable, with such types as Hy, All, Lon, Job, Arp, Osa, Coy, Day, Bly, Van, Igo, Abo and Roe. Sometimes the traveler may have a suspicion that the towns have been named after the fashion that the Indians label their children. There are such examples as Coin, Groom, Notch and Flag. Sometimes the labels are poetic and alluring—Shadygrove, Birdsong and Romance—and again they are as far in the other direction as Kiddos Spur, Hughes Stone Quarry, Hanks and Smittle. For those who know Latin, Bona is a good name for a town, though Dagonia and Protem may see Radical.

Chicago.—According to Signal Engineer J. A. Peabody, of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, who investigated the matter on his own line, the cost of stopping a train of 530 tons and returning to a speed of 50 miles an hour is 42 cents.

The officials of another road estimate each stop of a six-car passenger train from 45 miles an hour at 35 cents and for a 1,500-ton train from 15 miles an hour at 56 cents.

The time lost for making a stop on a level, straight track has been estimated at 145 seconds.

PRINCESS XENIA TO WEAR "HAPPY CROWN"

ROME.—"There will be no alliance between his imperial highness the duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katharine Elkins of America."

This is the semi-official announcement doubtless inspired from the court of Victor Emmanuel III., king of Italy. Queen Helena makes no secret of her satisfaction at the outcome of this remarkable romance between the daughter of the late West Virginia millionaire and United States senator and the man who is first cousin to the king, and who might ascend the throne should death take away his brothers and the little sons of the royal family. And as for the Bourbon Duchess d'Aosta, sister-in-law of the duke, she is unfeignedly delighted. From the first she utterly opposed the marriage of a prince of the blood royal and a "vulgar American commoner," as she was pleased to dub the beautiful and exceedingly rich young American girl.

So once, at least, romance is dead.

Why? Did not the ardent young lovers plight eternal troth? Of course no one but they really knows, yet the report that they did was more than mere rumor. The story has it that the King of Italy was willing to give his consent. If this was true, he gave way before the united opposition of the ladies of the royal family. It has been said that the duke and Miss Elkins vowed that if they could not wed each other, they would never wed any one else. There was at least a substantial basis of truth in these reports, but just how far the romance went and just what killed it the world will probably never know.

Affections Transferred.

And so the duke of the Abruzzi went away to seek solace in the wilds of Africa. Report has it that the wound in his heart has healed and that formal announcement of his engagement to the dashing, handsome, hot-headed Princess Xenia, daughter of the ruler of little Montenegro, who last August proclaimed himself king over his 300,000 subjects, may be expected, writes a correspondent of the New York World. Though the king's income is not a fifth of that so long enjoyed by Senator Elkins, he is of royal blood. His daughter, according to foreign etiquette, is therefore quite the duke's equal and fit to be the wife of the man who might some day be king.

Not that the beautiful Xenia is not well bred and of exquisite charm and grace. Her highness had the advantage of a bringing-up at the Russian court, where they do things differently from the somewhat primitive court at Cettinje. Her father, who has ruled since 1860, lives little differently from the fierce and uncouth men who are his subjects.

To begin with, Princess Xenia is best known in Europe as one of the few living women who have jilted a king. It was King Alexander of Servia whom she jilted, away back in 1899, when he came a-courting to the miniature court of the then Prince Nicholas of Montenegro, now self-proclaimed king.

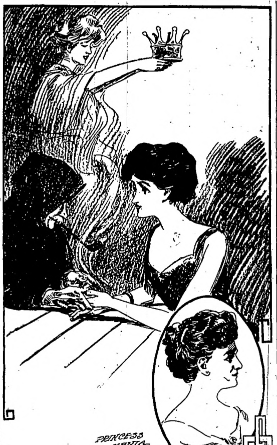
"Impossible!" Cried Princess.

As it always is with royalty, the marriage had been arranged by the families in question. Whether or not the Princess Xenia would like Alexander, whom she had never seen, did not concern them; the piquant and self-willed daughter of the ruler, she was not even consulted.

Alexander had already scoured the courts of Europe for a mate. Russia and Austria had told him that no Servians need apply. Finally he got down as far as Montenegro, and Nicholas, eager for more influence in the Balkans, gladly gave his consent for his daughter Xenia. The poor princess, barely 18 then, was told to make ready to meet her future lord and master.

In he shambled, grinning, blinking through his heavy glasses, knock-kneed, and most unattractive. The princess gave him one glance and shuddered.

"Mon Dieu!" she cried in French, "mais vous etes impossible!" or in polite English, she frankly told Alexander that he was impossible. It was the cry of an innocent, unspoiled young girl. The prince was not at all rebuffed, and attempted to mumble some protest that perhaps fatigue and nervousness had overcome her royal highness.



PRINCESS XENIA of MONTENEGRO

Xenia gasped once more. And then she fled from the room. The royal romance had died before it was born. Alexander married Mme. Draga Maschin, and a few years later both were assassinated by the king's officers in the royal palace at Belgrade.

But the fame of the Princess Xenia's spirit and wondrous classic beauty had gone abroad in Europe, and many a peer and nobleman came a-courting.

Prince George of Greece was eager to marry Eenia, but she would have none of him. The Grand Duke Michael, brother of the czar of Russia, was another aspirant for her hand, but he got the mitten, too. At 29 today she would have Abruzzi.

Proud of Daughters' Stations.

There are five living daughters of King Nicholas, and three of them have made matches far in advance of anything their own Montenegro might afford, as the king himself bosted not long ago to a questioning Britisher at Cettinje.

"It's too bad," remarked the Englishman, who was a man of great importance, "that Montenegro offers such a poor field for exportion."

"On the contrary," answered the king with spirit, "we have here the most beautiful articles for exportation!"

"Why, my own daughters," answered Nicholas with a hearty laugh. "Princess Helena is queen of Italy, Princess Militza married the Grand Duke Peter of Russia, Princess Zorga, had she lived, would have been queen of Servia, Princess Annastasia is now Grand Duchess Nicholas, and Princess Anna is Princess Francis Joseph of Battenberg. Now you must admit that I have placed my articles of exportation very favorably on the foreign markets."

It is only too true, and it is chiefly due to Princess Helena, now the wife of Italy's King, that this newest royal match is about to be made. And also to the promise of an aged soothsayer in whom Xenia believes implicitly. It is a weird story.

Soothsayer's Warning.

No people of all Europe are so superstitious as those of Montenegro. And Princess Xenia feels the same as her father's uneducated peasantry. She is said to believe in signs and talismans and fortune telling, which, after all, is not astonishing when one considers that she was brought up in the court of the czar, who is much addicted to consultation with priestly soothsayers, if the report is true. Superstition has been in the Slavic blood too long to be eradicated in one generation.

"The Crown of Happiness"—such is the gift she has reason to believe the duke of the Abruzzi is holding out to her. She heard the words even before she was called to meet Alexander and ever since then she has been expecting their fruition. There was an aged soothsayer who toiled about the Montenegrin mountains with his wife and daughter, telling their futures to the simple folk who dwell on the rocky slopes of the tiny kingdom.

Nicholas heard of this wonderful man years ago and bade him come to the palace.

"I shall not come!" was his curt answer to Nicholas' messenger.

"Shall we fetch him by force, your royal highness?" asked the retainers.

Foretold the Future.

But Princess Xenia had heard of this strange old man and she resolved to seek him out. She found him in his tent on a mountainside, where his wife and daughter, his tent bearers always, had pitched it. A fire burned in front to shut out the chill airs of the mountain.

"Will you tell my fortune, sir?" asked the princess, laying a goodly piece of silver on his outstretched palm.

"Certainly my lady," said the old man, taking her pink and white hand in his.

"I see a crown, a royal crown," he said, "no, two crowns!"

"I see two royal crowns," he went on. "One is fatal and bloodstained, the other leads to happiness and power. I am hesitating for I do not know which of the two you should accept—the first or the second."

On the following day the strolling soothsayer made bold to visit the palace at Cettinje and demanded that he see the Princess Xenia. The astonished flunkey at the gate would have barred the old man, but he was so insistent that the news of his visit was conveyed to the princess.

"Admit him at once," ordered Xenia.

"I have come," said the soothsayer, slowly and solemnly, "to warn you to refuse the first crown offered to you, no matter what it may be, because that crown will fall with blood."

Prophecy Proved True.

The warning was not forgotten. Soon afterward Xenia refused King Alexander and his crown did fall in the bloodiest royal slaughter of modern times, dragging his queen down to death with him and setting up another dynasty.

"He was right, as I knew he would be," declared the princess when word of Alexander's assassination came to Cettinje. And her father, who had been angered at her refusal of a throne, perforce had to agree with her. Xenia, of course, had more abiding faith than ever in the soothsayer's strange words.

"I will take the second royal crown when it is offered me," she said, calmly enough. "It will be the crown of happiness, as the old man said, and that is what I most desire in this world!"

But the years sped on and no crown was offered. The lovely Xenia passed twenty-five years and twenty-six and twenty-seven. Her next birthday, April 10, will be her thirtieth. The people of Montenegro think that it is high time their princess should find herself a husband. So does Queen Helena of Italy, her elder sister, who has already tried several matches for her, only to be met with the curt "Not until I can convince myself that the crown offered to me is the 'Happy Crown!'"

KNOWN AS "SAILOR'S BIBLE"

Nautical Almanac Well Named, Considering Its Importance in the Marine World.

If one asks the ordinary man in the street, "What is the 'Nautical Almanac?'" or "Where is the 'Nautical Almanac' office?" in all likelihood no reply will be forthcoming. Little knowledge exists in his mind regarding the one or the other, and yet it is not too much to say that the "Nautical Almanac" is one of the most important publications of the day, and one of the very essentials of astronomy and navigation alike.

This all-important British government Blue Book—of close on seven hundred pages—is known the world over as the Sailor's Bible and Ocean Guide. Although it is not a book to be seen on railway bookstalls or in lending libraries, and is rarely met with in the collection of the average household, yet it is so essential a part of a nautical outfit that a ship, whether stately liner, majestic battleship or ocean tramp, would as soon think of sailing to sea without her compass as without the precious volume. The explorer, too, over the desert sands or trackless ice, must have his "N. A." with him, and would rather part with food and stores than with its sacred pages. Many well-known travelers have publicly declared their indebtedness to it. Dr. Nansen, before setting out on his adventurous journey northwards, paid a visit to the "Nautical Almanac" office and was supplied with advance proofs to aid him in his calculations, and after his polar expedition he stated that for some considerable time during his lengthy stay in the far north the only book to which he had access was a volume of the work in question.

The great African traveler, Dr. Livingstone, was once obliged to reduce his library to the Bible and the "Nautical Almanac," and M. du Chaillu and the late Captain Speke were placed in a similar position upon various occasions. The work, too, of surveyors and boundary commissioners on the African continent and elsewhere is dependent on the figures tabulated in its pages. The "Nautical Almanac," moreover, finds its way into all the observatories of the world, from Siberia to the Cape and from California to Hongkong; and to the numerous and ever-increasing army of amateur astronomers and star-gazers it acts as guide, philosopher and friend. It has thus contributed more, perhaps, than any other work to the practical development of astronomy, geography, and navigation, and in its modern and improved form continues to be the honored vade mecum of the present-day astronomer, explorer and navigator.

Triplets.

I heard Sarah Bernhardt last night," said the man who is always doing that sort of thing, "and I thought her acting superb. And what beautiful French she speaks!"

"I saw her last night, too, but," remarked the man with the home-made vocabulary, "but, honestly, I only understood three words she said."

"What were they?" was naturally asked at this point.

"Jamais! Jamais! Jamais!"

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Keep the eggs dry.

Gather and burn the rubbish.

Why don't farmers raise more ducks?

A nervous cow is not necessarily an undesirable cow.

There is no better grain feed for young calves than whole oats.

Keeping record of the individual cow is the road that leads to success.

The market poultryman was never in such a strong position as he is today.

It is said that the cow, of all animals, should have good and pure food.

Severe drouth has thoroughly tested the profitableness of spraying potatoes.

The most money is made upon the farms where the best methods are followed.

A small box or jar of lime should be kept in the cellar to keep the air pure and dry.

One should so plan that all the hay and straw will be used on the farm, and keep stock enough to consume it all.

Eggs may be preserved fairly well for a few months by packing dry in a mixture of equal parts salt and sawdust.

Hog raising, like everything else, in the stock line, has its many little details that must be met as they come up.

All shrubs that have done blooming should be pruned at once. This induces blooming buds and branches for next year's crop.

Give the apple orchard plenty of fertilizer, particularly potash and phosphoric acid. A starved orchard is not a money maker.

Constipation in hogs, the forerunner of other troubles and diseases, is generally caused by too excessive use of one kind of feed.

Anything that prevents the fat globules from coming in contact with each other delays the churning and decreases the yield.

The honey bee annually produces a crop of honey valued at around $20,000,000, and there are vast opportunities for increasing this output.

Until ready to ripen, the fresh cream from each skimming should be immediately cooled down to 50 degrees or less, and held in cold storage.

If you expect to ship any cocks this winter to poultry shows or to customers, take the precaution of applying glycerine liberally to the combs and wattles.

Well dressed fowls are more attractive to the hungry than well dressed people. If you don't believe it leave it to the hired man or the growing boy.

To overcome the habit of cows holding up their milk it is necessary to refrain from exciting the natural obstinancy of the animal by any disturbing influence.

Nut-bearing trees, owing to their peculiar system of roots, are much more difficult to transplant than are fruit-bearing trees, or even those known as seed-bearing.

The experienced cattle feeder will say that there is no ironclad rule for feeding. He watches his animals and feeds them according to what they seem to be able to stand.

Give the houses a good cleaning, and plow or spade up the yards. Dirty houses breed vermin, and polluted soil are incubators for the gape worm.

In selecting breeders for a farm flock buy pure-bred fowls, but it is not well to lose sight of the fact that general utility points should be the first consideration. The returns as regards meat and egg production will be most satisfactory from breeding stock that is strong and vigorous, even though they may not be as perfectly feathered.

Many dairies, apiaries, and even regular farms are owned by women who are able to set an example to the owners of neighboring places. In such work as caring for poultry, women are likely to prove superior to men. If any work requiring greater strength than they possess, they can do exactly what the regulation farmer would under similar circumstances, namely, hire help that can do what is required.

Keep the vigorous chickens.

Lime is not a fertilizer, and should be used only to correct acidity in a soil.

The cost of high living does not worry the farmer; he makes his own living.

The value of the manure from the hay and straw used on the farm is no small item.

Hogs may be badly diseased with tuberculosis and not show it in the least before slaughter.

The farmer who is too far from town to deliver milk at a profit will find buttermaking his salvation.

It pays to maintain a heavy flow of milk, even if expensive feeds must be given the cows at certain seasons.

If it were not for the milk checks in the winter time the profits of many a dairy farmer would be insignificant.

In apple culture the first great essential in the successful culture of the apple is the improvement of the soil.

If it is winter eggs you want better let the oldest hens go. They sometimes lay a few eggs but very few as a rule.

When buying bran for the cows get enough to divide with the hens. As a hen food bran is just as valuable as a cow food.

It does not pay to plant crops in the peach orchard. Some people do it, but it is generally believed to be a bad practise.

A balky horse is made so by a cranky or cruel driver, and can rarely be cured. So be very careful in breaking the colts.

Convenient coops for marketing the chickens will pay not only in the satisfaction that they afford but in the greater convenience.

Bordeaux mixture is likely to cause russeting of apples on young trees, as it produces excessive development of cork cells in the skin.

It has been suggested that the packer who puts rotten eggs on the market should be sentenced to serve time as a target for the eggs.

Have the floor of the hen house warm and dry. The time is near when the hens to do well must have warmth and dryness under foot.

It is quite true that hogs have not such dainty appetities as sheep, yet they will respond surprisingly to any increased attention in this respect.

Yorkshire breeders will declare that to the best breed because it has given them the best results; so with the Berkshire men and also the Tanworth advocates.

Sugar beets make very good feed for cattle, but some grain and clover and alfalfa should go along with them, as they contain too much water to be fed alone.

On the average farm the sheep are the most neglected animals, and it is really astonishing to note the waste of opportunities in conditioning and marketing lambs.

When the nests are put in order for the winter, sprinkle ashes into the material and put a couple of moth balls in as well. These tend to discourage mites and lice.

Carefully scrape away the dirt around the base of one or two of your trees, and you will be able to discover whether the roots are growing too closely to the surface or not.

Many fail with sheep because they fail to keep the breeds that are best adapted to their farms and do not raise the kind the market demands and is ready to pay the highest price for.

Letting a calf go hungry for a day and then feeding him to repletion will give him the stomach ache and scours, and set him back a week in his growth.

For those who appreciate it, the charm of country life outweighs everything the city can afford. If there are children in a family, life in the open is far better than in a crowded flat, and the surounding influences are superior. The fact that the health of a family is involved, has sent many into the fresh air and sunshine.

This is a good time to give the mites and lice in the chicken house a final blow before winter sets in. Drive the birds all outside, place an old iron pot or vessel of some kind in the center of the floor, throw on a pound of sulphur and set fire to it. Keep the doors and windows closed for a couple of hours and get out of the house yourself as soon as you can have lighted the sulphur.

MAID OF SARAGOSSA

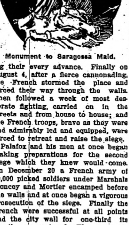
Was the Spanish Heroine of a World-Famous Siege.

Her Brilliant Part in a Military Event Which Has Few Parallels in History—Honored by a Grateful Country.

Madrid, Spain.—Every country in the world has its heroines as well as its heroes, and its heroines of war as well as those of peace. While Molly Pitcher, who during the revolutionary war operated her husband's cannon when he was stricken down, is justly famous in American annals and celebrated in prose and verse, the Maid of Saragossa is even more renowned in her native country, Spain. While Palafox was the hero, she was incomparably the heroine of the siege of Saragossa, one of the most desperate in modern history and equally daring, offensively and defensively. For her brilliant services Spain made her a lieutenant in the army and bestowed upon her many decorations. Her name was Augustina and as a girl she was a peddler of cool drinks in the city. From the beginning to the end of the siege she was ever in the heat of conflict and her courage and daring served to hearten the gallant defenders in the darkest hours of those bloody months. She won the name La Artillera from having snatched the match from the hands of a dying gunner and discharged the piece at the invaders. She died in Cueta, Spain, in 1857, at a very advanced age.

The siege of Saragossa, in which the maid distinguished herself, was conducted by the French in 1808-09, during the peninsular war. Saragossa was one of the cities that blocked the success of Napoleon's marshals in subduing all Spain. On June 15, 1808, the French invested it with a force of 10,000 men. Its defender was Joseph Palafox, a youth without military experience, but who had sense enough to associate with himself men of martial training and courage. But while inexperienced in war, he had the heart of the warrior, and when the French general summoned him to surrender, Palafox returned the immortal reply: "War to the knife and the knife to the hilt."

The Spaniards made a gallant defense of the city, worsting the French in many a bloody encounter and checking their every advance. Finally on August 4, after a fierce cannonading, the French stormed the place and forced their way through the walls. Then followed a week of most desperate fighting, carried on in the streets and from house to house; and the French troops, brave as they were and admirably led and equipped, were forced to retreat and raise the siege.



Monument to Saragossa Maid.

Palafox and his men at once began making preparations for the second siege which they knew would come. On December 20 a French army of 40,000 picked soldiers under Marshals Moncey and Mortier encamped before the walls and at once began a vigorous prosecution of the siege. Finally the French were successful at all points and the city wall for one-third its length was captured. The convents and churches commanding it fell into the hands of the besiegers.

But though the wall of the town was in possession of the besiegers their troubles were only really beginning. Every house, every street, in the city was a stronghold in itself. The French resorted to mining and literally blasted their way into the city. But they were met with dauntless courage at every turn. Pestilence long before had broken out among the defenders, but though they were dying by the hundreds every day from disease and bullets they never faltered. On February 18 a grand assault was made by the besiegers. The city was on fire in a dozen places and the dead lay unburied in the streets. But the Spaniards were unyielding.

The hopelessness of the struggle had now, however, become apparent to the Spaniards and the city was surrendered. The garrison, reduced to 12,000 men, were accorded all the honors of war. During the siege 60,000 persons perished, most of them by disease. Palafox, the brave defender, in violation of the terms of capitulation, was sent as a prisoner to Vincennes in France. Later he returned to Spain, became prominent in its political affairs, was created duke of Saragossa and died in 1847—ten years before the passing away of the Maid of Saragossa.

Not long since a handsome statue was erected to the Maid of Saragossa in the city which her valor helped to defend and this memorial will hand down to future generations the story of her courage and heroism.

Tuning the Bells.

Troy, N. Y.—The general impression is that the tone of a bell is largely a matter of accident, but this is not so. A bell must be tuned the same as a piano or any other musical instrument. Every bell has five sounds, which must blend together in perfect harmony, and this is accomplished by shaving down certain parts until the desired harmony is secured. In the event of shaving too deep the bell is not injured, but the tuning operation is prolonged, as other parts must be operated on and cut away to a corresponding degree.

THE GROWTH OF TOWNS IN WESTERN CANADA

A BAROMETER OF THE GROWTH OF THE AGRICULTURAL DISTRICTS.

The traveler passing through a country is impressed favorably or otherwise by the appearance of the towns along the line of railways. As they appear prosperous and of healthy growth he at once assures himself that there is either a local industrial factor to cause it, or a splendidly developed agricultural area from which is drawn the resources that contribute or make for the growth that is so readily apparent. On the other hand, if evidence of impoverished streets, badly appearing residences and business places and lethargic citizens, there is an absence of local industry and surrounding agricultural prosperity. There is no line of railway, whether main or branch, throughout western Canada, that through the towns or cities that are built along the ribs of steel do not convey the most favorable impression. The cause is not always apparent, but the facts are there and easily seen. In most cases the growth and the stability of these towns are caused by the excellent agricultural districts that are tributary; in some cases, manufacturing enterprises have sprung up, caused by the agricultural demands and needs. The Winnipeg Free Press and the Edmonton Bulletin have recently sent corps of correspondents through the provinces to secure data concerning the growth of the two or three hundred towns that have come into existence during the past two or three years. The particulars make interesting reading, and as one reads of the station house, the blacksmith shop, the boarding house and the store of April, being dwarfed in August by a hundred or more dwellings, by large hotels, by splendid stores, and a half dozen implement warehouses, not forgetting the two or three churches and the excellent public school buildings, it causes one to stop and think if they ever heard of such marvelous changes. Certainly not often. These are facts, though, as related of western Canada. Then, too, there are now cities—yes, cities of from ten to fifteen thousand people—where five or six years ago there was but the bare prairie and the lone section post. The changes in the Canadian West during the past eight or ten years, have been marvelous, and it is no idle tale to say that the development in number and growth of the cities, towns, and villages there in the past decade has eclipsed anything in the history of the building of a new country. Agriculture has been the basis, and it is agriculture of the kind that is lasting. The ease with which an excellent productive farm, capable of yielding a splendid living and large profit to the operator, is such that it has encouraged thousands to follow that pursuit, and also other thousands on the limited and expensive farms throughout the Central Western States as well as some of the Coast States, to enlarge their field of enterprise. The climate is excellent, and just the climate that is desirable for the healthy growth of man and the products of the field. All varieties of the smaller and better paying grains are raised, and generally with every assurance of good fields. With government supervision of railway rates, splendid markets are centain, and the highest prices realized. The Dominion Government, that has been carrying on a propaganda of securing settlers for the vacant lands, issues literature descriptive of those available in the provinces, and on request of your nearest Canadian government agent, copies will be forwarded free.

LOMBARD PIANOS
The Pianos With The Sweetest Tone

Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Stiker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our college work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Keppe, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

Thief River Falls did not get into the five thousand class. Its population, according to the census, is 3,714.

On Tuesday of this week Representative O'Neill of Thief River Falls introduced a bill in the house, and Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada in the senate, which will, if it passes both houses, authorize the commissioners of Pennington county to levy a tax for county purposes at once.

Making Hay

Making hay is an annual "job" on the farm and one that is not always looked forward to with pleasure. To the boys it means work and to the father it means worry, and if good hay is to be made neither of these can be completely avoided. There are, however, good and poor ways of making hay, but no real easy way of doing it. This question will probably be taken up at the coming farmers' institute and anyone having hay to make this year should be there to hear the discussion. If you have any easy method of making hay don't keep it to yourself. The conductor of the instute would be pleased to have you tell about it.

Big Lumber Deal

The Red Lake Falls Gazette claims to have it on good authority that all of the standing timber owned by the Thief River Falls Lumber company has been sold to the Weyerhauser syndicate. It is a big deal, the Thief River company selling 100,000,000 feet of standing timber.

The mill at Thief River Falls will run until the logs on hand are sawed. The superintendent of the mill has been instructed to push the work so that the clean up may be completed before next fall.

The Spectator cannot but wonder what connection there may be between the above and the activity in and around our own mill site, as well as the prevalent rumor that will not down that the St. Hilaire waterpower has been sold to the Weyerhauser people.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

By the County Superintendent of Schools, Pennington Co., Minn.

The teachers' examinations that ordinarily would have been held in February have been postponed by order of the state superintendent and will be held May 4, 5, and 6. Teachers holding certificates that expire March 1, 1911 if they are now engaged in teaching in the county, should write the undersigned at his office in Thief River Falls at once, so that their certificates may be extended to the time of a later examination.

All teachers now teaching in the new county of Pennington must file their certificates with the county superintendent in order to be valid. Please attend to this matter at once.

Teachers of schools in the county who are entitled to take state high school examinations should report at once the numbers of pupils in their respective schools to provide for the necessary questions for examinations. The schools entitled to these examinations are in districts No. 25, 219, 37, 54 and 151, and such other rural schools as have pupils sufficiently advanced to avail themselves of said examinations

I will be at my office in the auditorium at Thief River Falls on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month until further notice. I solicit respectfully your inquiries as regards school matters, and will be glad to answer same in person or by correspondence

Respectfully submitted,

E. A. MOSTUE,
Co. Supt. of Schools, Pennington Co

Questions

In the daily work on the farm many things happen that we cannot quite understand. We ask first one party and then another, and each usually gives us a different answer.

Many questions come to our minds about agriculture that we would like to have explained. How to feed roots; how to keep the boys and girls on the farm; the hired man question; how to test our seed; how to grade up our cows; the best methods to follow in various work; the latest ideas in building and cooperation, and a thousand other every day questions. All of the above you have the privilege of asking at the farmers' institute, and hey will be answered by men who are paid by the state for knowing thow to answer them. MADE MATTERS WORSE.

Charles Lamb, the beloved Elia of the essays, wrote both tragedies and comedies, but was not a successful playwright. When his farce "Mr. H." was produced at the Drury Lane theater it failed conspicuously, and the genial author, who was in the audience, himself joined with companionable vigor in hissing it.

It is, indeed, an airy trifle, too slight in texture for the professional stage, but it has proved a charming play for amateurs. At a recent performance by a college dramatic society a little dialogue took place between two ladies in the audience which would certainly have delighted Lamb himself could he have heard it.

"'Mr. H.,' a farce in two acts, by Charles Lamb,'" read one of them from her program. "Do you know, I had quite forgotten that Lamb was a dramatic author."

"Oh, my dear," exclaimed her neighbor, with a superior smile, "of course he was! Surely you must remember that he and his sister collaborated with Shakespeare."

"Collaborated with Shakespeare!" exclaimed the first speaker, startled out of her politeness. "Ridiculous! What could have put such an idea—Oh, you must be thinking of the 'Tales From Shakespeare,' by Charles and Mary Lamb."

There was mirth in her voice, and the superior person, flushing, perceived that overhasty "cramming" for the occasion had led her into error. She tried to retrieve herself.

"I did not mean collaborated with him, of course," she explained loftily "That was merely a slip of the tongue I meant translated him."—Youth's Companion.

AN ESKIMO CHURCH.

The Sealskin Sweatbox Finally Went to the Dogs.

The missionary sent to the States for a magic lantern and the necessary slides. Thirteen months later they reached him.

Everything in Baffin Land dates from that ever memorable magic lantern exhibition. From 300 miles around the expectant Eskimos came in behind their dog teams to participate in the wonderful event. The sealskin church was filled to overflowing. The spectators were packed as closely as sardines in a tin. The scent of sperm oil and blubber and sweat soaked furs mingled in the air. Although the thermometer outside registered 40 degrees below zero, the perspiration poured in streams down the faces of the enthusiastic audience. And when the straggling list of arctic explorers who have touched at Cumberland sound have long since been forgotten the recollection of that magic lantern show will linger in the minds of the Eskimo from Meta Incognita to Cockburn Land.

But a few nights later a sad fate befell the sealskin church. It was eaten up by a pack of hungry Eskimo dogs. These savage creatures, starved almost to death, made a raid on the edifice during a blinding snowstorm. Managing to get on top of the roof, they soon tore holes in the sealskin covering, and, in spite of the exertions of the missionary and his entire congregation, they actually ran away with the greater portion of the frozen skin, which, at a safe distance, they proceeded to devour.—Everybody's Magazine.

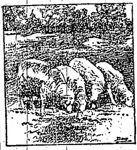
Dorsets In Hothouse Business.

Joseph E. Wing in his book on "Sheep Farming In America" says that the Dorset ewe has the way of dropping her lambs at an earlier season than any other ewe. Then she is the greatest milker of any of the sheep tribe, and because of this and of their ability to use grain at an early age Dorset lambs soon attain good weights and are usually sold fat from their mothers' sides, and most profit comes from selling them at two to four months of age. Dorsets are largely used in hothouse lamb business.



SOME OHIO DORSETS.

Naturally the larger number of lambs on the farm will be born too late for the fancy trade. There is, however, abundant profit in fattening them to be sold afoot in April, May, June or July.

Trim the Lambs While Young.

Many farmers and especially those who keep only a few sheep, making them only a side issue, neglect to castrate and dock the lambs till they are large. For docking I use a wide chisel. Placing the tail on a block, I set the chisel so as to leave a stub of about one inch, says a writer in National Stockman and Farmer. Shoving the skin up toward the body till I feel the chisel between the joints, then a sharp blow with a mallet and the job is done. This leaves enough loose skin to drop over the bone, which is quite an advantage in healing.

A horse is so constructed by nature that he has no desire to do anything which will injure his health. He walks around whatever is not good for him and without a struggle. But man is so constructed that whatever is not good for him he wants to do. He eats too much, and he eats too fast. He drinks while eating, and there is nothing proper that he does without an effort. Why this distinction in favor of a horse? It may be said that a horse has only instinct, while a man has reason, which he should use. It is a pity that man was not given more instinct and less reason.—Atchison Globe.

First Aid.

"If you were called upon to deal with a hysterical person," asked the examiner at the emergency class, "what would you do?"

"I'd amputate his funny bone," said the student with a turn for surgery and humor.—Youth's Companion.

HE REFORMED.

A Flash of Lightning Made Him See His Evil Ways.

"I remember one time when I was, sure enough," said another. "It was about a year after I was married, and I was on my way home from town. It began to thunder and lighten when I was about halfway there, and the rain fell in sheets. I stopped under a big tree. I knew that wasn't safe, but I thought I'd risk it.

"In a few minutes the lightning struck a tree about a hundred feet away, and I fell down, either from the shock or from fright. I don't know which to this day. But I got up again, and my hair rose on end when I remembered that I had a plug of tobacco in my pocket."

"What had that to do with it?"

"Nothing but this: My wife didn't know I chewed tobacco. She hated the weed like poison. 'What if I had been killed and that plug of tobacco found in my pocket?' I thought. I think I had the worst fright right then that I ever had in my life."

"Well?"

"Well, before the next flash came I took that plug out of my pocket and threw it as far as I could send it, and I have never chewed tobacco since."

Coroner Swanson performed his first official act Thursday. He was called to Thief River Falls to view the body of a man who died on the Soo train coming from St. Paul. The coroner did not consider an inquest or a postmortem necessary, as it was a plain case of death from overindulgence in stimulants. The dead man left a number of empty whiskey bottles in the seat of the coach beside the body.

An attempt is to be made to establish a cornet band in St. Hilaire, and it is to be hoped it may succeed. Nothing tends so much to create a habit of taking interest in public affairs among the citizens of a little country town as maintaing and watching the development of a good cornet band. But it should be no "kid" affair. The management of the concern must be in the hands of grown men—business men if possible—in order to ensure success.

An Invitation

Farm Home Conveniences

We frequently hear it said that farmers move to town in order that they may have the use of the conveniences of the city home. This may in a measure be the truth, but there are many farm homes today that have as many conveniences as the average city home. Other farm homes should have these same conveniences and will have when the farmer once knows that it is not necessary to move to town to get them. Attend the farmers' institute next Thursday and if the question is not discussed, ask for information

Difficulties of the Spoken and the Written Language.

Army officers who are thinking of taking up the study of Japanese should pause before they attempt the task and ask themselves whether they have a peculiarly strong linguistic aptitude. Even the Japanese find their language very difficult. The Anglo-Saxons who growl about the difficulties of our spelling and favor the simplified system would never live if they had to undergo what the subject of the mikado suffers in the matter of language.

It takes a Japanese child seven years to learn the essential parts of the alphabet. There are 214 signs which serve the same purpose as initial letters in English dictionaries. Then after you have tracked down in one of these 241 signs some part of the character for which you are about to make a search you still have a veritable darkest Africa ahead of you. The pompous first personal pronoun is avoided whenever it is possible in speaking Japanese. If it must be used it is introduced casually, but generally the abstract noun "selfishness" serves in its stead.

For example, a Japanese would not say, "I don't drink wine," but "Wine don't drink," or, if this is not clear enough, "Selfishness wine don't drink." Reference to your possessions must be depreciatory. Thus if a man wishes to point out his own residence he says, "That miserable house," which, of course, could refer to no other than his own.

On the other hand, "That beautiful house" would easily identify the house as belonging to some one else. Moreover, any one who wishes to learn Japanese must be prepared to learn two languages—the written and the spoken. The one differs so materially from the other that if a Japanese is reading a book or newspaper and wishes to do so aloud it becomes necessary for him to translate the written words into the colloquial. To be able to read any of the higher class Japanese newspapers it is necessary to master at least from 2,500 to 3,000 ideographs.—Army and Navy Journal.

PROMPT TO ACT.

To be ready for emergencies was one of the gifts of Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, the great teacher of the blind, writes his daughter, Mrs. Laura E. Richards, who has edited his "Letters and Journals." She gives several instances in which his quick action prevented serious accidents.

Once at Green Peace my father was going to drive with my mother and my sister Florence in a closed carriage with a large window in front.

As the driver was mounting the box he dropped his whip and got down to recover it. This startled the young horses, and they bolted down the driveway.

My father tried to open the big window, but it stuck fast. He flashed through the plate glass as if it had been paper and, catching up the reins, stopped the runaways in less time than it takes to tell it.

When Thomas came running up, white and breathless, he found "doctor" quietly shaking the bits of glass from his coat and hat and explaining to my terrified mother that he "went so quick there was no time to get cut."

Still another memory of my mother's shows his quickness in a different way. He was walking along Washington street one day when a furious dog rushed at him and bit his hand severely.

There was no Pasteur institute in the forties. My father instantly raised up the skin and flesh of the bitten part and, holding it firmly, entered the nearest apothecary's shop.

"Cut this piece off," he said briefly.

The apothecary exclaimed in horror. He could not, he would not, without a surgeon's order. It was out of the question.

"I am a surgeon," said my father, "and I command you to cut it off."

It was cut off. My father dressed the wound with his other hand and went about his business.

PLAYING THE STOCKS.

He Who Has Knowledge and He Who Gambles on Gossip.

Of the many popular delusions touching Wall street and its people none is more persistent or more dangerous to the outsider than the belief that from nothing great permanent fortunes have been made by shrewd and lucky speculation in prices. It isn't true. We differentiate here between speculation in prices only and the kind of legitimate speculation which seeks to anticipate great economic changes. Legitimate speculation has its translation into prices, too, but it takes, first, original capital in some reasonable proportion to the profits expected and, secondly, the treatment of exceptional opportunity with correct imagination. Its risks at best are very large. Among our Wall street acquaintances are several hard headed men who succeed in making $25,000 a year by speculation. Not one of them has a capital of less than $250,000. They make it earn about 10 per cent.

Take Blank, one of the ablest speculators we know. He has made half a million dollars during the past five years. Very handsome return, you say. Let us look at Blank. He was the chief accountant of one of the big railway systems when an uncle, dying, left him $20,000. Mind you, he was an expert railway statistician and an exceptionally able young man to boot. He knew his own road like a book, as well as some other things that only the directors were aware of. The stock of the system looked cheap to him, and he used his $20,000 to margin 4,000 shares. A bull market was beginning, and within a month or two Blank's capital had increased to $60,000. He was content with a ten point rise, though the stock advanced ten points more. That was the first of Blank's deals. Twelve months later he won again. He thought that the stock of a certain western system was selling below its value and set about an investigation to find the facts. He hired a first class engineer and a retired traffic manager to travel from one end of that railroad to the other, and he himself analyzed the accounts. When all the reports were in it seemed to him that the system was earning enough money to justify an increase of its dividend, and he plunged once more. He waited six months for his point this time, and his investigation had cost him $5,000. He made $50,000. Good interest, you say, but think of Blank's special equipment for the game and the trouble he took to be right. You, Mr. Thinmarginist, after reading the Wall street gossip in your daily paper, adventure your thousand or two thousand dollars and expect to double your money. Mark the difference.—John Parr in Everybody's Magazine.

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES. NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

BEST BROWN BREAD

RECIPE FOR THE EXCELLENT BOSTON PRODUCT.

Enthusiastic Easterners Declare No Article of Food Is More Delicious, and There Is Much Truth in Statement.

Every housekeeper longs to excel in the art—for it is an art—of bread making. There is no article that appears more often on our tables than bread, yet good home-made bread is seldom found.

Boston brown bread is not in the same class as white or even graham bread, for it is lightened with sour milk and soda and steamed until almost done, then baked a few minutes in a very hot oven. It is not like "the bread mother made," but far better, especially if you put raisins or currants or finely-chopped dates in it. This eaten hot with fresh, unsalted butter and an accompaniment of hot Boston baked beans and a cup of steaming Java, enriched with real cream, should make you thankful that you are numbered among the advocates of "plain living and high thinking."

Boston brown bread requires two mixing bowls; in one, sift one cup of rye, or whole wheat flour, one cup of corn meal, two cups of graham flour and one teaspoon of salt. In the other bowl place a cup of New Orleans molasses, a tablespoon of sugar and one tablespoon of soda.

With the molasses, sugar and soda, mix two cups of sour milk, or buttermilk, and while it is foaming stir it into the bowl of flour and salt. Mix to a smooth batter, beating well for several minutes. It should be of a consistency to stir easily, and break when poured from the spoon, but not to run

With some molasses you may need to add from a spoonful to a cupful of warm water to make it right. Butter the molds well and fill two-thirds full, as it will rise. Cook in a steamer, or lacking this, tie the cover on tightly and place in a kettle of boiling water. Cover the kettle, also, and keep boiling for three hours, looking from time to time to see that the water in the kettle is not boiled away. When necessary to replenish, use boiling water.

At the end of three hours, take the cans, or molds, from the boiler; remove the lids and set in a hot oven until a crust is formed on the top of the loaf. The quantities given should make three loaves; it may be baked instead of steamed, but is not so tender, nor so moist. When it is not convenient to use sour milk and soda, substitute sweet milk and baking powder, but use a teaspoon of soda to neutralize the acid in molasses. If water is used—and some bakers think it gives a more tender loaf—add a tablespoon of butter to give richness.

Dainty Dessert.

Add one-half cup chopped walnuts, one-half cup maraschino cherries cut fine, one-half cup marshmallows cut fine, one-half cup sliced pineapple cut fine, to one pint of stiffly beaten cream. Do not sweeten cream, and be sure to have cream very stiff. Enough to serve eight persons, with sponge or angel cake.

Chocolate Cake.

One cup of sugar, one-quarter cup of butter, one cup of milk, two and one-half cups of flour, one teaspoon of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon of soda. Flavor with vanilla. Bake in layer tins.

Chocolate Filling.—Two-thirds cup grated chocolate, one cup milk, one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour.

Stuffed Celery.

Make a paste of rich cream cheese, seasoned highly with salt, paprika, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce and made soft enough to spread with olive oil. Fill tender stalks of celery with this mixture; chill and serve with your dinner. A delicious relish and a little out of the ordinary.

French Dressing.

The measures for the ordinary French dressing are: Three tablespoonfuls of oil, one and a half tablespoonfuls of salt, an eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper. This is enough for a pint of salad.

Keeping Cranberries.

Pack all absolutely sound berries in glass fruit jars. Fill the jars to overflowing with cold water and seal. The berries will keep beautifully and can be used at any time for sauce, jelly and pies.

The Home

When next making rice pudding, flavor with lemon and cinnamon. It will be found exceedingly tasty.

If when reading or sewing by lamp light a sheet of white paper is placed under the lamp, it will be found that a far stronger light is shed all over the room.

The best way to clean out lead pipes without the expensive aid of a plumber is to pour a strong solution of concentrated lye down them. The lye will dissolve hair, lint and, indeed, all animal and vegetable matter, and so open the pipes.

Warm bread or cake, and, in fact, warm food of any kind, should never be put away in a covered tin or dish. The steam makes molding certain. Vegetables become soggy and unfit for food when treated in this careless manner.

SQUIRRELS RANG TELEPHONE

Max Examines Box Where Wires Were Converged and Finds It Nearly Full of Nuts.

A lady in Englewood, N. J., was called to the telephone one day by the operator, who inquired, "What do you want?"

"Nothing at all," she responded.

"Your bell rang," insisted the operator.

"None of us rang it," replied the lady.

The next day a man appeared from the telephone office.

"I have come to see what makes your telephone bell ring most of the time," he remarked.

But none of the family could enlighten him, and he saw nothing about it which was out of order.

The next day he came again, took the telephone entirely to pieces, examined the full length of the wire. Still, he could find nothing amiss, and still at the central office the little flame kept burning in the niche dedicated to this particular family. This indicated that their bell was ringing.

At last it occurred to the authorities to examine a little box, of about the size of an ordinary suit case, which was nailed up against a large tree close by the house.

In this box several telephone wires converged. It was a sort of neighborhood switchboard.

What was the surprise of the telephone men to find this box nearly filled with nuts. They took out three peach baskets full, each one holding at least two quarts.

BACHELORS 2 CENTS A POUND

M. Casey, Wealthy St. Louisan, Weighing 267 Pounds, Is Bid In for $5 as Prize.

St. Louis.—St. Louis bachelors are worth less than 2 cents a pound, according to the market established at the St. Vincent de Paul's church, when 267-pound Martin Casey, the wealthy head of a broom manufacturing concern, was bid in for $5 after the young woman who had won him as a prize in a church celebration refused to accept him. The winner of the prize was Miss Dora Kohler of St. Louis.

"Do you want to take him home with you?" said Father Nugent, who had charge of the affair.

"Really," replied Miss Kohler, "he's very nice, but I don't think I want him."

"Very well, then, I'll have to sell him to the highest bidder, and I'll start the auction with a bid of $5."

As no one made a higher bid, Father Nugent handed to Miss Kohler a $5 bill in lieu of 267 pounds of Casey.

Some Suspicious Persons

Enquired if we were "hiring" a certain "weekly" paper to abuse us.

Of course, every time a spot light is turned on from any source it offers a splendid chance to talk about the merits of the products, but 'pon honor now, we are not hiring that "Weekly."

A few may have read lately some articles attacking us and may be interested in the following:

Some time ago a disagreement arose with a "Weekly." They endorsed our foods by letter, but wanted to change the form of advertising, to which we objected.

The "Weekly" discontinued inserting our advertisements while they were negotiating for some changes they wanted in the wording and shape of the advertisements, and during this correspondence our manager gave instructions to our Advertising Department to quit advertising altogether in that "Weekly."

Quite a time after the advertising had been left out, an editorial attack came. We replied in newspapers and the scrap was on.

Then came libel suits from both sides, and some harsh words.

Generally tiresome to the public.

That "Weekly" has attacked many prominent men and reputable manufacturers.

Our Company seems prominent enough for a sensational writer to go after, hunt for some little spot to criticise, then distort, twist and present it to the public under scare heads.

So an attorney from New York spent more or less time for months in Battle Creek hoping to find impurities in our foods, or dirt in the factories. After tireless spying about he summoned twenty-five of our workmen and took their testimony. Every single one testified that the foods are made of exactly the grain and ingredients printed on the packages; the wheat, barley and corn being the choicest obtainable—all thoroughly cleaned—the water of the purest, and every part of the factories and machinery kept scrupulously clean.

That all proved disappointing to the "Weekly." There are very few factories, hospitals, private—or hotel and restaurant kitchens that could stand the close spying at unexpected times and by an enemy paid to find dirt or impurities of some kind.

In any ordinary kitchen or factory he would find something to magnify and make a noise about.

But he failed utterly with the Postum Works and products. Twenty to thirty thousand people go through the factories annually and we never enquire whether they are there to spy or not. It makes no difference to us.

He next turned to discover something about our advertising that could be criticized.

An analysis of the methods and distorted statements of the "Weekly" may interest some readers, so we take up the items one by one and open them out for inspection. We will "chain up" the harsh words and make no reference in this article to the birth, growth and methods of the "Weekly" but try to coufine the discussion to the questions now at issue.

Some Facts

Battle Creek, Michigan, December 30, 1910.

We the undersigned certify that never to our knowledge has a testimonial letter been printed by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., which did not have behind it a genuine letter signed, and believed to be an honest statement.

To the best of our knowledge and belief the Company has receive upwards of fifty thousand (50,000) genuine testimonial letters.

This company has never knowingly made nor permitted an untruthful statement regarding its products or its methods.

Distortion No. 1 stated that we have been accustomed to advertise Grape-Nuts and Postum as "cure-alls for everything."

It has never been the policy of this Company to advertise Grape-Nuts or Postum to cure anything.

We say that in cases where coffee disagrees and is causing sickness its dismissal will remove the cause of the trouble, and we suggest the use of Postum for the reason that it furnishes a hot palatable morning beverage, and contains natural elements from the grain which can be used by nature to assist in rebuilding nerve centers that coffee may have broken down.

Likewise Grape-Nuts food does not cure anything, but it does assist nature tremendously in rebuilding, provided the undigestible food that has been used is discontinued and Grape-Nuts taken in its place.

Charge No. 2 states that the passage of the National Food & Drugs Act compelled us to drop from the packages some assertions regarding the nutritive value of Grape-Nuts.

We have never been "compelled" to make any change.

Since the beginning it has been a universal rule to print clearly on every package exactly what the contents are made of.

Before the passage of the Pure Food Law the packages stated that Grape-Nuts food was made of wheat and barley.

We did not esteem the small amount of salt and yeast as of value enough to speak of, but after the new Law came in we became as technical as the officials at Washington and added the words "yeast" and "salt," although we have no recollection of being asked to.

We believed that our statement that Grape-Nuts will supply elements to nourish the brain and nerve centers is true and bring authorities to support the fact.

Some state chemists believed this a gross exaggeration and inasmuch as the Food Dept. at Washington could easily harass grocers, pending a trial on the disputed question, we concluded that much the better way would be to eliminate from our packages such claims, however certain we may be that the claims are true.

Another statement objected to read as follows:

"The system will absorb a greater amount of nourishment from one pound of Grape-Nuts than from ten pounds of meat, wheat, oats, or bread."

Some Department chemists deceive themselves as well as the public.

"Caloried" is the word which defines a unit of heat determined by the amount necessary to raise one kilogram of water one degree centigrade. On this basis a table of calories is prepared showing the percentage of different kinds of food. Butter shows 8.60; Grape-Nuts 3.96; milk 0.70. Remember the statement on the package spoke of the nourishment the system would absorb, but did not speak of the calories of heat contained in it, for the heat is not nourishment, and the nourishment cannot be judged by the number of heat units, notwithstanding the fact that certain chemists would have the public believe so.

As an illustration: Attempt to feed a man sixty days on butter alone, with its 8.60 calories. The man would die before the experiment had run sixty days.

Then, take Grape-Nuts with 3.96 and milk with 0.70,—the two combined equal 4.66—about one-half the number of calories contained in butter. The man fed for sixty days on this food would be well nourish..., and could live not only sixty days, but six months on that food alone, and we do not hesitate to say from our long knowledge of the sustaining power of the food that a man at the end of sixty days would be of practically the same weight as when he started,—if he be a man of normal weight.

We will suppose that from his work he lost a pound a day and made up a pound each day from food. If that premise proved to be true the man in sixty days' time would make sixty pounds of tissue to replace what had been lost, and this would be done on Grape-Nuts and milk with half the number of calories of butter, upon which no one can sustain life.

Therefore, we have reason to believe that our contention is right that concentrated food like Grape-Nuts, which is partly digested and ready for easy assimilation by the body, presents more nourishment that the system will absorb than many other forms of food, and we will further say that in cases of digestive troubles where meat, white bread and oats cannot be digested, that Grape-Nuts and milk contain more nourishment that the system will absorb than many pounds of these other foods.

Distortion No. 3 charges that our testimonials were practically all paid for and re-written in Battle Creek.

These testimonials were demanded by the opposing lawyers. Naturally this demand was refused, for they are held in vaults and kept safe to prove the truth, and are not to be delivered up on demand of enemies.

Testimony at the trial brought out the fact that we never printed a single testimonial that we did not have the genuine letter back of. Many of these letters came spontaneously. A record was kept of twelve hundred and four (1204) letters received in one month from people who wrote that they had either entirely recovered their health or been benefited by following our suggestions on food and beverages.

On three or four occasions in the past ten or twelve years we printed broadcast in papers offers of prizes to users of Postum and Grape-Nuts,—two hundred $1.00 prizes, one hundred $2.00, twenty of $5.00 and five of $10.00 each,—stating that each must be an honest letter with name and address. We agreed not to publish names, but to furnish them to enquirers by letter. These letter writers very generally answered those who wrote to them, and verified the truth of the statements.

Under this agreement not to publish names literally scores of letters came from doctors. We kept our word and neither printed their names or surrendered the letters.

Right here notice an "imitation spasm." The "Weekly" says: "Post got those testimonials by advertising for them. In New York he used for that purpose the New York Magazine of ——— whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary for fraudulent use of the mails. For example, Post announced in that magazine in 1907, etc.," (then follows our prize competition).

We used nearly all of the papers and magazines in New York and the rest of America, but the sensational writer gives the impression to his readers that the only magazine we used was one "whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary," etc., something that we know nothing of the truth of now, and never did. Space was bought in the magazine spoken of on a business basis for the reason that it went to a good class of readers. The incident seems to have furnished an opportunity for a designing writer to deceive his readers.

We look upon honest human testimony from men and women as to the means by which they recovered health as of tremendous value to those in search of it. Our business has been conducted from the very first day upon lines of strict integrity and we never yet have published a false testimonial of human experience. Many of these letters covered numerous sheets; some, if printed, would spread over half a page of newspaper. If we would attempt to print one such letter in every one of the thousands of papers and magazines we use, the cost for printing that one letter would run into many thousands of dollars.

We boil down these letters exactly as a newspaper writer boils his news,—sticking sacredly to the important facts and eliminating details about the family and other unimportant matters. This work of boiling down, or editing, is done honestly, and with a full knowledge of our responsibility, but notice the art of the "twister" in the way he presents to his readers this matter of testimonials.

Distortion No. 4. This is a bad one. It reads as follows: "The only famous physician whose name was signed to a testimonial was produced in Court by Colliers and turned out to be a poor old brokendown homeopath, who is now working in a printing establishment. He received ten dollars ($10.00) for writing his testimonial."

We will wager ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) with any investigator that we have, subject to inspection of any fair committee, upwards of three hundred (300) communications from physicians, many of them expressing the highest commendation of our products, but these will not now or ever be turned over to the publisher for his use.

Notice the statement in this charge: "The only famous physician whose name was signed to Postum testimonial, etc."

The truth is, this Dr. Underwood was one of a great many physicians who have not only written commendatory words about the value of our foods, but every now and then some physician writes an article on coffee or on food, and sends it to us with a suggestion of compensation for his time and medical knowledge. Previous to the time when we employed physicians in our own business, we occasionally employed a doctor to write an article on coffee, always insisting that the article be an honest expression of his opinion and research.

The "Weekly" hunted up this physician, and because he seemed to be poor, and as it says, "brokendown," had him brought to Court to be exposed before a jury as the "only physician that had ever endorsed Grape-Nuts," but much to the chagrin of the "Weekly," when our attorneys asked him if the article he wrote about coffee was true he replied, "yes."

Statement No. 5 reads: "The health officers of Mich., Maine, Penn., New Hamp., and other states in their official bulletins have for years been denouncing as preposterous and fraudulent the claims made by the Postum Cereal Company." We do not recall any criticism except from Mich., Penn., Maine and S. Dakota.

The average reader might think that the opinions expressed by the State Officials are always correct, but that conclusion is not borne out by facts.

As an illustration: About thirteen years ago the Dairy and Food Commission of Michigan for some personal reason printed a severe criticism on us for making Postum of Barley (according to his official chemist) at market price and selling too high. He was shown there was never a grain of barley used in Postum. His report was false and misleading. The governor dismissed him.

We believe that most of the state officials are honest, and on the other hand we are firmly convinced that some of their conclusions cannot be substantiated by facts in scientific research.

They never criticize the purity of our foods, for so much we are thankful.

If our conclusions in regard to its being a brain food differ from theirs, and we are both honest, they have rather the advantage, because under the law they can order us to eliminate from the package any statement if it disagrees with their opinion. Otherwise they would harass grocers.

Spasm No. 6 says: "The most dangerous thing in the world for one threatened with appendicitis is to eat any food whatever. Notwithstanding he knew that danger, C. W. Post advertised Grape-Nuts at fifteen cents a package for those so threatened."

This is intended to muddle the reader into believing that we put out Grape-Nuts as a cure for appendicitis.

Mr. Post, himself, has had probably as wide experience as any other man in America in the study and observation of food as related to the digestive organs, and we proved in Court by the physicians and surgeons on the witness stand that the predominating cause of appendicitis is undigested food, and that it is necessary to quit eating food, and when the body requires food again, use a pre-digested food, or at least one easy of digestion.

Dr. Ochsner in his work on appendicitis refers directly to the use of the well-known pre-digested foods that can be obtained on the market. He also brought out the interesting fact that in "after treatment" it is advantageous to take on a pre-digested food.

The price of the package (referred to by the weekly) is not known by us to have any relation to the question.

Our advice to stop using indigestible food in bowel troubles and to use Grape-Nuts food has been a great blessing to tens of thousands of people, and we hope will continue to bless a good many more in the succeeding years.

No. 7 is a live wire. It refers to C. W. Post and his studies and experience in "Suggestive Therapeutics," or "Mental Healing" which further lead to a most careful and systematic study of the effect of the mind on the digestive and other organs of the body.

He attended clinics in Europe and fitted himself for a future career in which he has become known as one of the food experts of the world, fitted to judge both from the material as well as the mental side of the question.

For about eight years previous to 1891 he was an invalid. In that year, after being under the care of several well-known physicians, he was quickly healed, by what to him was a curious and not well-understood method. Sufficient to say he became a well man, weighing about 185 pounds.

This experience challenged his investigation into causes of disease and their amelioration. Those studies and experiences developed a very profound reverence for a Supreme Power which directly operates upon the human being, and this reverence for the Infinite became to him a form of religion which included honesty of purpose towards his fellow-man. A statement which will be indorsed by every one who knows him closely.

He will make a public announcement in detail of these facts, and the Postum Company will cause that statement to be published in newspapers and magazines in due time. We suggest the reader look for it.

Prevarication No. 8. "Post spends nearly a million a year in advertising and relies on that to keep out of the newspapers the dangerous nature of the fraud he is perpetrating on the public."

The Postum Company does pay out upwards of a million a year for trade announcements. Newspaper men believe our statements truthful or they would not print them. Large numbers of newspaper men use our products.

They are capable of telling the public whether or not we "bribe" them.

It may have escaped notice that we did not "bribe" that particular weekly.

No. 9 states that the amount of the verdict will "be devoted by the 'weekly' to exposing fraud."

We have two suits pending against the "weekly," total, $500,000.00.

We haven't "devoted" the sum to any particular purpose yet.

But the criticism neglected to mention that for years every Postum package announced in plain type that the outer covering of wheat (bran), made part of the beverage.

They ignorantly fell into a trap here, not knowing enough of food value to know that "Taka-Diastase" the article used by physicians the world over for "starch indigestion" is made from "wheat bran."

So we use that part of the wheat berry because it contains the element needed to develop the valuable diastase in manufacture. Good Postum is impossible without this part.

Item 11 is an illustration of the squirming and twisting of the sensational writer delivering distorted matter to his readers.

While on the witness stand Mr. Post testified to his studies in Anatomy, Physiology, Dietetics and Psychology,—all relating to the preparation and digestion of food. Asked to name authorities studied he mentioned six or eight from memory, and commented on some clinical experience covering several years in annual journeys to Europe.

Now notice the distortion. (Copy from the printed criticism.)

"He (Post) pointed out a pile of books in possession of his attorneys as the very ones he had read."

(Notice,—"the very ones he had read," leading the reader to believe that they were the only ones.)

"Did you consult the books from these editions?" was asked.

"From those and various editions," answered Post.

The attorney "picked up book after book from the pile and showed the title pages to the jury,—all except two had been published since 1905."

The facts are Mr. Post purposely introduced the latest editions that could be obtained of prominent authorities to prove by them the truth of his statements regarding appendicitis and the analysis of brain, also the latest conclusions in regard to the action of the digestive organs. These works are:

Human Physiology, by Raymond.
Physiological Chemistry, by Simon.
Digestive Glands, by Pawlow.
Hand Book of Appendicitis, by Ochsner.
Physiological Chemistry, by Hammarsten.
Biochemic System of Medicine, by Carey.

The "Weekly" carefully eliminates from its printed account testimony regarding the years of research and study by Mr. Post in fitting himself for his work, and would lead the reader of the distorted article to believe that his education began since 1905.

His eye is not of the shifty kind observed in the head of one of his chief critics. On the witness stand Mr. Post looks quietly but very steadily straight into the eyes of the haggling, twisting lawyer, trying by all his art to ask double-barreled questions and bull-doze and confuse a witness.

The "dodging" it seems consisted of replying, "I don't know."

Opposing counsel holds a book in his hand while he queries,—

"I want to know if there is a single thing in your whole book here that suggests any particular kind of food." Then followed some discussion between attorneys.

When Mr. Post was allowed to reply, he said, "I don't know until I read the book over to see."

This book, it turns out, was written by Mr. Post seventeen years ago and probably has not been read carefully by him in the last fifteen years. It would require a remarkable memory to instantly say "yes" or "no" as to what a book of 147 pages did or did not contain, without reading it over,—but such conservative and well balanced answers are construed by sensation seekers to be "dodging."

The attorney sought by every art to impress the Jury with the fact that Mr. Post's belief in the power of Mind in relation to the body branded him as unreliable and worse.

The following is quoted from one of the questions:—

(The lawyer reading from the book.)

"The writer of these pages desires to say nothing of himself other than as a simple instrument through which the Divine Principle chooses to manifest itself by precept and example.

"Skill in mental practice is gained in the same way as skill in any department of science—by observation, study, experience and the ability to evolve correct conclusions.

"Read carefully, thoughtfully no more than twenty pages daily. Afterward seek an easy position where you will not be disturbed. Relax every muscle. Close your eyes, and go into the silence where mind is plastic to the breathings of spirit and where God talks to the Son. The thoughts from Divine Universal Mind come as winged angels and endow you with a healing power. If you go into the silence humble and trusting, you will come out enriched and greatly strengthened in body by contact even for a short time with the Father of all life and all power. You will feel refreshed in every way and food taken will digest readily as the stomach works smoothly when under the influence of a Higher Power."

"I ask you if you did not write that, and if you did not believe it when you wrote it."

For a moment the Court Room was in absolute silence.

Mr. Post slowly leaned forward over the rail, pointed his finger at the Atty's face to emphasize his reply and with eyes that caused those of the Attorney to drop he said, "Yes, I am proud to say I did."

It may be remembered that we were first attacked and have since defended ourselves by placing facts before that great jury—The Public.

A good "scrap" is more or less comforting now and then, if you know you are right.

In the case lately tried, an appeal has been taken to the higher courts. We have unbounded faith in the ultimate decision of our American Tribunals.

Our suits against the "weekly" have not yet been tried. They are for libel and $500,000.00 is asked as damages, and may the right man win.

After all the smoke of legal battle blows away, the facts will stand out clearly and never be forgotten that Postum, Grape Nuts, and Post Toasties are perfectly pure, have done good honest service to humanity for years, the testimonials are real and truthful and the business conducted on the highest plane of commercial integrity.

COMFORT IN STALL FOR COW

The style of stall shown in the illustration affords a great degree of comfort to the cow. The distinguishing features of the stall are the movable manger and rack whereby the length of the standing room in front and behind may be varied to suit the individual cow, and the fastening for the animal, which consists of a rope or chain across the rear end of the stall, to keep the cow from backing out.

The stall should be 3 feet wide on centers. The entire stall, from A to B (see cut), is 7 feet in length. The gates (which should all swing one way), are about 4 feet long. The rear posts, if used, should slant, as shown in the cut, to allow the milker a little more room. In some stables these rear posts have been done away with entirely, the gates simply being chained or roped together. As usually built, the front rack or panel is made of 2x4 frame-work, with 7-16 inch iron rods; and this frame-work is fastened solidly to the manger; but the manger and frame-work are not attached to the sides of the stall, but left loose, so as to be adjusted to the length of the cow. In some cases, however, the rack is hinged at the top and the bottom allowed to swing in the manger, so that it may be swung toward the front several inches. This allows the cow a little more freedom in getting up and lying down. Wooden slats may be substituted for the iron rods, or in some cases a section of iron wire fencing is used in place of the rods. The rope across the rear of the stall is usually stapled at one side and hooked with an ordinary harness-strap at the other.

BUILDING UP A DAIRY HERD

Fault of Dairymen in General Is Proper Application of Knowledge They Possess—Few Points.

The fault of dairymen in general is not so much the lack of knowledge as the proper application of the knowledge they possess.

One thing that we ought to consider when we start out to buy breeding cattle is the fact that the knowledge, skill and character of the man we buy them of is about as important as the animals that we are buying.

Can a man sow poor seed and hope to get a good crop? Will nature make any exceptions in one man's favor? These are questions which ought to interest the man who keeps on year after year breeding his cows to some scrub bull.

Too many farmers lack the push and energy required to build up a fine herd of dairy cattle. They are poor business men.

The cow cannot turn all of her energy into the production of milk and still have enough to build up her offspring rightly. To raise good, vigorous calves, we must see to it that the mother has sufficient of the right kind of food and goes dry long enough to do the work rightly.

Age to Sell Cows.

The age to which a cow of the beef type can be profitably kept should be gauged largely by her character as a breeder. If she breeds regularly and rears good calves she should be kept to a reasonable old age. This will militate against the price which she will bring on the block when she is sold, but the lack will be much more than made up in the excellent character of the stock which she has produced. On the other hand, when a cow of this class is not possessed of promise as a successful breeder in the first and second calves which she produces, she ought to be sold. Such a cow may then be put upon the market, so that she will command a good price.

Moisture in Butter.

The methods of determining moisture in butter may be divided into three classes; first, heating a weighed quantity of the butter in a cup over an alcohol lamp, as in the Irish test; second, heating a weighed quantity of the butter in a small oven which is surrounded by high pressure steam; third, heating a weighed quantity of butter in a cup surrounded by paraffine which is heated by an alcohol lamp. Accurate results can be obtained by each one of these methods.

Feeding Cows.

The cows should have wheat bran, cottonseed meal, gluten meal or any of the other feeds in addition to the corn stover and roots. The amount of grain will depend on the quantity of milk produced. A cow giving three or four gallons a day should have eight or ten pounds of grain to go with the corn stover, beets and hay.

Salting Butter.

When attending a farmers' institute recently Prof. G. L. Martin, head of the dairy department of the North Dakota Agricultural college, was asked the question, "How much should butter be salted?" His reply was: "For ordinary marketing from three-fourths of an ounce to one ounce to the pound of butter fat."

COWS STANDING IN GUTTER

Common and Uncleanly Habit of Big Animals and Young Heifers Is Effectively Cured.

In modern barns where cows are tied with the movable stanchions, the herdsman is not much bothered with their habit of standing in the gutter; but where the cows are tied with chains or stationary stanchions, it is common with big cows or young heifers just now into the stall, says a writer in the Country Gentleman. It is most irritating to come in every morning and find a cow has been standing in the gutter and making a filth of the stall when she steps out of it, and then lying down and swishing her tail in the mess.

End of Stall.

I have tried the following, and find that with young heifers it cures them of the habit in a very short time, and sometimes old cows can be cured: You get two pieces of 2 by 4-inch and cut them to fit your gutter as shown; angle off one end so that the cow does not lie on a sharp corner; make two half diamond cuts and set in your cross pieces, which are made of 3 by 3-inch, and nail securely. If your gutter is very wide, you may have to put in three pieces of strip, as an old-fashioned cow will soon find she can get her feet down between the strips, but I have never seen a cow stand on the strips. If you have two cows standing together that have this trick, you can make your strips long enough for them both and put an extra 2 by 4-inch piece in the center. If you lift the rack back to the wall when turning out the cows, and if it is well made it will last a long time.

CARING FOR BUTTER WORKER

To Get Rid of Adhering Grease Use Certain Quantity of Hydrochloric Acid Diluted.

Every butter maker knows the importance of using a good butter worker. Without it the butter habitually contains too much water, probably too large a quantity of casein.

The chief point of the butter worker is to get the water out and also to enable the produce to be made up into a good and consistent sample.

But trouble is often caused by the fact of the butter adhering to the worker, arising from a want of cleanliness in that utensil.

The chief cause of this adherence is that the wood is saturated with the greasy material owing either to incomplete washing or the water not being hot enough.

To get rid of this grease use a certain quantity of hydrochloric acid diluted with four times its quantity of water.

This should cover the worker for twelve hours and then it should be thoroughly scrubbed, then washed in boiling water and finally receive a cold douche.

Milk a Great Money Crop.

The greater profit from selling milk over making butter will be readily apparent where the milk can be disposed of at a relatively high figure. In several of the eastern states milk sells for 10 cents a quart, which is practically 5 cents a pound. A good cow should give 6,000 pounds of milk in a year. This would mean a return of $300 less the cost of food and of handling the milk. The net return should represent a handsome profit. Such dairying, where the dairyman is careful to grow his own food to the greatest extent practicable, should bring a good bank account in a reasonably short time. Even at 3 cents a pound for the milk, there should be a bare profit.

Sour Cream.

The development of lactic acid, or the souring of cream, does not increase its butter fat content. As a rule, when cream becomes sour, it is more difficult to test than when it is sweet. The difficulty in obtaining the accurate test of sour milk or cream lies in the fact that it is not easy to obtain an accurate sample.

Cheese-making requires some time.

Cleanliness and feeding are two important points.

A person with a separator has several advantages in handling milk.

Few farmers or dairymen fully understand all the profits from dairying.

The separator is made for one specific purpose—that is of skimming milk.

In dairying, where whole milk is sold, manure is still a product that should be considered.

Considering both its food and tonic properties, buttermilk may be considered cheap at 10 cents per quart.

When all has been said conditions determine what kind of animals are most profitable for a farmer to keep.

After salt is properly mixed in the butter should be molded into one pound molds and wrapped in a neat, attractive package.

WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Editor

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

This is the time of year to begin to plan for the home you are thinking of building next spring. It is a longer process than most people realize to make all the plans for a satisfactory and home-like residence.

By this we do not mean that the actual work of preparing the drawings and specifications for the work is such a long task. The experienced architect will take care of that matter very easily and will produce a consistent and satisfactory set of plans, in accordance with the ideas of his client, in comparatively short time.

It is the planning by the client himself that is more important and more complicated than many prospective home builders seem to imagine. The needs of no two families are exactly alike, and the ideas of one will be entirely different from those of another in respect to the outward appearance of his home, what the materials should be, and what decorative effects should be used. In the same way the inside of the house furnishes a hundred and one different points that should be decided by the prospectice home builder, or rather, by his wife, if the home is to be thoroughly satisfactory and meet their ideals as to what their home should be and what it should look like.

Most people have exceedingly vague and unformed notions about what they like concerning the different details of home building. Very often it is not until the work is actually under way that some of the points are decided and then changes in the plans and specifications follow, greatly increasing the expense.

Everything should be decided in advance, even before the work is placed in the hands of the architect; that is the needs and preferences of the family should have been all thought over and pretty thoroughly decided upon. To do this there is nothing quite so helpful as to study the books of building plans and to read the magazines and papers devoted to home building. The photographs of interiors that are reproduced will show desirable features and the wise thing to do is to get together a scrap-book containing illustrations of all the features one would like embodied in the plans for his own house.

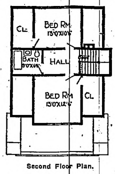
Modern building is a very complicated process, requiring a good deal of study before the ins and outs of it can be appreciated by the prospective builder. How often we hear of men who have recently built, lamenting the fact that the new house does not suit and wishing that it could be possible to start anew and have the work done over again in the light of the knowledge and experience gained from the previous building.

This is not necessary, however. If those who are to build the coming spring would begin now to study up and decide in their own minds just what their requirements and preferences are, there is no reason why absolute satisfaction cannot be had with the first house to be built.

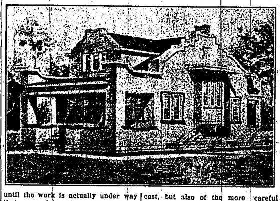
Home building is one of the most important things that a family ever undertakes. Ordinarily, the one house is all that is ever built, and it must meet the needs of the family for probably two generations. This is why it is so important to study the question and make sure that one's building will be well. Profit by the experience of others as much as possible, for it is very seldom that one has the opportunity to build a second time and so profit by his own experience.

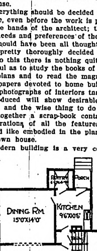
There is another feature of this question, too, which urges early planning for the home building of next spring. Quite a saving in expense can be effected by having plans all made and the contract ready to let before the big spring building rush commences.

Building contractors say that a saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. can be made by adopting this course. Very often the middle of February brings suitable weather for getting in the foundations and all through the month of March there is opportunity for beginning work. As the real busy season for the contractors does not open until the middle of April they are willing to take work on a smaller margin of profit during these early months than later when they are crowded with work. Every contractor has a big crew of expert mechanics whom he tries to keep busy the year round in order to hold them, so the home builder who can start early gets the advantage not only of the smaller cost, but also of the more careful workmanship that is apt to be given a job in the slack season than when everyone is rushed and trying to turn out the work as rapidly as possible.



Second Floor Plan.





First Floor Plan.

The design illustrated herewith shows many good features of planning and design. One who wants a small house of thoroughly modern arrangement and appearance can get a number of suggestive ideas from the perspective and plans. The exterior is finished in rough cast cement plaster on metal lath, the color being the natural cement gray. The design is modified Spanish mission, with the parapet coping and red tile shingles. The interior of this house shows a very large living room of the kind so popular at the present time, very pleasant dining room with convenient kitchen and pantry. On the second floor there are two good sized bed rooms with an abundance of closet space. This house is estimated to cost $2,500, construction and finish, substantial and first class materials being use.

Deceit in Women.

Many girls of great beauty wonder why it is that they are not so popular as their less attractive friends. Perhaps it is because they are deceitful. I do not mean to infer that beauty and deceit travel together, for this is not necessarily the case.

If there is any vice that is loathsome and revolting to man, it is deceit. Man is a broad, honest creature, wholly free from those smaller motives and failings which, unfortunately, so often characterize the gentler sex.

"Know thyself." If you have been false in the past to yourself and friends, try being true blue for a few days; you will have more friends, and life will hold a deeper, more wholesome meaning for you. Remember, girls, a so-called "good fellow" will win out over a mistress of charm and beauty marred and polluted with deceit.

Statesmen in Their Cups.

The deep drinking which was a social custom in the time of the younger Pitt had its influence occasionally on the minister, whose habit it was to indulge liberally with his friends, when free from the occupations of state. An epigram of the time gave the following dialogue between Pitt and his colleague and boon companion, Henry Dundas, afterwards Viscount Melville:

Pitt—I cannot see the speaker, Hal; can you?

Dundas—Not see the speaker, Billy? I see two!—From an Anecdotal History of Parliament.

Will Study the Trades.

The Woman's Municipal league of Boston, of which Mrs. Richard C. Cabot is the chairman of education department, has begun a study of the vocation of women, the idea being to find out by systematic research what the opportunities for women are in each vocation

MOTHERS OF THEN AND NOW

Conditions Are Only Different, No Matter What Sentimental Writers May Assert.

The "popular" writer who bewails what he assumes to be the fact that the "old-fashioned" mother is no more is liable to defeat his own purpose if that be inculcating in children the highest possible regard for their parents. It is a danger which even the quantitative theory of literature or space rates cannot justify.

The mother of the past, of course, was different from the mother of the present, as different on the whole as the conditions of life then and now, but since her daughter is the mother of the present there must be some points of similarity. All the good in our mothers and grandmothers certainly could not have vanished. It will be paying scant tribute to those dear, good women who have laid down their precepts and examples and passed on to say so. And, of course, this writer does not mean to do that, yet he comes very near doing what he does not intend.

The fallacy of the whole sentimental notion that because things and people are not like they used to be they are not as good lies in the patent fact that they cannot be alike, and if they were it would simply be because of the present generation being so much inferior to the past that it was unable to do no more than stand still.

SKIN TORTURED BABIES SLEEP AND MOTHERS REST

A warm bath with Cuticura Soap, followed by a gentle anointing with Cuticura ointment, is generally sufficient to afford immediate comfort in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly eczemas, rashes, irritations and inflammations of infants and children, permit sleep for child and rest for parent, and point to permanent relief, when other methods fail. Peace falls upon distracted households when these pure, sweet and gentle emollients enter. No other treatment costs so little and does so much for skin sufferers, from infancy to age. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, for free 32-page book on the care and treatment of skin and scalp troubles.

A Lesson for Diplomats.

Elihu Root, at the luncheon in Providence preceding the dedication of the John Hay Memorial library at Brown university, said of John Hay:

"His diplomacy was gracious, and it was prudent as well. I remember, in an argument about a certain international complication, how very warmly and aptly he once insisted on prudence.

"It was the Christmas season, and he said that we might learn a lesson from a little girl who was naughty in the early part of December.

"'Dear me,' her mother said, 'If you're going to be naughty I'm very much afraid Santa Claus won't bring you any presents.'

"The little girl frowned.

"'Well,' she whispered, 'you needn't say it so near the chimney!'"

Cat's Tigerish Nature.

A shocking affair in which a domestic cat displayed tigerish qualities occurred at Ayr recently. A woman named Mrs. John Scott had occasion to go a message and left a child, six weeks old, in the house. On her return she was horrified to discover that the cat had eaten the small finger of the child's left hand, and had commenced on the next finger.

A Son's Compliment.

His incessant work, his avoidance of all rest and recreation and his rigorous self-denial made Joseph Pulitzer, in his days in harness, the despair of his family.

In this connection a pretty story is told about the famous journalist's son, Ralph. Mr. Pulitzer had refused to take a holiday, and Mrs. Pulitzer exclaimed:

"Did you ever know your father to do anything because it was pleasant?"

"Yes, once—when he married you," the young man gracefully replied.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Minneapolis.—John C. Simpson, of Iowa was elected secretary of the Minnesota state fair. His salary will be $5,000.

Washington.—Representative Volstead has recommended the appointment of T. T. Gonlund as postmaster at Tyler, Lincoln county, Minn.

Duluth. — John D. Lowe, former state boiler inspector of the Duluth district under Governor Johnson, and a former resident of Minneapolis died here.

Austin.—The town of Le Roy loses her fiber mill. The plant was closed down Sunday, Jan. 15. The business will probably be transacted from the big new St. Paul concern.

Barnesville.—Mistaking a bottle of sugar-coated pills for candy, the little 4-year-old son of Frank Clemens, a farmer living northeast of here, swallowed a number of the pills and died.

Faribault.—John Siegler's residence, in the township of Bridgewater, together with a greater part of the contents, was destroyed by fire during Mr. Siegler's absence. Loss, $2,000, with a small insurance.

Park Rapids. — The "White Store," owned by A. W. Rogers, was gutted by fire. The loss on buildings, owned by C. W. Benham, was $1,500, and the loss on stock and fixtures was $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

Kasota.—Tired of waiting for the officials to act, some of the private citizens have decided that the slot machines and other gambling devices must go and have served notice on the proprietors to this effect.

Duluth. —Flagrant violations of the Duluth ordinances covering hotels reported to the council by the building inspector. It is said that about seventy-five of the cheaper hotels and lodging houses are violating the building ordinances.

Mankato.—The Fanciers' and Breeders' Association of Minnesota held a poultry show here. Many fine birds were on exhibition from different parts of the state. Among the exhibitors from St. Paul are F. Nelson, L. C. Schweiger and J. Javas.

Chatfield. — John Lasey, for many years a resident of this place, was cremated in his home, which burned to the ground. Mr. Lasey had lived alone for the last three months, his family having moved to Montana. He was 60 years old and was employed as a section hand.

Mankato.—The postal star route between this city and St. Clair, 12 miles east of here bids fair to be vacant after July 1, as no one can be found who will bid on the job. Postoffice Inspector H. O. Smith of St. Paul has been endeavoring to get someone to bid, but has failed.

Elk River.—The annual meeting of the Glendorado Farmers' Mutual Insurance company was held here. Reports were read, officers elected and other business transacted. The association has about 1,400 members in Mille Lacs, Benton and Sherburne counties, and about 200 delegates were present.

Mora. — The annual meeting of the First National bank of Mora, Minn., was held and the following officers elected: George H. Newbert, president; J. C. Pope, vice-president; V. W. Peterson, cashier; directors, George H. Newbert, J. C. Pope, F. A. Cutler, D. R. Eaton and R. M. Pope.

New Ulm. — Otto Schell, the president and manager of the August Schell Brewing Company, died suddenly of acute throat trouble. He was 50 years of age and is survived by a wife and two children, Mrs. Cleveland Frederick, of Springfield, Minn., and Walter, of this city. Mr. Schell was president of the park board.

Minneapolis.—The following officers were selected by the newly organized state fair board: Secretary, John C. Simpson, now secretary of the Iowa State Fair; treasurer, E. L. Mattson, Minneapolis, succeeding M. L. Dunn, of Brainerd; assistant secretary, Miss Katherine Borgman, St. Paul, succeeding Miss Laura M. Cox, St. Paul.

St. Paul.—Governor Eberhart has announced the appointment of C. A. Ehlers of Minneapolis as military storekeeper. Mr. Ehlers is well known in Minneapolis business, political and national guard circles. His appointment carries with it a place on the governor's staff and a captain's commission with a salary of $1,800 a year. He succeeds Captain Hatcher.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Without indicating what would be its decision the general river and harbor board of the war department listened with interest while the advocates of the improvement of the Minnesota river presented the merits of the project. The speakers included Senator Clapp, Representatives Stevens, Volstead, Davis. Attorney O. C. Rash, and State Senator C. A. Johnson.

Litchfield.—President W. F. Schilling of Northfield, called to order in this city the convention of the State Dairymen's Association and, after a speech of welcome by A. F. Foster, delivered his annual address. Formal business took up the rest of the morning, but in the afternoon the members listened to interesting papers by Prof. W. J. Fraser, of Urbana, Ill.; R. A. Underwood, of Hutchinson, Minn., and Emil E. Elk, of Cokato, Minn. An excellent dairy cattle show is being held in conection with the convention.

HACKENSCHMIDT WINS.

Defeats Henry Ordeman in Two Straight Falls.

Minneapolis.—Henry Orderman, of Minneapolis, the American wrestling champion, was ground down to defeat in a finish match with Geo. Hackenschmidt at the Auditorium. The Russian Lion won the first fall in two hours 37½ minutes, and took the second fall in the rapid time of 2½ minutes.

GLOTFELTER HEADS FAIR

WATERVILLE MAN DEFEATS J. M. UNDERWOOD.

Insurgent Opposition Manifest in Campaign—One Ballot Decides.

Minneapolis.—J. M. Underwood went down to defeat in the annual election of the Minnesota State Agricultural society before the "insurgent" opposition which was manifested late in the campaign and whipped into shape within less than 24 hours by F. W. Murphy of Wheaton and E. J. Stilwell of Minneapolis.

The successful candidate was Chas. W. Glotfelter of Waterville.

But one ballot was required. The result was Glotfelter, 169, Underwood, 123¼. That ballot, however, was taken amid scenes of confusion reminiscent of the Underwood-Furlong ballot-battle a year ago, but to which a decidedly dramatic touch was added when death stalked through the court house assembly hall and struck down C. B. Clark, a life member of the association, who, scarcely ten minutes before, had made a ringing speech seconding the nomination of former President Underwood for a second term.

Cosgrove's Fate in the Balance.

Whether Mr. Underwood's defeat will carry with it the retirement of Secretary Cosgrove, who has served the society in one capacity or another for the last quarter of a century, is a question that has not been determined upon.

C. B. Clark had just spoken for Mr. Underwood when he retired to his seat among the delegates, the balloting began and, after he had prepared his ballot for the man for whom he had spoken, he leaned heavily toward H. P. Marks, of Shakopee. Mr. Marks, thinking he was desirous of speaking to him, asked what his wish was and receiving no answer cried out:

"Is there a doctor in the audience?"

Water was brought to the dying man and he was carried into the corridors, where he died while effort was being made to locate a physician.

President, C. W. Glotfelter of Waterville; First Vice-President, E. J. Stilwell of Minneapolis; Second Vice-President, Reuben Warner, Jr., of St. Paul.

Managers: George Atchinson of Mankato; W. W. Sivright of Hutchinson; *C. P. Craig of Duluth; F. W. Murphy of Wheaton; *Thomas H. Canfield of Lake Park. *Indicates hold-over members.

Minneapolis.—The following officers were selected by the newly organized state fair board: Secretary, John C. Simpson, now secretary of the Iowa State Fair; treasurer, E. L. Mattson, Minneapolis, succeeding M. L. Dunn, of Brainerd; assistant secretary, Miss Katherine Borgman, St. Paul, succeeding Miss Laura M. Cox, St. Paul.

STILLWATER HAS $20,000 FIRE.

Drug Store, Jeweler's Shop and Shoe Plant Damaged by Blaze.

Stillwater. — Fire in the large stone building owned by the Joseph Schlenck estate of St. Paul, did $20,000 damages. The blaze was ignited by the furnace. The St. Croix Drug company and John Caeser, jeweler, are the heavy losers, their property being almost totally destroyed, but covered by insurance.

Furnishings in the offices of Dr. B. J. Merrill and Dr. E. F. O'Donnell, dentists, also was damaged. The St. Croix Shoe company's plant was damaged by smoke. The building was damaged about $2,000.

TWO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH.

Parents Unable to Reach Them When Their Home Is Destroyed.

Fergus Falls.—Everett Stiles received a telephone message that the residence of his brother-in-law, E. L. Botts, near Frazee, was burned. Mr. Botts started a fire in the kitchen and went out of doors. His wife discovered the kitchen ablaze and ran to call him and on returning back found that the fire had gained such headway that it had cut off egress to rooms occupied by their children. Two boys, Estel, aged five, and Charles, a baby, were burned to death. One little girl escaped.

MINISTER-CARPENTER IS ILL.

Contracted Typhoid Fever While Building Church.

Sauk Center.—Rev. R. G. Green, of Akeley, who, it is said, contracted typhoid fever while acting as boss carpenter of the Methodist preachers who rebuilt the Spooner Methodist Episcopal church, is now convalescent, after several weeks of severe illness.

The church rebuilt at Spooner by these preachers will be dedicated soon, and is the only church building at present in that town.

FORCE LEADS BALL LEAGUE.

Sporting Writer Heads the Minny League.

Winona. — Frank E. Force, a Minneapolis sporting writer, was elected president, secretary and treasurer of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league for one year. There will be no change in the circuit and the eight cities which comprised the Minny fold in 1910 will again be under the banner of the Minny in 1911.

Indians To Be Given Patents.

Washington, D. C.—As the result of a conference participated in by Senator Clapp. Representative Steenerson, C. M. Johnson and the officials in the land office about 4,000 patents will be issued to mixed bloods in White Earth reservation. These are the patents which were held up in the interior department. There are some vexing questions relative to the Indian rule which has given the department considerable trouble. Some very sensational charges have been made against these patents.

Potato Growers to Advertise Red River Valley "Early Ohio" Spuds.

Moorhead.—At one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of farmers ever held in this county, potato growers and shippers organized in this city.

The meeting was held at the call of the Commercial club of this city for the purpose of organization, better to fight against the inroads potato men feel the "Irish Cobbler" will make on the local seed trade in the South.

Every year there are nearly 2,000 carloads of seed potatoes shipped from Clay county to the Southern markets, where they are sold for seed. Of late dealers in the Ohio valley have been advertising the "Irish Cobbler" as a potato superior to the Red river valley "Early Ohio" for use by Southern planters. This is not true, the local growers and dealers say, and they have taken this means of forming an organization whose aim it will partly be to counteract any advertising detrimental to the local product by other advertising. A committee of nine was selected yesterday with power to act in the matter of incorporating the society, establishing a trade mark making assessments for advertising and calling the meeting.

MINNESOTA CITIES GROWING.

Washington, D. C. — Minnesota's municipalities having a population in excess of 5,000 increased their aggregate only 39.1 per cent during the last 10 years. Statistics of the thirteenth census issued show these places contributed 66.3 per cent of the state's total increase of 324,314 during the decade.

Minneapolis and St. Paul, however, furnished almost 72 per cent of the total increase of the municipalities and over 46 per cent of the state's total growth.

In number the municipalities in Minnesota over 5,000 increased from 17 to 23, a gain of six. Chisholm and Virginia showed the greatest growth of the places which entered this class. Of the larger cities, Minneapolis had the greatest percentage of increase, it being 48.7 per cent. Duluth grew 48.1 per cent and St. Paul 31.7 per cent.

Three cities decreased in population during the 10 years: Stillwater lost 2,120; Winona, 1,131, and Mankato 234.

The population of St. Cloud, Minn., 1910, 10,600; 1900, 8,633.

FARM SOCIETIES ELECT HEADS

Three Associations in Session Last Week at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis.—The Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association, at its annual meeting at the courthouse re-elected officers as follows: President, C. P. Craig of Duluth; first vice-president, D. S. Hall, Buffalo Lake; second vice president, C. B. Crandall, Randolph; secretary, Professor Andrew Boss, St. Anthony Park; treasurer, C. W. Glotfelter, Waterville.

While the live stock men were in session the wool growers and the field crop breeders also were meeting. The latter organization had a banquet and their annual election in the Masonic Temple. The officers were re-elected as folows:

President, C. W. Glotfelter of Waterville; treasurer, F. H. Gibbs of Merriam Park; secretary, Professor C. P. Bull of St. Paul.

A. C. Cooper of St. Cloud was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive committee caused by the resignation of Thomas Hoburn, who has removed from the state, and H. S. Libby was also elected a member of the committee. The vice presidents, one from each congressional district, will be appointed by the executive committee.

MANKATO DAIRIES INSPECTED

Inspection Is Conducted Under Instruction of Mayor Meyer.

Mankato.—Thomas Manley, a state dairy inspector, accompanied by Mayor Meyer, has spent two days inspecting the dairies in Mankato and vicinity, the milk cans and places for keeping milk at the various places supplying milk to the people of the city. His visit was made at the request of Mayor Meyer.

The places in the country were as a rule found to be more sanitary than those in the city owing to the greater room and facilities. The average condition of these places was found to be fairly good.

Mr. Manley went to Madison Lake today to look after matters there and will finish his work here on his return.

Hospital Gets $30,000.

Eau Claire.—The board of directors of the Luther hospital received a check for $30,000, the gift of the late Sigvald A. Quale, made by him shortly before his death. The check was received from Mr. Quale's mother, who was administrator.

CHILDREN DIE IN HOUSE FIRE.

Knife River Man's Home Destroyed By Oil Stove Explosion.

Duluth. — The dwelling of Peter Buggee of Knife River, 18 miles from Duluth on the north shore of Lake Superior, was destroyed by fire and his three daughters, aged 1, 4 and 6 years, were burned to death. The children were locked in the house by their mother while she went to a neighbors to get some milk. The kitchen gasoline stove exploded.

Farmer Frozen In Field.

St. Cloud. — Several neighbors of Zacharias Zura, 50, a bachelor, living on a farm near Holdingford, this county, found his frozen body lying in a field. The condition of the body indicated he had been dead at least two two days.

	1910.	1900.
St. Cloud	10,660	8,663
Stillwater	10,198	12,318

KING TO WEAR CULLINAN DIAMONDS

THE IMPERIAL CROWN

KING GEORGE'S SCEPTER.

LONDON.—A wonderful transformation has been wrought in the crown jewels and regalia which will be used at the coronation in Westminster Abbey next June, and which have now been restored to the Wakefield Chamber in the Tower of London. The great Cullinan diamonds, the larger of which, out of compliment to United South Africa, King George has ordered to be renamed the Star of Africa, have a prominent place in the regalia.

The Star, which weighs 516½ carats, has been set in the scepter near the head. The smaller Cullinan stone, whose weight is 309 3-16 carats, is placed in the front of the crown which has been altered and enlarged and to the gems in which have been added two new sapphires, 56 brilliants and 52 rose diamonds. Both the Cullinan diamonds can be removed from the crown and scepter when those emblems of power are not in use, and can then be worn by the queen as a pendant.

QUELLED A MUTINY

Miniature White Elephants Subdued Turbulent Cingalese.

Little Effigies Bought in Calcutta as Souvenirs for "Kiddies" at Home Pacify Savage Little Natives on Ship.

New York.—Two miniature white elephants, purchased in Calcutta for a couple of shillings by William Blakeman, a ship's carpenter on board the British freight steamship Parisiana raised that mariner to an important place on board the vessel on the voyage from the Indian port to New York.

"Some of the boys on the ship and I were walking around Calcutta one hot afternoon in July," he said, "and the walk took us through a street where there are a lot of curio dealers. In one of the little stores I saw two elephants, carved out of the wood of a cocoanut tree, and I fancied that those two elephants, resembling the white elephants of Siam, would be about as handy a brace of souvenirs for my kiddies at home as anything that I could get in Calcutta. With the two elephants, one under each arm, we went into the street again and on our way to the steamer.

"We noticed that every time we met a little brown Cingalese on the street he would prostrate before us, or alongside of us and salaam for all he was worth. We laughed a bit about it, but really thought little about the salaaming, although it did seem a bit queer all the way to the wharf. On the wharf the whole blooming lot of natives fell down as we passed through on the way to the Parisiana.

"It was about a month or so later, when we were going through the Indian ocean toward the Red Sea that some trouble broke out among the Cingalese on board because one of our boys had accidentally jostled a bit of mutton that hung forward on deck for the native mess. Of course we all know that it is a serious thing for European hands to touch the food of the Mohammedan and we knew that it would be hard to pacify the Cingalese on board after their mutton had been spoiled for them through contact with the hands of unbelievers.

"There was a great hullabaloo on the forward deck just as I came out of the forepeak, and the whole pack of brown fellows set upon me as the nearest and handiest man on which to wreak their vengeance. In times like these native chaps are not responsible, practically running amuck, and they swung bars and clubs right and left. I ducked back into the forepeak, intending to get my belongings and make a break for amidships, where I would have the protection of the officers, who were armed.

"When I came out again, carrying my two elephants under my arms, the Cingalese made for me again. Then, as they saw the little white elephants they suddenly dropped their bars and clubs and every man of them dropped flat on deck and salaamed as if their lives depended on it. I was lucky enough to remember the salaaming in Calcutta and I flashed the elephants which I had later found out had caused the respect of the city natives during our walk through Calcutta. The native sailors squirmed around and around on their stomachs to make sure that they would face me and the elephants as they salaamed and the rebellion on board the Parisiana was successfully put down without bloodshed."

The two little white elephants remained in a conspicuous place in the main saloon on the freighter in case of further emergency, but their services were not again required on the voyage.

FIND NEW USE FOR ALCOHOL

Prof. Hill of London Invents Apparatus for Use in Treatment of Pneumonia Cases.

London.—Prof. Leonard Erskine Hill of the London hospital has invented an apparatus for use in the treatment of pneumonia which is expected to prove of great service.

"For some time," says Prof. Hill, "it has been recognized that the best way to supply alcoholic stimulant to the laboring heart in pneumonia is by way of the lungs in the form of vapor. My apparatus arranges for a mixed vapor of oxygen, water and alcohol, to be carried directly to the lungs, whence it reaches the heart from the pulmonary veins. Thence the stimulant is carried directly to the heart muscle itself by the coronary arteries."

Because there is not sufficient undiseased lung tissue left to breathe with, and because the heart thereby fails, the judicious administration of heart stimulants so as to tide this organ over until the lung symptoms subside is the chief point in the treatment.

By using Prof. Hill's apparatus the heart can be reached by a stimulant much more accurately and quickly than if the alcohol were given in the ordinary way.

Stokers Lead in Suicides.

London.—Suicides of stoke hold hands are about five times more numerous than those of engine room hands and three times more than among other seamen, according to a board of trade report. One British seaman in every 1,500 loses his life from drink, but only one Lascar in every 21,000.

MAN'S MEMORY IS RESTORED

With Restoration Power of Speech Also Returns and Scattered Family Reunited.

Denver, Col.—It is four years since the motherless boys of Jeremiah Warwick were placed in an institution in this city. For a time Warwick visited his sons, aged at that time eight and five years, respectively, and then his visits ceased. There was no provision for the boys and no relatives could be found. The children were finally placed in a home for dependent children.

A few days ago Jeremiah Warwick, a mental wreck, whose memory was entirely gone, was operated on at a hospital here and a tumor removed from his brain. Memory and the power of speech, which he had also lost, came back to him gradually, and the other day he inquired for his boys, regarding whom his mind had been a blank for more than three years.

His Mules Are Too Fat.

New York.—"Hey, Charlie," cried Chief of Police Higgins of Glen Ridge, N. J., to Charles Miller of Newark, as the latter drove through Glen Ridge, "your mules are too fat, and you'll have to give them an obesity cure. Otherwise it's a cell for you." Chief Higgins then showed Miller a scented missive, on pink paper, written by a woman apparently, in which complaint was made that Miller's mules were too fat and that it was cruel to drive them in that condition. The letter was signed "A Lover of Animals."

SLEEPING WITH CLOTHES ON

Physician Declares Custom of Leaving Warm Raiment for Cold Sheets Injurious.

London.—Is it necessary to undress in order to go to bed?

Writing under the pen name of "Lawrence Beesley," a physician, who in his professional capacity of ship's doctor and also on pleasure journeys has traveled over a considerable part of the inhabited globe, is of opinion it is not.

He says:

"How often does one hear the remark, 'How tired I am of dressing and undressing, of getting up and going to bed!'

"I have made the same remark myself, and of late have simplified the minor details of my daily routine considerably.

"Why should we all undress and take off all our clothes every night, with the consequent redressing in the morning? Why?

"I have lived on board ship and in the tropics, in Canada, and in the desert of Arabia, and I say this, that I have been as healthy and as fit and infinitely more satisfied with life under conditions which practically compelled me to sleep in my clothes—minus boots, coat and collar.

"In so-called civilization, where I live now, I have to remove every 'rag' at night, put on cold pajamas and get into colder sheets, and shiver (during the cold weather) for ten minutets or more, with the knowledge that in the morning I have to dress once again and am supposed to have a bath.

"I cannot for the life of me see why two hot evening baths per week should not be sufficient for anybody—and personally I have quite given up undressing at night, with the exception, as I said before, of boots, collar and coat.

"It is well known that men who 'rough it,' who sleep in their clothes, and who have not the eternal worry of dressing and undressing, of cold baths, cold sheets, starched collars and all the paraphernalia of the 'town man,' are infinitely happier, freer, healthier and stronger than their city brethren.

"Try it. Sleep in your underclothes—flannel shirt and socks; have two hot baths a week and save hours per annum and oceans of bad language.

"I am speaking as a medical man of twenty years' experience.

"I believe many chills are caught by the sudden change from thick, warm flannel clothes to thin pajamas and ice cold sheets, which is the general custom in this country.

"I am further of the opinion that it is not a benefit to the individual to open the pores of the skin by constant bathing or to close them suddenly by rapid changes of surface temperature in a climate such as ours—particularly such as it has been lately."

Finds Nugget In Craw.

Beaver Falls, Pa.—While Mrs. Fred S. Brown, wife of the secretary of Conway borough, was cleaning a chicken here the other day, she found a gold nugget in its craw. Its value is estimated at ten dollars. Many persons went to the lot where the chicken was reared and excitement runs as high as if oil had been found.

BIG FAMILY ON $1.35 A DAY

Pittsburg.—A tale of comfort and thrift contrary to the usual ones of distress and woe was unfolded in the juvenile court the other day by Miss Nannie Oppenheimer, a probation officer, to the astonishment of the court and spectators. A family of twelve is supported on an income of $1.35 a day, but how it was done has not yet been disclosed. Miss Oppenheimer unfolded the tale when she requested Judge Cohen to allow Antonio Elf, aged 10, to go home. He was arrested for being in the streets late at night.

"He has a splendid home, your Honor," said Miss Oppenheimer. "His mother, here," nodding toward the woman who stood by the lad's side, "is a splendid housekeeper, and they have ten bright children, of whom the oldest is a girl aged 13. All of school age attend school regularly, and there is no cause for complaint. Tony's arrest was accidental, and I'm sure the offense will not be repeated."

"You have investigated the home conditions thoroughly?" asked Judge Cohen.

"Yes, and it's one of the best homes I ever have entered."

"What work does the father do?"

"He's a laborer."

"How much does he earn?"

"One dollar and thirty-five cents a day."

A murmur of surprise was heard in the courtroom, and without further ado the boy was allowed to go home with his mother.

"I don't know how they do it," said Miss Oppenheimer later, "but they are very nice people and better home conditions could not be asked for. Everything is neat and orderly and there is no lack of wholesome food for the entire family. That man is a credit to any community."

Find Two Rare Coins.

Carlisle, Pa.—Two rare United States silver dollars of the 1804 issue have turned up here. Although more than 19,000 of the coins were minted, nearly all were sent to the Mediterranean to pay off the American sailors in those waters. The ship was lost at sea. As far as coin experts know, there are only four more in existence. The last one sold brought more than $3,000.

"Made in America" Now.

Rome.—America's industrial invasion of Italy is on the increase, and the craze for American goods has alarmed the German exporters who, up to date, have had almost no competitors in the Italian market. The old signs "made in Germany" are disappearing, and in their stead the "made in America" appears now in nearly every shop window.

LORIMER CASE, PRO AND CON

BURROWS DEFENDS AND BORAH CONDEMNS.

More Money Wanted to Continue Work of Raising the Maine.

Washington, Jan. 19.—After almost a week's cessation, the senate resumed consideration of the case of Senator Lorimer. There were two speeches, one by Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, in support of the Illinois senator, and the other by Senator Borah, of Idaho, in opposition.

Mr. Burrows strongly commended the course of Mr. Lorimer in demanding an investigation. Mr. Borah declared that corruption had characterized the proceedings ever since Lorimer had decided to become a candidate for the senate.

The speeches resembled each other in the fact that both denounced the conduct of Representative White, whose statement in a Chicago newspaper led to the investigation; but, while Senator Borah contended for the probable truthfulness of his revelations as indicated by supporting circumstances, the Michigan senator found nothing to sustain him or give credence to his exposition.

The Burrows speech is the first that has been made in Lorimer's behalf.

The house of representatives adopted an amendment to the Moon bill, for the codifying of the laws relating to the judiciary, which will have the effect of stopping the practice of corporations doing an interstate business from taking practically all suits against them out of the hands of state courts and placing them in the federal courts.

The amendment in full is as follows: "Provided further, that no suit against a corporation or joint stock company brought in a state court of the state IN WHICH THE PLAINTIFF RESIDES or in which the cause of action arises, or in which the defendant has its place of business, or carries on its business, shall be removed to any United States court on the ground of diverse citizenship."

The house also adopted an amendment offered by Representative Thomas, of Kentucky, fixing $5,000 instead of $2,000 as the minimum value that shall be involved in civil suits before the United States courts shall have original jurisdiction. This action was taken, it was stated, to relieve the federal courts from such litigation which might just as well be carried on in the state courts.

The value in suits to be removed from state courts to federal courts also was raised from $2,000 to $5,000.

Requesting that congress provide additional funds for continuing the work of raising the ill-fated battleship Maine in Havana harbor, Secretary of War Dickinson has written a letter to Senator Hale, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, calling attention to the fact that the appropriation of $300,000, made at the last session of congress, will be exhausted in about six weeks.

The secretary suggests that the task be prosecuted from now on until the convening of congress next December under the indefinite appropriation act of March 3, 1899, which authorizes the removal of wrecks which form obstructions to navigation.

The secretary invites congress to indicate what shall be done with the wreck when raised. The mainmast, it already has been decided, shall be placed in the Arlington National cemetery.

Temporary Jurymen Chosen.

"Papa," said five-year-old Johnny, "please give me a dime to buy a toy monkey."

"You don't need a toy monkey," answered his father. "You are a monkey yourself."

BRIBERY FAILED IN SHIP SUBSIDY

$100,000 OFFERED FOR ARTICLE

Also Avers Spanish Government Tried the Same Tactics.—Indian Appropriation Bill Passed.

Washington, Jan. 26. — Charges of several attempts to buy the editorial support of the New York Journal of Commerce in favor of ship subsidy legislation, were made to the house ship subsidy investigating committee by Alfred W. Dodsworth, business manager of that paper.

Earlier in the day, Paul G. Fournier, representing the Uranium Steamship line, told how the railroads, notably the Central Passenger association at Chicago; had refused to sell tickets over the independent lines without sanction of the London conference

As the result of the evidence, Mr. Dodsworth's brother, John W. Dodsworth, editor of the Journal of Commerce, will be recalled to Washington to testify further. The federal authorities may take note of evidence as to railroads discriminating against the independent steamship lines.

Alfred W. Dodsworth testified that about six years ago an unknown man came into his office and offered to pay the Journal of Commerce $100,000 for the insertion of an article in one issue supporting ship subsidy legislation. This man refused to disclose his identity unless his proposition was accepted. His proposition was to give a certified check for $10,000 to bind the agreement and to pay the balance of $90,000 upon publication of the article.

Mr. Dodsworth said that about thirty years ago his father was sitting in his office of the same publication and John Roach, the ship builder, who was active for a ship subsidy bill, entered the office, laid down a blank check and asked the elder Dodsworth to fill it out and stop writing against ship subsidy.

Another man, about two years ago, Dodsworth said, tried to buy the support of the paper for $40,000, and during the Spanish-American war the Spanish government tried to buy the paper's influence.

Representative Hawley of Oregon asked how much money was proposed in the alleged Spanish offer and the witness said he did not know. His father was then managing editor.

Mr. Dodsworth said he could not undertake to name the persons who made the $100,000 offer, but he believed it came from ship subsidy interests, and when pressed mentioned the Cramps and the Roaches as coming under that head.

Army Examining Board.

Announcement was made at the war department of the appointment of a board to conduct examinations of applicants for appointment as first lieutenant in the medical reserve corps. The board to sit at Fort Snelling consists of Major Paul C. Hutton, First Lieutenant Albert H. Bowen, First Lieutenant Harry B. Etter; at Fort Meade, S. D., Major Benjamin J. Edger, Capt. Omar W. Pinkston.

The Indian appropriation bill was passed. During its discussion former Senator Marion Butler of North Carolina was denounced by Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas for connection with a claim of $1,500,000 for attorney's fees.

MIDDLE WEST IS STORM BOUND.

Fog and Sleet Cause Trouble Over Wide Area.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Sleet and a heavy fog, which in many places turned to rain, caused trouble for railroads, telegraph and telephone companies in the lake region and the middle west. The storm extended as far north as Minneapolis, west to Lincoln, Neb., and Kansas City, Mo., south to St. Louis and east to Indianapolis. The sleet storm is expected to turn to rain in the lake region.

MISS DE JANON IN LIMELIGHT

LICENSE ISSUED FOR HER MARRIAGE IN LOS ANGELES.

But No Minister or Official Can be Found Who Performed Ceremony.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26.—A well-dressed, handsome young man, who gave his name as Stephen Glaser, his residence as New York and his age as 24, secured a license to marry Roberta Buist de Janon, of Philadelphia, aged 18. The young man seemed in a tremendous hurry and declined to answer a casual question asked by Chief Clerk Watson of the marriage license office.

Not until the marriage licenses were published yesterday did it become known that the bride-to-be was the young girl who eloped last year from Philadelphia to Chicago with Frederick Cohen, a waiter old enough to be her grandfather. As soon as Glaser received the necessary paper he fled and dropped completely from sight. Neither he nor the girl are registered at any of the Los Angeles hotels, and no one authorized to perform the marriage ceremony can be found who has tied the knot. Miss De Janon has friends here, but, so far as can be learned, none of them has seen her since she left here last month on receipt of the news of the death of her millionaire uncle, Buist, the seed man, in Philadelphia.

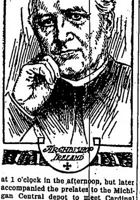
Miss De Janon was here for several months last summer, following her release from a Philadelphia hospital, where illness brought on by her sensational flight with Cohen had compelled her to go. The identity of Glaser is unknown here. He is a well-built, handsome young man of excellent taste in dress and has the virtue of not talking too much. He was alone when he asked for the license.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND IS SICK.

Has to Go to Bed on Arriving in Ann Arbor—Condition Not Serious.

Ann Arbor, Jan. 26.—Archbishop John Ireland of St. Paul was taken ill shortly after his arrival in Ann Arbor to participate in the consecration of Father Edward D. Kelley, pastor of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, as auxiliary to the bishop of Detroit.

The archbishop complained of fatigue when he arrived at Ann Arbor at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, but later accompanied the prelates to the Michigan Central depot to meet Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop Foley of Detroit. Upon his return to the rectory Archbishop Ireland grew worse and went to bed.



It was stated at the rectory that the illness is not serious.

WANT THE LAND OFFICE.

South Dakota Boosters Appear At Washington.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Commercial bodies in the towns of Isabel, Mobridge, Timberlake and McIntosh, S. D., appeared before Commissioner Dennett of the general land office to urge their respective towns for the location of the land office, which shortly will be transferred from Aberdeen. Announcement of a selection is expected to be made in about a week.

DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS SHOT

HIS ASSAILANT COMMITS SUICIDE

Police Believe Dead Man to be Fitzhugh Goldsborough, a Violin Teacher—Six Shots Take Effect.

New York, Jan. 24.—David Graham Phillips, the author, was shot while on his way from his home to the Princeton club, by a man believed to be Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, a violin teacher. Mr. Phillips was taken to Bellevue hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious but not critical. His assailant committed suicide by shooting himself in the head.

The shooting occurred in front of the club. Six shots were fired at Phillips by his assailant, who then used the last bullet in his revolver to kill himself. Newton James and Frank Davis, graduates of Princeton in the class of 1907, were just coming out of the club when the shooting took place.

Taken to Bellevue.

Davis and James carried the wounded man into the clubhouse. There was no serious attempt to question him. Later he was taken to the Bellevue hospital, where he is resting comfortably, although his condition is serious.

A great crowd assembled on Twenty-first street in the vicinity of the shooting, where the body of the assassin remained where it fell until the cornorer's office had taken action. From an envelop discovered in the pocket of the man the police believe him to be Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, a violin teacher, 35 years of age. A school of socialism is a tenant of this building, and the secretary of the school, Algeruch Lee, told the police that Goldsborough had lived at that address since November, and that, although he knew little about him, he believed that he came here from Washington.

At the hospital an examination developed that all six shots had taken effect in Phillips' body, one just above the heart, three through the stomach and two in the leg. Physicians stated at 4 p. m. that there was no indication of an immediate crisis in Phillips' condition. The surgeons were then in consultation about him.

Club Owns Stanford White House.

The Princeton club, in front of which Phillips was shot, occupies the old Stanford White house at the corner of Lexington avenue, which was formerly owned by the architect who was murdered by Harry K. Thaw on the roof of Madison Square Garden. The Princeton club bought the building about two years ago.

David Graham Phillips has been one of the best known contributors to contemporaneous magazines. He is a native of Indiana, having been born at Madison, in that state, in 1867, the son of David G. Phillips and Margaret Lee Phillips. He took his Bachelor of Arts degree at Princeton university in 1887.

He is unmarried and has been a resident of New York city. He is listed as a member of the Princeton, Manhattan and National Arts club.

Among his published books, which have had a wide vogue in America and abroad, are "The Great God Success," "Her Serene Highness," "A Woman Ventures," "Golden Fleece," "A Master Rogue," "The Cost," "The Plum Tree," "The Social Secretary," "The Deluge," "The Reign of Guilt," "The Fortune Hunter," "The Second Generation," "Light-Fingered Gentry," "Old Wives for New," "The Fashionable Adventures of Joshua Craig" and "The Hungry Heart."

Motive of His Assailant Is Still Shrouded in Deepest Mystery.

New York, Jan. 25.—David Graham Phillips died in Bellevue hospital a victim of Fitzhugh Coyle Goldborough, an eccentric and emotional musician, who shot the novelist down for a fancied grudge, then killed himself. Phillips fought valiantly to live, but six bullet wounds were too much even for his tenacity. He was conscious up to within a quarter of an hour of his death.

Miss Francis Goldsborough arrived from Washington, and with her cousin, John Farr, took charge of her brother's body, in an undertaking establishment. The body was sent to Washington at midnight. Miss Goldsborough declined to discuss the tragedy, but said that her family would make public a statement within the next few days.

The assailant's real motive is as much a mystery as ever, although the theory generally accepted here is that he pictured himself and family as depicted unfavorably in one of the author's novels.

About the time of Phillip's death the district attorney's office gave out exerpts from Goldsborough's diary, found on the sidewalk near his rooms. The statements were rambling, with numerous allusions to Phillip's writings.

ROOSEVELT ON WESTERN TOUR

WILL START MARCH 8 AND HAS 15 ENGAGEMENTS.

Tenor of His Speeches Not Yet Known—Several Visits Are Scheduled.

New York, Jan. 26. — Theodore Roosevelt's next tour will begin here March 8 and will sweep around the boundaries of the country, through the South Atlantic and Gulf states, the new Southwest, up the Pacific coast to Idaho and Montana and thence direct home. Colonel Roosevelt has accepted 15 engagements to speak and probably will make more. The subject matter of his speeches has not been made public.

March 22—San Francisco; remains about ten days and will deliver the Earl lectures, six in number, before the University of California.

Leaving San Francisco, Colonel Roosevelt probably will visit friends in Nevada for an indeterminate period, after which he will visit Portland, Ore., Seattle, and Spokane. No speeches there are yet announced, nor is the length of his stay in these cities known. At the conclusion of his visit he probably will go to some point in northern Idaho, not named, thence to Sand Point, Mont., and thence home.

MRS. SCHENK IN JURY'S HANDS.

Woman Collapses Completely During Final Scenes of Trial.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 26.—After wrestling more than four hours with the evidence in the case of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, charged with poisoning her husband, John O. Schenk, the jury was unable to reach an agreement and at 10 o'clock Judge Jordon ordered the members sent to their hotel, to be locked up for the night. Predictions of disagreement are general, though some believe a verdict will be reached.

After the jury had been excused for the night, a large crowd packed the street and sidewalks near the courthouse. A squad of police and all the available deputy sheriffs had to be called upon to clear the streets before the jury was taken out of the courthouse.

Hundreds led the way of the jurors to their hotel, while many more flanked the line of deputies at either side of the jurors. Many women were in the crowd.

Just five minutes after Prosecutor Handlan finished his argument and as the jury was retiring, Mrs. Schenk collapsed and was assisted from the courtroom between her attorney, J. J. P. O'Brien, and Deputy Sheriff Thomas Kelley. Her face was swollen and distorted almost beyond recognition by a day of constant sobbing.

Defendant Collapses.

Mrs. Schenk gave way before the rain of bitter invective from Prosecutor Handlan. The accused woman fell heavily forward on the table early in his address. Shaken by her sobs, she presented a pitiable spectable:

Mr. Handlan asked the jury to show no mercy to a woman who deliberately had violated her marriage vows and had then plotted to kill by poison the husband who had lavished upon her automobiles, costly clothing and jewels.

"Her heart is flint," he shouted. "Incapable of sympathy, or love or affection, gentlemen, you know this woman is guilty as hell itself, and there is but one place for her.

"One of the most horrible things it has ever been my lot to come in contact with was when this woman offered another $1,000 to do her vile work for her—when coldly, calmly, fiendishly she asked the woman whom she would have made a tool to place the poisoned medicine beside her husband's bedside that he might reach out in the dim light of the sick room in the night and swallow it himself."

Death for Burglary.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 26. — The lower branch of the legislature passed a bill making burglary of a residence at night a capital offense.

DAILY MARKET REPORT.

Twin City Markets.

Minneapolis, Jan. 26.—Wheat, May, $1.04⅞; July, $1.05⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.05⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.03⅞; No. 1 durum, 90c; No. 3 corn, 44c; No. 3 white oats, 32c; barley, 90c; No. 2 rye, 80c; No. 1 flax, $2.67.

Duluth, Jan. 26. — Wheat, May, $1.06⅝; July, $1.07⅜; No. 1 northern, $1.06¼.

South St. Paul, Jan. 26.—Cattle—Steers, $4.00@4.65; cows, $3.65@4.00; calves, $3.75@7.75; hogs, $7.50@7.75; sheep, yearlings, $2.00@3.50.

Chicago Live Stock.

Sheep—Market steady; native, $2.50@4.40; western, $2.70@4.85; yearlings, $4.50@5.60; lambs, native, $4.25@6.25.

CAUSE OF PHILLIPS ASSASSINATION

COURTLY IDEAS ABOUT WOMAN MAY HAVE TRANSFORMED MAN INTO MURDERER.

WRONGED CHARACTERS IN NOVEL

Relatives of Phillips' Slayer Explain Act—Say "Mistreatment" of Fair Characters in Fiction Unbalanced Mind.

New York, Jan. 26.—David Graham Phillips' funeral will be a public one. So many friends and admirers of his works have been stirred by his assassination that the plans for a private funeral were abandoned. The services will be held Friday afternoon at St. George's Episcopal church, near the scene of the attack against Phillips by Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, which resulted in the author's death. Archdeacon Nelson, assistant to Bishop Greer of the New York diocese, will officiate.

The pallbearers will be United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, a former roommate of Phillips at De Pauw university, who came on from Washington to take charge of the funeral; Robert W. Chambers, Joseph H. Sears, George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Arthur W. Little, editor of Pearson's Magazine; Samuel G. Blythe, John O'Hara Cosgrave and Otto Carmichael.

After the funeral the body will be removed to a receiving vault in the marble cemetery, this city, and will remain there until taken to Phillips' former home in Indiana.

The body of Fitzhugh Coyle Goldsborough, the poet-musician who killed David Graham Phillips, was borne to the railway station in Jersey City as the novelist was breathing his last. The assassin's body was buried in Washington.

What is regarded as an explanation for his crime is found in extracts from his dairy made public by the district attorney and a statement made by Goldsborough's [illegible] Far, of this city.

"Fitzhugh was most courtly in his ideas about women, and we are of the opinion he became incensed with Mr. Phillips because of his treatment of some of his women and girl characters in his books. We think he brooded over this until he began to look upon Mr. Phillips as an enemy, and decided to kill him. We can explain his mad action in no other way."

As the final moment approached, the author realized death was at hand.

"I could fight two wounds but not six. I fear that the odds are too great against me," were his last words, whispered to Dr. Eugene Fuller.

About the time of Phillips' death the district attorney's office gave out excerpts from Goldborough's diary, found on the sidewalk near his rooms. The statements were rambling, with numerous illusions to Phillips' writings.

Sequel to the Phillips Shooting.

Pittsburg, Jan. 26.—As a sequel to the killing of David Graham Phillips, Miss Julia Kovar, supposed fiancee of Ritzhugh C. Goldsborough, the former member of the disbanded Pittsburg orchestra, who shot the novelist, has disappeared from her home. She is 23 years old.

SONS OF HERMAN MEET.

St. Cloud Selected for Next Convention.

Duluth, Jan. 26.—The Grand Lodge of the Sons of Herman of Minnesota, selected St. Cloud for the next annual meeting. Officers elected: President, Louis F. Schultz, St. Paul; vice president, Anker Carl, Minneapolis; secretary, C. Harpke, St. Paul; treasurer, Frank Noethen, Minneapolis; trustee, E. Frey, St. Paul; directors, L. Lellman, Minneapolis, and F. Zeigler, Stillwater.

Bandits Raid Street Car.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26.—Yelling like Indian warriors and firing promiscuously from pistols in both hands, two masked bandits boarded an inbound beach suburban car on the outskirts of Santa Monica. After robbing 22 passengers and seriously wounding one of them, the bandits fled before a single shot. This shot wounded one of the robbers. He was captured when he attempted to board a car to come into the city for medical treatment. His wounded cheek betrayed him.

Winds Prevent Flight to Cuba.

Woman Suffrage Bill Defeated.

Sacramento, Jan. 26.—A bill submitting the question of woman suffrage to a vote of the women in the state was defeated in the senate. It was strongly opposed by representatives of the equal suffrage movement.

250 Girl Workers in Panic.

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—In an explosion of an ammonia tank in the Locust laundry here one woman was killed, fifteen to twenty girls were slightly injured and 250 other employees were thrown in a panic.

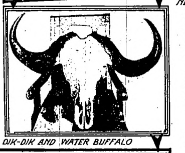
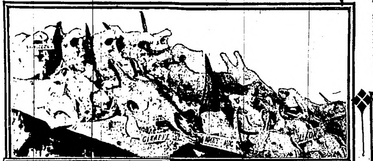
NEW NATIONAL MUSEUM

IT HAS been told before this how the African treasures of the National Museum in Washington brought out of the dark continent by Theodore Roosevelt, Edmond Heller, Dr. Edgar A. Mearns and J. Alden Loring, are stored away in great chests and on shelves in byrooms of the museum building, and how the specimens of big game will not be mounted for general inspection until many months have passed. The treasures are all in the big building, however, and if one has interest and patience one of the scientists will draw them forth from their recesses and give him a chance to study and to admire.

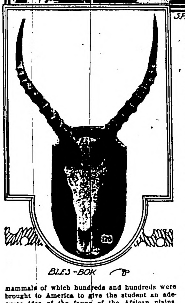
It was my good luck not long ago to be invited by Theodore Roosevelt to go through the National Museum with him on a tour of examination of the pelts of the big mammals, and the skins of the many colored birds and of the small mammals of which hundreds and hundreds were brought to America to give the student an adequate idea of the fauna of the African plains, mountains, valley and forests.



DIK-DIK AND WATER BUFFALO



SPECIMENS FROM THE ROOSEVELT HUNT



BLES-BOK

It was Colonel Roosevelt's first glimpse of the African quarry since he saw it living in its native wilds. It was his desire to know how perfectly the specimens had been prepared and what deterioration, if any, the climatic conditions before shipment and after arrival had caused.

Accompanying Mr. Roosevelt in his trip through the museum were Dr. C. Hart Merriam, now the head of the Harriman Zoological Foundation and former chief of the United States Biological Survey; Mr. Edmund Heller, who accompanied Mr. Roosevelt to Africa and who prepared most of the big game specimens for shipment; Edgar A. Mearns, the ornithologist, who accompanied the expedition and collected most of the birds; Louis Agassiz Fuertes, the mammal and bird painter; John Snure, and myself. We had the huge rooms in which the Roosevelt collections are stored all to ourselves. Colonel Roosevelt spoke freely about his trip and told many anecdotes in connection therewith which do not appear in his book and which he did not tell in his lecture before the National Geographic Society.

It is hard to describe adequately the enthusiasm of the Oyster Bay hunter over the natural history treasures which his expedition had secured for the National Museum and which, much to the Colonel's delight, had arrived in splendid condition, due largely to the hard, driving, painstaking work of Edmond Heller and J. Alden Loring and Dr. Mearns in preparing the specimens under the heat of an African sun and with only natives to help them in their delicate and difficult task.

The first visit of the colonel was paid to the part of the museum where the elephant, the rhinoceros and the hippopotamus hides in their crude form are stowed away awaiting the day when they will be mounted and made to appear in natural form in the great exhibition hall. The colonel stopped before the skin of one gigantic elephant. The hide had been placed on a huge table which it covered completely while the "overflow" went to the floor and stretched out for some distance in every direction. "This," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is an elephant which I had the hardest kind of work to shoot. I labored for hours under the blistering sun to get within certain killing range, for the specimen was a fine one and I wanted to be sure that I could add it to the museum's collection. Finally I got a shot and down went the monster. I turned with a shout of rejoicing to Heller, who was near me. Heller went over and examined the elephant and then turned to me with a grave face and said, 'Colonel this elephant died of apoplexy. You missed him a mile.' Heller keeps on telling that story and I am willing, for he gets lots of fun out of it. All I have to say is if the elephant dropped dead of apoplexy at the instant I fired it was the most considerate elephant that ever roamed Africa."

In the African fields there are thirty or forty species of antelopes, one, the giant eland, is bigger than an ox, and it inhabits a fever stricken territory in which only a few hunters and those of the hardiest kind will venture. The colonel is exceedingly proud of the giant elands which he secured and which are now in possession of the museum and in perfect condition for eventual mounting for show purposes.

One of the antelopes which the expedition secured has a remarkable hide. Colonel Roosevelt spent a long time examining and admiring this specimen. The skin is iridescent and as you turn it at different angles to the light it sent forth colors of blue, green, red and purple. It has a watered silk effect, but perhaps no watered silk that woman ever wore held such a marvelous combination of hues.

Dr. C. Hart Merriam, who is now, as has been said, the head of the Harriman Zoological Foundation, was the first man to suggest to Theodore Roosevelt that after he retired from the presidency he ought to go to Africa to collect specimens for the National Museum. Credit for the suggestion was given Dr. Merriam by Mr. Roosevelt in his lecture before the National Geographic Society. It is probable that Dr. Merriam is the foremost authority in the United States on several branches of natural science. He is particularly interested in bears and it was by him that comparisons were made of bear skulls by which recently a separation of species was made where it was not known definitely that a difference existed.

It must have been fully a century ago that an English scientist hunter who had secured a specimen of the cane brake bear declared that it was a species distinct from the ordinary black bear of the eastern United States, the bear known to every dweller in the eastern region remote from the populous centers.

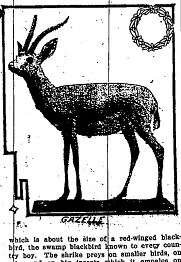
There was a dispute among scientists about the matter and it never definitely was settled, the general opinion remaining that the cane brake bear was simply the ordinary black bear of the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks and the woods of Michigan, Wisconsin and Maine. When Colonel Roosevelt killed his specimens of the cane brake bear he examined them and came to the conclusion that the Englishman who had separated it as a species was right. The colonel to put the matter to the test sent the skulls of the bears he had killed to Dr. Merriam, who put in a lot of painstaking study comparing them with the skulls of the ordinary black bear and it was found the Englishman who had contended for separate species was right. If it had not been for the Roosevelt study and his determination to submit the matter to the test science probably would still be holding to the belief that the eastern United States have only one species of the bruin tribe.

In the bear room of the museum Mr. Roosevelt saw the skulls of the species which he was instrumental in giving a separate place to and he saw the skulls of every bear known to the world. To the laymen present these skulls were nothing but skulls and originally they might have formed the head bones of any kind of an animal, but scientists can pick up a bone of any kind and not only tell what it came from, but from it can construct the entire naimal.

In the room set aside for the present as a storage place for the collection of African birds Colonel Roosevelt seemed to find special delight. One can exhaust all the color adjectives in the English language and yet hardly do justice to the hues and combination of hues of the plumage of the tropical birds which the expedition brought back from Africa. Dr. Edward A. Mearns, who is a surgeon of the United States army, but now on the retired list, did most of the collecting of feathered big game and small game. Dr. Mearns is one of the world's foremost ornithologists. While he was stationed with the troops in the far west he made a special study of the birds of the sections in which he happened to be, and on several occasions he was authorized by Uncle Sam to join scientific expeditions, organized to make investigations and collections in new territories.

It is well known that in a general way the more soberly clad birds are the best songsters. For instance, take the hermit thrush and the mocking bird of America. They are both dressed in homespun, but they have voices of the kind which people call "fortunes in themselves." There are some sober clad birds in the tropics and there as elsewhere they are the better singers.

In America we have a bird called the shrike, which is about the size of a red-winged blackbird, the swamp blackbird known to every country boy. The shrike preys on smaller birds, on mice and on big insects which it empales on thorns after making a meal, in the case of birds and mice, of the brains of the quarry. The shrike is dressed in soft grays and while rather a handsome bird it is by no means of brilliant attire.



GAZELLE

The African shrikes which Dr. Mearns collected and in which Theodore Roosevelt showed a marked interest on the day in which he went through the museum, are perhaps among the most brilliant colored birds of the world. They are not unlike the American scarlet tanager only the scarlet is of the kind that seems to burn the sight. Colonel Roosevelt has been having a little controversy with Scientist Abbott H. Thayer over the question of the protective coloration of birds and mammals. Mr. Thayer, in a general way, thinks that most animals have a coloration which protects them in a measure from discovery. It is known that this is perfectly true of some kinds of wild creatures, but Mr. Thayer thinks that even brilliantly plumaged birds are protected. Colonel Roosevelt on the day of his visit to the museum held up one of the shrikes in its scarlet attire and said ironically, "There's a fine example of protective coloration." Looking at the bird one might readily believe that against a background of green leaves it would be the first object in the landscape to attract attention.

There are storks in the African collection. I think that three species were included in the captures. Now it must be understood that when the expedition went into Africa it was agreed that there should be no killing beyond the actual needs of science except of course when it was necessary to kill game to supply the game table with food. The rule was that when a certain number of mammals or birds of each kind had been killed the shooting must stop and the number fixed was very small, although of course this regulation did not apply to destructive animals like the beasts of prey, mice and other crop destroying rodents.

The rule which Mr. Roosevelt insisted upon and in which the others readily acquiesced was lived up to the letter. When Dr. Mearns had secured a fixed number of storks he wanted to get one more because he thought there was some point which might be decided if he could add another stork to the collection. He told Colonel Roosevelt he was going to kill another stork. The colonel laughed and said, so it is reported: "Not on your life." Mr. Roosevelt's anti-race suicide pronouncement may account for his devotion to the interests of the stork.

When we were ready to leave the museum Dr. C. Hart Merriam, who has made a careful study of the collection brought back from Africa, turned to Colonel Roosevelt and said: "There can be no possibility of mistake in saying that the expedition which you led was the means of giving to the National Museum the finest and most valuable collection of African animals which exists in the whole world. Science has profited immensely as the result of your labors."

Grace of Clifford's Inn

Quaint Custom at Dinner Which Recalled Days When All Lawyers Were Connected With Church.

The purchase of Clifford's Inn as the headquarters of the Knights Bachelor recalls the quaint form of grace. After dinner, when the table cloths had been removed and before wine and dessert had been placed on the tables, a loaf made in the form of a cross of four small arms was handed to the senior member of the Kentish Mess who presided at the table. He then with a small hammer knocked once on the table, and every one, including the principal and the rules, then stood up. Then with his right hand he raised the loaf up above his head to the full extent of his arm and brought it down with a thump on the table. This he did three times and then slid it down the full length of the table to the vice-president, who arrested it in its career and handed it to a servant in attendance.

This ceremony was symbolical and of origin dating from the days when all lawyers were either actually ecclesiastics or at least connected in some way with the church. The knock was merely to attract attention and had no symbolic meaning. But the bread made in the form of a loaf with four small arms symbolized the bread of life centered on the four evangelists. The three blows upon the table were an invocation of the trinity. The bread being slid down the table symbolized that this bread of the gospel was spread over the world. Finally, the bread was removed to be given to the poor, reminding us of charity.—Law Times.

FARM AND BEES

KEEPING BEES ON ANY FARM

No More Intelligence and Skill Required in Culture Than in Poultry—Work Needed.

It requires no more intelligence and skill to raise bees than to keep poultry. It requires a certain amount of work and at the right time, yet this in no sense, equals the attention given poultry. But for some reason few farmers have bees. If it is lack of knowledge that keeps them from it then the excuse is easily overcome for there are many bee journals and books that would give the desired information. If it is a fear of bee stings, these may be prevented by certain appliances. Surely no one should be kept from the enjoyment of honey because of cost. The bees and the necessary equipment need not cost much. Perhaps some have been led to believe, through foolish newspaper reports, that bees are injurious to fruit. This is not so. Bees cannot break the skin of any fruit. Because they are seen sucking the juice of punctured grapes they have been falsely accused of doing the puncturing.

Honey is the purest and the least harmful of sweets. The farmer could just as well as not get a few hundred pounds for use on the pancakes. The honey crop is clear gain, for no flowers need necessarily be raised to pasture the bees. They aid in the fertilization of fruit trees and the smaller clovers.

Get a few hives of bees this spring and start in a modest way to gather a side line crop from the farm that has heretofore been going to waste.

LANTERN FOR FOOT-WARMER

Enterprising Canadian Has Placed on Market Unique Heating and Illuminating Device.

An enterprising Canadian concern has placed a unique combined heating and illuminating device on the market in the guise of a lantern foot-warmer, says Popular Mechanics. It is designed, of course, for use in rural communities, where considerable driving is necessary during winter as well as summer. Placed underneath the lap-robe, which, it is claimed, interferes in no way with proper combustion, the lantern effectively warms the feet and limbs, which means comfort all over. A copper ribbon passes over the burner, and this conserves the heat without affecting the radiation of light.

Should light at any time be required, the device is immediately available for such a purpose.

PROPER DRAINAGE ON FARM

Much of Laying Out and Excavation Can Be Done by Farmer With Little Expense.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

In hundreds of cases where drainage is desirable it is not necessary to employ an engineer to lay out the work, nor to use expensive systems of excavation. Much of this work can be done by the farmer himself after the exercise of a little thoughtfulness. After a heavy rain in summer—any time when there is standing water on the field—let the farmer go over his land and determine if the water, at its height, seeks a natural runway. It is easy to see where water would escape if a few places are leveled down to a point below the water above them. Place stakes at these high places, and as soon as the ground will permit of working, get busy with a team, plow and scraper and cut down these high places. When another rain comes see if the water flows off. If not, observe where the high places are and again go over them with team and scraper. Begin work at the lower end of the natural water course and work up towards the sloughs. There may be places where greater excavation may be required, and this can often be done with a spade at seasons of the year when there is a lull in other work. Open ditch work of this character for a few years will relieve many fields of wet and unproductive places now existing, and the farmer will scarcely realize the cost, while the expense of cultivating the entire field will be reduced and its productiveness increased.

Husking Bees.

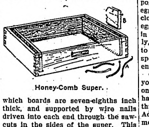
The Cleveland Plain Dealer notes the change that has come upon the husking bee within a decade or so. It used to take place in a dimly-lighted barn, and the discovery of a red ear conferred a traditional privilege of kissing the girl at one's side. Corn was really husked in large quantities, and the dance and cider and doughnuts were pastime and refreshment earned by toil. Now the farmyard is decorated with Japanese lanterns and people arrive in motor cars and stand about a pile of corn shocks which the farm hands have arranged to give "color" to the entertainment.

HONEY-COMB SUPER EXCELS

Several Prominent New Jersey Beekeepers Pronounce Device as Superior in Many Ways.

During the field meeting held at my place on June 29, several of the prominent beekeepers of the lower part of New Jersey pronounced my super a good thing, and, for my own part, in all my twenty years' experience I have never been able to remove honey from a super as rapidly as I can from this one, although I have tried almost every form of super brought out, writes Charles Howell in Gleanings in Bee Culture.

The advantages of this style of super are plainly shown by the illustration. It is a regular deep dovetailed super for 4x5 plain sections, using plain bottom slats 16 inches long, and fence separators, the same length, made to order, also one plain follower. The bottom slats are supported by tins nailed on the lower edge of each "compression board," which boards are seven-eighths inch thick, and supported by wire nails driven into each end through the saw-cuts in the sides of the super. This sliding supporting nail allows the boards to be forced up against the sections by means of the ordinary flat springs.



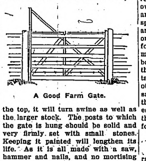
Honey-Comb Super.

Another good feature of this super is the bee-space all around the sections, which the bees use freely, especially when supers are tiered up. The super costs no more than any other.

GATE IS SIMPLE AND STRONG

Annoyance of Sagging and Getting Out of Plumb Is Avoided by Use of Common Barbed Wire.

The trouble with the ordinary gate is that it sags and gets out of plumb after a few months' service. The gate shown herewith is simple and strong. By nailing barbed wire between the lower lengths and smooth wires across the top, it will turn swine as well as the larger stock. The posts to which the gate is hung should be solid and very firmly set with small stones. Keeping it painted will lengthen its life. As it is all made with a saw, hammer and nails, and no mortising done, any handy man can quickly make it.



A Good Farm Gate.

Successful Bee Keeper.

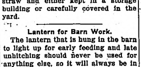
The successful bee keeper must also be skillful in handling bees and know fully the limitations of acquaintance with them. Mr. Croman is an expert in handling bees and not only does all of his own work, but furnishes hives and transfers bees for neighbors for many miles around. In transferring bees from a box or an old hive, he simply takes up the old hive or box containing the bees, opens the new hive and shakes them into it. The operation is simple for one who knows how. He states that a good swarm with a good queen will send out from three to six new swarms a season and that the first swarms are good and that the last ones are no good. It is best to suppress late swarming and turn the attention of the bees to storing surplus honey, which may be done by one who understands the business. The hives are protected in winter with cushions of chaff and straw and either kept in a storage building or carefully covered in the yard.

Lantern for Barn Work.

The lantern that is hung in the barn to light up for early feeding and late unhitching should never be used for anything else, so it will always be in place when needed.

A Profitable Cow.

It usually pays to keep a dairy cow that has a good appetite, eats heartily, and does not put fat on her back while giving milk.



FARM NOTES

For corn land, green or fresh manure is advisable.

Corn does best when sown on an overturned clover sod.

As the corn plant is rather tender, it is not wise to sow too early.

Cobwebs in the granary are good things. They entrap the moths which produce the weevils.

Don't spend a dollar for small ditches or tile on a marsh until an outlet is assured.

Drainage tiles should be evenly and well burnt, giving a clear, ringing note when clinked together.

A little sewing machine oil judiciously applied will put a stop to that prolonged squeaking of doors.

In lacing belts the pointed ends of the laces may be stiffened and made easier to insert by burning them.

There is a whole lot of comfort for both man and beast in a roll of tarred paper and a bunch of lath rightly applied.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Blitz Kuchen, Platzen, German Almond Cookies and Sirup Kuchlein Are Not Difficult to Make and All Will Enjoy them.

Blitz Kuchen.—Mix to a cream three cups fine sugar and one cupful butter. Add six eggs and three cupfuls of flour. Spread this batter on greased pans so thinly that you can almost see the bottom of the pans. Sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and chopped nuts of any kind, and bake to a light brown in a moderate oven. As soon as removed from the oven, cut at once into squares before it hardens, as it is difficult to lift out whole without breaking.

Platzen.—Use for this two cupfuls powdered sugar, the yolks of four eggs, a pinch each of cinnamon and cloves and flour to stiffen. Beat the egg yolks until light and foamy, stir in the sugar gradually, beat thoroughly, then add spices and flour enough to allow the batter to drop from a spoon into a greased tin. Leave room enough to spread without touching.

German Almond Cookies.—Beat the yolks of six eggs until light, then add one cupful and a half of sugar that has been beaten to a cream with three-fourths cupful softened butter. Add a cupful blanched, chopped almonds, one tablespoonful cinnamon and three cupfuls of flour. Beat hard and drop by small spoonfuls onto a buttered pan, putting an almond on top of each cake. Bake in a moderate oven.

Sirup Kuchlein.—Melt two scant cupfuls lard and add to it two cupfuls molasses, one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful salt, a teaspoonful soda dissolved in a little hot water, one well-beaten egg and sifted flour, adding the flour a little at a time until the dough is thick enough to roll out.

Cut in fancy shapes and bake in a moderate oven.

Frozen Pudding.

Split two dozen lady fingers and dip in sherry. In a double boiler scald two cupfuls of cream, pour over the yolks of six eggs and three-quarters of a cupful of sugar beaten together; mix, return to the double boiler and stir over the fire until it thickens. Strain and when cool flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla. Put in a freezer and turn until it begins to thicken. Add one pint of cream, whipped, and freeze for five minutes longer. Stand a mold in a little ice and salt. In the bottom put a layer of the frozen cream, then some of the lady's fingers and a tablespoonful of apricot jam, then another layer of cream. Fill up in the same order until all is used, having the last layer cream. Cover, bind the edges with a buttered cloth and bury the mold in ice and salt. Stand aside for two hours.

Sour Rabbit, German Style.

Clean and cut in pieces one tender rabbit. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter or drippings in a saucepan and when hot add two tablespoonfuls of chopped bacon, two small carrots, scraped and chopped fine, a bay leaf, a clove of garlic and salt and pepper to season. If desired, a few button mushrooms or mushroom catcup may also be added.

Put in the pieces of rabbit, which should have been washed, wiped dry, seasoned and rolled in flour, and cook until well browned, turning so that both sides get their share of the cooking. Add a half cupful of vinegar, or less if the vinegar is too strong, and simmer 20 minutes, or until the rabbit is tender. Add at the last one cupful cream and serve hot.

Scotch Currant Buns.

Two pounds bread dough, one-half pound lard, two pounds currants, two pounds raisins, one-half pound orange peel, one-half pound almonds, one pound sugar, tablespoon caraway seeds, one ounce ground ginger, one ounce cinnamon. Put lard on top of dough and set on end of stove to slowly melt, then take all the fruit, sugar and spice, which has to be thoroughly minced and mixed, and add to dough on baking board. Put it into cake pan and press into shape. Make a very tough pie crust, roll out thin, turn out bun on crust and cover all over. Put back into pan again and prick top with fork. Rub over with yolk of egg. Bake in slow oven for about three hours.

Red Cabbage Relish.

Remove all the loose leaves and the hard white part of a red cabbage, divide into fourths, and run through a meat chopper. Wash in a sieve and put in a granite kettle with one pint of water and two heaping tablespoonfuls of nice bacon fat. Add one-half cupful of white wine vinegar, three heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, salt to taste, and three or four good sized tart apples. Cover and cook about two hours. Stir often to prevent burning. It must not be moist. This is nice to serve with roast goose or turkey.

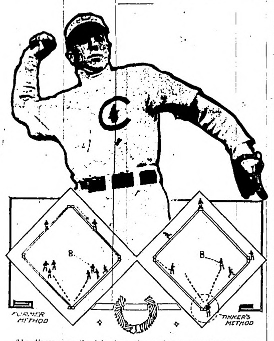
Pea Puree.

Press half a can of peas through a sieve, retaining the remainder for another meal. Place one pint of milk in a tablespoonful of flour, mixed with an equal amount of butter. Cook it until creamy, then add the pea puree and season with pepper and salt, or the flour may be omitted and the whole can of peas used, which will make it thick enough. Dried peas can be used in place of canned and are cheaper, but must be soaked over night and then boiled before adding to the milk.

German Almond Cookies.

Beat the yolks of six eggs until light, then add one cupful and a half of sugar that has been beaten to a cream with three-fourths cupful softened butter. Add a cupful blanched chopped almonds, one tablespoonful cinnamon and three cupfuls of flour. Beat hard and drop by small spoonfuls into a buttered pan, putting an almond on top of each cake. Bake in moderate oven.

NEW SCHEME TO KILL SACRIFICE HITS



The diagram on the left shows the confusion attending the present style of playing bunts. The first, second and third basemen are drawn from their positions, and the runner on first is given a big lead. Too many men run after bunts, which often results in an intended sacrifice going as a hit and allowing the man on base an extra sack. The diagram on the right illustrates Tinker's new scheme for fielding bunts and blocking sacrifice hits. The first baseman holds his base and keeps the runner close. The pitcher, third baseman and catcher field all bunts, and with every base covered there is a good chance for forcing the man on first and breaking up the sacrifice.

Joe Tinker, who plays shortstop for the Chicago Cubs in summers, acts on the stage in winters and still finds time to devote to his family and friends, has just devised a scheme which, if put into operation and properly executed on the ball field, will break up the bunting game and cause speedy baserunners to stand stone still on the base lines, bewildered and helpless. It may revolutionize baseball tactics of the day.

Incidentally, Joe confided that this scheme was the main reason why he wanted to play third base, because in the new plan the third baseman is to play the leading role, and, like all actors, Joe has pictured himself in the star part.

Now, at first sight this scheme may not appeal to some of the wise followers of the national game, but a bit of careful consideration of the thing undoubtedly will convince him that it is one of the most sensible suggestions for improving the defensive part of the game that has come up since '85, when Charley Comiskey began playing far back of first base and taught the pitcher to cover the bag when balls were hit to the first baseman.

Joe's scheme is so simple that one wonders why some shrewd major league manager had not thought of it before, but if such is the case, it has never been put into practice.

The scheme is simply to keep the first baseman out of the muddle of fielding bunts and have him stick to the bag, have the pitcher always go to his left to cover ground only in that territory, while the third baseman takes care of every chance to the right of the pitcher, and the catcher handles everyone that is dumped just in front of the plate.

In this way first base is always covered by the regular man, while the second baseman is always stationed on the middle bag, ready for a play there, and the shortstop runs down to third to prevent the baserunner from going from first to third on the play.

"It's very seldom we see a runner forced at second base on a bunt," said Tinker, in talking over the plan. "But with this scheme in operation I can see no reason why the play couldn't be pulled often and once you get to doing that the bunting game is broken up. You see, the first baseman being on the bag would hold the runner close to that spot and prevent his getting a big lead before the batter touches the ball.

"There's too much confusion in handling bunts, anyway, and there's no reason that I can see why the third baseman and pitcher, with the aid of the catcher, couldn't handle everything. The pitcher would go to his left as he delivered the ball and always be on the spot ready to handle the ball. As it is now he runs straight in and has to be prepared to jump to either side, then probably becomes entangled with the third baseman or the first baseman in getting the ball.

"Then, knowing that the second baseman would always be stationed on the middle bag, many a play could be made there that would not be attempted otherwise because of fear the baseman would not be on the spot. A third baseman with a good arm and active on his feet could rush in, scoop a ball and whirl and shoot it to second without hesitating that instant that loses so many runners. He would always be assured that there was a man on each base ready to receive the ball.

"I should judge that, having the first baseman stick to the bag would take about six feet off the lead obtained by the baserunner. That's enough to permit many a play at second that would not be made otherwise. The second baseman would always be there, you see, for he wouldn't have to be playing half-way between the bags, ready to cover first, if the first baseman was after the ball.

"I've been thinking of that scheme for a long time, and have always believed I would put it through if given a chance."

CHANCE NOT TO PLAY AGAIN

Search for First Baseman by Chicago Cubs Taken to Mean Frank Will be Bench Manager.

There are persistent rumors in the wake of the National League meeting that Frank Chance will play first base no longer for the Chicago Cubs. These rumors were given credence by the announcement that President Murphy of the Cubs had refused to waive on First Baseman Jack Flynn, of the Pirates. It is understood however, that Flynn will not go to Chicago, Fred Clarke probably withdrawing the waiver.

Murphy's action, however, shows that he is after a first baseman to supplant the great Chance, whose playing days are believed to be numbered. Jimmy Archer, the Cubs' catcher, has played the position quite well and he may fit in for Chance next season, allowing Chance to direct the game from the bench.

WAGNER FOUND BY ACCIDENT

Great Pittsburg Shortstop Among Famous Players Unheard of Before Jumping to Big Show.

Some of the greatest ballplayers the game has even known have been discovered by accident or through sheer luck. Four players have been picked at random, but they stand among the best the game has ever known just to show the truth of the above assertion.

The men are the late Ed Delehanty, probably the greatest and, undoubtedly, the hardest hitter who ever put on a pair of spiked shoes; Amos Rusie, who many believe was the greatest pitcher ever in the game; Hans Wagner—by the way, his proper name is John Paul Wagner—and Ty Cobb.

Amos Rusie began his ball career with the old Grand Avenue team in Indianapolis, when Indianapolis was a member of the old 12-club National league. This was back in the eighties. Rusie was a pitcher, a powerful, husky young giant, who had a world of speed and a dazzling array of curves. The Grand Avenues had one large picnic with the other teams in the old Indianapolis City league when Rusie pitched.

Jack Glasscock was playing shortstop on the Indianapolis (National league) team at that time and Jerry Denny was holding down third base. Glasscock was captain of the team. He heard of Rusie's pitching and one Sunday took Denny and hiked out to the City League park, where Rusie played. Glasscock watched the youngster work and both he and Denny were so impressed that Rusie was taken downtown after the game.

The next day Rusie appeared at league park in an Indianapolis uniform. The story of his career in the big league is now baseball history known to all fans. Rusie was a wonder, but his bad habits put him out of the game when he should have been in his prime. He is now living at Vincennes, Ind., working in a lumber yard and dredging for mussel pearls in the Wabash river.

Ed Delehanty, the greatest of the Delehanty ball-playing family, began on the lots around Cleveland, his home city. In 1886 some one told the manager of the old Wheeling (W. Va.) team that Delehanty was a great ballplayer.

"Honus" Wagner.

The youngster didn't have any money and no transportation was inclosed, but he started for Wheeling and made his way there by riding freight trains and walking. He was an infielder, playing second base, and he made good from the jump. In 1887 Philadelphia decided to give him a trial, and along in the fall of that year Delehanty made his major league debut, succeeding Bastian, one of the greatest players of his time, at second base.

As a big league second baseman the man who was destined to become a terror to the best pitchers the game has ever known was not a brilliant success. Neither did he shine with the bat in his first year, as his average for 56 games was only .227. In 1888 he played 54 games and soaked the pill for a grand average of .292. He alternated between second base and left field, and in 1890 he went to left field and remained there until his tragic death.

Hans Wagner owes his start in baseball to his brother, Al Wagner. Al was a good ballplayer, but every one thought Hans was too awkward ever to amount to anything on the diamond. Al was with Steubenville, owned and managed by George Moreland at that time, and Moreland wanted a pitcher.

"Get my brother," said Al.

"Can he pitch?" Moreland wanted to know.

"Well, he can throw a ball mighty fast," Al replied, and Hans was wired at Carnegie to report. His salary was to be $35 per month. Wagner beat his way from Pittsburg to Steubenville on a freight train.

Frank Bowerman was catching for Steubenville and Claude Ritchie also was a member of the team. Wagner pitched the first game, but after that they put him in the outfield. His feet were so big it was impossible to get a pair of baseball shoes in Steubenville to fit him, and the greatest ballplayer of all times played his first league engagement in his bare feet. The Steubenville team blew up. Mansfield wanted Al Wagner and wired him at Steubenville. Al had another job, so he sent his brother. Mansfield wanted a shortstop and, while he had been playing the outfield, Hans switched to short. He made good. Later, the Wagner brothers went back to Moreland at Wheeling, W. Va., and then were sold to Captain Kerr, at that time owner of the Pittsburg club.

Doctor Flays Football.

Dr. M. J. Clurman in a review of the football season of 1910 prepared for the New York Medical Society, declares that "the attraction for football is exactly the same as that which the ancients had for gladiatorial contests and which the Spaniards have for the bull fight. A football game is merely a prize fight multiplied by eleven."

Dr. Clurman advocates the adoption of sports which are less violent and more easily utilized by all students of colleges. He finds that in spite of the new rules there were 22 deaths this last fall and over 400 injuries, and declares that all who played are physically weaker for the severe stress of the game.

THE AMERICAN HOME

Wm A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The well-to-do suburban builder is getting rather particular about the kind of a house he puts up. It is not enough to simply provide comfortable shelter for his family and have room enough for all; but the general style and appearance of the house has to be given due thought so that it will work in well with its surroundings and conform in size and style to what his friends and neighbors consider necessary for his home. Something of spaciousness, dignity and hospitality has to be embodied in such a structure. The exact order of architecture to be used may not be prescribed—some of those details are left to the home builder himself and to his architect—but nevertheless custom prescribes the quality and general character of the building.

One of the features that public opinion is coming more and more to require is that suburban dwellings should be as nearly fireproof or fire-resisting as possible. Fire protection in small towns and suburban localities is very seldom all that it should be. Common business sense directs that in such locations extra precautions should be taken, especially for residences, to make them as nearly fireproof as possible. This carries with it the obligation to build substantially and well, at the same time using as artistic a design as may be, so that the building which is to last for three or four generations will throughout all that time be a source of pride to the owner and an improvement to the neighborhood.

The design illustrated on this page will be found to fulfill all these conditions and to recommend itself as being at once dignified and attractive in appearance, substantial in construction and, using permanent materials, is as near fireproof as a residence can be made with practical success.

The general type of this house is of the popular brick veneer-cement plaster combination which has proved so satisfactory for suburban work during the past few years. Resting on a good foundation of squared stones cemented on the inside and made thoroughly water-proof, strong timber frame-work is erected in the ordinary way as for a well constructed frame house. However, instead of the ordinary beveled siding, face brick is substituted, laid up in a four-inch wall and securely tied to the studding with galvanized iron wall ties every fifth course of the brick work and to every stud.

This veneering of brick reaches from the stone foundation course up to the line of the second-story window sills. From there up to the eaves the siding, face brick is substituted, laid metal lath. A slate roof completes the exterior fireproof armor. As the majority of fires originate from external hazards it will be seen that a building completely protected in this way on the outside may be considered practically fireproof.

There is no combination of materials more pleasing to the eye than this high grade face brick and the cement plaster in a harmonizing color. As far as warmth and freedom from dampness are concerned this form of construction insures the best possible results, and the expense is not very much greater than for an ordinary frame house covered with beveled siding.

The fact that this house has been built a number of times for $4,000 and that, too, using good grade material and all equipment including plumbing, heating and lighting, shows this to be an extremely economical design to build.

The hip roof, while being the most artistic and satisfactory type for this kind of a building, is also the most economical. The plan is very nearly square in general outline and so can be constructed and arranged to good advantage without waste of time and material.

The floor plans show the desirable features of arrangement. Three fine rooms are provided on the first floor, besides the large porch and entrance hall. The living room is of the modern large-sized style with home-like fireplace. Attention is called to the convenient arrangement of dining room, pantry and kitchen.

On the second floor there are four good-sized bedrooms, with large closet space attached. The bath room is conveniently located. Altogether this design is one of the most satisfactory for suburban and city use of any design executed this year. Home builders can get many good ideas from the study of these plans.

Necks and Legs of Animals.

With few exceptions there is a marked equality between the length of the necks and of the legs of both birds and quadrupeds, and whether they be long or short is determined chiefly by the place where the animal must go for its food.

This is especially noticeable in beasts that feed constantly upon grass, in which case the neck has just a slight advantage in that it cannot hang perpendicularly down.

Crocodiles, lizards and fish have practically no necks. Fowls that feed in the water also offer an example of this correspondence between the members, with the exception of swans and geese and some Indian birds, who gather their food from the bottom of pools and must have long necks for that purpose, while the short legs make it more convenient for them to swim.—From the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Cave-Dwelling Snakes.

Until recent times no reptiles were known to have adapted themselves to existence in the darkness of caverns. Now, however, it is known that in the Malay Peninsula a species of coluber inhabits certain caverns, feeding upon the bats. These cave-dwelling snakes attain a length of between eight and nine feet, and their coloring remarkably resembles that of the walls of the caverns. The rock is a yellowish crystalline limestone traversed with blackish veins, and these markings and colors are curiously reproduced in the snakes, many of which lurk on the ledges, in the semi-darkness, near the entrances, watching for bats.

Selling Eggs by Weight.

The decision of the new head of the bureau of weights and measures not to issue an order compelling merchants to sell eggs by weight will be welcome news to tradespeople and not disappointing to housewives. While in some respects the weighing system is better than sales by the dozen, the additional trouble and the difficulty of making exact weight offset the advantages. When this reform was proposed some months ago it created considerable interest, but it was not welcomed as a remedy for any of the evils which the bureau of weights and measures is attempting to correct.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Only a Temporary Advantage.

How to Make These Favorite Small Cakes That Will Keep Well for a Long Time.

These are a favorite small cake that may be made in quantity and kept on hand for special occasions. Cream together one cup of butter, one of lard and two of brown sugar. Add three eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Then add the spices—one grated nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon and two of anise seed, one teaspoonful of ground cloves, four spoonfuls whole coriander, one cupful chopped almonds and one-eighth chopped citron. Next add four cups of molasses with which have been mixed two teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in a little warm water and four with which four teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar have been sifted, using flour to make a stiff dough. Knead with the hands until well mixed and smooth, then roll out on a floured board into long rolls about an inch in diameter. With a sharp knife cut into slices a quarter of an inch thick. Bake in a quick oven to light brown, and when cold put into a tin cake box, where they will keep for a long time.

Many women who do not venture to prepare caramel at home because of the danger of burning instead of browning the sugar do not know that the druggist has it at its best. Delicious custard is made with maple sugar for sweetening and caramel for coloring and the two flavors blend excellently. The caramel is useful for coloring sauces as well as for flavoring custards and creams.

Hickory Nut Cake.

Beat to a cream one-half cup of butter and two cupfuls of sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs beaten light and stirred in with a cupful of rich milk. Sift together in another bowl three cups of pastry flour, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Mix with the other ingredients, beat, then fold in two cupfuls of chopped hickory or walnut meats and two cups of seeded raisins dredged with flour.

Fold in the whites of two fresh eggs beaten to a froth and bake for an hour in a moderate oven. The cake may be flavored with a grating of nutmeg, a bit of mace or vanilla as preferred.

Roast Pig.

Take a pig about six weeks old nicely prepared, score in squares and rub lard all over it; make a dressing of two quarts of corn meal salted as if for bread and mix to a stiff dough with boiling water; put into a pan and bake. After this is baked brown break it up and add to it one-fourth of a pound of butter, pepper to taste and thyme. Fill the pig till plump, sew it up and place it on its knees in the pan with as much water as is needed to cook the pig. Baste it frequently with the gravy; turn while basting the same as turkey. Continue to baste until thoroughly done and bake a rich brown.

Maids of Honor.

Line some gem pans with paste. Then make the following mixture: one tablespoonful of sago, soaked for half an hour in water, then boil it for a few minutes till it is cooked and thick; put in a basin a quarter of a pound of sugar, a quarter of a pound of butter and beat to a cream, add two well-beaten eggs and beat again; then add two ounces of grated cocoanut, grated rind and strained juice of half a lemon, mixed well, and last add the boiled sago. Mix all well; nearly fill the lined pans, and bake till cooked.

Tomato Curry.

Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with one-half tablespoonful finely chopped onion until yellow. Add one sour apple, pared, cored and chopped. Cook eight minutes. Add one-half cup rice stock, two cups canned tomatoes, one-half tablespoonful curry powder, one teaspoonful vinegar. When it boils add one teaspoonful salt and one saltspoonful pepper and one cup boiled rice. Cook five minutes.

"He said it was not genuine mistletoe," replied Maymie, "and that he could not think of taking advantage of a botanical error."

INSIDE HISTORY.
Some Self-Explanatory Letters.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 7, '11.

Dr. E. H. Pratt,
Suite 1202, 100 State St.,
Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear Doctor:

"Owing to some disagreement with ——— magazine several years ago they have become quite vituperative, and of late have publicly charged me with falsehoods in my statements that we have genuine testimonial letters.

"It has been our rule to refrain from publishing the names either of laymen or physicians who have written to us in a complimentary way, and we have declined to accede to the demand of attorneys that we turn these letters over to them.

"I am asking a few men whom I deem to be friends to permit me to reproduce some of their letters over their signatures in order to refute the falsehoods.

"We have hundreds of letters from physicians, but I esteem the one that you wrote to me in 1906 among the very best, particularly in view of the fact that it recognizes the work I have been trying to do partly through the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"I do not sell or attempt to sell the higher thought which is more important than the kind of food, but I have taken considerable pains to extend to humanity such facts as may have come to me on this subject.

"In order that your mind may be refreshed I am herewith enclosing a copy of your good letter, also a copy of the little book, and if you will give me the privilege of printing this over your signature I will accompany the printing with an explanation as to why you permitted its use in publication in order to refute falsehoods, and under that method of treatment I feel, so far as I know, there would be no breach of the code of ethics.

"I trust this winter weather is finding you well, contented and enjoying the fruits that are yours by right.

"With all best wishes, I am,"

Yours very truly,
C. W. POST.

Dr. Pratt, who is one of the most prominent and skillful surgeons in America, very kindly granted our request in the cause of truth and justice.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1906.

Mr. C. W. Post,
Battle Creek, Mich.

My Dear Sir:

"I write to express my personal appreciation of one of your business methods, that of accompanying each package of your Grape-Nuts production with that little booklet "The Road to Wellville." A more appropriate, clear headed and effective presentation of health-giving auto-suggestions could scarcely be penned.

"Grape-Nuts is a good food in itself, but the food contained in this little article is still better stuff. I commend the practice because I know that the greed and strenuousness, the consequent graft and other types of thievery and malicious mischief generally can never be cured by legislative action.

"The only hope for the betterment of the race rests in individual soul culture.

"In taking a step in this direction, your process has been so original and unique that it must set a pace for other concerns until finally the whole country gets flavored with genuine, practical Christianity.

"I shall do all that lies in my power to aid in the appreciation of Grape-Nuts, not so much for the sake of the food itself as for the accompanying suggestions.

"Visiting Battle Creek the other day with a friend, Dr. Kelly of Evanston, Illinois, while I was consulting with Mr. Gregory, my friend visited your factories and came away greatly amazed, not only at the luxurious furnishings of the offices generally and the general equipment of the place, but with the sweet spirit of courtesy and kindness that seemed to fill the air with a spiritual ozone that was good to breathe.

"The principles expressed in the little booklet, 'The Road to Wellville,' I well know are practical and they work in business of all kinds, including sanitariums, as will be fairly tested before time is done.

"I know you will not regard this letter of appreciation as an intruding one. It is simply the salutation of good fellowship to you from a man who, although he has never seen you, feels drawn to you by the kinship of thought.

"The only thing that makes a man live forever in the hearts of his countrymen and his race is the good that he does. Your position in this respect is an enviable one and I wish to extend my congratulations."

Yours respectfully,
E. H. PRATT.

The probate judges of Minnesota, who have been in session in St. Paul, will ask the legislature to make the term of office of a judge of probate six instead of two years.

Senator A. L. Hanson wishes us to state to our subscribers that he would be pleased to hear from any of them on any matter in which they are interested, to come before the legislature.

The forty-fifth annual convention of the Minnesota Editorial association will be held in St. Paul on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 16 and 17. The new hotel, the St. Paul, will be the headquarters of this convention, and business sessions will be held in the city council chambers, beginning promptly at 10:30 Thursday forenoon.

English in the public schools is the topic to be discussed by the Northwest Central Educational association which meets in Fergus Falls Feb. 16 and 17. A program is being prepared which will be practical and helpful for the teacher who is in the work, whether it be in a rural, graded, or high school. A special program for school officers is one of the features.

Representative O'Neill has secured the passage of his bill making it legal for Pennington, or any other new county which may be formed, to levy assessments for the necessary expenses in connection with the operation of a new county. Mr. O'Neill briefly explained the purposes of his measure on the floor of the house while that body was in committee of the whole, and there was not a dissenting voice.

A remonstrance is being circulated here against the proposed parcels post law. There are two sides to this as to every question. Nearly every civilized country of the globe has a parcels post system, and there is no doubt that the express companies of this country would be hurt by such a law and are behind the remonstrance. On the other hand, the most dangerous menace to the prosperity of the small towns and villages, if not to their very existence, is the growth of the mail order business; and it is thought by many that the parcels post would be a great help to the supply houses.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

By the County Superintendent of Schools, Pennington Co., Minn.

The teachers' examinations that ordinarily would have been held in February have been postponed by order of the state superintendent and will be held May 4, 5, and 6. Teachers holding certificates that expire March 1, 1911 if they are now engaged in teaching in the county, should write the undersigned at his office in Thief River Falls at once, so that their certificates may be extended to the time of a later examination.

All teachers now teaching in the new county of Pennington must file their certificates with the county superintendent in order to be valid. Please attend to this matter at once.

Teachers of schools in the county who are entitled to take state high school examinations should report at once the number of pupils in their respective schools to provide for the necessary questions for examinations. The schools entitled to these examinations are in districts No. 25, 219, 37, 54 and 151, and such other rural schools as have pupils sufficiently advanced to avail themselves of said examinations

I will be at my office in the auditorium at Thief River Falls on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month until further notice. I solicit respectfully your inquiries as regards school matters, and will be glad to answer same in person or by correspondence

Respectfully submitted,

The Supreme Court Decision

The state supreme court handed down its decision in the election concontest matter. The decision is against the Red Lake Falls contestants, and is apparently the end of the contest. The order of the court is as follows:

"That no contest of the election establishing Pennington county of which the court below has jurisdiction was instituted by the contestant, and the writ of prohibition prayed for is granted, The distrist court of the 14th judicial district is therefore restrained and prohibited from further proceeding therein. Let a writ absolute issue."

If any further action should be undertaken, it would have to be before the supreme court.

The Man on the Box

Harold McGrath's delightful little novel, "The Man on the Box," is the vehicle chosen by Mr. Gus Arthurs to market his comedy talents. The play is full of droll situations, arising from the plan of the hero of the story to masquerade as a coachman for the sake of being near the young lady of his choice. The play is a H. E. Pierce & Company production, which should give it a good standing. It will be seen at the auditorium, Thief River Falls, Tuesday evening, Jan. 31.

Proposals Wanted

Proposals will be received by the board of auditors of Pennington county, Minnesota, until 2 o'clock p. m., Feb. 7, 1911, stating the rate of interest which would be paid on monthly balances of county funds subject to check and payment at all times on demand, and the rate of interest which would be paid on such funds or any part thereof when deposited for any certain length of time, and the security which would be given therefor.

Officers Elect of the Creamery Association

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the St. Hilaire Cooperative Creamery company last Tuesday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—E. A. Aubol.
Vice president—O. L. Larsen.
Secretary—Nels K. Anderson.
Treasurer—August Swenson.
Director—Anton Peterson.

There was practically a full attendance of the stockholders.

The stockholders joined in the purchase of a gold medal, which they presented to the retiring treasurer, Charles Gustafson. Mr. Gustafson has been the treasurer of the association since its organization. The medal is a very valuable one, and upon it are engraved the words, "From the St. Hilaire Co-operative Creamery Company, for Long and Faithful Service."

The financial report will be published next week, when moneys due the creamery are all in.

O. Sonsthagen Dead

Deep sorrow has been caused many friends here by news of the death of Otto Sonsthagen, whose death occurred Monday night at Fergus Falls.

Otto Sonsthagen has been traveling for Koehler & Heinrichs of St. Paul for over twenty years. Death resulted from intestinal obstruction. He was taken ill about a week ago. The remains are being taken back to Manitowoc, Wis., and the funeral will occur there.—Crookston Times.

The deceased was well known here, having been making this place quite regularly.

Farmers' Institute

There was a fair attendance at the farmers' institute Tuesday, and great interest was shown in the lectures and discussions. The speakers were: C. O. Carlson, who spoke on dairying; F. F. Marshall, whose chief topic was hog raising, and E. D. Staples, on poultry. Their talks were all interesting, and eminently practical.

Two Lads.

At one time, when De Quincey was living at Lasswade in simple and friendly relations with the people, who respected him not as a writer, but as a good neighbor, he formed a very delightful friendship with a little child, a boy of four years. This lad, a nephew of one of the housemaids, was the constant companion of the great man and would forsake any amusement for the pleasure of walking round a dull little garden with him. One day somebody heard this conversation between the two comrades:

"What d'ye call thon tree?" asked the child.

De Quincey considered and then said, with careful deliberation, "I am not sure, my dear, but I think it may be a laurustinus."

At that time the "lad" must have been about seventy years old.

The Blue Danube.

The Danube still retains its ancient splendors. The Rhine is the river of vine clad, sunny hills, ruined castles on rugged crags, mediaeval history and modern glory in war and in peace, a river bright as the warble of a bird in the wood. The Danube hills carry immense, almost untouched, forests, higher and grander than the heights of the Rhine. In the midst of this rich, deep green verdure lonely white mountains break in on the eye. There are many wayside chapels, too, on the banks. In solemn, awesome, majestic beauty the Danube far excels the cheery, pretty Rhine, and it must be called a pity that so few American travelers take a tour on this indescribably superb river.—Omaha Bee.

John Meier Dead

M. Fricker received a telegram Thursday evening announcing the death of his father-in-law, John Meier, at his home near Star City, Sask., Can. Mr. and Mrs. Meier visited their daughter in December last. Mr. Meir was in very poor health at that time.

The deceased was well known in this section, having formerly been a prosperous farmer in the town of Sanders. Later he was connected with the O K flouring mills at Thief River Falls. He moved to Canada in 1903, and has since been engaged in farming.

Deceased is survived by his wife, six sons and three daughters, of whom Mrs. Fricker is one. He was 85 years of age.

The Man on the Box

One of the greatest events of the season will be the presentation of "The Man on the Box" at the auditorium, Thief River Falls, on Jan. 31. This delightful comedy, dramatized from Harold McGrath's book of the same name, tells a story that is full of throbbing interest that often becomes intense. Many of its incidents are new, and in theme and treatment it is far above many of the latter day successes.

The Don's Opinion.

Fashion is as inexorable in men's as in women's dress. The undergraduate is perhaps the most telling example of this. It was so even a century ago when Oxford led the way in adopting the new nankeen trousers that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity met an undergraduate arrayed in the splendor of the new fashion. "Young man," said the don severely, "you will come to no good. You wear nankeen trousers and keep a dog." The young man afterward became [illegible] Sumner and bishop of Winchester.—London Chronicle.

EASILY MANAGED.

The Clever Scheme Evolved by the Clock Winder.

The contract for keeping the church and town hall clocks in order was given to a new man. Unfortunately from the start he experienced a difficulty in getting the clocks to strike at the same time. At last the district council requested an interview with the watchmaker.

"You are not so successful with the clocks as your predecessor," he was told. "It is very misleading to have one clock striking three or four minutes after the other. Before you took them in hand we could hardly tell the two were striking. Surely you are as competent?"

"Every workman has his own methods, gentlemen," replied the watchmaker, "and mine ain't the same as H.'s were."

"I'm decidedly of the opinion that it would be for the general good if they were," remarked one of the councilors.

"Very well, sir. In future they shall be," came the reply. "I happened to write to him last week about the trouble I had with the clocks, and—but perhaps," he added as he produced a letter and handed it to the chairman, "you'd like to see what he said."

"Dear sir," ran the letter—"about them clocks. When you get to know what a cantankerous lot of busybodies the council consists of you'll do the same as I did for fifteen years—forget to wind up the striker of the town hall clock, and the blooming jackasses won't be able to tell that both clocks ain't striking together!"—London Tit-Bits.

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

TRAGEDY IS LINKED WITH NAME OF SHARON

FREDERICK FERMOR-HESKETH, lieutenant Ninth Lancers, British army, on seven days' leave, stood on the pier at Queenstown, Ireland, the other day in tweeds from his turned up trousers to his fore and aft cap, twirling a cane on his fingers and whistling a regimental ditty. The next day he was lost to the world. He disappeared the way a shadow vanishes when the sun hides behind a cloud leaving no answer to the question where. They pressed official buttons in the British war office and Scotland Yard, and an alarm for the missing officer went to all parts of the world. At the end of 30 days the mystery mark was placed opposite his name in the army records.

Thus, in 1910, another tragedy is linked with the name of Sharon, or, as they phrase it out in the Pacific coast, with the long-dead argonaut's money-bags, says a writer in the New York World. Stretching wide the list to take in all who had a part in the developing situations of the Sharon drama, there are disclosed no less than four murders, three suicides and two disappearances. Lieutenant Hesketh, in the latter classification, was Sharon's grandson.

William Sharon was one of the Gold Hills pioneers. In mere money getting he lived under the star called Luck, which, by the bye, is not charted by astronomers, but shines in the financial heavens for the few with the brilliancy of a harvest moon. Sharon stepped out of cowhide boots into patent leathers; from a mountain shack to a city mansion. His few mean two-bit coins in a greasy bag grew into a fortune which clogged bank vaults. Having munched the dry loaf of grubstake poverty, he put millions into a hotel which he called Palace, as a monument to full stomachs and riches. His overnight fortune came from the Crown Point and Belcher mines in Nevada. He became a senator from that state. And then, having lived a life made up of healthy, hard knocks in its earlier stages and the overcase of opulence in the gray-bearded half, he was borne to the waiting mausoleum. The wealth he left behind made a yprramid of millions, and likewise a pyramid of trouble. There were outstretched hands for every dollar in the pile—and the money bag tragedies began.

Ralston's Pathetic Death.

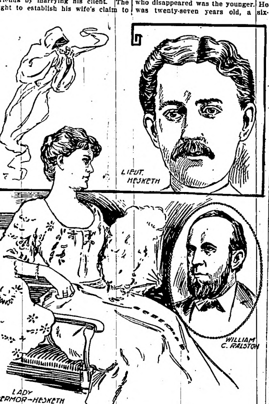
William C. Ralston, who had often shared the output of his battered coffee-pot with Sharon in his roughshod days and later sat with him on sofa cushions in the directors' room of the Bank of California, had already started the list. When the financial pinch caught the bank and frightened Frisco didn't know whether its money was good, bad or indifferent, Ralston accused Sharon, and then took his own life. It was a polite tragedy. While the crowd was pounding at the closed iron doors of the bank, Ralston, at his mansion in Belmont, across the bay, slipped into his carriage and drove to the swimming beach, as was his custom. The coachman, sitting with loose reins in hand, saw the banker wade out waist, shoulder, neck deep, and then disappear. The afternoon tide rolled the dead body through the spume upon the sand with the seadrift. Forty days thereafter the Bank of California opened its doors again, but Forty-niners did not forget that the man who had shared his coffee-pot with Sharon had also accused him.

Ralston's son Samuel went to Siberia, where he believed there was another El Dorado. He failed to find it, returned and killed himself. Two of his friends in the unprofitable venture were murdered; another died with a point of steel between his ribs on the heart side in what they called a duel.

Getting back to Sharon, the Forty-niner, it should be said here that his life was not always an open book. He had his failings. Some time after the death of Mrs. Sharon, who had lived to see him discard the cowhide boots forever, Senator Sharon was sued by a plump, round-faced woman known to contemporary divorce litigation as Sarah Althea Hill. She entered into the contest for Sharon's money with energy and zeal. For reasons which the distinguished senator very well knew, she said, he had refrained from acknowledging her as his wife. Her counsel was David S. Terry.

Odd how men and matters shaped themselves in those days. Terry was a leader of the southern California Democrats, who had his trousers made with ample pistol pockets. He was elected chief justice of the California supreme court, and had served just long enough to become familiar with the judicial routine when he and Senator David C. Broderick, entertaining conflicting importance, adopted the hair-trigger method of settlement at the prescribed 15 paces. Terry resigned his judgeship, having regard for ethics, and went to the duelling field. Broderick waited for the second. Terry split it and fired. Broderick fell dead.

Judge Stephen J. Field, who later became the chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States, had gone to California in its wildest days, and had held court at Marysville Camp with rude dignity on a barrel head, became chief justice to succeed Terry. Later Terry pleaded the cause of his robust client before Field. Sharon died, but Sarah Althea Hill's suit lived on. Terry one day surprised his friends by marrying his client. The fight to establish his wife's claim to the Sharon fortune took on new energy.



In the meantime Judge Field had been appointed to the United States circuit court, and the woman's suit was jumped into that tribunal at a time when the supreme court of California had decided that there had been a secret marriage between Sarah Althea Hill and Sharon. Justice Field ordered the cancellation of the marriage contract on the ground of forgery. The woman in the case, in a burst of rage, rose in court and asked the judge how much he had been paid for his decision. She was immediately arrested, charged with contempt. Terry drew a bowie-knife and attempted to prevent the marshal from taking his wife into custody. Strong arm work followed. Mrs. Terry spent a month in jail and Terry was behind the bars for six months.

David Terry's Tragic End.

Having killed one man, Terry was not afraid to threaten another. He said he would take Justice Field's life. On the way north from Los Angeles, as his court dates took him, Justice Field stepped off at Lathrop on morning to breakfast in the station restaurant. Terry and his wife coincidently stepped from a down train at the same time. Terry saw Field sitting on a stool at the breast-high resturant counter. Nearby stood United States Marshal Nagle, who had been assigned to guard the judge as he journeyed between towns to hold court. Terry stepped behind Field and slapped his face with the back of his hand. Marshal Nagle shot Terry dead. Mrs. Terry saw her husband fall. He was unarmed, but his wife had a knife and a revolver in her handbag. Nagle was tried in Washington and acquitted.

Charles Livingston, who was a protege of Sharon's, became manager of the Palace hotel, and in many ways had a hand in the smaller affairs in which Sharon was interested. Livingston had boarded at one time with a certain Sarah Mitchell, when the fight to get the Sharon millions was at its height. Miss Mitchell came to the front with a package of mysterious letters which she said exposed a plot to cheat Sarah out of her rights in the vast estate. She demanded $50,000 for them, but she didn't get it. There was talk of a conspiracy. Livingston's name was mentioned unpleasantly in that connection. One morning he was found dead in his room in the Palace hotel with a pistol shot in his heart. Some called it murder. The coroner said suicide.

Won by Titled Englishman.

Society, like the metal dug from the hills, passed through a refining process about this time. Sharon's two daughters grew to womanhood surrounded by luxury. In Frisco's One Thousand—the Pacific coast's counterpart of the Four Hundred on the Atlantic—they were easily the most eligible. One daughter fell in love with Senator Newlands of Nevada and became his wife. The other, Florence Mily Sharon, gave her heart to a titled foreigner, Sir Thomas George Fermor-Hesketh, who, like Sharon, had dug his fortune from mines, although the Hesketh pick had loosened coal in Lancashire instead of gold in Nevada.

Lady Hesketh had two sons, both soldiers. The lieutenant of Lancers who disappeared was the younger. He was twenty-seven years old, a six-footer, with dark curly hair, a slight dark mustach and blue-gray eyes. When he slipped out of his uniform and into his tweeds and boarded the mail steamer for Ireland he left a young wife and a two-months' old babe behind. He had served in India and was a messmate of Lord Rocksavage, who visited Newport last summer. The elder son was until recently an officer in the Royal Blues. He was married in September a year ago to Florence Breckinridge of San Francisco, who is a daughter of Mrs. Fred W. Sharon by a former marriage. Fred Sharon is the late senator's son. Miss Breckinridge's grandfathers were John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky and Lloyd Trevis, the western millionaire who was for years president of the Wells Fargo company. Miss Breckinridge was engaged to Doctor Stein of Vienna, famed as a medical specialist throughout Europe. She jilted him to marry her stepfather's nephew.

The Palace hotel and hundreds of other pieces of Sharon property were reduced to ashes in the fire which followed the earthquake on the Pacific coast.

Spread of Education.

There were 150,000 children at school in India 60 years ago. There are 4,000,000 now.

TELL GOOD STORY ON ELKINS

Late Senator's Struggle With a Razor of the Safety Kind Had Comic Side.

The news of the death of United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins was a topic of conversation at the Waldorf and the Belmont yesterday, for the late senator used to stop at one or the other of these hotels whenever he came to New York. The last time he was here, about the middle of August, he spent ten days at the Belmont.

On that visit the senator unintentionally gave the information clerks a lot of trouble. It was his habit upon arriving to impress upon them that he did not wish to see visitors. "If anybody asks for me," he said the last time, "you can just say I am not here." Then, forgetting that he was not in the hotel, he would often take a seat in the lobby, and of course would be spotted by callers who had been told at the information desk that the senator was not stopping at the hotel. The clerks would have to explain to the irate ones that the senator had said he was not in, and they had to take his word for it.

The mechanism of a safety razor gave the senator and a house detective a bad time one morning. Senator Elkins had been invited to take luncheon at noon that day with a prominent citizen whose home is at Oyster Bay. At nine o'clock he telephoned for the hotel detective to come to his room in a hurry.

"Look here," said the senator when the detective entered. "Somebody has been in this room and removed my safey razor and left this blunderbuss in its place." He held up what appeared to the detective to be a safety razor.

"What's wrong with it?" inquired the detective.

"Wrong?" repeated the senator. "Why, man, everything is wrong with it. It won't shave. Here I've got to be at Oyster Bay by noon, and I had calculated on shaving myself in two minutes and attending to some business before catching a train, and now I shall have to take a later one because I'll have to go down to the barber shop. Why on earth do you suppose anybody selected my safety razor to steal?"

The detective could not answer the question, but took the pieces of steel the senator gave him and promised to see if he could not have something done. In the hall he met one of the assistant managers, to whom he told the troubles, adding that he could not see how anybody could have got into the room in the first place. The manager, who shaves himself, looked at what the detective had in his hand and found that Senator Elkins had apparently screwed two pieces of the razor together, leaving out the blade, which he had handed the detective with the rest of the razor. The manager put the razor together properly and took it to the senator. The latter laughed when his mistake was explained to him and reached the luncheon at Oyster Bay on time.—New York Press.

MADE WITH MOLASSES

VARIOUS GOOD FOOD ARTICLES IN WHICH IT IS USED.

Directions for the Making of Gingerbread, Pudding, Pie, Muffins and Parliament Cake With This Wholesome Cane Product.

Molasses and golden syrup are such easily obtained and cheap commodities that the housewife, ignorant of their enormous value in the good world, is often given to looking slightingly upon them. No better food exists than this pure product of the sugar cane.

From a chemical point of view honey is a very wholesome and valuable food. But syrup is as valuable. It is in nature really a kind of honey.

Honey is composed of three different kinds of sugar, a mixture of cane sugar, which crystallizes; a fruit sugar, which does not candy at all, and of invert sugar, a compound of the two.

Cookery supplies many ways of using it. As gingerbread, in taffy, plain in a pretty molasses pitcher, to be used in bread like honey, or eaten abundantly as an accompaniment of milk puddings of all kinds, it may be used.

Boiled molasses puddings are liked, so are batter puddings eaten with syrup. With boiled rice it goes well and also with blanc mange. If oatmeal is the dish molasses accompanies it as a sweetening agent splendidly, and, in this case, corrects the slightly binding action of a most excellent food.

The richness of mincemeat and plum puddings is due to molasses greatly, and molasses pies are very good.

Gingerbread.—Sift three-quarters of a pound of flour into a basin, add half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, one teaspoonful of ground ginger, one teaspoonful of allspice, a little grated nutmeg and half a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon. Melt together in a saucepan, one cupful of molasses, a quarter of a pound of sugar, a quarter of a pound of butter and half a cupful of milk. Cool and add to dry ingredients with two well beaten eggs. Mix well, then pour into a buttered and floured cake tin. Bake slowly for three-quarters of an hour.

Molasses Pudding.—Beat together four ounces of butter and three ounces of sugar till quite creamy. Add one well beaten egg, three-quarters of a teacup of molasses and gently fold in half a pound of sifted flour. Add as much slightly warmed milk as will be necessary to form the mixtures into a soft consistency, then add one teaspoonful of ground ginger, and one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat all very well together, pour into a greased basin, or mold, cover with greased paper, and steam for three hours. Turn out on a hot platter and serve immediately.

Molasses Pie.—Beat the yolks of four eggs with one cupful of brown sugar, add one cupful of molasses and two teaspoonfuls of grated nutmeg, then add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two heaping teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, mixed with three tablespoonfuls of cream, and the whites of the eggs stiffly beaten. Pour the mixture into two pie tins lined with pastry. Bake for 40 minutes. Beat up three whites of eggs stiffly, add one heaping tablespoonful of sugar and beat again, then spread over the top of pies, set in oven and brown.

Molasses Muffins.—Quarter cupful of molasses, three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, three eggs, one-half a cupful of milk, one cupful of flour and three-fourths cupful of rye meal. Mix and sift dry ingredients; add remaining ingredients; beat well. Drop from a spoon into smoking hot fat and fry to a golden color. Drain and serve.

Parliament Molasses Cakes.—Two ounces of butter, one pound of molasses, one pound of flour, one tablespoonful ground ginger, pearlash size of a nut, small piece of alum. Melt the butter, add molasses, pour among flour, ginger, add pearlash and alum. Beat mixture till very smooth. Leave it to get cold, roll out thin, cut into long pieces and bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

Stir into one cup boiling water one tablespoonful cornstarch dissolved in a little cold water. Cook until thickened and clear, then add one cupful sugar, a teaspoonful butter and the juice and grated rind of two lemons. Add the beaten yolks of three eggs and take from the fire. Have ready the bottom crust that has been baked, first prick with a fork to prevent blisters. Place the custard in the crust and bake for half an hour. When done take from the oven and spread over the top a meringue made from the stiffly whipped whites of the eggs and three tablespoonfuls sugar. Shut off the heat in the oven so it will be cool, giving the meringue plenty of time to rise, stiffen and color to a delicate gold.

Two Cleansers.

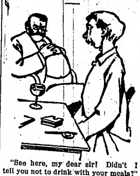
Boiled potatoes are an excellent substitute for soap when the hands have become soiled by contact with blackened pots and pans. Potato water should, besides, be kept for renovating silk.

Although vinegar may be used to clean the outside of copper cooking utensils, care should be taken to avoid letting any fall on the tin lining of the pan. To clean the pan inside and out, by far the best method is to scrub it with soda, hot water and soap. The outside may then be polished with a rag dipped in vinegar.

Stuffed Prunes.

When prunes are to be stuffed it is well to select large ones and soak them over night. Then cook them over so little. Drain and let them dry before stuffing. A mixture of chopped nuts and figs makes a delicious filling for this fruit. After stuffing, the prunes should be rolled in confectioner's sugar.

MEALING WITH HIS DRINK.



"See here, my dear sir! Didn't I tell you not to drink with your meals?"

"But, doctor, be reasonable. I have to eat some time."

NURSE TELLS OF SKIN CURES

"I have seen the Cuticura Remedies used with best results during the past twenty years. In my work as a nurse, many skin disease cases came under my observation, and in every instance, I always recommended the Cuticura Remedies as they always gave entire satisfaction. One case in particular was that of a lady friend of mine who, when a child, was afflicted with eczema which covered her face and hands entirely, breaking out at intervals with severer torture. She could not go to school as the disfigurement looked terrible. I told her to get at once a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the use of only one set she was perfectly well.

"A grown lady friend was afflicted with salt rheum in one of her thumbs, and she was cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Still another lady had dry salt rheum in both palms of her hands every fall of the year. They used to be so painful she could scarcely wet her hands until she began to use the Cuticura Remedies which cured her. I have also seen them cure children of ringworm. The children's faces would be all circles and rings around the cheeks, and the neck, and after treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment they were completely cured. My husband had rheumatism on his arm and I used the Cuticura Ointment. It made his arm as limber and nice, whereas it was quite stiff before I began to apply the Ointment.

"Last May I had an ingrowing toe nail which was very painful, as the side of the nail was edging right down in the side of my toe. I cut the nail out of the cavity it made, and of course applied the Cuticura Ointment to the part affected. It soothed it and in less than ten nights it was all healed through constant use of the Ointment. Ten days ago I had my left hand and wrist burned with boiling lard, and Cuticura Ointment has completely cured them. I have just recommended the Cuticura Remedies to another friend, and she is pleased with the results and is recovering nicely. I will gladly furnish the names of the people referred to above if anybody doubts what I say." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Hederson, 77 Highland Ave., Malden, Mass., Oct. 1, 1910.

Different Now, of Course.

"Civil service reform has given us a splendid army of civil servants. It wasn't always so."

The speaker, Mayor Whitlock of Toledo, smiled.

"When I was writing my first short stories," he resumed, "we had civil servants of a different stamp. An elderly resident of my native Urbana sought out, back in those days, his congressman.

"'Congressman,' he said, 'I supported you at the polls, and now I expect you to get my boy a good civil service job.'

"'All right, friend,' the congressman answered, 'what can your boy do?'

"'Do?' snorted the other. 'What can he do? By crinus, man, if he could do anything, do you think I'd be bothering you?'"

A Sample Quip.

"Thomas W. Lawson's Thanksgiving proclamation was a very good piece of oratorical writing," said a Boston banker. "Lawson is always full of quips.

"Not long ago I attended the funeral of a millionaire financier—one of those real 'high financiers' whose low methods Lawson loves to turn the light on.

"I arrived at the funeral a little late. I took a seat beside Lawson and whispered:

"'How far has the service gone?'

"Lawson, nodding towards the clergyman in the pulpit, whispered back:

"'Just opened for the defense.'"

CHEATED FOR YEARS.

Prejudice Will Cheat Us Often If We Let It.

You will be astonished to find how largely you are influenced in every way by unreasoning prejudice. In many cases you will also find that the prejudice has swindled you, or rather, made you swindle yourself. A case in illustration:

"I have been a constant user of Grape-Nuts for nearly three years," says a correspondent, "and I am happy to say that I am well pleased with the result of the experiment, for such it has been.

"Seeing your advertisement in almost all of the periodicals, for a long time I looked upon it as a hoax. But after years of suffering with gaseous and bitter eructations from my stomach, together with more or less loss of appetite and flesh, I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food for a little time and note the result.

"I found it delicious, and it was not long till I began to experience the beneficial effects. My stomach resumed its normal state, the eructations and bitterness ceased and I have gained all my lost weight back.

"I am so well satisfied with the result that so long as I may live and retain my reason Grape-Nuts shall constitute quite a portion of my daily food."

WHERE GALLANTRY CEASES

One Thing That a Woman Has No Right to Expect From a Man.

"I always believe," he gallantly said, "in yielding to the ladies."

"I suppose you always give way to your wife when you and she happen to have an argument?"

"Invariably."

"And you never fail to relinquish your seat in the car when it happens that some woman would have to stand unless you did so?"

"Certainly."

"Do you take off your hat when you get into an elevator where there are ladies?"

"I never fail to do that."

"If you had secured the last lower berth in a sleeper would you give it up to a lady who would otherwise have to occupy an upper?"

"Of course. I have done it frequently."

"In case you stood in line in front of a ticket window, would you be willing to go away back to the end so that some woman might have your place?"

"Say, what do you think I am—a fool?"

WEAK BACKS MADE STRONG.

Backache in most cases is kidney-ache, and usually accompanied by irregularities of the urine. To remove the pain and weakness, you must cure the kidneys. Do so with Doan's Kidney Pills. J. E. Dunlap, Kennet, Mo., says: "My condition was terrible. I was in bed for six weeks and could not move owing to intense pain in my back. My feet and limbs were swollen and urine scant and distressing. After taking doctor's treatments without relief, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They straightened me up in a hurry."

The Oldest Klickitat.

Jake Hunt, the oldest living Klickitat Indian known, lies at death's door at his home adjoining this town east of here. The old Indian is reputed to be more than 100 years of age.

Years ago an Indian village stood where the Hunt family now carries on a general farming business. All that is left of the old settlement is a little church, a totem pole and numerous mounds where the Klickitats lie who could not reach the century mark. Old Jake says that this was the Indians' paradise before the advent of early white settlers.

Jake Hunt is destined not to die a poor Indian. His lands are as rich and productive as any in the valley and command a high price. He is said to have married seven times during his long career, but there will be only a widow and a few children to fall heir to his valuable property.—Husum Correspondence Portland Oregonian.

IT IS A MISTAKE

Many have the idea that anything will sell if advertised strong enough. This is a great mistake. True, a few sales might be made by advertising an absolutely worthless article but it is only the article that is bought again and again that pays. An example of the big success of a worthy article is the enormous sale that has grown up for Cascarets Candy Cathartic. This wonderful record is the result of great merit successfully made known through persistent advertising and the mouth-to-mouth recommendation given Cascarets by its friends and users.

Like all great successes, trade pirates prey on the unsuspecting public, by marketing fake tablets similar in appearance to Cascarets. Care should always be exercised in purchasing well advertised goods, especially an article that has a national sale like Cascarets. Do not allow a substitute to be palmed off on you.

Faint?
Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery
The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

City Rube Shows Foolish Curiosity

WONDER WHAT HE IS DOIN'

CHICAGO.—When the gentleman from the rural districts arrives in the city and gazes in amazement at the high buildings and looks with awe into the subway he is immediately set down as a Rube with hayseed in his hair and given the merry laugh by the wise city guy, who will then proceed down the street and stand for half an hour on a curbstone to watch an automobilist inflate a punctured tire, or proceed to murder a perfectly good quarter of an hour watching a cook browning the wheats in a restaurant window.

But for absolutely pure and undiluted inquisitiveness you've got to hand it to the city man, for he is right there with the research stuff. He will poke fun at his wife for her knowledge on the subject of the neighbor's doings, but he can show more genuine interest in absolutely nothing that you can imagine, and nothing out of the ordinary run of things in city streets is too small to claim his attention.

He will let his dinner get cold any day to watch a man sitting on the head of a fallen horse or to stare into a hardware store window where some demonstrator is busily engaged whittling on a stick of cordwood with a razor.

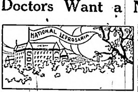
He will send the shoestring vender on his way before he has got his foot fairly inside the threshold of the office door, but will stop upon the street at any time to listen to the remarks of another vender, who is wildly demonstrating a patent collar button.

He is amused as a child with a new toy when he can come across a broken-down ice wagon or watch a man laying gold letters upon a store window.

He will turn himself inside out to get a glimpse of a picture carried under the arm of some citizen, which picture he would never glance at were it hung in some prominent place.

Many a visitor to a city has been badly stung by the simple tastes of the natives in the matter of something exciting. A stranger, coming up one of the main thoroughfares and seeing a crowd of a couple of hundred people, naturally looks for some sort of a catastrophe, and after working his way to the center of the crowd to see them gazing at some new-fangled motor cycle, or watching a laborer ascending from a manhole, is naturally chagrined.

Doctors Want a National Leprosaria



NEW YORK.—Nine lepers, inmates of institutions in the vicinity of this city, were exhibited the other night for public examination at a gathering of physicians in the Academy of Medicine. One of the patients, a Chinaman, was from Paterson, N. J.; two were from Brooklyn, two from the city hospital, three from the skin and cancer hospital. The purpose of exhibiting the lepers is stated to be the beginning of an effort "to educate the public away from the hysterical attiture it has heretofore shown whenever the presence of a leper becomes a matter of general knowledge."

It was declared that the attitude of the people in general toward lepers has not in the least advanced since the middle ages, and that, as a result, many lepers, in fear and terror, conceal the fact that they aer suffering from the disease instead of applying for and receiving humane and intelligent treatment. There are at present 25 cases of leprosy under treatment in New York and vicinity. Many of these patients, it is said, make occasional visits to the shopping district, to banks, or to hospitals, riding openly in trains, street cars and ferry boats.

Six physicians from different parts of the United States and the American colonial possessions discussed leprosy at the meeting, and all agreed that in New York city there is no likelihood of infection. They declare in favor of a national leprosaria, with stations in Florida and San Francisco, urging in favor of such an institution that it was impracticable for the states to take action on account of the small number of cases in each state and it was unfair from a national standpoint to allow one state to drive its lepers across the border into other states. There are now on record, it was asserted, 278 cases in the United States, 176 of them being men and 102 women. Five seaboard states contain almost all of the recorded cases, New York, South Carolina, Florida, California and Massachusetts leading in the order named.

Dr. Charles W. Duval of Tulane university, New Orleans, described his experiments in segregating the bacilli of the disease and his final success in propagating the germs outside of the human body.

Reno Divorce Colony Is Threatened

NEVADA
GOODNESS! I HOPE THEY WAIT UNTIL I GET MY DIVORCE

RENO, NEV.—One of Nevada's chief industries—the granting of divorce while you wait—is in danger of destruction because the gamblers of the state have been put out of business. The legislature will be asked to repeal the law that makes the gamblers go to work, and, if this cannot be accomplished, a bill will be introduced amending the present divorce law and making it as hard to get a divorce here as it is in other states.

Under the present law six months' residence is all that is required, and the divorce colony, all of them good spenders and unemployed while here waiting for the time to tell the court about matrimonial troubles, are a fine source of income.

Not even the most enthusiastic Nevadan believes that these well-to-do, fashionable people of the east come out here because they like the climate, scenery or residents. They come because it offers the shortest route by half of any that leads from matrimony.

In any other state a year's residence is required and Reno is preferred by those in a hurry to living a year under more congenial surroundings.

It is expected that an effort will be made to effect a compromise with those who insist upon this action as retaliation for driving the gambling houses out of the state.

Southern counties are clamoring for the raising of the gambling lid and say they cannot get along without the gambling houses to attract men to town. Reno and Carson City, where the divorce business is liveliest, are determined there shall be no tinkering with the divorce laws. The hotel men, livery men and lawyers are panic-stricken at the prospect of losing business from the colony of women and men who have nothing to do during the six months they are here but spend money.

Mules Run Away With Blazing Cotton

GUTHRIE, OKLA.—With lint cotton selling at $75 a bale, thefts of cotton are frequent in Oklahoma. A bale is rolled from a car into the weeds, or taken from a farmer's barn into his field, and at night the thieves return with a wagon and team and haul the cotton to a nearby town, where it finds ready sale.

Two bales of cotton were found in a ravine at the roadside near Guthrie. The fact was reported to the sheriff, who placed night guards to arrest the persons that came for the cotton. Shortly after midnight three men approached a bale and began rolling it down the highway. When the thieves were commanded to halt, under arrest, they fled and the officers opened fire. One of the thieves, all negroes, was captured, the others escaping.

News of the arrest was telephoned to the sheriff, who got out of bed and started for the scene. The two fugitives had returned with a wagon, and were loading in the cotton when they were surprised and arrested by the sheriff. The other officers came up, and the three captives were handcuffed and put into their wagons. On the way to town one of the negroes stepped on his gun, concealed at the bottom of the wagon, and it exploded, the bullet narrowly missing one of the mules ahead, and the mules ran away.

By the time they were stopped the bale of cotton was on fire, and a strong wind was blowing, with no water near. It was decided to make a fast drive to town, and call out the fire department. The faster the mules ran the higher burned the blazing cotton, scorching one of the negroes. The wagon next caught fire. The fire department put out the flames, but the cotton was destroyed and the wagon ruined.

Goes Higher Up.

Henrietta, aged six, is fond of ham, which has been decreed not good for her. The maternal mandate that she must not eat it, even though the forbidden dainty was offered, proved trying. Henrietta made it a subject of prayer. "Dear God," she was overheard pleading, "keep my papa from putting ham on my plate until I can eat it. I can 'sist the temptation when the ham isn't there, but when it is, my soul seems very weak."

Diamond in a Cigar.

Citizens of Hubbard stopping at a local hotel here and attending district court tell a strange story of suddenly acquired wealth. Will Kyle a few days ago bought a cigar from a dealer at that place. The cigar giving poor service on account of some impediment in the drapping. an examination was made with a penknife and a diamond was found. The sparkler is valued at $225. — Hillsboro Correspondence Houston Post.

HOW TO CLEAN THE METALS

Use Salt and Broken Egg Shells on Enameled Pans and Soda on Galvanized Baths.

Enameled pans should be steeped, the soot removed and then washed with hot water, any burned parts being removed by rubbing them with a coarse flannel dipped in salt and broken egg shells. Then rinse well and dry both inside and out.

Galvanized baths and the like should be rinsed out with hot water and soda directly after they are used. To clean them thoroughly scrub well with soap and water to which soda has been added; dry and then rub with a piece of house flannel dipped first in paraffin and then in silver sand or powdered bath brick until bright. Rinse first in hot and then in cold water and allow to dry in a draft in order to remove the smell of the paraffin.

Tin can be cleaned with whiting mixed to a stiff paste with water or ammonia, but all the powder must be brushed off when dry. Another method is to slice down thinly four ounces of yellow soap and pour over one quart of cold water. Allow this to stand for a day in order to dissolve. Then add a pound of the best whiting, bring it all to a boiling point, keeping it well stirred, so as to insure all being properly mixed; then leave it until cold, when two ounces of spirits of hartshorn are added. Keep this mixture in tightly corked bottles.

Wash zinc thoroughly with warm water. After rubbing it dry rub again with a cloth dipped in either paraffin or turpentine.

English Buns.

One cake of least, three-fourths cup lukewarm milk, one quart sifted flour, four eggs, one-half cup butter, five tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons chopped almonds. Sift flour and salt into bowl, make well in center, break eggs in whole, then add the butter and the milk in which the yeast has been dissolved. Mix thoroughly with a mixing spoon and set aside to rise in a warm place, free from draft, for one and one-half hours. When light turn out on floured kneading board, sprinkle with sugar and chopped almonds and work them into the mass thoroughly by drawing the tips of the fingers lightly and quickly through the dough. Do not knead, then drop by tablespoons, half an inch apart, into greased baking pans, let rise for ten minutes and bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven. The whole process takes about two hours and ten minutes. This recipe will make two dozen buns.

Braised Beef.

A good sized iron or agate ware kettle, with fitted cover is necessary for braised beef. Select 4 or 5 pounds of the bottom of the round; cut into small tubes one cup each of turnip, carrot and onion. Put into kettle and cover with a can of tomato soup; fill the emptied can twice with water and add; wipe meat; sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour; place meat on bed of vegetables and cook about four hours, turning and basting occasionally; It may be necessary to add more water; as there should be a little over a pint when cooked.

When done strain off vegetables and serve around meat on the platter; thicken gravy with flour and pour over meat or serve separately as preferred.

Kitchen and Pantry.

In making cakes, whatever eggs are to be used should be added after all the ingredients are well mixed. By observing this rule two eggs will be found to go as far in enriching the cake and making it light as three would if added at an earlier stage of the preparation.

A teaspoon of salt in the water in the outside vessel of a double boiler will raise the temperature of the contents of the inner vessel. A cereal may be made to boil in this way without danger of burning.

Lemon dipped in salt will clean copper kettles and other metal articles successfully. Afterward they must be well rinsed in clean water and be polished with a soft cloth.

Baked Carrots.

These are very nice and very nourishing, simple and inexpensive: Take 3 or 4 good-sized carrots and cut into dice; put over a moderate fire in slightly salted water and simmer gently (don't boil hard) until very tender; drain off all the water, then mash fine and season with salt, pepper and a little butter; turn into a deep pudding dish and cover with fine cracker or bread crumbs; sprinkle a little salt and a dust of pepper over and 3 or 4 tiny bits of butter; put into a good oven and bake until the crumbs are a delicate brown; serve hot.

To Utilize Pieces of Soap.

Small pieces of toilet soap should be saved from the soap dishes, and when a sufficient quantity has ben collected it should be cut into shavings and dissolved in boiling water. Measure the soap, and to each cupful put two cupfuls of water. When the soap is dissolved, add enough fine oatmeal to make a stiff batter. The mixture is then turned into molds, and when dry makes an excellent soap for the skin.

Dumplings.

Two cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, a little salt. Sift three times. Mix with milk. Put into boiling stew. Cover the kettle with a white cloth, then put on the cover and hold it down with weights to keep out the air. Allow 20 minutes of hard boiling. Take them up and serve immediately. They should be kept lively all the way through.

Baked Hash.

Two cups of meat, one tablespoon of butter, two cups of potatoes, two cups of stock, seasoning to taste. Melt the butter in the frying pan, add the stock, and when heated the meat and potatoes well mixed. Season to taste and stir occasionally until well heated. Turn in to a greased baking dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

TEN MILLION PEOPLE IN THE CANADIAN WEST BY 1920

"Toronto Star," Dec. 16th, 1910.

The prediction is made that before 1920 Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia will have ten million people. It is made not by a sanguine Western journal but by that very sober business newspaper, the New York Commercial. It is based upon actual observation, upon the wheat-growing capacity of the Canadian West, and upon the prospects of development following the building of railways. The writer shows how the position of leading wheat market of the world passed from Milwaukee to Minneapolis and thence to Winnipeg. Canada's wheat-growing belt is four times greater than that of the United States, and only five per cent of Canada's western agricultural area is under cultivation. There are 170,000,000 acres of wheat lands which will make these Western Provinces richer, more populous, more dependable for food supplies than the Western States can ever become. The center of food supremacy will change to Canada, and 25 years more will give this country 40,000,000 population west of Ontario.

All these estimates of population are in the nature of guesses, and must not be read too literally. But the enormous area of wheat-growing land, the rapid construction of railways, and the large volume of immigration are facts which must be recognized. They point to the production of an ever-increasing surplus of wheat and other cereals. However rapidly the urban, the industrial and commercial population of Canada may increase, the increase of home consumption is hardly likely to keep pace with that of the production of wheat; for a single acre of wheat will provide for the average annual consumption of four people.

While production in Canada is thus running ahead of consumption at a prodigious rate, consumption in the United States is overtaking production, and the surplus for export is growing smaller year by year. It is true that the limit of actual power to produce wheat is as yet far away. By methods of intensive cultivation, such as prevail in France, the production could be greatly increased. But with the overflowing granary of Canada so close at hand, it seems likely that our neighbors will begin to import from us, turning their own energies more largely to other forms of agriculture.

It must be remembered that while the Northern States resemble Canada in climate and products, the resemblance diminishes as you go southward. The wheat belt gives place to a corn belt, and this again to semi-tropical regions producing cotton, tobacco, cane-sugar, oranges and other tropical fruits.

The man who secures a farm in Western Canada at the present time secures an investment better than the best of bond of any government or bank. It is no unusual thing for a farmer in Western Canada to realize a profit of from $5 to $10 per acre. There are thousands of free homesteads of 160 acres each still to be had, and particulars can be obtained by writing your nearest Canadian government agent.

The Wise Bishop.

To the brilliant Episcopal bishop of Tennessee, Dr. Thomas F. Gailor, a Memphis man of rather narrow views complained about charity balls.

"I doubt if it be quite reverent, bishop," the man said, "to give a ball for the purposes of charity."

But Bishop Gailor, with a saving burst of common sense, laughed and replied:

"Why, my dear fellow, I'm sure, if it would do anybody any good, I'd dance the whole length of Memphis in full canonicals."

One of the worst things under the sun is a shady reputation.

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:

Natick, Mass.,—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor.

"I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Greaton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for Change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth.

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting, I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

☞ Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

HAD LITTLE RAIN

DRIEST YEAR IN HISTORY OF STATE FOR 20 YEAS, IS VERDICT OF TABLES.

RECORD FOR 20 YEARS

No Serious Storms Noted—Average Temperature Shown to Have Been Normal During Year.

St. Paul.—The driest year in the history of the state for the last 20 years and perhaps much further back, is the record of 1910 in Minnesota. Less than half the average rainfall and less than one-third the rainfall of some years is the official report that to those who know means a vision of burning vegetation, choking dust, sleepless nights, water famine and the loss of millions to the state. The rainfall was only 11.59 inches.

Not only did crops suffer but many thousands of dollars were lost in river towns where dependence was placed on the river for power. At Winona during August the manufacturing plants of the city were often shut down for hours at a time because the narrowing Mississippi refused to turn the water wheels or to allow the water plant's pipes to suck up the water needed for fire protection and human consumption.

Many Prayers for Rain.

It is said that more prayers were made during the summer of 1910 in Minnesota than ever before and it was no uncommon thing for an entire family to gather about the sitting room at night and pray for rain to save the withering grain and scorched fruit. The roaring of thunder was a sweeter sound in Minnesota last summer than the finest strain of symphony orchestra.

Storms whose fury has made them historical marks and from which events were figured, were almost entirely lacking during the year. Even the hail storms during which hail "as large as goose eggs" fell, were not recorded and instead of the oldest inhabitant regaling the "cracker box debating society" with stories of the big storms of '63, the time was spent in trying to recall a like draught.

There were some other unusual phenomena during the year, including the fact that March, 1910, was the warmest month in the last 25 years. The average temperature was over 41. The hottest day was not in August as one might expect, but in June. On the last day of that month the mercury climbed to 102.

Temperatures Were Normal.

In spite of the fact that some queer temperatures were taken the average for the year was normal, it being 46.01. The coldest day was at Bagley, where it registered 43 below zero on Feb. 18.

The past month is said to have been very mild in comparison with other years and will have a high general average. The regularly report of the Minneapolis branch of the weather bureau will be issued in a few days. Following is a table of the yearly average rainfall and temperature for the last 20 years:

	Rainfall Inches	Temperature
1891	24.81	45.6
1892	36.72	44.2
1893	29.93	43.1
1894	22.84	47.2
1895	21.44	44.6
1896	30.65	45.0
1897	28.37	44.1
1898	25.92	45.6
1899	24.93	44.4
1900	34.80	46.3
1901	22.30	45.2
1902	32.01	44.9
1903	36.19	43.1
1904	31.23	42.2
1905	33.49	43.9
1906	35.14	45.0
1907	36.30	42.6
1908	34.18	46.2
1909	29.95	43.8
1910	11.59	46.1

WILL RUN AS INDEPENDENTS.

Office-Holding Element Prepares for Primary at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud.—At a meeting of democratic city officials who plan to be candidates for re-election it was decided to run as independents. City Attorney Bennett hold that St. Cloud is compelled to have a primary election. It was further discovered that yesterday was the last day for filing, and at the eleventh hour it came to light that as St. Cloud is partly in Stearns county, partly in Benton and a little corner in Sherburne, it is necessary for the candidates from the city at large to file with the secretary of state. For this reason it was decided that all candidates will run independently, hence at the primary election there will be no names on the ballots.

HOMESTEADERS' CASE ARGUED.

Supreme Court Considers 200 Minnesota Titles.

St. Cloud.—The Wass case, an action in which a test is being made by the Northern Pacific, which involves the titles of about 200 homesteaders in Morrison and Todd counties, has been argued for a second time in United States supreme court. The case is being watched with interest by the homesteaders of the two northern counties.

SOCIALISTS ARE DISAPPOINTED.

Crewd at Girard, Kas., Do Not See Convicted Editor Jailed.

Fort Scott, Kansas. — Expecting to attend the demonstration at the incarceration of Fred Waren, editor of the Appeal to Reason, convicted of improper use of the mails, many Socialists from all parts of the country came here. They erred as to the date. The mandate of the court of appeals authorizing his imprisonment has not been received here.

MINNESOTA BOOSTERS MEET.

State Federation of Commercial Clubs Begins Annual Convention.

St. Paul. — With "Keep pushing; talk Minnesota," for their rallying cry, scores of men devoted to furthering the interests of the state assembled in this city in the parlors of the St. Paul Commercial Club. They are members of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs and are holding their fourth annnual convention. President D. M. Neill, of Red Wing, was in the chair and introduced the mayor, Herbert P. Keller, who welcomed the delegates to the city. Then Louis Betz, president of the local Commercial Club, greeted the visitors. Governor Eberhart followed with the chief address of the morning, his subject being "The Value of United Effort."

In the afternoon, after the committee on credentials had reported, the subject of development work in Minnesota was taken up. President J. H. Worst, of the North Dakota Agricultural college, spoke on agricultural education. State Auditor S. G. Iverson on good roads, W. J. Whipple, of Winona, on "Government Roads vs. the Improvement of the Mississippi River," and A. B. Hostetter, of Duluth, on "What the Commercial Club Can Do for the Farmer." Tonight there will be a banquet.

The closing subject will be "Advertising Minnesota's Resources," with addresses by Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific railroad; E. H. Canfield, of Luverne, and Will A. Campbell, of Omaha.

SLEEPING CHILDREN TRAPPED.

Father Is Killed by Blast of Fire in Farmhouse Kitchen.

Albert Lea. — The last report from the fatal fire in the township of Riceland shows N. C. Jenson, instead of Hanson, and three of his children died in the burning house.

Mrs. Jenson escaped from the burning building in her night clothes and barefooted, and after tying sacks on her feet walked through the snow to a neighbor for help.

Three children, aged 6, 4 and 2 years, were burned in their beds, probably smothering, as the fire burned fiercely. Mr. Jenson arose, says his widow, about 6 a. m. to build a fire in the kitchen, and shortly after he left the room. Mrs. Jenson heard him give a loud cry and there was a noise like an explosion and as she opened the door the flames rushed in so she could not shut it. She does not know how she escaped.

Mother and Children Flee.

Two other children, Esther, aged 11 year, and Albert, 9 years old, with the infant in Mrs. Jenson's arms, escaped, but Esther is badly burned about the head and hands and she was brought to the hospital here for treatment. Probably all four will recover, but the eldest of the children is in a serious condition and will be badly scarred from the burns.

Mr. Jenson was 55 years old and rented the farm on which he resided, the place being 10 or 11 miles east of this city. Every aid possible is being extended by the neighbors and the sufferers will be made as comfortable as can be under the circumstances.

FOR SOLICITING A BRIBE.

Indictment of Former County Official Causes Sensation.

Fergus Falls.—A sensation was created here by the indictment of Martin Aalberg, former county surveyor, on the charge of soliciting a bribe. This county has had about forty ditches dug in recent years, and under the law the county commissioners appoint an engineer to draw plans and specifications for each ditch and to have some supervision over it. This engineer certifies when a ditch is completed, and the contractor then secures his pay.

Mr. Aalberg has acted as engineer in many such cases and the indictment charges that he agreed to certify to the county board that a ditch in the vicinity of New York Mills was completed provided the contractor, Matt Lohi, would give him $60, when the truth was that the ditch was not completed, according to plans and specifications, at the time.

Aalberg was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He asked for an immediate trial, and the case was set for Friday. County Attorney Thompson has been Mr. Aalberg's neighbor for years and has asked that an outside attorney prosecute the case.

LITTLE JAR AT ST. CLOUD.

Mayor and Councilmen Disagree Over Tax on Public Dances.

St. Cloud.—Mayor D. H. Freeman and the city councilmen have locked horns. The council meeting instructed City Treasurer Rosholl to refund all licenses which had been charged for public dances since the first of the year, as the city attorney had reported he could see no authority for levying a license of $5 upon public dances as exhibitions.

MEMORIAL SCULPTOR HERE.

Andrew O'Connor to Confer With Memorial Commission.

St. Paul. — Andrew O'Connor of Paris, sculptor for the John A. Johnson memorial commission, is in St. Paul, to remain several days in conference with the committee that is engaged in planning for the monument to Governor Johnson. Mr. O'Connor submitted his first designs last fall, but they met with considerable criticism and were rejected.

Aberdeen Rail Station Burns.

Aberdeen, S. D. — The division headquarters, local freight houses and passenger station of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad here were burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

New Mexico Favors Charter.

Santa Fe, N. M. — The official vote of New Mexico on the constitution will not be known for several days. The unofficial returns, however, confirm the predicted majority of 17,000 for the constitution.

QUEEN OF THE ADRIATIC HALF DROWNED

THE PIAZZA OF ST. MARK'S UNDER WATER

THE winter floods that are causing great losses and distress over much of central and southern Europe have affected Venice also and many of the usually dry spots of that city of canals have been inundated. Even the Piazza of St. Mark's, to which visitors first hurry, has been entirely flooded and presented a novel appearance to those familiar with the ordinary aspect of this most famous sight of the Queen of the Adriatic.

AGE ON MATRIMONY

Speaker Recommends 21 Years as the Limit.

President of Eugenic Society Explains to English Royal Commission His Views on Marriage—Certificate of Fitness

London.—The eugenic view of matrimony, including the proposal to establish a new age limit for marriage, was explained to the royal commission on divorce by Mr. Montague Crackenthorpe, K. C., president of the Eugenic Society.

In this view, he said, marriage was an institution designed, amongst other things, for the continuance of the human race. It should, therefore, be regulated by the community, which had a great interest in the children born into it.

One-half of eugenic teaching was concerned with the production of the fit, the other with the elimination of the unfit. So when certain defects were present before marriage in one of the intending parties the marriage should not take place, and if they developed after marriage it should be dissoluble at the instance of the unblemished party.

It is absolutely cruel that a man should marry a girl of whom he knows very little—except that he has met her in society and regarded her as a charming object—and shortly after marriage she should show herself of unsound mind and has to be put away, and that man is made a celibate against his will.

As to the equality of the sexes, it was contended that there should be perfect equality, but biologically the sexes were not and never could be made equal. The sexes started equal, but with adolescence they differentiated and nature had ordained that.

The sexes were not equal, for you must consider consequences. If a single act on the part of a man be followed by the same legal consequence as misconduct on the part of a wife divorce will be made too "easy," for a little collusion would always bring about a divorce.

"Marriage," continued Mr. Crackanthorpe, "should only be permitted after a certificate of fitness for matrimony had been obtained.

"Moreover, no man should be 'allowed to marry before the age of twenty-one and no woman before the age of eighteen."

Witness said that in suggesting these rules, the Eugenic Society had not forgotten that marriage involved questions of sex instinct and passion. These rules might have been found impracticable in every age, race and country in the past, but "what may not be practicable in one age may be practicable in another."

"Banns," he continued, "were inadequate as at present published. They should be published in an official 'matrimonial gazette.'"

He was followed by F. W. Mott, of Charing Cross hospital, and pathologist of the L. C. C. asylums. He had been nominated by the Eugenic Society, he said, to give evidence on insanity and inebriety.

He dealt first with heredity and insanity. There were twenty thousand lunatics in London asylums. Two thousand who had been in the asylums in the last two years had relatives in asylums. He advocated divorce in cases of chronic, incurable insanity as beneficial to the individual and to society.

Drink, he went on, had a pernicious effect on mentally unstable people, and caused the sending of many to asylums. A very small quantity made them anti-social and insane. He did not find that the children of drunkards were feeble minded, but if the influence existed for two or three generations disease manifested itself.

Dr. Chambers, joint editor of the Journal of Mental Science, said that the remedy lay not in making insanity a ground for divorce, but in preventing the marriage of the unfit. The knowledge that insanity was a ground for divorce would have a prejudicial effect on the mental health of some people, and would distress the minds and retards the recoveries of many of the insane who were under care.

The last witness of the day was Dr. G. H. Savage, the famous mental expert, who has forty years' experience in the treatment of the insane. He had written to medical officers of asylums asking whether insanity was a justifiable ground for divorce, receiving eighty-two replies. These were: Yes, 51; no, 29; indifferent, 2.

He himself thought that, despite the existence of a very large number of cases of individual hardship, there was no ground for immediate action.

Airships to Scare Natives

That Is the Plan of the Author of Bill Now Before French Chamber of Deputies.

Paris.—A project for the use of aeroplanes with which to frighten the natives of the French colonies in Africa into submission has been introduced in the chamber of deputies in the form of a bill providing for an appropriation of $80,000 for "colonial military aviation." It seems probable that the measure will be passed in view of the recent defeat of the French by the tribesmen of Onadai, when Colonel Moll, commander of the French forces, was among the slain. Deputy Gasparin, who is a strong advocate of the plan, said today:

"Would the sad events at Onadai have hapened if Colonel Moll had at his disposition a few aeroplanes? Perhaps not. Anyway, in the desert regions, where the means of transportation are very meager, the aeroplane could be used to carry orders. Certainly the sight of a great white-winged airship sailing overhead would be sufficient to inspire the natives with a salutary fear and tend to calm their warlike feelings. They would understand that they had no chance against the power of France and would submit to its domination loyally.

"Yes, there should be aeroplanes not only in West Africa but also in Indo-China, the Kongo and Madagascar. The last named country offers superior conditions for experiments. The inhabitants have long demanded a railway connecting Tananarivo with the west coast. Instead of devoting immense sums to this work and burdening the colony with heavy debts, why not consider an aeroplane service? I understand that M. Picquie, governor of the island, is actually studying the question of using aeroplanes for carrying the mails. Undoubtedly French prestige will be tremendously increased when the natives behold the first aeroplane skimming over the capital of Madagascar."

Warm Current Is Found.

St. Petersburg.—The Russian expedition under Geologist M. Rusanoff has discovered a warm ocean current around Nova Zembla, but not passing through the Kara sea, where Nansen and others sought for such a current. It is expected that in consequence of the discovery the maratime route to the mouths of Siberian rivers will henceforth be north instead of south of Nova Zembla.

2,500,000 More Subjects of Czar.

St. Petersburg.—This year's census of the Russian empire adds another 6,000,000 to the population as enumerated in 1908. The czar's subjects now number 160,0000,000 and increase every year by 2,500,000 despite wars, epidemics and internal disturbances.

Billy Goat Thrashes Cop

Butting and Bucking He Sends Policeman Skidding—Animal Is Finally Killed.

Pittsburg, Pa.—For assaulting a policeman, breaking his mace, crushing his helmet over his ears, tearing his clothes and making him the laughing stock of the community, Billy Clark was killed. Everyone in Woods Run—or at least around Harland avenue and Sarah street—knew Bill. He was a goat owned by Patrick Clark of 86 Sarah street, and the Clark children had him broken to harness.

At 9 o'clock the other night the goat broke out of its shed and went to Harland avenue, where it drove many young coasters up telegraph poles, etc. Officer Michael Redman was told that "Bill Clark was on another tear," and he hurried to the scene. Bill was holding Harland avenue.

"Come here to me, Bill," said the officer very sweetly, and he approached the goat cautiously with mace unsheathed. The goat "came" before Redman expected it and the officer sped for some distance along the icy pavement on the peak of his helmet and his stomach. As the policeman sat up and looked around the goat made another charge. Redman struck the animal over the head with his mace. The mace was shattered and a piece of it flying through the air broke a window, but it did not stop Bill.

The policeman then seized the goat by the horns. For the next three minutes the fight was even and spectators cheered. Finally Redman drew his revolver and killed Bill.

Japanese Print Brings $1,150.

London.—A copy of the most famous print of the Japanese artist, Utamaro, "The Divers of Ise," realized the record price of $1,150 at Messrs. Sotheby's rooms. In 1871 a copy made $210 and in 1907 another copy realized $260.

CARROT IN PLACE OF EGGS

Teacher of Minneapolis Cooking School Finds Excellent Substitute Saving in Cost.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Carrots are being used as a substitute for eggs in the evening class of the public cooking school.

Tho teacher, Miss Frich, has been obliged to curtail the use of eggs as the price has soared. She got along nicely until the approach of the holidays season, when all the students wanted to learn how to cook English plum pudding. Lots of eggs are needed in plum pudding, and Miss Frich found she could not afford to teach the students a plum pudding course unless she found a substitute for eggs.

After a long series of experiments Miss Frich solved the problem. She found that mashed carrots are an excellent substitute for eggs. The results are equally satisfactory. The man who eats the product does not know the difference, she declares, and the saving in cost is wonderful.

Dog's Smiles Hang a Jury

Mute Witness, Charged With Having Bitten Boys, Saves Master From Heavy Damages.

New York.—In spite of his merrily wagging tail and his broad grin, Bang got a pretty bad name. Eleven-year-old Sophie Kann told Judge O'Dwyer in the city court that Bang had bitten her over one eye. Willie Silverstein fifteen years old, a student in the city college, exhibited a torn ear as another result fo Bang's viciouness.

Bang, who is a setter, came to court as star witness for himself in Sophie's father's suit for $2,000 damages against Hiram D. Phelps, 166 Thirty-sixth street and Willis avenue. Bang's owner. On taking the stand Bang looked pleasantly about the court room and genially remarked "Woof." Turning to the judge he announced "Garoof gur-r." Then Bang made the round of the jurors, graciously letting each one scratch his head.

But tiny Sophie gave him a character far different from that he gave himself. She showed her torn forehead and told how Bang had done it. She and other children were playing in front of Phelp's office, she said, and went close to his auto. Bang leaped from the machine and bit her. Willie Silverstein said that two weeks before Sophie's accident Bang had bitten him under similar circumstances.

Louis Steckler, counsel for Phelps pleaded to the jury that the dog be allowed one bite. "And all the evidence shows only one nip was taken," he added. After remaining out two hours the jurors were unable to agree and Judge O'Dwyer instructed them to bring in a sealed verdict.

Memorial for Julia Ward Howe.

Boston.—A memorial painting of the late Julia Ward Howe will be added to the portrait collection in Faneuil hall, according to plans just perfected at a public meeting. The painting is to cost $3,000 and the money is to be raised by subscription.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—A comprehensive educational bill abolishing the board of regents of the state university and eliminating every educational board was submitted to the house committee on education by Representative W. T. Stone of Park Rapids. It calls for the creation of an entirely new system of educational supervision in Minnesota and is along the lines of the recommendation made by Governor Eberhart to centralize responsibility in state government.

Mr. Stone proposes the creation of a state educational commission to consist of five members to be appointed by the governor. This board is to act in a supervisory capacity over every state educational institution in the state.

W. I. Nolan's resolution providing for a record of the roll calls on the final vote on all bills, considered by the committee, passed the house by a large majority.

Representative C. E. Stone, of St. Paul, introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $500,000 for the construction of a historical library museum and a collection of historic relics for the State Historical society.

"Representation shall be based on population, except in cities of 100,000 or more, in which case the population shall be double that of other sections as a basis of representation." The above amendment to the constitution of the state of Minnesota was introduced by Senator Works in the senate and was referred to the committee on reapportionment.

Senator Wilson introduced a bill regulating liquor licenses and brewery control. Senator Wilson's bill provides that it shall be unlawful for any brewery or wholesale liquor house or their agents to assist in procuring a saloon license or own or rent any building in which the liquor is retailed.

New liquor option rules for cities of the fourth class were proposed by Senator Sageng in a bill introduced before the senate.

His bill provides that a petition signed by 10 per cent of the voters in any village or town of the fourth class was sufficient to compel the clerk of the town to put the question of liquor licensing or not liquor licensing on the ballot at the next election. At least 10 voters must sign the petition, however, even though there are less than 100 voters. The number of voters shall be the number who cast their ballots at the last election.

A bill giving the railroad and warehouse commission authority to regulate telephone companies was introduced in the house by Representative Schwartz. It would compel telephone companies to conect with intersecting lines of other companies where this action would improve the service.

Any city that appropriated funds for the relief of the fire sufferers at Baudette and Spooner, without authority in its charter, will have their acts legalized if a bill introduced by Senator Sullivan is passed.

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—A tabulated estimate of the appropriations desired by the University of Minnesota was placed on the desk of members of the senate. The list tell a story in figures of the improvement plans for the next biennial session now in the minds of the members of the board of regents. As already published, it totals $5,499,895.

New Tax Law Is Proposed.

Speaking before the senate committee on taxes and tax laws Samuel Lord, a member of the state tax commission, declared the present Minnesota statute, providing for assessing property at its full value, had resulted in innumerable violations of the law.

"We need provision for a new basis of assessment," Mr. Lord said. "Property should be assessed at 50 per cent of its real valuation, or even less. County assessors should be substituted for village assessors. Under the present plan, the job of the village assessor is cheap and sometimes it is auctioned off or given to pensioners. As the law now stands, the man with lots of property gets the best of the deal."

At the committee meeting approval was given the Wallace bill exempting from taxation the bonds of public corporations, and recommendation will be made that it pass. Approval was also given the measure exempting from taxation the property of fire relief associations. A sub-committee composed of Senator Boyle, Sundberg and Gunderson was appointed to examine the bill providing a tax on mortgages.

Senator Boyle of Eveleth, has been invited to deliver the Lincoln Day address in St. Paul, on the occasion of the annual celebration of that event. Notable men have been invited to address this gathering in the past, notably Frank B. Kellogg, Joseph B. Cotton and others.

St. Paul, Jan. 25.—The county option fight is on. Following a long series of conferences, with long debates as to whom should introduce the measure, whether it should first appear in the house or senate, the measure finally was introduced in the house today by Representative Henry Rines, of Mora. It was immediately referred to the temperance committee.

This committee is pledged to report it out promptly to the house so its discussion will commence at once. In the senate the same measure will be introduced by Senator Victor L. Johnson, of Chisago county.

The new measure is the result of the work of Rev. C, Charles W. Stark and of P. J. Youngdahl, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

Mr. Stark says that as to its intent it is practically the same as the bill introduced two years ago, although some of the provisions are different.

It provides for the submission of a county option measure at special elections to be held on other than general or primary election days.

A petition of 25 per cent of the voters of the county will be sufficient to cause such an election. After an election is to be held under the provisions of the bill, another election is not to be held for three years subsequent to that time.

If the county votes "dry," then, after a lapse of sixty days, the saloonmen must dispose of their property and the county lid goes on.

Elections on county option are to be held on days other than primary and general election days.

Judges of election shall represent different sides of the question.

Sixty days' advance notice of the election is to be given.

Penalty for violation of the county option law if passed will be a fine of from $30 to $100 or imprisonment of from 30 to 90 days.

Seed For Fire District.

Representative G. H. Mattson's bill setting aside $25,000 for purchasing timothy, clover, red-top and other grass seed for the homesteaders in the northern Minnesota forest fire district for reseeding their lands, passed the house.

A bill introduced by Representative Cal E. Stone sets apart $25,000 for a statue of Alexander Ramsey, first territorial governor of Minnesota. The statue is to be erected on the capitol grounds.

Andrew Anderson of Lakeville proposes a separate state prison and reformatory for women. In a bill he provides authority to the board of control to expend $25,000 for acquiring not less than 160 acres for such institution.

Senator W. S. Dwinnell's bill permitting the city of Minneapolis to increase the rate of interest on its permanent improvement bond issue from 4 to 4½ per cent was passed.

A loan board to invest state funds in first mortgages on farms is proposed in a bill by Representative S. N. Lee, of Rollag. This measure authorizes the creation of a board, consisting of the governor, attorney general and state auditor, who shall have the power to loan the state and school funds which may be available to the farmers of Minnesota. Only 30 per cent of the value of a farm may be loaned, and in no case shall the amount exceed $2,000.

The rate of interest is placed at 4 per cent.

A resolution calling for a legislative investigation of the state drainage commission was submitted to the house committee of the Minnesota legislature. The committee consists of Representatives Thomas Kneeland, Albert Pfaender and C. H. Warner.

This action was taken after the legislature had heard certain charges preferred by C. H. Warner of Aitkin county and W. Brown of Koochiching county, which they considered of such serious nature that an investigation should follow.

Representative Warner, who is behind the movement, explained what he termed the lax and incompetent work of the commission, with the use of maps of northern Minnesota counties. He outlined the drainage work which has been carried on, its alleged impracticability as well as the comparative cost of digging the state ditches.

Specific charges were that the contracts for ditch No. 68 in Aitkin county had not been let until after the work had been completed. Another charge was that Engineer Ralph of the state drainage commission had written the board of county commissioners of Aitkin county that one ditch contract had been let at 7½ cents a cubic yard and when the bill came in it was rated at 12 cents a cubic yard.

NEGRO WAS LYNCHED.

But His Victim, a Deputy Sheriff, Will Likely Recover.

Opelousas, Louisiana. — Oval Boulard, a negro, who shot Chief Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lefleur of Evangeline Parish was lynched at Ville Platte. The negro was taken from the jail and hanged to a tree. Officer Lefleur, who was shot while attempting to arrest the negro on a charge of discharging fire arms, will recover.

Now Circle Globe in 37 Days.

Seattle, Wash. — The development of the Japanese port of Tsuruga has made it possible to go around the world in 37 days. Leaving Seattle a traveler may land in Yokohama in twelve days. By taking train to Tsuruga and steamer to the trans-Siberian Railroad terminus and continuing by the fastest train to London he may cover the distance from Yokohama in 16 days. By the fastest steamers and trains he may travel from London to Seattle in a little more than nine days, thus completing the round trip.

REDMOND IS RE-ELECTED.

Home Rule Leader Again Chosen President of Irish League.

Dublin, Ireland.—John E. Redmond was unanimously re-elected president of the United Irish league. The league adopted resolutions reaffirming its position that no settlement of the Irish question would be acceptable which did not confer the right for a full self-government through an Irish parliament with an executive responsible to such a parliament.

Ketchel's Slayers Convicted.

Marshfield, Missouri. — Guilty in the first degree was the verdict in the case of Walter A. Dipley and Goldie Smith, charged with the murder of Stanley Ketchel, pugilist. Sentences of life imprisonment were recommended.

Washington, D. C. — Charlton R. Beattie, United States attorney at New Orleans, has refused to accede to Attorney General Wickersham's request that he resign and has so notified the department of justice.

NEW YORK STRIKES BLOW TO BRIBERY

TO ELIMINATE LEGISLATIVE GRAFT

Lengthy Report Made as Result of Investigation in Albany—Office of State Fire Marshal Created.

Albany, Feb. 2.—The enactment of a drastic corrupt practices act, with a maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine for the failure of a legislator to report immediately any attempt to buy or influence his vote, and the adoption of sweeping changes and far-reaching reforms in the fire insurance laws of the state are recommended in a lengthy report of the legislative investigating committee, submitted to the legislature.

The Proposed Reforms.

Drafts of bills which the committee proposes shall be enacted into law are included in the report. The proposed reforms include:

Placing of rate-making associations, as organizations, including the New York fire insurance exchange, under control of the superintendent of insurance.

Investing the superintendent with ample power to prevent discrimination in rates. Transfer of the power to license brokers from the New York fire insurance exchange and similar organizations to the state superintendent of insurance.

Enactment of an anti-rebate law, prohibiting the sharing or "splitting" of premiums and making it a misdemeanor to give or accept rebates.

Creation of a new office, to be known as state fire marshal, to be empowered with sweeping authority for inspection of property and investigation of fires.

Corrupt Practices Probed.

The investigation committee was appointed by the senate and assembly of 1910 to investigate corrupt practices and insurance other than life insurance. It consisted of members of both bodies. The committee examined 184 witnesses in 42 days.

In probing corrupt practices in connection with legislation the committee, according to the report, investigated alleged bribe-giving brought to the surface in investigations conducted in 1910 by the senate and the state superintendent of insurance and certain other unverified allegations. These allegations, the report with the payment by the state of a beet sugar bounty, the passage of the anti-race track gambling law and of amendments to the agricultural law with reference to milk.

The committee found abundant evidence of graft. Concerning bribery, the report says:

"The crime of bribery is one of the most difficult of all crimes to uncover. All the resources of ingenuity are used to conceal it, and only in exceedingly rare instances are either of the parties to the crime willing to come forward and disclose the facts."

By making the bill which it recommends a law the committee believes that the giving and taking of bribes would be greatly reduced.

PUERTO CORTEZ EVACUATED.

Government Leaves City and Marines Take Charge.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, Feb. 2.—The evacuation of Pureto Cortez by the Honduran government troops has taken place and the town is now in the hands of the American and British marines, who are awaiting the arrival of the forces of General Manuel Bonilla, the leader of the revolutionists.

Several days ago trenches were dug and guns placed outside the limits of the town and government troops were stationed there to oppose the insurgents, but these were withdrawn Monday aftrnoon, the governor having asked the commanders of the international forces for 48 hours in which to evacuate the city. He asked also for protection and marines were then landed from the United States gunboat Marietta and the British cruiser Brilliant to prevent disorders.

Prior to this, orders had been issued that no fighting would be permitted within Puerto Cortez. Two special trains conveyed the government soldiers to San Pedro and Commander Cooper of the Marietta assumed control.

Recall for California.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 2.—The state senate passed a bill providing for the initiative and referendum and the recall for municipalities of California. America.

PARALYZED STUDENT IMPROVED.

Philadelphia Boy Injured in Wrestling Match.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Harold Collins Warren, the Princeton university student who injured his spine in a wrestling match in the university gymnasium Dec. 9, was brought to his parents' home in Swarthmore. Following the accident Warren was paralyzed from the waist down, but during the last two weeks he has been able to move his legs.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN IS DYING

LAST MESSAGE IS, "KEEP OUR COUNTRY CONSERVATIVE."

Visited by Cardinal Gibbons With Whom He Conversed at Length.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2. — Most Rev. Patrick John Ryan, archbishop of Philadelphia, who has lain almost at the point of death since last Thursday, is still alive, but his condition is extremely critical. During the afternoon he gave what is probably his last message to the world and his adopted country through Cardinal Gibbons, who visited him in the cathedral residence.

"He is weak and his pulse flickers. He was able to converse with us, but his speech is not nearly so fluent as in the afternoon when he was talking with Cardinal Gibbons."

Cardinal Gibbons made two visits to the dying prelate. On the first visit, when he entered the room the archbishop's eyes were closed and the cardinal placed his hand gently on his head, saying:

"Your grace does not know me."

"After 44 years I know, every tone of your eminence's voice," the archbishop replied without opening his eyes, "and now I am, as I ever have been, profoundly convinced that you are the instrument of providence for the promotion of every good thing for our church and country."

During the conversation the archbishop said:

"If we keep our country conservative no country will be as great as this. No country has such elements of greatness as this."

Following his second visit, Cardinal Gibbons said in an interview:

"The archbishop's mind is still clear. His memory is tenacious. He recalled interesting events of many different periods in his life, and not only events, but persons also. He exhibits a manner that is worthy of his more healthful days. I need not say how much I have been edified by his sentiments, rejoicing in the advancement of religion in this country and saying that the hopes and stability of this nation depend upon the permanence of our religious and moral principles."

CAPT. TUCKER RESIGNS.

Grandson of General Logan Leaves the Army.

Wshington, Feb. 2.—Captain Logan Tucker of the United State marine corps has tendered his resignation to the president. It has been accepted, to take effect on March 31. Captain Tucker is a grandson of Mrs. John A. Logan and has been on duty in the quartermaster's department of the marine corps since 1908.

Naturalists Off for Africa.

New York, Feb. 2.—Off for a three years' hunt in tropical Africa, India, Borneo and the Malay archipelago, Paul J. Rainey, whose last big hunt was in the Arctic with Harry Whitney, sailed on the Mauretania. Dr. M. E. Hohnso, a naturalist, sailed with him and the two will represent semi-officially the New York Zoological society and the Smithsonian Institution of Washington. They will not only kill and capture game but endeavor to roll off 100,000 feet of moving picture films

MANY KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN NEW YORK

SEVERAL OTHER BOATS WRECKEE

Jersey Central Terminal in Ruins—Piers Torn to Splinters—Over 300 Persons Injured by Shock and Glass.

New York, Feb. 2.—A cargo of dynamite in transit from a freight car to the hold of a lighter moored at pier No. 7, Communipaw, N. J., let go at just one minute past noon, and in the widespread ruin that followed seven men are known to have been killed, seven more are missing, hundreds were wounded and varying reports leave from 15 to 20 more unaccounted for.

Thirty-two seems to be a conservative estimate of the dead and property damage will hardly fall below $750,000. The cause of the explosion probably never will be known.

The Jersey Central terminal was wrecked; three ferry boats in the slips were torn and splintered; lower Manhattan across the river was shaken from the street level to the top of the Singer tower; severe damage was done in Brooklyn and Staten island and to the immigrant detention station on Ellis Island; the shock was felt at Amityville, Long Island, 35 miles distant, and in New Jersey at Long Branch, 45 miles away.

The damage is so widely scattered that it is impossible as yet to more than roughly estimate it, but in Manhattan alone it is placed at $100,000 and on Ellis island at from $10,000 to $25,000. In all, three quarters of a million appears to be a fair estimate.

Lighter Vanishes.

The lighter receiving the dynamite, the Katherine W., owned by James Healing of Jersey City, vanished utterly with her crew of seven men, including the master, Edward Trayer. Alongside was the lighter Whistler, which was so shattered that she sank with her crew of two, while the Swedish steel barkentine Ingrid was stripped of her rigging and the lives of two deck hands snuffed out. Fragments of one man's head were found swinging high on a tangled piece of rope.

On board the Ingrid the steel mizzen-mast snapped off above the lower yard and the tangled wreckage came tumbling about the decks. Everything abaft the mizzenmast was levelled flat but the steel plates of the hull held stoutly.

For 100 feet the pier end itself was demolished. Over the broken edges twisted the steel rails of track. A steel gondola car on the southernmost track looked like an old hat that had been used by boys for football. All about were strange freaks of the explosion.

In the train shed of the terminal nearly the whole southern exposure of the glass roof collapsed, showering the passengers with broken glass. One man was struck by a 20-pound fragment and so severely cut that he died. An engineer in a shunting locomotive was blown from his cab and died of a fractured skull. A tug boat captain was hurled from his wheel house and fished out of the water 15 minutes later, swimming about the southern side of the demolished pier.

Inside the passenger station there was damage visible everywhere.

Streets Strewn With Glass.

The shock of the explosion caused fire alarms to be rung in from various parts of the downtown section and fire apparatus from all the nearby stations was sent scurrying around the district in a vain search for the scene of the explosion, which at first was commonly reported to be on the lower end of Manhattan island.

Broadway and Church streets from Fulton street south were literally showered with fragments of glass, broken from hundreds of windows on these thoroughfares. The plate glass windows in the customs house were shattered and there was extensive breakage of windows on all sides.

The explosion caused panics in several of the big downtown office buildings which seemed rocked to their foundations by the shock. Alarmed employes and tenants of the structures made rushes for the elevators and other exits. The quick subsidence of the tremblings, however, seemed speedily to reassure the alarmed multitudes and there were no early reports of casualties due to the panicky conditions which prevailed.

New Move in Eddy Will Case.

Boston, Feb. 2.—A move to carry out the terms of the will of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, founder of Christion Science, was made. A bill in equity was filed in the supreme judicial court, asking that the executor of the will and the trustees of certain trust indentures executed by Mrs. Eddy in 1907 and 1908 be instructed to turn over her real estate in Massachusetts to the directors of the First Church of Christ in Boston, the residuary legatee under the will. The residuary legacy is $1,500,000.

STORMS IN THE NORTHWEST

SEVERAL POINTS SNOWBOUND, BUT TEMPERATURE IS MILD.

Barnesville, Minn. Feb. 2.—Western Minnesota is in the grip of an unusually severe wind and snow storm. The Great Northern Railway company has taken precautions against the storm and as a result all westbound freights are held up here until the storm abates.

Fiercest Storm of Winter.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 2.—Northern North Dakota is snowbound with the fiercest storm of the winter in progress. From Larimore west along the line of the Great Northern the storm is raging, while Fargo reports rather a severe storm in the southern part of the state.

Trains on both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern were from one to three hours late last evening. Fortunately the weather is mild.

Several inches of wet snow fell during the day. The fall of snow is regarded by North Dakotans as a splendid thing for the state and there is talk of excellent crop prospects for the coming season.

Students Are Snowbound.

Jamestown, N. D. Feb. 2.—Fifty-five students of Jamestown college are snowbound at the farm of Alfred Ross, about eight miles from this city, as the result of the storm.

This is the annual recess between semesters and the son and daughter of Mr. Ross, who are attending the college, took the students to their home to attend a house party. When they were ready to return the snow had drifted until they did not dare to start. The storm was still severe last night and the time of their getting away from the farm was indefinite.

The passenger train from here over the northern branch of the Northern Pacific was caught in a drifted cut a short distance from the city and could not be pushed either way.

Some of the passengers went to the nearby farm houses and word was sent to workmen here to hasten to the place and shovel out the train.

Severe on the Ranges.

Duluth, Feb. 2.—All day yesterday and last evening Duluth was in the embrace of a [illegible] that caused most of the public schools to dismiss the pupils at noon for the day, and which almost prostrated the street railway system. A strong northeast wind accompanied by snow blew all day.

The Soo line train from the west was stalled two hours in its lower Duluth yard before it could get to the station. A passenger train on the Iron Range road of the Mesaba branch, west of Allen Junction, is stalled and its exact location is unknown.

700 ARE KILLED IN PHILIPPINES.

Report Says 5,000 Families Are Ruined by Earthquake.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The eruption of Taal volcano and the accompanying disturbances in the Philippines killed 700 people in the town of Tallsay, according to the report of the governor of Batangas province, which was cabled to the war department by Governor General Forbes. The report added that 5,000 families had been ruined by the disaster.

Since the first disturbance the seismograph apparatus of the Manila observatory has recorded the unprecedented number of 714 shocks. The army burial corps interred 45 bodies in Lemery.

The Philippine authorities are facing the absolute necessity of adopting relief measures in order to avoid suffering as the falling mud and lava destroyed the crops within a considerable radius of the volcano. The Red Cross society in the islands is taking steps toward that end.

PEMBERTON JURY IS SELECTED.

Case Grows Out of Purchase of State House Furniture.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2. — The 12 necessary men for the trial of Senator Stanton C. Pemberton of Oklahoma, and former Representative Joseph C. Clark of Vandalia were secured and the attorneys for both sides made their opening statements to the jury. The jury was chosen after a two days and a half questioning. The case grows out of the purchase of furniture for the statehouse.

Miners Pick Indianapolis.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—Indianapolis was picked as the next year's convention city of the United Mine Workers of America by delegates attending the international convention, which closed after being in session 14½ days.

Chicago Live Stock.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Cattle—Market 10c lower; beeves, $4.85@6.90; western steers, $4.40@5.65; stockers and feeders, $3.70@5.70; cows and heifers, $2.60@5.85; calves, $7@8.75.

Hogs—Market weak, mostly 15c lower; light, $7.60@7.85; mixed, $7.40@7.80; heavy, $7.25@7.75; rough, $7.25@7.40; good to choice heavy, $7.40@7.75; pigs, $7.50@8.

Sheep—Market weak to 10c lower; native, $2.40@4.30; western, $2.25@4.30; yearlings, $4.40@5.50; lambs, native, $4.25@6.10.

CONDENSATIONS OF GREATER OR LESSER IMPORTANCE.

A BOILING DOWN OF EVENTS

National, Political, Personal and Other Matters in Brief Form for All Classes of Readers.

Washington.

The house passed the postoffice appropriation bill, carrying about $257,000,000, with no negative votes.

Charlton R. Bottie, United States attorney at New Orleans, has refused to accede to Attorney General Wickersham's request that he resign, and has so notified the department of justice.

The legislative, judicial and executive appropriation bill was reported to the senate Tuesday. It carries $35,369,700, an increase of $116,240, over the amount of the bill as it was passed by the house.

A caucus of the republicans of the house to determine what action to take on the proposed legislation for a congressional reapportionment in the light of the new census statistics was called for February 2.

A determined protest by the federal government was presented to the supreme court of the United States against the proposed review by that tribunal of the conviction of officials of the American Naval Stores company, sometimes referred to as the turpentine trust, of having violated the Sherman anti-trust law.

Attorney General Wickersham will soon decide if an anti-trust action shall be brought against the American pulp and paper association, popularly called the "paper trust." Special agents of the department are finishing an investigation into the alleged price-fixing agreements of the news print paper mills which comprise the association.

Senator Brown, of Nebraska, will make a speech in the senate next Wednesday which is being looked forward to with considerable interest. As one of the organizers of the national republican progressive league the senator's remarks are certain to attract wide attention, especially in view of the fact that he will discuss much of the progressive legislation for which the league stands.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

St. Paul. — State Labor Commissioner Houk has reappointed Mrs. Perry Starkweather as assistant labor commissioner.

Morris.—John Schultz and wife of Alberta, Minn., are proud parents of triplets. The babies are all girls and are doing well.

Faribault.—The blacksmith shop of Ash Van Selous, in Cannon City, was totally destoyed by fire. The loss was $2,000, with no insurance.

Faribault.—The police record for the last year shows there were only 144 arrests as compared with 215 the previous year. Of the 144 arrests 129 were for drunkenness.

Spring Valley. — The Rafferty & Week company farmers' store stock of general merchandise was damaged by fire. Eight thousand dollars is the loss, fully covered by insurance.

Baudette.—Andrew O. Cop, 45 years old, a lumberjack, was killed a mile north of Black Duck, when he was run over by the south-bound Minnesota & International railroad freight train.

St. Charles.—Burglars entered C. S. Orenson's store through the glass door and took some money from the cash register and some clothing. The Chicago, Great Western depot was also robbed last night and $14 was taken from the cash drawer.

Minneapolis. — The final report of the appraisers of the estate of Mahala F. Pillsbury was filed with the clerk of the probate court. The value of real estate is $246,066; personal property, $542,686.31, or a total valuation of the entire estate, $788,752.31.

Winona. — Fire supposed to have been started by an incendiary, destroyed the $3,000 barn of Adolph Keller, south of St. Charles. Fifteen horses and fifty-seven cattle were burned to death. Insurance of $1,500 was carried on the barn and $300 on stock.

Minneapolis. — Six horses were burned to death in a fire which completely destroyed the warehouse of the Coffin Box & Lumber company, lower Nicollet island, at an estimated loss of about $7,000, including the horses, mostly covered by insurance.

Faribault.—The Dundas flour mill has been sold to the Great Western Milling Company of St. Paul. The purchasers have been operating it under a lease for about three months. A good water power is also included in the sale. The property will be improved and enlarged.

Minneapolis.—"School Days," which will appear at the Bijou the week of Feb. 5th, for a week's engagement, under the management of Stair and Havlin, is a musical comedy that met with deserved popularity last season, and which will undoubtedly be well received by the patrons.

Minneapolis.—Mayor Haynes received a leter from Senator Knute Nelson in which the senator says $250,000 for the high dam is included in the rivers and harbors bill and for the Twin Cities to go ahead and form the holding company to take over the dam site while this money is being spent on the dam.

Faribault.—Edward Guntzenberger was arrested by the game warden on a charge of taking game fish from the nets of the parties who are seining the lakes near here for rough fish. Guntzenberger proved the fish he took from the nets, after they had been pulled, were game fish that were killed during the drawing of the net. The jury acquitted him.

Virginia.—A permanent organization to fight for the division of St. Louis county was formed at Virginia, sixteen different range towns being represented by a total of fifty-nine delegates. It is known as the Iron County Development Association, and W. J. Archer, of Virginia, was elected secretary, wth a salary of $100 per month.

A. T. Silliman, of Hibbing, was chairman of the meeting. Committees on ways and means and legislation will be appointed. The question of dividing St. Louis county is not new, but this move looks more like business than any made heretofore.

Duluth. — Bowstring Joe, a Chippewa Indian, created a sensation in the district court at Grand Rapids, where he was a witness in the trial of Goggle Eye, another Chippewa, for the murder of a white man named John Caldwell at Sand Lake, Minn., Oct. 17, when he suddenly announced, while on the stand, that it was himself and not Goggle Eye, that had slain the man. Goggle Eye was promptly acquitted, and Bowstring Joe submitted to arrest without a murmur. He freely explained why he killed Caldwell. He said the white man had tried to take liberties with his squaw, and, happening to hear her screams, he had gone to her assistance and stabbed Caldwell to death. Bowstring Joe is 60 years old and a well known character in the Indian section of northern Minnesota. Goggle Eye had stood an excellent chance of conviction under circumstantial evidence.

Duluth.—Argot Johnson, aged 19, the boy who was with Charles Melodrowski when the latter shot and killed Officer Harry Chessmore on Jan. 6, was found guilty of murder in the third degree by the jury in the district court.

British Parliament Assembles.

London, Eng. — The second parliament of King George asembled with little ceremony, the spectacular function being reserved for next Monday, when the king and queen will open the proceedings in state. Mr. Lowther was re-elected speaker.

NEW YORK STRIKES BLOW TO BRIBERY

TO ELIMINATE LEGISLATIVE GRAFT

Lengthy Report Made as Result of Investigation in Albany—Office of State Fire Marshal Created.

Albany, Feb. 2.—The enactment of a drastic corrupt practices act, with a maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine for the failure of a legislator to report immediately any attempt to buy or influence his vote, and the adoption of sweeping changes and far-reaching reforms in the fire insurance laws of the state are recommended in a lengthy report of the legislative investigating committee, submitted to the legislature.

The Proposed Reforms.

Drafts of bills which the committee proposes shall be enacted into law are included in the report. The proposed reforms include:

Placing of rate-making associations, as organizations, including the New York fire insurance exchange, under control of the superintendent of insurance.

Investing the superintendent with ample power to prevent discrimination in rates. Transfer of the power to license brokers from the New York fire insurance exchange and similar organizations to the state superintendent of insurance.

Enactment of an anti-rebate law, prohibiting the sharing or "splitting" of premiums and making it a misdemeanor to give or accept rebates.

Creation of a new office, to be known as state fire marshal, to be empowered with sweeping authority for inspection of property and investigation of fires.

Corrupt Practices Probed.

The investigation committee was appointed by the senate and assembly of 1910 to investigate corrupt practices and insurance other than life insurance. It consisted of members of both bodies. The committee examined 184 witnesses in 42 days.

In probing corrupt practices in connection with legislation the committee, according to the report, investigated alleged bribe-giving brought to the surface in investigations conducted in 1910 by the senate and the state superintendent of insurance and certain other unverified allegations. These allegations, the report with the payment by the state of a beet sugar bounty, the passage of the anti-race track gambling law and of amendments to the agricultural law with reference to milk.

The committee found abundant evidence of graft. Concerning bribery, the report says:

"The crime of bribery is one of the most difficult of all crimes to uncover. All the resources of ingenuity are used to conceal it, and only in exceedingly rare instances are either of the parties to the crime willing to come forward and disclose the facts."

By making the bill which it recommends a law the committee believes that the giving and taking of bribes would be greatly reduced.

PUERTO CORTEZ EVACUATED.

Government Leaves City and Marines Take Charge.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, Feb. 2.—The evacuation of Pureto Cortez by the Honduran government troops has taken place and the town is now in the hands of the American and British marines, who are awaiting the arrival of the forces of General Manuel Bonilla, the leader of the revolutionists.

Several days ago trenches were dug and guns placed outside the limits of the town and government troops were stationed there to oppose the insurgents, but these were withdrawn Monday afternoon, the governor having asked the commanders of the international forces for 48 hours in which to evacuate the city. He asked also for protection and marines were then landed from the United States gunboat Marietta and the British cruiser Brilliant to prevent disorders.

Prior to this, orders had been issued that no fighting would be permitted within Puerto Cortez. Two special trains conveyed the government soldiers to San Pedro and Commander Cooper of the Marietta assumed control.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN IS DYING

LAST MESSAGE IS, "KEEP OUR COUNTRY CONSERVATIVE."

Visited by Cardinal Gibbons With Whom He Conversed at Length.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2. — Most Rev. Patrick John Ryan, archbishop of Philadelphia, who has lain almost at the point of death since last Thursday, is still alive, but his condition is extremely critical. During the afternoon he gave what is probably his last message to the world and his adopted country through Cardinal Gibbons, who visited him in the cathedral residence.

"He is weak and his pulse flickers. He was able to converse with us, but his speech is not nearly so fluent as in the afternoon when he was talking with Cardinal Gibbons."

Cardinal Gibbons made two visits to the dying prelate. On the first visit, when he entered the room the archbishop's eyes were closed and the cardinal placed his hand gently on his head, saying:

"Your grace does not know me."

"After 44 years I know every tone of your eminence's voice," the archbishop replied without opening his eyes, "and now I am, as I ever have been, profoundly convinced that you are the instrument of providence for the promotion of every good thing for our church and country."

During the conversation the archbishop said:

"If we keep our country conservative no country will be as great as this. No country has such elements of greatness as this."

Following his second visit, Cardinal Gibbons said in an interview:

"The archbishop's mind is still clear. His memory is tenacious. He recalled interesting events of many different periods in his life, and not only events, but persons also. He exhibits a manner that is worthy of his more healthful days. I need not say how much I have been edified by his sentiments, rejoicing in the advancement of religion in this country and saying that the hopes and stability of this nation depend upon the permanence of our religious and moral principles."

MANY KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN NEW YORK

SEVERAL OTHER BOATS WRECKEE

New York, Feb. 2.—A cargo of dynamite in transit from a freight car to the hold of a lighter moored at pier No. 7, Communipaw, N. J., let go at just one minute past noon, and in the widespread ruin that followed seven men are known to have been killed, seven more are missing, hundreds were wounded and varying reports leave from 15 to 20 more unaccounted for.

Thirty-two seems to be a conservative estimate of the dead and property damage will hardly fall below $750,000. The cause of the explosion probably never will be known.

The Jersey Central terminal was wrecked; three ferry boats in the slips were torn and splintered; lower Manhattan across the river was shaken from the street level to the top of the Singer tower; severe damage was done in Brooklyn and Staten island and to the immigrant detention station on Ellis Island; the shock was felt at Amityville, Long Island, 35 miles distant, and in New Jersey at Long Branch, 45 miles away.

The damage is so widely scattered that it is impossible as yet to more than roughly estimate it, but in Manhattan alone it is placed at $100,000 and on Ellis island at from $10,000 to $25,000. In all, three quarters of a million appears to be a fair estimate.

Lighter Vanishes.

The lighter receiving the dynamite, the Katherine W., owned by James Healing of Jersey City, vanished utterly with her crew of seven men, including the master, Edward Traver. Alongside was the lighter Whistler, which was so shattered that she sank with her crew of two, while the Swedish steel barkentine Ingrid was stripped of her rigging and the lives of two deck hands snuffed out. Fragments of one man's head were found swinging high on a tangled piece of rope.

On board the Ingrid the steel mizzen-mast snapped off above the lower yard and the tangled wreckage came tumbling about the decks. Everything abaft the mizzenmast was levelled flat but the steel plates of the hull held stoutly.

For 100 feet the pier end itself was demolished. Over the broken edges twisted the steel rails of track. A steel gondola car on the southernmost track looked like an old hat that had been used by boys for football. All about were strange freaks of the explosion.

In the train shed of the terminal nearly the whole southern exposure of the glass roof collapsed, showering the passengers with broken glass. One man was struck by a 20-pound fragment and so severely cut that he died. An engineer in a shunting locomotive was blown from his cab and died of a fractured skull. A tug boat captain was hurled from his wheel house and fished out of the water 15 minutes later, swimming about the southern side of the demolished pier.

Inside the passenger station there was damage visible everywhere.

Streets Strewn With Glass.

The shock of the explosion caused fire alarms to be rung in from various parts of the downtown section and fire apparatus from all the nearby stations was sent scurrying around the district in a vain search for the scene of the explosion, which at first was commonly reported to be on the lower end of Manhattan island.

Broadway and Church streets from Fulton street south were literally showered with fragments of glass, broken from hundreds of windows on these thoroughfares. The plate glass windows in the customs house were shattered and there was extensive breakage of windows on all sides.

The explosion caused panics in several of the big downtown office buildings which seemed rocked to their foundations by the shock. Alarmed employes and tenants of the structures made rushes for the elevators and other exits. The quick subsidence of the tremblings, however, seemed speedily to reassure the alarmed multitudes and there were no early reports of casualties due to the panicky conditions which prevailed.

New Move in Eddy Will Case.

Boston, Feb. 2.—A move to carry out the terms of the will of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, founder of Christian Science, was made. A bill in equity was filed in the supreme judicial court, asking that the executor of the will and the trustees of certain trust indentures executed by Mrs. Eddy in 1907 and 1908 be instructed to turn over her real estate in Massachusetts to the directors of the First Church of Christ in Boston, the residuary legatee under the will. The residuary legacy is $1,500,000.

STORMS IN THE NORTHWEST

SEVERAL POINTS SNOWBOUND, BUT TEMPERATURE IS MILD.

Barnesville, Minn., Feb. 2.—Western Minnesota is in the grip of an unusually severe wind and snow storm. The Great Northern Railway company has taken precautions against the storm and as a result all westbound freights are held up here until the storm abates.

Fiercest Storm of Winter.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 2.—Northern North Dakota is snowbound with the fiercest storm of the winter in progress. From Larimore west along the line of the Great Northern the storm is raging, while Fargo reports rather a severe storm in the southern part of the state.

Trains on both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern were from one to three hours late last evening. Fortunately the weather is mild.

Several inches of wet snow fell during the day. The fall of snow is regarded by North Dakotans as a splendid thing for the state and there is talk of excellent crop prospects for the coming season.

Students Are Snowbound.

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 2.—Fifty-five students of Jamestown college are snowbound at the farm of Alfred Ross, about eight miles from this city, as the result of the storm.

This is the annual recess between semesters and the son and daughter of Mr. Ross, who are attending the college, took the students to their home to attend a house party. When they were ready to return the snow had drifted until they did not dare to start. The storm was still severe last night and the time of their getting away from the farm was indefinite.

The passenger train from here over the northern branch of the Northern Pacific was caught in a drifted cut a short distance from the city and could not be pushed either way.

Some of the passengers went to the nearby farm houses and word was sent to workmen here to hasten to the place and shovel out the train.

Severe on the Ranges.

Duluth, Feb. 2.—All day yesterday and last evening Duluth was in the embrace of a snow storm that caused most of the public schools to dismiss the pupils at noon for the day, and which almost prostrated the street railway system. A strong northeast wind accompanied by snow blew all day.

The Soo line train from the west was stalled two hours in its lower Duluth yard before it could get to the station. A passenger train on the Iron Range road of the Mesaba branch, west of Allen Junction, is stalled and its exact location is unknown.

700 ARE KILLED IN PHILIPPINES.

Report Says 5,000 Families Are Ruined by Earthquake.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The eruption of Taal volcano and the accompanying disturbances in the Philippines killed 700 people in the town of Talisay, according to the report of the governor of Batangas province, which was cabled to the war department by Governor General Forbes. The report added that 5,000 families had been ruined by the disaster.

Since the first disturbance the seismograph apparatus of the Manila observatory has recorded the unprecedented number of 714 shocks. The army burial corps interred 45 bodies in Lemery.

The Philippine authorities are facing the absolute necessity of adopting relief measures in order to avoid suffering as the falling mud and lava destroyed the crops within a considerable radius of the volcano. The Red Cross society in the islands is taking steps toward that end.

PEMBERTON JURY IS SELECTED.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2. — The 12 necessary men for the trial of Senator Stanton C. Pemberton of Oklahoma, and former Representative Joseph C. Clark of Vandalia were secured and the attorneys for both sides made their opening statements to the jury. The jury was chosen after a two days and a half questioning. The case grows out of the purchase of furniture for the statehouse.

Miners Pick Indianapolis.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—Indianapolis was picked as the next year's convention city of the United Mine Workers of America by delegates attending the international convention, which closed after being in session 14½ days.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

St. Paul.—State Labor Commissioner Houk has reappointed Mrs. Perry Starkweather as assistant labor commissioner.

Morris.—John Schultz and wife of Alberta, Minn., are proud parents of triplets. The babies are all girls and are doing well.

Faribault.—The blacksmith shop of Ash Van Selous, in Cannon City, was totally destoyed by fire. The loss was $2,000, with no insurance.

Faribault.—The police record for the last year shows there were only 144 arrests as compared with 215 the previous year. Of the 144 arrests 129 were for drunkenness.

Spring Valley.—The Rafferty & Week company farmers' store stock of general merchandise was damaged by fire. Eight thousand dollars is the loss, fully covered by insurance.

Baudette.—Andrew O. Cop, 45 years old, a lumberjack, was killed a mile north of Black Duck, when he was run over by the south-bound Minnesota & International railroad freight train.

St. Charles.—Burglars entered C. S. Orenson's store through the glass door and took some money from the cash register and some clothing. The Chicago, Great Western depot was also robbed last night and $14 was taken from the cash drawer.

Minneapolis.—The final report of the appraisers of the estate of Mahala F. Pillsbury was filed with the clerk of the probate court. The value of real estate is $246,066; personal property, $542,686.31, or a total valuation of the entire estate, $788,752.31.

Winona.—Fire supposed to have been started by an incendiary, destroyed the $3,000 barn of Adolph Keler, south of St. Charles. Fifteen horses and fifty-seven cattle were burned to death. Insurance of $1,500 was carried on the barn and $300 on stock.

Minneapolis.—Six horses were burned to death in a fire which completely destroyed the warehouse of the Coffin Box & Lumber company, lower Nicollet island, at an estimated loss of about $7,000, including the horses, mostly covered by insurance.

Faribault.—The Dundas flour mill has been sold to the Great Western Milling Company of St. Paul. The purchasers have been operating it under a lease for about three months. A good water power is also included in the sale. The property will be improved and enlarged.

Minneapolis.—"School Days," which will appear at the Bijou the week of Feb. 5th, for a week's engagement, under the management of Stair and Havlin, is a musical comedy that met with deserved popularity last season, and which will undoubtedly be well received by the patrons.

Minneapolis.—Mayor Haynes received a leter from Senator Knute Nelson in which the senator says $250,000 for the high dam is included in the rivers and harbors bill and for the Twin Cities to go ahead and form the holding company to take over the dam site while this money is being spent on the dam.

Faribault.—Edward Guntzenberger was arrested by the game warden on a charge of taking game fish from the nets of the parties who are seining the lakes near here for rough fish. Guntzenberger proved the fish he took from the nets, after they had been pulled, were game fish that were killed during the drawing of the net. The jury acquitted him.

Virginia.—A permanent organization to fight for the division of St. Louis county was formed at Virginia; sixteen different range towns being represented by a total of fifty-nine delegates. It is known as the Iron County Development Association, and W. J. Archer, of Virginia, was elected secretary, with a salary of $100 per month.

A. T. Silliman, of Hibbing, was chairman of the meeting. Committees on ways and means and legislation will be appointed. The question of dividing St. Louis county is not new, but this move looks more like business than any made heretofore.

Duluth.—Bowstring Joe, a Chippewa Indian, created a sensation in the district court, at Grand Rapids, where he was a witness in the trial of Goggle Eye, another Chippewa, for the murder of a white man named John Caldwell at Sand Lake, Minn., Oct. 17, when he suddenly announced, while on the stand, that it was himself and not Goggle Eye, that had slain the man. Goggle Eye was promptly acquitted, and Bowstring Joe submitted to arrest without a murmur. He freely explained why he killed Caldwell. He said the white man had tried to take liberties with his squaw, and, happening to hear her screams, he had gone to her assistance and stobbed Caldwell to death. Bowstring Joe is 60 years old and a well known character in the Indian section of northern Minnesota. Goggle Eye had stood an excellent chance of conviction under circumstantial evidence.

Duluth.—Argot Johnson, aged 19, the boy who was with Charles Melodrowski when the latter shot and killed Officer Harry Chessmore on Jan. 6, was found guilty of murder in the third degree by the jury in the district court.

British Parliament Assembles.

London, Eng.—The second parliament of King George assembled with little ceremony, the spectacular function being reserved for next Monday, when the king and queen will open the proceedings in state. Mr. Lowther was re-elected speaker.

"WHO'LL GIVE THE MOST?" CARNEGIE-ROCKEFELLER CONTEST

A MERRY war of millions is on between Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller, perhaps the richest two men in all the world.

"I expect to die poor," is Mr. Carnegie's battle cry, and as a retort Mr. Rockefeller has often declared: "No one shall outgive me."

Theirs is not a fight like those that Wall street so often sees—neither one is trying to ruin the other in this game of money. It is a fine and friendly rivalry between the Pittsburg ironmaster and the Cleveland oil king to see which one will be able to give away the most money during his lifetime. At the moment Mr. Carnegie leads by about $5,000,000, but nobody can tell when Mr. Rockefeller will come back at him with some more millions that again the lead, which neither one ever succeeds in keeping long.

Up to a short time ago Mr. Rockefeller led the giving game, led by something like $5,000,000, but Mr. Carnegie on December 14 took it from him by throwing into the balance $10,000,000, giving for the establishment of international peace. With this gift came the appointing of a board of trustees to work for international arbitration and the abolition of war, which Mr. Carnegie calls a "degrading evil." This put him ahead some $5,000,000 or so, and up to the moment of writing he still leads. But any day Mr. Rockefeller may be expected to come back at him.

Munificent Gift to Chicago.

As it was just one week after Mr. Carnegie's newest gift Mr. Rockefeller did make the University of Chicago $10,000,000 richer, but this was merely a transfer of millions. He ordered $10,000,000 out of his $53,000,000 fund for general education to be paid to the university, at the rate of $1,000,000 a year for ten years. It was not really an additional gift, so his sum total of gifts for all purposes still stays at $174,411,000, while Mr. Carnegie's amounts to $179,800,000.

That is the situation today as regards two masters of many millions. However, nobody expects them to end their days in the poorhouse, for the simple reason that their incomes pile up faster than they can spend the money.

The unique contest started about 30 years ago. The two multi-millionaires have been at it ever since, matching each other's gifts with gifts and a little more. For general education Mr. Rockefeller has given the mighty sum of $53,000,000. Mr. Carnegie is only a million behind with his $52,000,000 for libraries. Mr. Carnegie gave $16,000,000 for the Carnegie institute in Pittsburg and $12,000,000 for the Carnegie institute in Washington, a total of $28,000,000. And now Mr. Rockefeller adds $10,000,000 to the $25,000,000 he has already given to the University of Chicago, going Mr. Carnegie $7,000,000 better.

Though announced on December 21, Mr. Rockefeller's transfer of the $10,000,000 to the Chicago institution of learning was really made December 13, and the very next day came Mr. Carnegie's ten millions for peace. Mr. Rockefeller's latest gift was announced on October 18 last, when he added $3,820,000 to the $5,000,000 he had already given to the Institute for Medical Research. Since that date a score of gifts of from $50,000 to $250,000 have been announced, but not one that can rival Mr. Carnegie's $10,000,000 in one lump sum. It is a dollar to a doughnut that Mr. Rockefeller will soon come back at Mr. Carnegie.

Jealousy Over Gifts.

Among his friends Mr. Rockefeller makes no secret of his determination not to let Mr. Carnegie outgive him. He confesses that he is jealous of Mr. Carnegie's world wide philanthropies. He refuses to discuss Mr. Carnegie's gifts publicly, just as Mr. Carnegie refuses to refer to Mr. Rockefeller's. In fact, the two gentlemen have tacitly agreed to treat each other impersonally.

And how humanity at large is benefited by this rivalry in munificence! For the rivals are not competing with thousands or hundreds of thousands or even millions. They are wielding hundreds of millions, and nobody can predict where the race will end. Death will not bring it to a close, for it is almost certain that their wills will direct the distribution after their days are done of as much or more than they have given away in their lifetimes.

John D. Rockefeller is supposed to be the richest man in the world. He himself probably doesn't know how much he is worth. His total fortune may be assumed to be between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000. If he lives another 15 or 20 years and doesn't give away too much, he may die a billionaire, the first the world has ever known.

Enormous Sums Between Them.

Andrew Carnegie is not so rich. No one knows just what he took for his interest in the steel trust, but it is supposed to have been in the neighborhood of $250,000,000 or $300,000,000. Today he is worth something between $200,000,000 and $500,000,000. It would scarcely be an extravagant guess if one were to estimate the sum total of the Rockefeller and Carnegie millions at a billion dollars. And they are rivals in placing this well nigh inconceivable sum of money where it will do the most good to mankind.

It would be interesting to know just what passed through Mr. Rockefeller's mind on that morning not so long ago when he read in his copy of the World that Mr. Carnegie, by handing out $10,000,000 for peace, had passed him in the race to give away the most money. What did he do in that library at Pocantico Hills, the Westchester county suburb where he lives each autumn and Christmastide? Probably he walked to the bay window which commands a view of the cold, gray Hudson, thought a bit, and smiled that inscrutable smile of his.

The first great gifts of Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Carnegie were made in 1891. They have been giving ever since. In all that time Mr. Carnegie has been handing out his money at an average rate of $16,438.36 a day. Mr. Rockefeller, just at the moment a few millions behind, has been generous to the tune of $15,982.64 a day. But Mr. Rockefeller has only to give away a few more millions to make his daily average climb higher than Mr. Carnegie's.

Differ in Ideas of Giving.

Then it will be Mr. Carnegie's turn to think how he can outdo his rival. When he reads of the latest Rockefeller gift, after hearing the huge pipe organ in his Fifth avenue mansion before breakfast, he will try to find some new field in which more of his millions can be planted. And so in another few weeks or months we may look for another big gift from Mr. Rockefeller, to be followed by a still larger one from the "Laird of Skibo."

Giving away money has with these men taken the place of the desire to pile up additional millions. They have their own ideas about giving it away. They seldom give large sums without imposing rigid conditions. Almost invariably Mr. Rockefeller requires that his beneficiary raise a similar or even greater amount from other sources. Before even the smallest amount is given the object is carefully investigated. Mr. Carnegie is equally careful. Skilled investigators report on every application for charity. Only the most noteworthy requests are granted.

Messrs. Rockefeller and Carnegie have their prejudices and their weaknesses. Both also have their hobbies. Mr. Carnegie's is building libraries. Mr. Rockefeller's is his general education board and the University of Chicago.

Some Record Gifts.

Their principal gifts are surprisingly alike in size and purpose. Mr. Rockefeller favors this university, Mr. Carnegie that one. While one of the oil king's chief wift has been $8,240,000 to the Institute of Medical Research, Mr. Carnegie has given $15,000,000 for pensions to educators. Churches and missions have received more from the oil king than they have from Mr. Carnegie. The Rockefeller gift of $53,000,000 to the general education board is the greatest single gift one man has ever made in the history of the world, and it is said to be the oil king's intention to increase it to $100,000,000 within the next few years.

Mr. Rockefeller's big gifts, like Mr. Carnegie's are always made in bonds of railroads, steel and oil companies.

It has been many years since the oil and steel king have met, but in their early days they were frequently together. They are about the same age—Mr. Carnegie is 73 and Mr. Rockefeller 71. Both started in life without a dollar, and both became millionaires before they were 65. As every one knows, Mr. Carnegie made his millions in steel and Mr. Rockefeller his in oil. Both have given liberally to their home towns—Pittsburg and Cleveland—and both now live in New York. They have many other points of resemblance, including their unflagging interest in golf.

Rivalry of Magnificence.

And now these two men, having accumulated greater individual fortunes than this country has ever before known, and having retired from active management of the great corporations in which they are the dominant figures, are engaged in a unique rivalry of munificence. Each is trying to see how he can give away the greatest amount of money to accomplish the greatest good. The philanthropies of other rich men look almost insignificant beside the regal gifts of these two, though in proportion to the wealth upon which they had to draw other men may really have surpassed them in generosity.

Today the live question in philanthropic circles is what will Mr. Rockefeller do next? Other things being equal, the man with the bigger bank account should win the race. And Mr. Rockefeller is the richer of the two.

But if he tries very hard Mr. Carnegie ought surely to be able to gratify his wish to die poor!

Men know less than they let on, women more.

VALUE OF A GOOD MEMORY

Its Possession, However, Is Not Always Proof of a Great Mind.

The trouble with old men usually is that their memories become overloaded with actual and psychic facts, among which they are unable to distinguish those that have a value for the present and those that have become obsolete. Generally speaking, an old man knows a great deal more than a young man, but, says the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, it does not necessarily follow that he is wiser. While, therefore, a strong memory is a great convenience, it is not necessarily an advantage.

Cardinal Mezzofanti, whose memory for words was so retentive that he never forgot one after hearing it once, and which enabled him to acquire more than a hundred languages, was in most respects a very ordinary person. Pliny relates that Mithridates, king of Pontus, had so excellent a memory that he was able to speak fluently 22 languages native to the provinces of his vast empire. Yet he was a cruel barbarian.

A well known peripatetic elocutionist and reciter still living declares that he can repeat without further preparation about 3,000 selections in prose and poetry. He probably tells the truth, since he has been training his mind in this particular direction for many years.

On the other hand, such men as Sir Walter Scott, Macaulay and Gladstone were not only the possessors of excellent memories, they were also men of good judgment.

Among human beings children have the most remarkable memories. Under favorable circumstances they will learn three, and even four languages, so as to be able to express their thoughts with equal ease in any one of them by the time they are six or seven years of age.

And they accomplish this remarkable feat without any aid from the mnemonic devices to which adults are compelled to resort when they undertake a similar task. They learn words and phrases unconsciously, and rarely forget them as long as they live. On the other hand, grown-ups rarely acquire an accurate pronunciation of a foreign language, although they may be able to use it with entire correctness.

It is a common belief that the memory is more tenacious in early life than in later years. That seems to depend almost entirely upon the individual.

Some Verse.

Eminent Poet (to his betrothed)—Darling, how did you like the poem I sent you? Did it seem too sweetly tender?

She—Oh, it was lovely. I got seven fifty for it at the church fair.—Fliegende Blaetter.

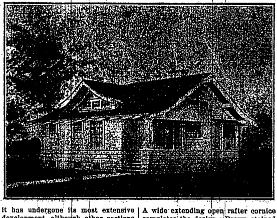
THE AMERICAN HOME

Wm. A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The word bungalow is an Anglo-Indian term, meaning in India a species of rural villa, a house of light construction, usually of unbaked brick with a thatched roof. The bungalows which are the residences of Europeans in India are of all styles and sizes according to the taste and wealth of the owner. In its earlier use by white men the word bungalow was taken to denote a lightly constructed habitation, not exceeding one story in height, and presumably designed for temporary occupation. But during the past few years the bungalows have been built in both the United States and Canada as all-year residences and are constructed with every regard for permanency.

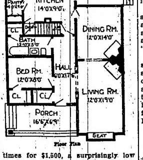
They are built with heavier studding and bracing than the bungalows in California, and are sheathed solid outside and covered with heavy building paper and siding or shingles. Many of them are provided with open fire places, although the old-time significance of the word contemplated an unplastered building with no facilities for heating, since it was designed, presumably, for summer occupancy or tropical habitation.



The bungalow idea first took root in America in southern California where the mild and even climate is particularly well adapted to the bungalow in its elementary forms. Here it has undergone its most extensive development, although other sections of the United States are now crowding the favorite regions of the Pacific coast in this respect.

It may be said, in all frankness, that any prospective home builder will do well to study carefully the advantages of the bungalow for his home which he is to build this spring. For those desiring a small and inexpensive house, particularly, the bungalow offers great advantages. The original ideas of arrangement as well as the unique ornamental schemes that are characteristic of bungalow work make it possible to design and build a home-like, cozy house of individual appearance for the same cost as the plain, every day cottage.

An example in point is the artistic four-room bungalow illustrated herewith. This has been built many times for $1,500, a surprisingly low cost, no more in fact than one would have to pay for a plain ordinary cottage of the same size which would not meet so ready a sale nor at so good a figure when the time comes to sell.



Floor Plan

Remember this; it is always possible to sell a bungalow when a plain house of the same cost would find no sale. This is the most important factor financially, concerning the subject of home building. Too often home builders construct houses that lack style and when a rainy day comes and they want to sell the house there is no buyer because the house is "like thousands of others."

The reason why a house will not sell in nine cases out of ten is because it has no individuality. The bungalow has individuality; it has that something that makes passers-by turn after they have passed the house and say, "How cozy."

A glance at the floor plan and perspective shown herewith will show the desirable and attractive features of this plan. From the broad entrance porch one enters a good size hall, connecting by means of wide cased opening with attractive column grille work into the large sized living room, 12 by 19 feet, bright and cheerful, having broad window spaces, a built-in bookcase and practical fire place. A cased opening connects the living room and dining room, making practically one room and giving an exceptional amount of room and spaciousness in a cottage of this size. The arrangement between the kitchen and dining room is very good for convenient housekeeping and few steps. There is also direct connection between kitchen and front hall, a very good feature. Too many houses are so arranged that the living room has to be chased through every time one has occasion to answer the front door bell, which not only disturbs those sitting there, but also dirties this room unnecessarily and makes too many steps.

The bedroom is of good size, opens off from the front hall and is supplied with a large sized clothes closet, ventilated and lighted by means of a good sized window. There is also a lighted clothes closet for hanging coats and hats just beside the front door. The bathroom has an inconspicuous location and is at the same time convenient. It too has a large closet for linen, etc.

Although the second floor of this house is not important, still it furnishes a space for storage purposes, is well lighted and ventilated, and serves to keep the first floor cool. Some people have objected to the bungalow on the ground that it is too hot, but with an attic space of this size, well ventilated, no trouble of this kind will be experienced.

The exterior treatment of this house is in a very appropriate bungalow style. Rough boards are used, stained with creosote oil. The foundation courses from grade to window sills are covered with wide boards with horizontal batten strips. Above this the boards are lapped like the beveled siding, but with a wider lap. A wide extending open rafter cornice completes the design. Brown stained walls with green roof and sash painted white makes a very typical and artistic color arrangement for this cozy little bungalow.

Roses Make Morgan Smile.

When J. P. Morgan the other day stepped inside his banking house he sniffed and looked around him suspiciously, with a sort of half-glare in his eye.

"What's that, eh?" he asked.

"Roses, sir," pleasantly said "Big Jim," the office bodyguard.

"Umph!" said the "Grand Old Man of Wall Street," briskly moving down the long corridor. Then he caught sight of two large bouquets of American Beauty roses on the desks of the new junior partners of the house, William H. Parter, formerly president of the Chemical National bank, and Thomas W. Lamont, former vice-president of the iFrst National bank.

"Umph!" repeated Morgan, with several more sniffs. Then he wheeled and, with his face relaxed somewhat and his eyes twinkling, he strode in and shook hands with his two new "boys."

"I'll take the whole issue at 95," he said, pointing to the roses. Then he stood between the bouquets and blew cigar smoke upward, while everybody smiled, and a dozen or more men in the office stretched their necks to the limit and gasped at the rare sight of flowers in Morgan's office.—New York Press.

Speech That Was Never Delivered.

When the Hepburn rate bill was under consideration in the senate four years ago, Senator Crane learned that Piles of Washington, a new member, was about to make a speech for it and he didn't wish him to. He took Piles aside and whispered:

"You know Senator Flint pretty well, don't you?"

"I do," replied Piles.

"Well, I hear he is about to make a speech. He is a new man and he mustn't do it. We new senators must stand together. We are not expected to talk, and if we do, what we say is ignored and we are looked upon as jokes. By all means, see that Flint saves his face."

Piles turned scarlet. He promised to see Flint—and he kept that speech to himself.—Success Magazine.

Planning the House.

"Well," said Gifford Berrington, cheerfully, "I've got the plans for my new house on the lake shore all finished."

"Finished to suit you?"

"N-no. But the architect is satisfied, and that's the best I can expect."

"Ha, ha! How about Mrs. Berrington?"

"It's all right with her, too. In fact she got that fixed before we started. You see, she laid out the cupboards and wardrobes, and all the architects had to do was to build a house around them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GOOD CAKE RECIPES

FORMULAS THAT HAVE BEEN TRIED AND PROVEN.

Devil's Food Cake Easily Made and Success Always Insured—Soft Molasses Cookies—Banana Shortcake—Popcorn Crisp.

Devil's Food Cake.—Grate into a dish one-quarter cake of unsweetened chocolate, add one-half cup of boiling water and one teaspoon soda; let stand until other part of cake is mixed.

Cake part—Two cups of brown sugar, half cup each butter and sour milk, 2½ cups flour; pour in the chocolate mixture and bake in layers.

Filling for same—Two cups brown sugar, half cup of sweet milk, butter size of an egg; boil a little, stirring all the while. Do not let it boil too long as it will sugar.

Soft Molasses Cookies.—One cup molasses, half cup water, half cup lard, half teaspoon each of cinnamon and ginger, one heaping teaspoon soda. Boil water and lard together, put in soda, stir well, add to molasses, mix as soft as you can without having too sticky. Bake in moderate oven. These should be thick, soft and delicious. Recipe is over 100 years old.

White Cookies.—Two cups granulated sugar creamed with one cup butter, one cup of thick sour milk or cream, one teaspoon soda dissolved in one teaspoon of hot water, nutmeg to taste, just enough flour to handle the dough easily; roll out and cut, sprinkle with sugar and press a raisin in center of each; bake in a rather quick oven to a delicate brown.

Popcorn Crisp.—Boil one cup molasses and one cup sugar together till it is the right consistency for candy. Have five quarts of popped corn, free from hard kernels, in a large pan, over which pour the mixture, stirring in at the same time so the molasses will be evenly distributed. When cold it will be crisp and delicious.

Banana Shortcake—Use any good Washington pie recipe, slice bananas thin, spread over lower half. Whip a half pint of cream sweetened and add a little vanilla, spread over bananas, put on top layer, cover with bananas and then cover top with the rest of the cream. This is very rich.

GOOD HINT ABOUT IRONING

How One Housekeeper Keeps Clothes Clean While Putting on Finishing Touches.

A housekeeper who is noted for her labor saving devices attached a big pocket to the ironing board when ironing skirts and dresses which will drag upon the floor.

The pocket is made of unbleached muslin with a wide hem at each end, and is so long that when it is attached to the sides of the board it will nearly touch the floor.

A double piece of muslin is put on the corners of the hem to re-enforce it, and these corners are pinned at the sides after the garment has been put on.

As it is ironed, the garment falls within this loose pocket, and is kept from contact with the floor.

Laundering Frills.

Before putting in the laundry the one-side plaited frills and frilled collars, which are so pretty and popular and yet so hard to "do up," run a row of basting stitches about an inch from the outer edge. That will hold the plaits in position while washing and will save time and trouble later in ironing. This is especially true if you are not the proud possessor of a patent plaiting iron.

These frills, by the way, should, when possible, be made separate from the blouse and buttoned, hooked or pinned on, so that they do not have to go so often to the tub. They really do not get dirty so quickly as the more exposed parts of the blouse, and they are a great nuisance usually to wash and iron, even with the precaution mentioned. If you buy a ready-made blouse with frills stitched on, it is an easy matter to rip them off and supply buttons and buttonholes.

Swiss Roast.

Take a thick round steak from two to two and one-half inches in thickness and pound into it as much flour as it will take, using the edges of a plate for that purpose. When the flour has been pounded into both sides take the meat and brown it on both sides; remove to a sauce pan, heat one-half can of tomatoes, one large onion cut fine, one sweet pepper, if desired pour over the meat, cover tightly and cook slowly two to three hours. Just before the meat is done salt and pepper to taste. Delicious when served hot, also nice when cold.

To Keep Material White.

Dresses and other articles made of delicate white material often become yellow with lying. To prevent this, take a good-sized pillow case and blue it thoroughly. In this place the dress and baste or pin the open end of the case, so as to keep out all dust and air. When you open the blue bag your dress will be white, without resorting to the ruinous "tub" or dry cleaning process.

Delmonico Potatoes.

Layer cold potatoes, layer grated cheese; pour over drawn butter. Sauce—Put in double boiler or over the tea kettle one cup milk; when the milk is hot add one tablespoonful flour and butter creamed, boil together until thick; keep up the process until the dish is full.

Cream Sauce.

Two rounded tablespoons butter, two spoonfuls flour; when butter bubbles stir in flour; add salt and pepper to taste; add enough cold milk to make consistency of good gravy. Let boil good.

Cafe Au Lait.

Make some strong clear coffee. Pour it into the cup with an equal quantity of boiling milk and sweeten according to taste. Allow one cup for each person.

ECZEMA GONE, BOILS CURED

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician, who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged, and as I had read the advertisements of Cuticura Remedies and testimonials of a great many people who had used them with wonderful success, I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." Painted While Asleep.

It is the craze of the pretty ladies of the Tiergartenstrasse's plutocrat society to be painted while asleep, writes a Berlin correspondent. The Austrian Countess Czivek started the bright idea. The well known portraitist who had given her an appointment for the sitting has a vivacious habit of making you wait. Tired of turning over French novels in an ante-chamber, the beautiful countess fell asleep. At last the procrastinating artist turned up.

Entranced by the unexpected vision of sleeping beauty, he threw off a lightning sketch and as the countess awoke, held it before her astonished eyes. The drawing was so dainty and seductive that the delighted sitter insisted upon a complete oil portrait painting while she simulated sleep.

BUILDING COLONY HOG-HOUSE

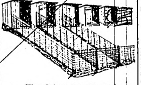
Excellent Manner of Using Old Scrap Lumber Is to Put It Into Pens for the Swine.

(By J. W. GRIFFIN.)

One of the best ways to use scrap lumber is to build hog-houses out of it. If there is no old lumber lying around in the way, it will pay to buy new, even at the present high prices, and build the hog-houses.

If it pays to take care of the little pigs when the butcher's stuff is bringing four and five cents a pound, it is doubly profitable when they are eight and ten cents.

We have ten Jersey brood-sows and ten colony houses, built and fenced off, as shown in the drawing.



The Colony Hog-House.

These houses were built out of lumber that came out of an old frame building, once used as a saw mill.

We bought the old mill, the frame of which was 33 feet wide, 100 feet long, and two stories high; all the framing timbers were as good as when put in the building. The scrap-lumber we worked into the hog-houses and the frame and the best lumber will be used in the building an up-to-date feed barn.

POINTS IN SHEEP BREEDING

Results of Experiments Conducted by Wisconsin Station Regarding Lamb Increase of Flocks.

A few years ago the Wisconsin experiment station published the result of a series of experiements it had been conducting in regard to the lamb increase of farm flocks. With the interest now being taken in sheep breeding, these will be worth recalling. The summary of conclusions is as follows:

1. From the breeding record of 514 ewes at this station we conclude that for such animals and conditions as ours the normal period of gestation ranges from 144 to 150 days after the date of service and that more ewes will lamb 146 days after service than at any other time.

2. There is no appreciable difference in the period of gestation for male and female offspring in sheep.

3. There is an apparent relation between the duration of the period of gestation and the period required for reaching maturity. Quick maturing breeds appear to carry their young for a shorter period than those breeds requiring more time to mature.

4. Large lambs are on the average carried in utero for an appreciably longer period than small or medium lambs.

5. Lambs dropped before the 144th and after the 149th day of pregnancy are lacking in strength and vitality at birth.

16. Shropshire ewes were more prolific than any of the other breeds and crosses except the fourth cross of Shropshire rams on a Merino ewe foundation.

7. From the data presented it is apparent that twins are the normal increase for ewes of the mutton type.

5. One year old rams are not so prolific as those two or three years old. Ewes also average a larger percentage of increase in lambs after they reach full maturity at three years of age until after they are six years old, when the rate of increase diminishes.

9. The amount of service required of the ram in breeding has an influence on the percentage increase in offspring of the ewes that produce lambs. Ewes bred early in the season of mating to a single ram, dropped a larger percentage of lambs than those near the latter end of the season.

York Breed for Bacon.

The experiment station at Grand Rapids, Minn., has been experimenting with the cost of producing bacon hogs of the York breed. Pigs are farrowed in March or April and turned into clover pasture when six or eight weeks old, with a little shorts and milk as a supplementary ration. In September barley and peas are added and for two months the hogs are fed all they will eat, reaching prime condition about November 1, at 130 to 150 pounds. Hogs so produced have been selling in the local market at eight and one-half cents per pound, and, according to Superintendent McGuire, the cost of production is four and one-half cents.

Use of Wheat Straw.

Grain fed cows and cattle will eat large quantities of wheat straw if it is dry and clean. Most of the straw will be eaten, and what is left should be used for bedding. By feeding most all the coarse forage grown on the farm and using the straw for feed and bedding, a large quantity of rich manure having a quantity of carbonaceous matter that will bring the crop planted to which it is applied, and, at the same time, improve the land for succeeding crops.

Horse Needs Fresh Air.

If a plentiful supply of fresh air is necessary to maintain a horse in good health it will be understood how necessary it must be to an animal which is suffering from any respiratory troubles. Fresh air is of the utmost importance in such cases. The most skillful medical treatment will be useless without it.

OXEN STILL USED ON FARMS

In Parts of New England and In South Animals Make Excellent Team for Small Farmer.

In some parts of New England and some localities of the south ox teams are still used on many farms. A pair of well broken oxen will do a tremendous amount of work and at about the same expense that it takes to keep a team of horses. Thoroughly broken when young, they become very gentle, and are usually tractable under trying conditions. They are easily managed by a boy and while not exactly fitted for all-around work, make an excellent team for the small farmer.

SOME TIMELY HORSE SENSE

Don't Sell Colts, as Young Team Will Be Wanted—Man Can Make Animal Balky or Good.

Don't allow the offer of a good, stiff price for the colts to tempt you in letting go of them. You'll need some fresh young teams one of these days, and it takes an almost fabulous sum of money to buy a span of young horses suitable for farm purposes.

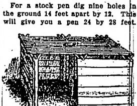
If you are in the habit of dashing your warm horses up to the town hitch rack and tying them up to cool off and chill without a blanket of any sort, try the experiment of standing beside them awhile, even half as long as you usually are in town, and—some harness dealer will sell you a pair of horse blankets before 15 minutes have passed.

As a general rule, a man may own good pulling horses or balky ones of the worst type—just whichever he chooses. If a colt were properly handled while being broken in, and then loaded decently after it had learned to pull, balky horses would be few and far between. Indeed, we doubt very much if there would be a balky horse to be found in the whole world.

CHEAP SHELTER FOR CATTLE

Practical Plan for Securing Protection for Stock From Inclemencies of the Weather.

For a stock pen dig nine holes in the ground 14 feet apart by 12. This will give you a pen 24 by 28 feet. Set posts, leaving 8 feet above ground, says a writer in the Farm and Home. Cut trees with natural crotch, lay in poles, then put rails or poles across the top. Be sure to set good posts, so they cannot fall in. You can board up front and sides, leaving door in front, or leave it open. Put in mangers if you wish to feed inside.



Easily Built Stock Shed.

Hay and Straw.

It is noticeable that alfalfa or lucern hay is very much more digestible than clover hay. This is partly due to its being harvested and stored away in a better stage to make good hay. Then there is a wide difference in the straws as to digestibility.

Some are of the opinion that wheat straw is more valuable as a feed than oat straw. However results of experiments show the reverse to be true.

If a ration is made up of total food constituents found in the material rather than the digestibility, poor, results will be obtained.

Both the amount and the digestibility must be considered.

Alfalfa for Swine.

The stomach of swine is small, compared with most of other animals, and is not therefore adapted to consuming large quantities of coarse, bulky foods. But it is found that alfalfa hay is relished by swine, and one-half pound a day in addition to a pound of sugar beets and a ration of grain may be fed with profit. In arid regions, where alfalfa and sugar beets are extensively grown, this ration is popular.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Do not attempt to raise a colt without giving the mare care.

The mutton produced by the cheviot is of a very superior quality.

After the lambs are weaned, the ewes should gain steadily in condition.

Oats are too bulky to be an ideal hog ration, and especially for young pigs.

Gilts bred to farrow the first time at 12 to 15 months of age will do well.

Sometimes old sows become very cross, as is most always the case with aged boars.

Ewes for breeding purposes should not be overly fat, but in a strong, vigorous, thrifty condition.

The ewes intended for breeding purposes should be sorted as early as possible and be put on good pasture.

Two litters of pigs may be raised each year from good sows providing the sows are given the best of feed and care.

In buying a boar, however, never get an old one. Get an early farrowed pig or a yearling at most, and do not be afraid to get a good one.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

The Latest Golf Story.

Two Scotchmen met and exchanged the small talk appropriate to the hour. As they were parting to go supperward, Sandy said to Jock:

"Jock, mon. I'll go ye a roond on the links in the morrn."

"The morrn?" Jock repeated doubtfully.

"Aye, mon, the morrn," said Sandy. "I'll go ye a roond on the links the morrn'."

"Aye weel," said Sandy. "I'll go ye. But I had intended to get married in the morrn'."

A Robber.

"Were you ever confronted by a robber?"

"Sure."

"And did you play the part of a hero?"

"No, indeed; you can't throttle a gas meter."

BLAME PHYSICIANS FOR GROWTH OF DOPE HABIT

Druggists Say Prescriptions and Not Patent Medicines the Cause.

New York.—Blame for the prevalence and growth of the morphine habit was placed on the shoulders of physicians, who prescribed the drug, at a meeting of druggists here tonight to protest against the recently enacted city ordinance prohibiting the sale at retail of any preparation containing morphine or its salts except upon a doctor's prescription.

The ordinance is aimed primarily at paregoric and at stomach remedies, according to members of the board of health who were instrumental in obtaining its passage. Caswell Mayo, one of the druggists, said he had made a canvass by mail of several sanitariums and the replies convinced him 90 per cent. of the victims of drugs formed the habit as a result of using prescriptions given by physicians and only 8 per cent. from using proprietary medicines.

ROYALTY AS THE GODFATHER

Difficulty in Europe Successfully Overcome by the Exercise of Some Diplomacy.

In the early days of the reign of the late King Leopold of Belgium a seventh son was born to a Brussels woman, and when the king heard of it and was told that the boy was the seventh successive one, and that no girl had come to the family, he asked to be the baby's godfather. Ever since then every seventh son born in Brussels has had the same honor, and the mothers have received gifts in keeping with their station in life. King Albert, in carrying out the old adage a short time ago had some difficulty "because the seventh son was twins," according to the Frankfurter Zeitung. He could not stand for both boys, because that would give the family two Alberts. The remedy was found by Queen Elizabeth, who suggested that her little son, the duke of Brabant, be the godfather of the eighth boy, who consequently received the name of Leopold.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult us by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of wrapping and mailing only, and we will send you a free copy of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in handsome French cloth binding.

FAC-SIMILE OF THE GENUINE PACKAGE SLIGHTLY REDUCED

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest or peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop and straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and grown. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

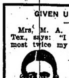
GIVEN UP TO DIE.



Mrs. M. A. Jenkins, Quanah, Tex., says: "I was bloated almost twice my natural size. I had the best physicians, but they failed to help me. For five weeks I was as helpless as a baby. My back throbbed and the kidney secretions were in terrible condition. The doctors held out no hope and I was resigned to my fate. At this critical time, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and soon was cured."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered--

Painful Symptoms: Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy.

Urinary Symptoms: Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine Let a bottle of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick dust, the kidneys are probably disordered.

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our college work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purcelance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

The Contest Ended

The Red Lake Falls Gazette says that the decision in the supreme court on the legal question in the election contest proceedings was against Contestant Ed L. Healy. It was held that the contest had not been started promptly enough following the issuance of the governor's proclamation declaring the creation of the new county. That ends the contest of the election.

It is now proposed to start quo warranto proceedings. Such proceedings are brought in the name of the state on relation of the attorney general. The consent of the attorney general is necessary. Attorney General Simpson is now considering the matter and has arranged for a conference with the belligerents. He has advised the Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls people that on Feb. 13, at 2 o'clock, he will consider their arguments. If the attorney general gives his consent the fight will go into the courts; if he withholds his consent Red Lake Falls people will admit the existence of Pennington county—possibly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

By the County Superintendent of Schools, Pennington Co., Minn.

The teachers' examinations that ordinarily would have been held in February have been postponed by order of the state superintendent and will be held May 4, 5, and 6. Teachers holding certificates that expire March 1, 1911 if they are now engaged in teaching in the county, should write the undersigned at his office in Thief River Falls at once, so that their certificates may be extended to the time of a later examination.

All teachers now teaching in the new county of Pennington must file their certificates with the county superintendent in order to be valid. Please attend to this matter at once.

Teachers of schools in the county who are entitled to take state high school examinations should report at once the number of papers in their respective schools to provide for the necessary questions for examinations. The schools entitled to these examinations are in districts No 25, 219, 37, 54 and 151, and such other rural schools as have pupils sufficiently advanced to avail themselves of said examinations.

I will be at my office in the auditorium at Thief River Falls on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month until further notice. I solicit respectfully your inquiries as regards school matters, and will be glad to answer same in person or by correspondence.

Respectfully submitted,

THE DULUTH HERALD

BEATS THE CENSUS THREE TO ONE

During the past ten years the population of Duluth increased 48 per cent., St. Paul 32 per cent., and Minneapolis 49 per cent. In the Same Period the Circulation of The Duluth Herald

INCREASED 150 PER CENT.

This marvelous expansion—so much greater than that of the surrounding territory—is due solely to the merits of The Herald. The Herald has never used any kind of premium, contest, or price reduction to gain subscribers but prints each day the very best NEWSPAPER in the Northwest. Its editorial page is thoroughly independent and its news columns cover every feature of the world's daily history.

Let Us Have Peace

Grant's immortal words above quoted were uttered after the most bitter and terrific struggle that ever took place on the American continent. For four long years the cannon had not ceased to boom nor heroes ceased to fall, but at length the south lay vanquished beneath the iron heel of the north; when like a breath of Heaven's calm upon the scene of turmoil and strife came the words of the victor, Let us have peace."

Upon a smaller scale the war has been repeated in old Red Lake county. For years the north and south have waged relentless warfare, but now the silence of the Red Lake Falls Gazette indicates an [illegible]. The [illegible] of the north can well afford to extend the olive branch of peace, and with good will unite with the citizens of Red Lake Falls to work for the common good of both north and south.—Contributed.

TO FIND FAULT.

People Are Sometimes Paid For That Express Purpose.

You have no idea how many things are wrong in a big business until you are paid to look for them, writes Gelett Burgess in Collier's. There were the clocks, for one thing, when I first began. The girls wore too many rats in their hair, there was grease on the elevator doors, expensive hats were dumped one on another, the ventilation was bad, the boxes on the shelves showed from the street through the show windows and about a thousand other things. Then Spindelheim sold teapots just like our eighteen cent ones for 14 cents, and for a son eye like Smith & Co. to be undersold is fatal. There's really nothing that so enrages Mr. Smith; also Rubinstein's window dresser has beaten ours, too, at times. Down it goes in my little report. Wouldn't any woman love my job.

Yes, it's fun to be paid for being a misanthrope, but it's hard work too. At 9 o'clock I begin my promenade through the store downstairs, upstairs, basement, attic and annex. If a girl at the counter has dirty finger nails or too wide a pompadour to suit me I stop and talk pleasantly, buy 9 cents' worth of edging and so get her number from the sales slip. She never knows anything about it till her superintendent gives her a scolding the next day. I have eyes like a hawk and a nose like a hound and ears like a small boy under the sofa when a young man's calling on big sister. In ten minutes I have spotted the dust in the corner of the aisle, a girl who wears brass bracelets, a porter who is not attending to his duty, a badly arranged counter, an error in spelling on a placard, two store detectives loafing on their job and a hideous combination of colors in the front window. I go to the ladies' room and make a note of these things surreptitiously. I don't dare go there too often, though, for fear I'll be identified, so sometimes I run back to my office, two blocks away. So it goes till about 4 o'clock, hither and thither, nigh and yon, looking for trouble. It doesn't do a clerk any good to be uncivil to me, I can tell you, or to make me wait too long for my change, but I try to be fair, and if I find a particularly willing and considerate sales person down that name goes in my report too. You might suppose that there'd be good graft in that; but, of course, I keep my position only so long as the head of the firm has absolute confidence in my integrity. The funny part of it is that the more I complain the better he likes it. I'm like the opposition party in congress. I'm never satisfied. When I am I'll have to look for another position.

At 4 o'clock I go back to my little office and dictate my report from my notes to a stenographer, and when it's typewritten I send it to the head of the firm.

When "Pluck" Was Slang.

The word "pluck" affords an instance of the way in which slang words in the course of time become adopted into current English. We now meet with "pluck" and "plucky" as the recognized equivalents of "courage" and "courageous." An entry in Sir Walter Scott's "Journal" shows that in 1827 the word had not yet lost its low character. He says (volume 2, page 30), "Want of that article blackguardly called pluck." Its origin is obvious. From early times the heart has been popularly regarded as the seat of courage. Now, when a butcher lays open a carcass he divides the great vessels of the heart, cuts through the windpipe and then plucks out together the united heart and lungs—lights, he calls them—and he terms the united mass "the pluck."—London Notes and Queries.

The first Lombary poplar in America was planted by Michaux in 1786.

WANTED—A RIDER AGENT [illegible] sample Latest Model "Ranger" bicycle furnished by us. Our agents everywhere are making money fast. Write for full particulars and special offer at once.
NO MONEY REQUIRED until you receive and approve of your bicycle. We ship to anyone, anywhere in the U. S. without a cent deposit in advance, prepay freight, and allow TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL during which time you may ride the bicycle and put it to any test you wish. If you are then not perfectly satisfied or do not wish to keep the bicycle ship it back to us at our expense and you will not be out one cent.
FACTORY PRICES We furnish the highest grade bicycles it is possible to make at one small profit above actual factory cost. You save $10 to $25 middlemen's profits by buying direct of us and have the manufacturer's guarantee behind your bicycle. DO NOT BUY a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone at any price until you receive our catalogues and learn our unheard of factory prices and remarkable special offers to rider agents.
YOU WILL BE ASTONISHED when you receive our beautiful catalogue and study our superb models at the wonderfully low prices we can make you this year. We sell the highest grade bicycles for less money than any other factory. We are satisfied with $1.00 profit above factory cost. BICYCLE DEALERS, you can sell our bicycles under your own name plate at double our prices. Orders filled the day received.
SECOND HAND BICYCLES. We do not regularly handle second hand bicycles, but usually have a number on hand taken in trade by our Chicago retail stores. These we clear out promptly at prices ranging from $3 to $8 or $10. Descriptive bargain lists mailed free.
COASTER-BRAKES, single wheels, imported roller chains and pedals, parts, repairs and equipment of all kinds at half the usual retail prices.
The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).
NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES
Nails, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.
DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.O.D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.
Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.
IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.
DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

Highest Award
World's Pure Food Exposition
Chicago, November, 1907
What does this mean?
It means that Calumet has set a new Standard in Baking Powder—the standard of the World.
Because this award was given to Calumet after thorough tests and experiments, over all other baking powders.
It means that Calumet is the best baking powder in every particular in the world.
And this means that Calumet produces the best, most delicious, lightest, and purest baking of all baking powders.
Doesn't that mean everything to you?

How is your supply of Letter Heads, Envelopes, Statements, Cards, etc. Now is the time to look after those little things during the dull season.

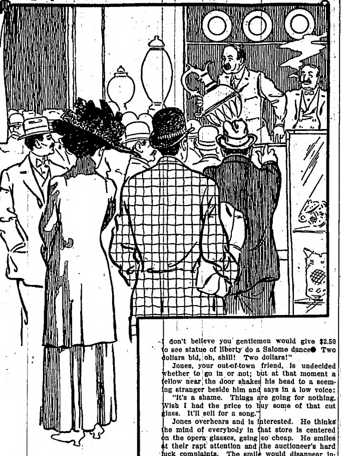
THE FAKE AUCTION

By H. E. TWINELLS

COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUB. CO.



AMERICANS have the reputation of being quick witted and shrewd. As a matter of fact we are Barnumized bluffers, far more gullible and credulous than any class of any nation.

Right now, in nearly every moderate-sized city of the United States we are falling in line and dropping gold into the tills of organized fake auction stores and taking in exchange a misrepresented article. These bogus auction stores are more harmful to us as a nation than all the old-time lotteries, policy games, mail-order fakes and circus grafts, including gold bricks and shell games, combined.

They are not honest. They play "heads we win, tails you lose." Uncle Sam doesn't want to bring up his boys in the business; yet he countenances it, and over 530 of his cities issue licenses regularly to the auctioneers of these fake companies, giving them the privilege of swindling the public at a nominal fee.

Any town with over 10,000 blind, Barnumized Yankees waiting to be buncoed is considered a fertile field.

THE PROPRIETOR

THE CASHIER • • •

THE AUCTIONEER • • •

THE SHILL • • •

From coast to coast, from line to line, we find in nearly every state from one to forty cities supporting temporary auction swindles. Few are permanent; it is a mushroom business which springs up over night in a cheap store, leased from month to month, and stays until trouble occurs or the field is worked dry.

New York city alone demands to be duped by no less than eight practically permanent companies of this sort, only shifting their positions to greener fields as the crowds change.

There are three ways to tell a legitimate auction. If the place is permanent and advertises sales on certain days, if the goods to be sold are catalogued piece for piece, and if there are no outside men hired to control the bidding, then it is certain that the sale is genuine.

The fake auction game is played under the pseudo patronage of reliability. The auctioneer's license, issued by the city, is hung conspicuously near the door and the goods are claimed to have been consigned from private sources or pawnbrokers in nearby cities. It is misrepresentation from the start. As a matter of fact the goods were picked up in job lots from novelty houses, jobbers, Japanese stores and regular auction supply firms who handle job lots of trashy stuff and are to be found in all the larger cities. The ivories they handle are made of cheap clay by shrewd Japs who have scraped through the shell of American bluff and found the flabbiness of the flesh beneath. These antiques crumble to pieces after six months in a heated apartment. Practically all the goods handled in these stores are made on the same principle and bought at from one-fifth to one-fiftieth of what they will bring at auction.

There is nothing criminal in selling at an exorbitant profit if the purchaser gets the square deal. But a fake auction company is primarily a ring of cheats never intentionally giving anyone a square deal.

The proprietor is the arch rogue. His profit depends on selling an article at anywhere from fifty to two, three and sometimes five hundred dollars. The auction does not pay if run for the average buyer; it is merely a trap, a "plant," for the occasional "good thing" who happens in and is quickly relieved of a large amount of money through an elaborate system he never suspects.

It is a joyless game, played on cut-and-dried rules which admit of no freshness or originality. The average cast—for they are all actors and play the same cheap show every day—is made up of one backer, or proprietor, two auctioneers, one pretty girl cashier, and from two to ten "shills" (the pale-faced people with mushy morals), their number depending on the size and situation of the store.

The backer usually is a shrewd and unscrupulous man who rents a vacant store, fills it with a scattering of cheap, showy articles to attract attention and a number of large so-called "works of art;" and "antiques" which, on inspection, prove to be minors. The range runs from fountain pens at ten cents to deceptive "ivories," "bronzes" and "paintings by the old masters" that bring from fifty to two hundred and fifty dollars, and sometimes more, from the uninitiated.

The proprietor hires a pretty girl cashier and counts her as an additional attraction. He gets one or two auctioneers—they usually travel in pairs, to relieve one another and the public—and guarantees them ten per cent. of the sales; which commission runs from forty to two hundred dollars a week.

Then the dealer incorporates the backbone of the whole crooked business—the body of "shills." The word "shill," or "shilliver" in full, is of indeterminate origin. It is synonymous with "capper," "booster," "ringer," "dummy," "stool," "stool pigeon" and "outside man;" all techincal slang titles for the shabby creature, the human buzzard, who picks up his foul living by rascality and roguery in working between the public and some swindling game: in this case, working among those who stop in at the auction and pretending to have no connection with the sale, betraying a score of people a day after ingratiating himself in their good graces through cunning and craft.

Without these shills no sham auction can exist. Of course in smaller towns only two or three can be used, as strangers are more easily noticed in such places. They are the crooks on whom the proprietor relies to pick out unsuspecting visitors snared by the bargain lure and jockey them into buying misrepresented articles.

The shill mixes with the crowd. His business is to look just like an interested buyer and lie in wait for the fly for which the elaborate web was spun.

This individual, for whom the scenery is set and the actors dressed, is called in technical slang "a rummy." The old three-card monte men christened him "sucker."

Picture a room 40 feet long and 20 feet wide. Double doors to the sidewalk are invitingly open; above them hangs an enticing red flag bearing the name of what purports to be a legitimate auction firm; beneath that, in large letters, are the words:

SALE TODAY.

Pick out any acquaintance who lives in a small town, is fairly prosperous, and has come to the nearby city of10,000 to 30,000 population to look around for the day, purchase a present for his wife and some implements for the farm.

He has read in the papers and magazines accounts of book, art and antique auctions and noted the hugh prices brought by rarities. When he stumbles on to the flagrant flag of the fake auction house and looks in at the window, heaped with a miscellany of antiques, he is suddenly stirred by that perennial longing for a bargain.

He glances through the door. There is a worried auctioneer struggling with eight dull-faced people. He is trying frantically to sell a pair of opera glasses.

"Genuine Lemier, gentlemen; concave and convex lenses, put up in this heavy morocco case," the auctioneer cries, "and $2 is bid for them. Think of that! Not a tenth of their value. Why, I don't believe you gentlemen would give $2.50 to see statue of liberty do a Salome dance. Two dollars bid, oh, shill! Two dollars!"

Jones, your out-of-town friend, is undecided whether to go in or not; but at that moment a fellow near the door shakes his head to a seeming stranger beside him and says in a low voice:

"It's a shame. Things are going for nothing. Wish I had the price to buy some of that cut glass. It'll sell for a song."

Jones overhears and is interested. He thinks the mind of everybody in that store is centered on the opera glasses, going so cheap. He smiles at their rapt attention and the auctioneer's hard luck complaints. The smile would disappear instantly if he knew that he himself was the sole concern of the eight minds in that audience, and the auctioneer. He would be furious if he knew that the whole sale of the opera glasses was a sham; that when the auctioneer saw Jonesey looking in he immediately transmitted this fact to the shill nearest the door by saying, "Oh, shill," casually in his speech. Jones had never heard the word, so naturally he didn't select it with suspicion from the auctioneer's jargon, and suspected nothing when the man near the door remarked about cut glass bargains.

As a matter of fact Jones was interested in cut glass. His wife liked it and occasionally he invested in some, it being the nearest he could get to diamonds.

So he sauntered in casually and watched with an amused smile the frantic auctioneer trying to sell a watch. Jones wasn't interested in watches. He had one in his pocket; so his eyes continually roved toward the cut glass in a little Japanese cabinet.

He didn't know it, but before he was in the place two minutes, while the auctioneer was trying to "feel him out" with the watch, one of the shills had noticed Jones's interest in cut glass, and had called the auctioneer's attention to the fact by touching the cabinet significantly.

The auctioneer, on his perch above them all, had control of the situation. He noted the signal from the shill, jotted down mentally that Jones wanted cut glass, and knocked down the watch he had been experimenting with to one of the shills for a ruinous price, which was all helpful in showing Jones that a shrewd man could pick up a bargain if he laid low, attracted no attention and bided his time.

"Sold for six ninety. Put it with the other goods for Mr. A. Deposit sufficient," the auctioneer cried to the pretty cashier.

Jones did not bid on the first piece of cut glass. The auctioneer did not look toward him once to give him a chance. The piece was knocked down for $3.80. It was a frightful bargain. Jones would have given $5 for it himself. But the auctioneer passed abruptly to the next article.

Jones pressed forward this time as a gorgeous punch bowl was put up. He heard various exclamations around him, all tending to give him confidence in the fact that things were going dirt cheap. Two ladies beside him commiserated because they wouldn't have enough.

"Gentlemen and ladies," the auctioneer went on solemnly, "if I had this article in Chicago or New York it would bring one hundred dollars, one hundred dollars. You couldn't duplicate it at retail for less than two hundred. It is the finest piece of art glass ever shown in your city."

"Can I get one hundred dollars? Ninety? Eighty? Seventy-five dollars? Can I get sixty? Fifty? Give me forty; thirty-line; thirty!"

"Fifteen dollars!" came a halting voice from beside Jones.

Jones was interested. He sensed a bargain. Had he known that when the auctioneer said "thirty-line" it was a signal to the shill beside Jones to bid $30 with a line through it, or fifteen actual dollars, he would not have been so enthusiastic.

"Sixteen!" "Seventeen!" "Half!" "Eighteen!" staccato offers punctuated the atmosphere after the auctioneer's encouragement.

"Gee, it's gone beyond me," he sighed, turning to Jones; it'll go dirt cheap, too. If you could buy that for $50 it'd be a bargain, sure enough."

"Twenty-eight is the last bid," wailed the auctioneer. "Why, you could take it out and pawn it for more than that."

Jones thrilled as the auctioneer turned to look squarely at him.

"You'd give thirty, wouldn't you?" he cried.

Jones gulped and nodded.

The auctioneer skilfully led up to the grand landing by taking offers of "thirty-six" and "thirty-seven" from members of his troupe. He had felt out his man carefully and knew that $40 would be Jones's limit.

"Will you give me forty?" he said simply, in a level tone, leaning far over the showcase.

Jones hesitated, gulped, and then nodded his head abruptly.

Jones was pleased with his bargains until he got home and his wife told him he could get the same punch bowl for $10 anywhere and that the other stuff was worthless.

MONUMENT TO A GOOD LIVER

Belley, in France, to Honor the Memory of Brillat-Savarin, Noted Gourmand.

Belley, a little town in the southeast of France, is about to raise a monument to the glory of one of its sons, Brillat-Savarin. The author of "The Physiology of Taste" was the absolute realization of the typical good liver. The revolution confiscated his property and removed him from his office as civil judge. He fled to Switzerland and then to the United States, where he played a fiddle in a New York theater to gain a living.

His property was afterward returned to him and he was made a counsellor of the Supreme court, an office he clung to successfully through changes of empire and kingdom. His "Physiology of Taste" shared the fate of many celebrated books. It was refused by several publishers and eventually was published at the author's expense, but without his name attached to it, as he considered the nature of the work incompatible with his judicial functions.

It was Brillat-Savarin who declared that "the discovery of a new food does more for the happiness of the human race than the discovery of a star."

Some of the axioms from his book are:

"The man who can cook is made, the man who can roast is born."

"To invite anybody to one's house is to undertake the responsibility of his well being during the whole time he is one's guest."

"Animals feed; man eats; the man of sense alone knows how to eat."

"The destiny of nations depends upon how they are fed."

"Monsieur the Councellor," a hostess asked him one day, "which do you prefer, Burgundy or Bordeaux?"

"Madame," replied the judicial authority, "that is a lawsuit in which I have so much pleasure in taking the evidence that I always postpone judgment."

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Divorce Record Held by Kansas City

HURRY
MARRIAGE BOND

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—How to be happy though married seems to be a question hard to solve in this city, for recent statistics show one divorce for every four marriages. This is believed to be the highest record for matrimonial detachments in the United States. Taking Missouri and Kansas there is one divorce for every eight marriages, and in the United States one for every 12. England is at the other end of the line, with one divorce for every 400 marriages.

Dr. Charles A. Elwood, professor of sociology in the State University, has recently compiled the figures upon which the divorce statements regarding Missouri marriages that failed are based.

He has found that 80 per cent of the divorces are obtained by women and in nearly all cases the allegations made by wives are sufficient. Among the reasons advanced by Dr. Elwood for the increase of divorce is the decay of religion, particularly in the religious theory of marriage and the family. Another probable reason advanced is the development of individualism, self-assertion and self-interest.

This spirit is said to be antagonistic to the simple life. It is the spirit fostered by the New Woman, the woman of the clubs and the suffragette movement. A number of avocations are now open to women in which a bright girl can earn a salary making her independent. After a few years of this life she may marry well or she may marry a man who cannot provide the little luxuries of life she was able to provide for herself before marriage.

That a woman should be discontented after giving up independence and a life full of diverting incidents, the daily trip downtown, the work in an office until noon, the daily gossip bazar at luncheon and the mingling with a busy world, is not considered surprising. From this class many domestic discords come to swell the big grist for the divorce mill.

Men in the professions do not think of marriage until they are at least 30 years old. They try to become established and to attain a dependable position before marrying. This contributes something to demestic discord, for the man of 30 or over has accumulated habits that are not easily adaptable to those of his wife, particularly if she is near his own age.

One Man Booms Street Fakers' Sales

DE GREATEST OF DE AGE -!-!

CHICAGO.—"Capping" for street fakers has been found a highly lucrative if novel way of earning a living by at least one young Chicagoan. It could hardly be called work, strolling about the streets at such times as might suit the stroller's own sweet will, but if his story is true, the returns are greater than the salaries of many men who work long hours in shops or offices.

"It is through my ability to draw a crowd and get 'em interested in the toys and gimcracks you see peddled on the streets, the capper said, that I boom the fakers' sales. I get a percentage. "The only rule I follow," he went on, "and the only rule a fellow in this game can follow consistently, is to change his make-up as frequently as possible. I never attempt a disguise of the stage sort, with fake whiskers, grease paint or anything freaky. But I do wear several suits, coats and hats in the course of the day and make it a rule to dress inconspicuously, so that I cannot easily be detected by persons I have induced to purchase by suggestion instead of direct appeal, as the ordinary salesman would do.

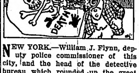
"Now, I don't get a divvy on all sales. The way I work is this: I stroll along until I find one of my partners doing nothing in the sales line and then I get busy. He's selling a mechanical toy, we'll say. I stop, examine it closely, ask for a demonstration and comment on the thing until I have six or eight people around me, then I buy one of the toys and walk away. I've worked that crowd up to the proper pitch. One sale follows another and as the crowd increases the faker benefits accordingly.

"I never butt into a crowd that is buying. That would be useless. I wait until things are slow or stagnant, and then I jump in and a laugh or a pointed comment does the trick. I don't sell directly; I merely suggest and the vender rakes in the coin and passes over his goods.

"My rake-off? Oh, yes. I have from twenty to thirty fakers on my list, and they come around to my room every night and buy back what I have purchased from them during the day, at five times the regular price.

"I seldom visit a man more than three times a day, and frequently not more than once or twice. It's worth from $50 to $100 a week."

Criminals Threaten Police Official



NEW YORK.—William J. Flynn, deputy police commissioner of this city, and the head of the detective bureau which rounded up the great Italian kidnaping gang and also placed about a dozen members of two or three large counterfeiting gangs behind prison bars, is a "marked man." The Italian criminals of the metropolis have declared that he must die, and for the last two or three weeks have been working overtime in advising him of the fact by sending threatening letters. Death in its most horrible forms has been promised him; he has seen the death sign given him scores of times in court rooms, and on the streets, yet he goes calmly about his business, and the list of law-breaking Italians in Sing Sing is constantly growing.

Probably no man in the United States is more bitterly hated by "Black Hand" members and Italian criminals generally than Flynn. Relentless in the running down of these bands of foreign crooks, he has aroused a hatred for himself among them that amounts almost to madness. Yet it is a hatred that is so tempered with fear that, up to the present time, his life has never been attempted. He has been doomed to die, if the criminal element among the Italians ever find a way to accomplish it, yet he is still at his old post. For years he has gotten threatening letters—letters with cross bones and skulls and black hands and death marked all over them—but as yet no criminal has had the courage to put his threat into execution.

Since the roundup of the big Italian kidnaping band a few weeks ago, Flynn has been an especial target for these death letters. Distant letters and friends of the ten people now in jail for child stealing, as well as those of that notorious and expert gang of counterfeiters recently handed behind the bars, have been decorating letters with death hieroglyphics and sending them to the deputy commissioner.

Flynn does not see half these death letters addressed to him. He gave up paying any attention to them long ago. His private secretary throws them all in the waste basket, that is all except the more ghastly ones, which he shows to the chief.

"They are so funny," says Flynn, "that I like to read them. I don't believe a word in them, so they only afford me amusement."

Delivery of a Letter Long Delayed

YONKERS, N. Y.—Uncle Sam set a new record in rapid postal service when he delivered at Yonkers the other day, a letter sent from Geneva, N. Y., on April 29, 1838.

Yonkers is just 335 miles from Geneva. It took the letter seventy-two years to travel the distance.

Both the sender of the letter and the man to whom it was addressed are dead, the latter forty years ago. Mrs. Walter Paddock, of the old Paddock family of Yonkers, received it. She is a grandniece of D. O. Paddock, to whom the letter was addressed. He was in the lumber business. Mrs. Paddock had never seen him.

The postman called at her home with a postoffice department envelope. Within was the time-yellowed sheet of paper. It was not an envelope, for it was written when envelopes were unknown. It was folded square and the ends turned in, and a postage stamp was pasted across to keep them there. The stamp was canceled and the missive bore the date, Geneva, N. Y., April 29, 1838. Beneath this stamp was another one, which read Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1910.

No explanation of the delay appeared upon it. There was no mark from the dead letter office. It probably had been mailed by the sender, who signed himself Whitney, and had been mislaid in the postoffice at Geneva to be found again just now.

It was in relation to a shipment of lumber which Mr. Paddock was to make from Yonkers, and contained the information that $2,000 in payment would be sent on receipt of the consignment.

All He Could Carry.

An Atlanta man not long ago met a darky who was driving a horse so thin that it staggered as it walked. "Why don't you put more flesh on that nag?" indignantly demanded the Atlantan.

"'Scuse me, boss," replied the driver. "But I's doin' de best I kin. Cain't yo see, boss, dat po' hoss kin hardly carry what little flesh he's got on him now?"

Met Death in Hot Starch.

A fearful death was that of a man named John Baird at a mill in New York. As he bent over a large vat filled with boiling starch, he slipped and fell into the hot mixture. He was literally boiled to death before workmen dragged his body from the vat with hooks attached to a rope. The hot starch had reduced the man's clothing to fragments.

THE SCHOOLS OF WESTERN CANADA

In Some of the Cities and Towns the School Buildings Cannot Accommodate the Increasing Numbers.

One of the most important factors in the building of a new country is the attention that is paid by the authorities to the education of the rising generation. Fortunately for western Canada, the settlement of that new country began in such recent years that it was able to lay a foundation for this work, gained by the experience of older countries. In this way the very best is the result. Throughout the entire country are to be seen the most improved style of architecture in school buildings. The cities and towns vie with each other in the efforts to secure the best of accommodation and at the same time get architectural lines that would appeal. Sufficient to say that nowhere is there the greater attention paid to elementary and advanced education than in western Canada. A report just to hand shows that in Calgary, Alberta, there are eighty teachers employed, and the enrollment 4,228 pupils. In the Province of Alberta there was a total of 46,000 pupils attending schools in 1909. The total enrollment for the year in city, town and village schools was 22,883, and the total in rural schools was 23,165. There are in the province 970 schools with 1,323 departments. At the close of 1909 there was a total of 1,096 school districts in the province. Great attention is paid also to agricultural education. The best uses of the soil and such other matters as tend to make the agriculture less of a drudge and more of a success are employed. When there is the combination of good soil, splendid climate and healthy, and advanced ideas in the methods employed in agriculture, we see accomplished the results that have placed western Canada on its present high plane in the agricultural world. There is to be found men of high standing in literary spheres as well as in financial circles who are carrying on farming, not alone for the pleasure they derive but for the profit they secure. Mr. Adler, a wide-awake business man of New York, has a ranch near Strathmore, Alberta. He is highly pleased with his success the past year. He says:

"On July 25th we estimated our crop at 6,000 bushels of wheat. A week later we increased our estimate to 12,000 bushels. A few days later we again increased our estimate, this time to 18,000 bushels, but after harvest in September we found we had 20,150 bushels. If that isn't a record, what is?" he asked.

"This crop was made with practically no moisture," he continued, "and we now have a better opinion of the fertility of Alberta lands than ever and value our lands higher than we ever did before."

Mr. Adler, who has been on the ranch for about a week, leaves for New York Saturday.

This gentleman is conducting a farm on a large scale, and has plenty of means to develop it, and his may not be taken as a fair case. There are, though, instances of thousands who have begun life on small farms in western Canada with but brains and the determination over and above the couple of hundred dollars in ready money that they possessed, and today are owners of large farms and handsome incomes, all the result of their efforts on land that was responsive to the touch of the hand that held the plow. Instances such as these can be quoted if you will communicate with the nearest Canadian government agent, who will also mail you free descriptive literature.

A Transaction in Stamps.

The stamp vending machines installed in many stores and shops about the city are not favored by a woman who hurried into a drug store in Massachusetts avenue several days ago where there is a branch postoffice.

"How do you sell your two-cent stamps?" she inquired indignantly.

"Two cents apiece," replied Bassett.

"Well, that's all right," she replied, while she fished in her purse for a coin. "This is the fifth place I have visited after stamps. At all the other places they had those slot machines where you have to spend a nickel for two two-cent stamps. I made up my mind not to be held up if I had to walk all over the city. Give me two stamps."

The woman laid down a dime and hurried out with two two-cent stamps, leaving six cents in change lying on the show case. She did not return.—Indianapolis News.

A Corner in Candles.

As an example of trusts and monopolies prevalent even in this early day it may be mentioned that in 1750 one Benjamin Crabb obtained the exclusive right to make sperm candles in Massachusetts for 14 years.

A year later, however, a factory was started in Providence, R. I., and within the decade there were eight factories in New England and one in Philadelphia. Their output greatly reduced the price of candles, which not long before sold for five shillings a pound. In those days $1.25 was [illegible] fully three times as much as it is now.—From the Designer.

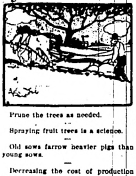
NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt



Prune the trees as needed.

Spraying fruit trees is a science.

Old sows farrow heavier pigs than young sows.

Decreasing the cost of production is increasing the profit.

The cow and the hen have kept starvation from many a door.

In putting up ice wait until the ice and weather are right, then rush the job.

Some animals are selected individually but prove to be failures as breeders.

Springs add to the life of the wagon, also to the comfort of the man who uses it.

Gilt edge butter brings money to the maker. It's poor policy to offer poor butter for sale.

The sale of so many thousands of young calves annually is an alarming feature of the beef situation.

It is the general average of the herd that decides the profit and not the returns from one or two of the best cows.

When cows get pretty well along in the period of lactation the churning does not come as readily as when they are fresh.

Remember when you plow in the orchard that the roots are very near the surface. Three inches is plenty deep enough.

More turkeys would mean more spending money for many a farmer's wife. The turkey crop is getting smaller every year.

Do not "guess" that your seed is all right; that is not enough. You ought to be sure that it is all right before you plant it.

When feeding new corn from the field, husk only the end of the rows, to facilitate turning when the regular corn husking season begins.

Bring in the corn horse after you are through with it. Even a wooden horse will show the effects if stabled out in the field a few months.

Rusty garden tools may be brightened by soaking in sour milk whey for 12 hours, then brushed. A coat of kerosene should then be applied.

There is probably/no question that the application of lime to any soil that shows an acid reaction when tested with litmus paper would be profitable.

A mighty nice shelter for hogs and cattle can be made of long poles and posts that make a large room with a ceiling about six and one-half or seven feet.

Be sure to furnish the hens oyster shells at all times. It is important that this element be supplied. It will improve the egg yield and the health of the flock.

When killed by the frost, mow off the asparagus tops and burn them, then give the bed—and the rhubarb plants, too—a thick winter coat of stable manure.

No one breed of hogs has a monopoly of all the good points in bacon type. As the saying goes: "There are good and bad in all breeds, and bad and worse in some."

If a little more attention to the food supply were given the fowls with a view to induce a better egg yield the pullets would be laying early in the fall and keep at it all winter.

There are several reasons why the dairy cow should appeal to the farmer, but among the chief is that she helps the soil and brings in regular returns. Her product is a sure crop.

Never get the idea in your head that drugs and health are inseparable, for in most cases it will be found that what we keep out of the pig's stomach has more to do with their health than what we put in.

For the poultry, in addition to corn, roots may be given and then there ought to be also some bran, oats, wheat and oyster shells, and at all times an abundance of grit should be provided, especially during the winter season, when the ground is frozen and covered with snow.

A writer in the Scientific American says he has cleared his premises of rats as well as vermin, by making whitewash yellow with copperas, and covering the stones and rafters in the cellar with it. In every crevice in which a rat might g he put copperas, and scattered it in the corners of the floor. The result was a complete disappearance of rats and mice.

The pullet is the best layer.

Iron in some form makes a good tonic.

Why not try a small piece of alfalfa next spring?

It's hard to make a man believe he owns a poor cow.

Alfalfa and clover are the best dry feeds there are for the cow.

Use the milk pails and cans for no other purpose than to hold milk.

Cover the rhubarb plants now with plenty of coarse but rich stable manure.

Temperature has more to do with your failure to get butter than any one cause.

Grafting is one of the most interesting things on the farm and it is absurdly simple.

Timothy growing means exhaustion of land, because it is now grown as a commercial crop.

When the fowls pick themselves frequently you may be sure that they are infested with lice.

There is little danger of draft in the poultry house if there is only one opening in the building.

Soil that is poorly drained suffers more in both dry and wet seasons than that which is well drained.

The orchardists should become more familiar with the most approved method of producing more and better fruit.

Records of the performance of dairy cows form the only accurate and safe basis for judging their value.

There is no line of general agriculture in which well directed effort will pay so large a profit as in dairy farming.

As a matter af fact, barnyard manure commences to ferment and undergo changes the moment it is dropped.

From twelve to twenty-four hours before churning you should commence to ripen the cream, according to the time of the year.

Every owner of live stock should be prepared to treat the more common ills to which live stock of different kinds are subject.

Colds with poultry often lead to roup and when once roup gets a good start we are likely to have quite a task to get rid of it.

The fertilizer problem is getting to be a big one, and could be greatly reduced by keeping more stock and selling less hay and straw.

Many of the orchard tracts of the central as well as the extreme west are owned and operated by women, who are happy in their work.

Have some way of marking every turkey. They may get with neighbor's turkeys and you will want some way of proving your property.

The dairy barnyard should have good slope, such as will insure good surface drainage, and should have a good top layer of gravel or cinders.

The purchaser of a bull should select an animal that is a good individual and whose dam and granddam on his sire's side have good butterfat records.

Single purpose animals carry their functions with greater economy than do so-called dual purpose animals. These facts belong to the domain of breeding.

After the first week of sleeping and resting the young calf should be allowed to exercise freely in the open air, in order to develop muscles, lungs and heart.

The Minnesota experiment station has found bran to be an excellent feed to combine with corn fodder and timothy or wild hay, as a ration for the milch cow.

Let the new-born calf stay in the stall or pasture with its mother for several days, and she will let it feed at times and in amounts best suited to its needs in life.

There is no longer certainty of a crop of fair fruit without spraying with insecticides, no matter how propitious the season otherwise or how fertile the orchard soil.

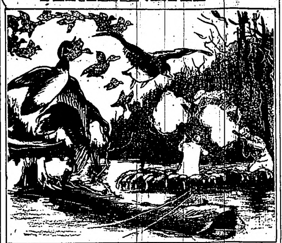
Proof piles up that there are scores and hundreds of dairy cows that are not paying their way while many others are making a handsome profit for the owner. Which kind do you keep?

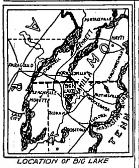
Breeding animals that have weak constitutions and organic weaknesses will transmit these defects to their progeny, and they will become easy prey to about all the ailments that the hog is heir to.

Nearly every poultry raiser, whether in the business for pleasure or profit, has his choice of breeds and in nine cases out of ten, he will succeed better with his favorite than with any other. So preference often becomes a potent factor in the problem and a point not to be ignored.

Dairying has been changed by the introduction of the separator, a comparatively simple device, which today is indispensable, but was unknown during the earlier generations on the farm. The quality of dairy cattle is improving every year as the experts gain in knowledge and experience. The same is true of all other live stock on the farm.

SLAUGHTER OF DUCKS IN ARKANSAS





LOCATION OF BIG LAKE

BIG LAKE, ARK., is the last stand of the wild duck in the United States. It is the most extensive gathering place for duck in this country where they may be legally shot by "market hunters" and shipped out. As a result, hundreds of thousands are shot there annually. This practice is the most important factor today in the elimination of the wild duck. It has been found impossible to protect the ducks under state supervision.

Big lake and ten feet of land surrounding it are owned by a club of which many wealthy St. Louisans are members. Owing to opposition of the "swamp angels," the members are barred from hunting on their own grounds. A move is now on foot to have the club deed its property to the United States government as a national game preserve. This would result in its being policed by federal rangers and ducks protected. Many sportsmen believe that unless this is done another generation will see the total extermination of the wild duck, as the last few generations saw the extermination of the buffalo and the passenger pigeons which once were to be found in this country in millions. Five thousand wild ducks a day have been killed and shipped from Big lake to the outside world, chiefly to Chicago. The "market hunters," otherwise known as "swamp angels," who inhabit the Big lake country, have defied all efforts to stop their slaughter of the birds. Quite naturally since their views differ so radically, the "swamp angels" of Big lake do not take kindly to the attempts of the game protection propagandists of the country to limit the number of ducks they shall shoot on what they regard as their own preserves.

During the last few years the Big Lake Hunting and Fishing club, which has a number of wealthy St. Louis men among its officers and members, has lost three club houses by fire. In the meantime, too, the club, through its employees, has been warned that it must cease to operate under penalty of death to its members if it continues. This property loss has, naturally, caused the club members to hesitate before making further improvements on their Big lake preserves. The warnings from the "swamp angels" to individual members that they would "fill their hides with buckshot" has not served to increase the ardor of the St. Louis hunters.

Big lake and ten feet of land surrounding it on three sides is owned by the Big Lake Hunting and Fishing club. It comprises, in all, about 30,000 acres. Attempts on the part of the owners of the lake to keep the "swamp angels" from killing ducks thereon have precipitated the trouble. Recently the club has attempted to protect itself by securing injunctions against about 100 of the "swamp angels."

Wild ducks begin coming into Big lake in October, and are found there in vast numbers until the willows begin to bud in the spring. Of course, they come and go, but thousands of them are always to be found somewhere between the St. Francis river below and the "Little River overflow" above Big lake, with the lake as the great central congregating ground.

It is difficult to convey to the mind of the reader who has not been there an idea of how many ducks "use" Big lake. To say that they come in by hundreds of thousands seems in exaggeration. Yet any hunter who has shot duck on Big lake during the height of the season will vouch for the statement.

When one adds that the duck flocks frequently darken the sun as though a heavy cloud had come over it another idea of their number is obtained. And hunters assert this to be literally true times without number.

Think, again, of ducks settled on the lake in such numbers that a masked canoe, pushing in amongst them, finds itself in a very tangle of live creatures and you get yet another angle of the question of how many, and also some impression of how tame they become after filling themselves with the "duck grass" seed which abounds there, and even in spite of the constant fusillade the hunters keep up.

It is out of such a conglomerate of ducks as this that the hunters bag their 5,000 a day for the markets. And it may well be stated here that 5,000 is considered a conservative estimate. Many hunters put the number as high as 10,000 on the "big days."

As much as $5,000 has been paid out in one day for ducks at Manilla, a town of about 300 people. At Paragould, it is not an uncommon thing for 150 barrels, each containing 75 mallards, to be sent out at one shipment, and 70 and 100 barrels are to be expected every good day during the season. All of these ducks come out of the sunken lands to the east of Paragould, and an enormous number from Big lake. In addition, Paragould is only one, although probably the principal, of the shipping points.

One hundred and fifty barrels of ducks would mean more than 11,000 individuals in one shipment. All the rest of the shipping points must certainly average as many as Paragould, and on that basis many days see more than 20,000 ducks, as a conservative estimate, shipped out of the sunken lands country of northwestern Arkansas and Southeastern Missouri. This would mean an average of 5,000 daily for four days in one day's shipment. It is asserted that a run of as few as 20 barrels from Paragould during the season is extraordinary.

"Market hunters" among the swamp angels dispose of these ducks to buyers at various points, chiefly at Manilla, for from 11 to 16 cents per duck, according to their size, condition and breed.

Buyers ship them to dealers, most of them going to Chicago. The express and icing charges average about five cents per duck. The buyer gets about 35 cents each for them on an average. Attempt in Chicago to buy a brace of mallards and you will find them priced at from $1 up, $1.50 being, perhaps, an average price. Get them in a fashionable cafe and you will pay from 75 cents up per portion.

Arkansas has a strict game law, providing that no hunter shall ship game out, and, indeed, prohibiting hunting by non-residents except on their own land. The kill is limited to 25 ducks per day, and it is unlawful for anyone to have more than 50 ducks—two days' kill—in his possession at one time.

Here, however, comes in an exception which makes Big lake the crying evil it is in the eyes of game protectionists. Four townships in Mississippi county, into all of which Big lake extends, are exempt from the non-shipment clause of the Arkansas game laws.

Swamp angels operating around Big lake live in the swamps. Their homes—the places they call home—according to hunters who have visited them, are usually miserable places. Mere shacks made of logs or rough boards, with cracks in sides, floor and even the roof big enough to throw a cat through, are located on the ridges found here and there in the swamps.

Out of the price he receives for his ducks the "swamp angel" must pay for his shells, and this reduces his profits, but practically every shell he purchases means a large fat duck. To miss more than one shot out of 25 is considered "a disgrace."

Although malaria is rampant in the Big lake country, the "swamp angels" are for the most part immune from it. Hunters coming in from the outside soon catch it, however, and thus the "swamp angels" find an ally in the natural conditions, and the shooting of ducks continues merrily in spite of all laws and protests.

In love as in gambling the true devotee plays for the game's sake, not for the prize.

Chinese Compressed Seed Tea.

The Mandarin or virgin tea of China consists of the leaves and twigs of the tea-plant, which are tied up in little silk bundles. But the compressed seed tea of the Chinese is even more remarkable. It is tea preserved with its seeds and pressed into a compact mass under the bare feet of Chinese damsels, thousands of girls being employed for the purpose on the great tea plantations. It is considered a great delicacy in the Orient.

Iceland Gloves.

In so cold a climate the glove must be put off or on as rapidly and easily as possible so it is made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left all gloves have two thumbs. You simply thrust your hand into the first glove that comes and your thumb immediately finds its way. There are of course drawbacks in the matter of appearance, for the dangling idle thumb looks untidy.

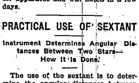
SCIENCE AND INVENTION

INCUBATION OF FISH EGGS

German Method of Hatching Out of Water Gives Excellent Results With Trout and Salmon.

Hatching fish eggs out of water may sound absurd, but it is nevertheless true that the most important stage of the hatching may be passed out of water and that this makes possible a considerable simplification of the hatching apparatus. The method has been tried in Germany with trout and salmon eggs and has given excellent results.

The eggs, thoroughly washed, are spread to an even thickness on trays about 6 inches square and but ¼ inch thick, says the Popular Mechanics. The bottoms of the trays are formed of cloth, made fast to the under side of a frame very much like that of a window screen. These egg trays hold about 1,000 eggs each, and each one rests on a second type of tray, called an "air tray." This tray is also 6 inches square, and 1¾ inches deep, the bottom being formed of fine mesh wire.



Hatching Fish Eggs Out of Water.

One of the illustrations shows a pile of these trays arranged alternately, beginning with an air tray, and having at the top a third kind of tray. This is called the "upper air tray," and is 4 inches deep, filled with bog or wood moss.

Placed in a cellar or other cool place, all that is required is to pour a small quantity of pure water into the top tray each day in order to maintain the humidity of the lower trays, and to inspect the egg trays once a day for the removal of dead eggs. When the embryo becomes plainly visible inside the egg, they are transferred to the ordinary underwater apparatus and will hatch in a few days.

PRACTICAL USE OF SEXTANT

Instrument Determines Angular Distances Between Two Stars—How It Is Done.

The use of the sextant is to determine the angular distances between two stars. This is done by means of reflecting mirrors and a telescope. The telescope is directed so as to receive in direct line the rays from one of the two stars under observation, and to receive by reflection from mirrors the rays from the other star under observation. The mirror (m) is directly in the line with the telescope, and the upper part of the disk containing the mirror is of plain glass, which transmits the light from the star directly. The lower part of the disk contains a mirror. The other mirror (a) is fixed on a movable limb of the sextant. When this limb is fixed at zero the two mirrors are parallel. The limb is moved about and with it the mirror (a) until the ray of light (g.a.) is reflected through the mirror (a) to the mirror (m), and thence directly into the telescope, so that the two stars are seen coincident by the observer, the one directly and the other reflected twice from the two mirrors. The angle between the stars is twice the angle between the mirrors. The angle between the mirrors is read directly on the graduated arc of the sextant.

New Diamond Fields.

From the methods used to locate the stones the new diamond fields in German South Africa might very well be called a Tom Tiddler's Ground, says the Wide World Magazine. The diamonds are very small, but are exceedingly plentiful.

They are found in the open desert, where nothing but sand, unrelieved by the slightest sign of brush or shrub, is to be seen for vast distances. The men who search for the stones—needless to say, they are all natives—have 10 miles to go every morning from camp.

The searchers work on their hands and knees, apparently regardless of the blinding sunshine, sifting the surface sand through their fingers. Most of them are old Kimberley boys and they are very keen on discovering stones. The district is hardly a paradise for the white man, being notorious for its frequent dust storms and terrific heat.

New Hair Combs.

To prevent the loss of a woman's back and side combs, an ingenious inventor has patented combs with a small hook on the under side to engage the hair.

Alkoethine Gas.

The spraying of dilute alcohol over calcium carbide produces a new gas known as alkoethine, which is said to be a better and cheaper fuel than gasoline.

CURIOUS BIT OF MECHANISM

Earthquake Shocks Are Recorded by Means of Horizontal Pendulum Seismograph—How Done.

Earthquakes are recorded by means of the horizontal pendulum seismograph. The best example of horizontal pendulum in every day use is a common hinged door. The earthquake strument is a heavy weight pivoted delicately on a frame, which is swung at an upright hinge-line, so that the faintest movement in the post will be communicated to the frame. A light lever with a pen, at the outer end of the weighted frame, makes on a paper moved by clockwork a magnified record of the movements of the earth's crust. The pen is a bristle, and the paper is glossy and smoked, so that the record is a scratch. The weight tends to stand still as the earth waves move the post, and the pen writes an autograph of the movement which takes place about the weight as a center. Every second an electric ticker connected with a clock scratches a mark on the side of the moving paper, so that the exact time of any earthquake autograph may be calculated.

Let us stop a moment to watch what happens when an earthquake wave passes through the earth. The weight is still, the pen is lightly in contact with the paper, and as the latter moves by clockwork there is left written a straight line. Slowly, as we watch, the writing finger moves sidewise, and begins to make little wavemarks. This lasts several minutes. Then the pen begins to creep out until it is very slowly scratching long, sweeping zigzags. In the course of half an hour this slowly diminishes. Not a single tremor has been felt. The waves passing through the ground were too broad and slow for sensation, but they have come thousands of miles from a place where walls were falling and people were rushing frantically into the streets.

SAFETY DEVICE FOR CRIBS

Straps Arranged to Hold Small Child in Bed and Prevent It From Uncovering Itself.

Mrs. F. Salinger, of New Rochelle, N. Y., has perfected an invention which provides an improved safety strap for holding a small child in bed and preventing it from uncovering itself by its tossing and kicking. Two straps are provided, which pass lengthwise around the bed at each side of the child, while there is a cross strap that may be adjusted to any desired position over the child. The cross strap is provided with an elastic section which enables the child to move freely within the limits imposed. The straps are provided with reinforced eyelets, through which safety pins may be passed to fasten the straps to the bedding.

Odors from Vegetation.

A French chemist has advanced the theory that the odors from vegetation disseminated through the air diminish the actinic powers of the solar radiations sufficiently to affect photography.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. Dema Bethune, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

DURING A TIFF.

Wife—It seems to me we've been married a century. I can't even remember when or where we first met.

Husband—Can't you? Well, I can. It was at a dinner party where there were 13 at the table.

Ignorance.

Laura Jean Libbey, discussing in Brooklyn her appearance on the stage, said:

"I talk in my monologue about love, marriage and the other interests of the heart. On these subjects women, especially young women, are strangely ignorant.

"They really make me think, you know, of the little girl who was asked by her teacher:

"'What can you tell us of Solomon?'

"'Solomon,' replied the little girl, 'was very fond of animals.'

"'And how, my dear,' said the teacher, 'do you make that out?'

"'Because,' answered the little girl, 'the Bible says he had five hundred porcupines.'"

To Arrange Flowers.

Here are five golden rules which should be observed by those who often arrange flowers. Use plenty of foliage. Put your flowers in very lightly. Use artistic glasses. Do not put more than two, or, at the most, three different kinds of flowers in one decoration. Arrange your colors to form a bold contrast or, better still, a soft harmony. The aim of the decorator should be to show off the flowers—not the vases that contain them; therefore the simpler ones are far preferable to even the most elaborate. Glasses for a dinner table should be either white, a delicate shade of green, or rose color, according to the flowers arranged in them.

Crutches or Biers.

Richard Croker, at a dinner in New York, expressed a distrust for aeroplanes.

"There's nothing underneath them," he said. "If the least thing goes wrong, down they drop."

"I said to a Londoner the other day:

"'How is your son getting on since he bought a flying machine?'

"'On crutches, like the rest of them,' the Londoner replied."

EASY CHANGE

When Coffee is Doing Harm.

A lady writes from the land of cotton of the results of a four years' use of the food beverage—hot Postum.

"Ever since I can remember we had used coffee three times a day. It had a more or less injurious effect upon us all, and I myself suffered almost death from indigestion and nervousness caused by it.

"I know it was that, because when I would leave it off for a few days I would feel better. But it was hard to give it up, even though I realized how harmful it was to me.

"At last I found a perfectly easy way to make the change. Four years ago I abandoned the coffee habit and began to drink Postum, and I also influenced the rest of the family to do the same. Even the children are allowed to drink it freely as they do water. And it has done us all great good.

"I no longer suffer from indigestion, and my nerves are in admirable tone since I began to use Postum. We never use the old coffee any more.

"We appreciate Postum as a delightful and healthful beverage, which not only invigorates but supplies the best of nourishment as well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Jan. 27.—State fair matters and a plan for the reorganization of the government of the fair made the committee room, and not the chamber of either body, the center of interest.

The O'Neill bill, relating to the prevention and suppression of forest fires and appropriating money for the prevention of fires, passed the house by a unanimous vote.

For Non-partizan Judges.

Senator F. E. Putman introduced a non-partizan judiciary bill. It provides for the election of delegates at the primary election, without any party designation, on the basis of one delegate for 150 voters. These delegates will constitute a district judicial convention to nominate candidates for district judges, and elect delegates to the state judicial convention, which will nominate candidates for supreme court justices. The district conventions will be held five weeks before the general election and state conventions four weeks before. If at any of these conventions one candidate receives 75 per cent of the votes, only one shall be nominated. Otherwise the convention shall nominate two or more candidates for each place, who will go on the general election ballot without party designation.

The senate committee on finance recommended that authority be given the state to call in $850,000 of new capitol certificates now held by the permanent school fund. A letter to the chairman from Governor A. O. Eberhart stated that there are ample funds in the treasury for redeeming the certificates, and the promise of future revenue justifies the state in redeeming the certificates. The certificates bear 3 or 3½ per cent interest. Funds of the permanent school fund are low and $1,000,000 or more of loans to counties or other state organizations has been allowed and it is held up until funds are at hand. These loans are made at 4 per cent. The transaction merely means that the state will save the interest it is paying on the certificates and get a higher rate by reloaning the money to the counties.

By a vote of 71 to 44 the house passed the university emergency bill appropriating $636,000 to cover the deficit in the university fund and to carry out the contracts for constructing new buildings.

Electrocution instead of hanging is proposed as capital punishment by Representative Rufus P. Morton in a bill presented to the house. The board of control is directed to provide a permanent death chamber in the state prison where all executions must be conducted.

Representative Fred L. Palmer of Minneapolis introduced a bill raising the pay of state capitol guides, doorkeeper and mail carrier to [illegible] a month. Their salaries were fixed five years ago at $60 a month.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—Reapportionment won in the Minnesota house by a vote of 91 to 19. That chamber of the Minnesota legislature adopted the concurrent resolution, fixing the basis of representation on population as prescribed by the constitution.

This resolution leaves the number of senators just as it is and increases the house membership by about six.

In the record vote, Nash of Minneapolis, Fisher, Keefe, Nolan, Rice, Sullivan, Virtue, Webb and Wescott were absent. Those voting "No" were: Christie, Clarke, Denzer, Farley, Harding, Herzberg, Hoffman, Murley, Just, Kelly, Lindberg, Moriarity, Nygren, Papke, Peters, Robinson, Schuler, Schwartz, Untiedt.

The action of the house puts the burden on the senate. In that body, the chief reason for objection is that it will unseat the senators, some of whom had a hard fight for re-election and would have to go through the same ordeal again.

The opposition group has been formulating a plan of campaign which will defeat the measure, if possible. The plan involves an attempt to array the city against the country and to throw out the impression the reapportionment would give the cities unfair supremacy.

This plan will be carried out along the line suggested in Senator Works' measure making the basis of representation in the cities double that of the county.

The house adopted the resolution calling for an investigation of the methods of the state drainage engineer, which was introduced by the drainage committee. It provides for the appointment of a committee of five to cary on the investigation.

Speaker Dunn announced the following appointments in the house: H. R. Soule, clerk enrolling committee; A. G. Rutledge, bookkeeper to chief clerk; C. S. Booten, clerk general legislation committee; Thomas Ledy, gallery sergeant, and S. W. France, clerk appropriation committee.

The senatorial mill ground out an unusually large grist of bills.

The special senate building committee has started an investigation which will include the university architect, Clarence C. Johnson, in its scope, and may reach to the board of regents as well.

The trouble arises over the fact that Minnesota building material is ignored in the construction of university buildings. The regents have started a plan of uniform constructions and in the furtherance of this plan use nothing but Bedford stone.

It is also charged that Architect Johnson so frames his plans and specifications that nothing but Danville, Ill., brick will fill them.

St. Cloud residents object strenuously to the exclusive use of Bedford stone, so long as St. Cloud granite is on the market, while Minnesota brick manufacturers are equally strenuous in their objections on the ground that Minnesota brick is just as good as that which can be obtained in Danville.

Clarence Johnson said the board of regents' specifications called for a peculiar shade of red brick and this brick can be had only at Danville.

St. Paul, Jan. 31. — A complete change of the Minnesota inheritance tax system is provided for in a bill by Representative Kneeland, of Minneapolis. It would absolutely change the basis of taxation and is in line with the suggestions made by the state tax commission.

The bill provides that for all bequests under $15,000 that wife must pay a tax of 1 per cent, the husband and children 1½ per cent, a brother or sister or the wife of a widowed son or the husband of a daughter, 3 per cent. Beneficiaries who are uncles or aunts are to pay 4 per cent and all other beneficiaries are to pay 5 per cent tax on the inheritance.

This is given as the primary scale for bequests under $15,000. For those from $15,000 to $30,000, the tax is to be one and one-half times as much; from $30,000 to $50,000 twice as much; from $50,000 to $100,000, two and one-half times as much; and over $100,000, three times as much.

The bill provides that $10,000 of the inheritance of the wife is exempt, $10,000 of the inheritance of the husband or child, $500 of the inheritance of the brother, sister, son-in-law or daughter-in-law, $250 of the inheritance of the uncle or aunt and $100 of all other inheritances. Bequests to municipalities are also exempt.

Robert C. Dunn introduced his good roads measure which had been heralded in the press for several months past. A measure was introduced at the same time in the house providing for a one mill road tax, providing funds for the good roads improvement program included in his bill.

The bill provides that the governor shall appoint commissioners to succeed the present highway commission, no two members of the commission to be of the same political party. These commissioners are to serve without salary.

This highway commission shall elect from its own membership a chairman and a vice-chairman. It shall appoint a secretary, who shall be a civil engineer and practical road-builder and who shall hold office under the title of state engineer at the will of the commission. He shal also employ deputy and assistant engineers, who shall file a bond. The attorney general is to be ex-official attorney for the commission.

The commission will investigate and determine the location of road material in the state, ascertain the most approved methods of construction and improvement of roads, and hold public meetings throughout the state whenever deemed advisable.

Representative Orr introduced a bill in the house allowing juries to determine whether murderers are to be hanged or imprisoned for life. Representative Skartum introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor to use false weights. Representative H. Nelson introduced a bill compelling education of children. A concurrent resolution memorializing congress to oppose the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada was introduced by Representative S. N. Lee. Andrew Davis presented a bill appropriating $5,000 for the support of a home for the ladies of the G. A. R. at Anoka. The house passed the resolution favoring San Francisco for the Panama exposition in 1915.

Members of the legislature have received their first pay. They have been in session about a month, not counting the days they have voted themselves vacation. Now they will draw half of their first year's pay, $250. Feb. 1 is the date set by law for the payment. The state will be about $46,000 poorer by the transaction.

North Dakota Postoffice Sites.

Washington, D. C. — The treasury department has adopted a report favoring the selection of the northwest corner of Pacific and Fifth avenues for the proposed building at Jamestown. The property is offered by Mrs. K. M. Snyder at a valuation of $7,500. The site at the northwest corner of Fourth street and Fourth avenue, in Valley City, is chosen for the public building at that point. The vendors are Mrs. Herman Winterer and Robert Anderson, and the valuation is $4,800.

Now Circle Globe in 37 Days.

Seattle, Wash. — The development of the Japanese port of Tsuruga has made it possible to go around the world in 37 days. Leaving Seattle a traveler may land in Yokohama in twelve days. By taking train to Tsuruga and steamer to the trans-Siberian Railroad terminus and continuing by the fastest train to London he may cover the distance from Yokohama in 16 days. By the fastest steamers and trains he may travel from London to Seattle in a little more than nine days, thus completing the round trip.

Each Country Blames Other.

Washington, D. C. — Dispatches to the respective ministers of Peru and Ecuador in Washington give different explanations of the recent clash. Dr. Arizaga, minister from Ecuador, made public the contents of a cablegram from his government stating that Peruvian troops invaded Ecuador to liberate four Peruvian criminals. Two policemen and several women were killed and seven persons wounded. The Peruvian's version placed the blame upon Ecuadorian troops.

Kansas City, Mo. — Joseph W. Reinhart, formerly president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, and more recently president of the Kansas City Viaduct & Terminal company, died of pneumonia.

A LARGE PENSION LIST

$229,064.50 PAID OUT BY STATE IN PENSIONS.

Since 1905, $50,000 a Year Has Been Paid to Veterans of Indian War.

St. Paul.—The state of Minnesota has a pension system relatively more liberal than Uncle Sam ever granted to the veterans of the civil war. Since the passage of the Indian war pension act in 1905, the state has paid $229,064.50 in pensions to men who helped suppress the Sioux outbreak of 1862, and to their widows and other heirs. The roll is now over $50,000 a year and still increasing, with 248 names on the roll and 431 applications pending.

On account of abuses that are likely to creep in under the present law, Adjutant General F. B. Wood is recommending some amendments. Some action at this session of the legislature seems certain, and Senator John Moonan of Waseca has raised the whole issue by a bill to repeal the law entirely.

Recommends Repeal.

Several bills affecting the state pension laws have been introduced, ranging from absolute repeal of all such laws, to amendments, and to one introduced Tuesday to pension all citizens who bore arms in the Indian uprising between Aug. 15 and Sept. 25, 1892, at the rate of $12 a month. The committee on Indian affairs and lands met and voted to repeal all laws relating to the pensioning of citizen soldiers.

The law a it stands provides for payment of $12 a month to any person who took part in suppressing the Indian outbreak and suffered any disability therefrom, even if he served only twenty-four hours. The federal government has never considered any applications from men who served less than ninety days. The Sioux uprising lasted but a little while, and it is not this feature of the law that is criticized.

Back Pay Takes Money.

Its worst abuse comes in the matter of back pay, payment to heirs, and the granting of pensions to persons perfectly able to support themselves. One case discovered by General Wood showed the applicant to have an income of $900 a year, and the adjutant general undertook to hold the pension down to $1 a month, but was overruled by the attorney general. He recommends that the pensions be limited to dependent persons.

The back pay feature of the law is responsible for piling up its expense. When it was first passed in 1905 those who urged the measure said it would not cost the state over $4,000 or $5,000 a year, and an appropriation of $10,000 a year was made in the omnibus bill. Claims soon exceeded that amount, and it was soon shown that there is really no limit to their payment, because the law provides for taking pension money out of "any funds not otherwise appropriated."

Some Get as Much as $700.

So the roll has grown, and now when pensions are granted they take effect from Jan. 1, 1905, so that each successful applicant gets $144 a year back pay from that date up to the date of approval. Some single payments within the last year have gone as high as $700. Of the 431 applications pending, every one granted will draw this back pay. While many applications have been refused, the list is sure to grow. Payments have to be made in some cases to heirs who get a fat check for back pay after the pensioner has died. Widows under the law continue to receive the pensions of their husbands as long as they live.

WOMAN NIPS SWINDLE PLOT.

Wary Housewife Puts End to Career of Bogus Solicitor.

Red Wing.—The arrest of S. C. Wardell in this city put a stop to a clever swindle which has been operated successfully for months in Mankato, Faribault, Austin and other cities in that section of the state. In each case the housewife interested in a woman's magazine and the fashion plate has been the victim.

Wardell called at homes and as a premium to the magazine offered a monthly fashion plate, which he said would be sent regularly to the subscribers by the Donaldson glass block store of Minneapolis which was backing the publication.

Wardell succeeded in obtaining two subscriptions. One of the subscribers, however, became suspicious and at once 'phoned the Minneapolis establishment for further particulars. She was informed that the firm had no such solicitor in the field. The Donaldson firm wired the chief of police to be on the watch for the faker. Wardell was located and placed under arrest.

Wardell was arraigned in justice court and was fined $50 and costs. Unable to pay this sum he was committed to the county jail for 60 days.

BARN AND STOCK BURNED.

Blaze at St. Charles Believed to Have Been Set by Incendiary.

St. Charles.—Fire supposed to have been started by an incendiary burned down a barn owned by Adolph Keller, a farmer residing six miles south of here. The barn was valued at three thousand dollars and was insured for $1,500. Fifteen head of horses and fifteen head of cattle were also burned, insured for $300.

HILL LINES RAISE CAPITAL.

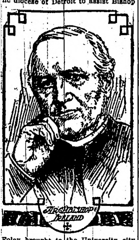
Consolidation of Road in Oregon Causes Increase in Stock.

Portland, Oregon. — Trustees of the Spokane-Portland and Seattle railway met in Vancouver and increased the capital stock from $25,000,000 to $62,500,000 in preparation for the consolidation of the Hill lines in Oregon. The ultimate purpose of James J. Hill is to combine the North Bank, the Oregon Trunk, the Astoria and Columbia River railroads and the Oregon Electric and United railways in one system.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND IS THERE

Noted Catholic Churchmen Attend Ann Arbor Consecration.

An Arbor, Mich. — The consecration here of Rev. Edward D. Kelly as auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Detroit to assist Bishop Foley brought to the University city hundreds of prominent churchmen from many states, including Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul.



Bishop Kelly has been pastor of the church here since 1891. Through an assistant will continue to direct the local parish and will retain his residence here. The consecration ceremony was concluded early this afternoon.

A report that Archbishop Ireland was taken ill upon his arrival here was positively denied.

NEW HEAD FOR LODGE HOME.

Rev. Mr. Palmer Takes Charge of Northfield Odd Fellows' Institution.

Northfield.—News has been received of the appointment of the new superintendent and matron of the State Odd Fellows' home here. The new superintendent is the Rev. William R. Palmer of the M. E. church of Biwabik, Minn. Mrs. Palmer will become matron of the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, the retiring superintendent and matron, expect to go to St. Paul for a short time, after which they will return to Massachusetts.

The Home is now accomodating more than fifty persons. It has fine buildings and an extensive farm.

Rev. Mr. Palmer has been in Biwabik for more than two years. He is now grand chaplain of the I. O. O. F.

OFFICER SHOT BY CARETAKER.

Fires When Deputy Sheriff Tries to Handcuff Wife.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 28.—Deputy Sheriff Harry McCabe was perhaps fatally shot by Charles H. Smith, caretaker of Morris Point, a summer resort on Leech Lake. McCabe went to the place to search the premises for stolen goods and Smith and his wife resisted. While endeavoring to handcuff the woman, the husband snatched a sawed-off shotgun from the wall and emptied a charge of buckshot at the officer the shot hitting him in the abdomen.

He was brought to Walker, a distance of three miles and is at the hospital, while Smith was brought in by Ike Mountbry and a teamster and lodged in jail by Sheriff Delury.

LABOR CHIEF NAMES HELPERS.

Two Minneapolis Men Appointed by Commissioner.

St. Paul.—Labor Commissioner Houk announced three new appointments in his department: A. H. Garfield of St. Paul to succeed Cedar Karten, deputy labor commissioner, Feb. 1; Arthur L. McMahon of Minneapolis, railway inspector in place of F. W. Murray, and Charles F. Albright of Minneapolis to succeed A. B. Gray, deputy labor commissioner.

Governor Eberhart appointed J. H. O'Neil of Hubbard county as member of the state forestry board in place of Frank A. Day of St. Paul.

In the public examiner's office C. R. Boostrom of Austin was appointed deputy public examiner.

NEW HOTEL PROMISED WILLMAR

Willmar.—Tentative plans for a $50,000 hotel for Willmar were announced by the North Dakota Improvement company of Fargo. E. A. Wilson, president of the company, was here looking over various sites which have been offered, and the plan is to carry the project through with a rush. This will be welcome news to the traveling public generally, as the hotel accomodations at present are inadequate. The company behind the project is an extensive holder of real estate in leading towns of North Dakota. It has been buying and improving real estate in Fargo, Grand Forks, Valley City and Devils Lake, and will build a $100,000 hotel for Devils Lake.

Farmers Own Another Line.

Thief River Falls.—The farmers living in the south central part of Marshall county, decided to build a telephone line from Germantown to Esplee. This line will have connection with all the rural lines south in Pennington county and will be the means of cutting the present rates in two. All that great section of territory lying in the western part of Beltrami county will be brought into close communication with the rest of the world by the construction of this link of telephone line.

8,000 Workmen on Strike.

Harbin, Manchuria, Jan. 31. — In dread in the plague, 8,000 Russian workmen on the eastern Chinese railway, have gone on strike because the administration refused to dismiss 1,500 Chinese labors and pass the families of the Russians to their own country. There has been no let up in the spread of the plague. During the past 48 hours 40 deaths were reported in Harbin alone and probably there were many others not reported. In the same period 150 Chinese died in Fudziadian, a suburb of the city.

IN VOGUE

SIMPLICITY IN DRESS

PLAIN SUITS, SMART IN APPEARANCE, ARE BEST.

Women Most Likely In First Class Offices Are Those Who Do Not Dress Elaborately, but Keep Neat and Clean.

The more plainly you dress, if you can at the same time appear smart, the better will be your appearance. You will find that clerks and stenographers who are most liked in first-class offices are those who do not dress elaborately, but who try to be only neat and clean.

A plain cloth suit should be worn with what is known as a "tailored" wash blouse. The term "tailored" means severe plainness, with an entire absence of any lace or trimming. Such a waist may have tucks, but no lace, etc. Sleeves should be finished with either soft or stiff cuffs.

A linen collar or plain white stock makes the best neck finish for such a blouse.

A leather belt should be preferred to a fancy one.

As to hair and hands, or, to put it more broadly, personal cleanliness, too scrupulous care cannot be given. There is no objection to a girl's having her finger nails polished, even though she may be a business woman, but there is every objection to a polish for her or any other if the finger tips do not show equal care in other details, that is, in the way they are trimmed and cleaned.

A girl should not wear rings to business, with the exception of a signet or one corresponding in style, on her little finger. Diamonds and other gems are not good form.

The hair should be dressed becomingly, of course, but it should not be in any extreme style, nor have the slightest appearance of baste in its arrangement.

The waist and skirt should be neatly put together, and the shoes, no matter how old, may be neatly polished.

A spot of any kind on garments should be considered impossible. Whatever hat is worn when going in or out of the office, must be plain and in keeping with the tailored frock. Down town among offices is no place for "picture" creations.

A girl who is dressed in the manner suggested creates a favorable impression the moment she enters a business office. For instinctively a man of affairs thinks a woman who is careful about her personal appearance will be careful in her work.

A young woman so clothed will start with a tremendous advantage over an elaborately dressed girl, because the majority of employers prefer young women of good breeding in their offices rather than those who are ordinary.

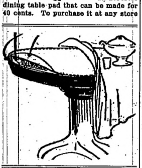
ASBESTOS DINING TABLE PAD

Useful Article That Can Be Made at a Cost of About Forty Cents.

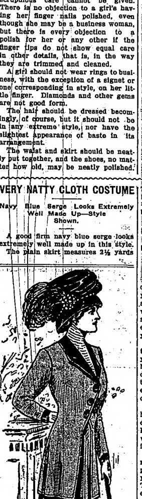
Here is a suggestion for an asbestos dining table pad that can be made for 40 cents. To purchase it at any store would cost $2 or $3. Material: Twelve cent sheet of asbestos, 12 cents; five and one-half yards of tennis flannel at 5 cents a yard. The drawing will show how it is made. Sections to insert when table is extended may also be made.



VERY NATTY CLOTH COSTUME

Navy Blue Serge Looks Extremely Well Made Up—Style Shown.

A good firm navy blue serge looks extremely well made up in this style. The plain skirt measures 2½ yards round and escapes the ground by 2 inches all round.



The coat has collar and buttons of black satin.

Materials required for the costume: 7 yards 48 inches wide, 4 yards skirt lining, 5 yards silk for lining jacket, ½ yard satin for facing and covering buttons.

COURTESY IN THE HOME

Remember Your Home People Are Under Inexorable Necessity of Living With You.

If you are a boor among your acquaintances they can severely leave you alone; you can give the cold shoulder to the cad in the office or the works; you can escape the fool in the morning train; you can have a prior engagement if your pet aversion asks you to supper.

But your home people are under the inexorable necessity of living with you. A man sometimes gets into the habit of thinking that anything will do for his home people; he treats them as daily bread; he does not exert himself; he reserves his best for outsiders.

He says he likes to be homely at home; that is very well, so long as it does not mean being vulgar. He says he likes to be at ease in his home; very well, too, if it does not mean being thoughtless.

Familiarity breeds contempt. It is not easy to be constantly patient and profitable and pleasant to those whom you meet every morning at breakfast. The breakfast table is often the greatest disillusioner. More secrets of character are revealed over the bacon and eggs than over the dessert.

There is no severer discipline in the world than that of the home, and most of us go down under it in this matter of courtesy.

Don't let us put off our manners when we put on our slippers. Let us be the more considerate when it is only our own whom we have to consider. And just because our home life is private, and is screened off from public judgment and is sheltered from the restraint of public opinion, let us be the more scrupulous that we may be void of the offense against the heart of love.

A Dainty Scarf.

An attractive bureau cover may be made of dotted swiss, with dots as large as a dime, two or three inches apart. On the under side make petals of shadow embroidery for each dot, and on the right side work the dot over in yellow. The result will be a scarf of field daisies.

MACRAME WORK STILL USED

Handbags and Shopping Bags Embroidered With It Are Both Useful and Pretty.

A good while ago macrame work was all the fashion. It was an odd handicraft, consisting of knotting heavy twine into patterns and fashioning the articles thus formed into all sorts of things for wear and ornament. Now, very few people do this work, but it still has some adherents, and many of us possess odd bits done by grandmother or Greataunt Eliza. Here are a few hints for making use of them in modern ways:

Both handbags and shopping bags may be made of dark or bright plush or satin, embroidered with this macrame work or completely covered with a network of twine. These bags have long hanging fringes of the twine, perhaps held in place by beads; in fact, macrame can very well be combined with beadwork.

Then there are sets of Dutch collars and turnback cuffs, with or without a fabric background. These are very quaint on severe tailored blouses or on black or dark silk or mercerized waists, the collars fastened by a mosaic or cameo pin. It takes a certain type of girl to wear this style, but to that type it is very becoming.

If you have a good deal of the macrame and do not know what to do with it, make an antimacassar of it. The day of tidies has, thank heaven, gone out; but big comfortable easy chairs still look cozy and inviting with something of this sort covering their capacious backs, like the crocheted shawl on an old lady. Get grayish linen, cut it into two squares and connect and frame these with bits of macrame, not paying any attention to whether these match in pattern. Finally, edge with a border of the knotted twine, which you can do yourself when no design is required. The effect is charming and exceedingly unusual.

Pretty Little Ties.

Delightful little neckties are of bias satin or velvet, the ends ornamented with bunches of tiny taffeta roses and leaves, while a similar knot holds the tie together at the throat.

HERMIT OF WABASH

Recluse to Spend Last Days With Children in Paris.

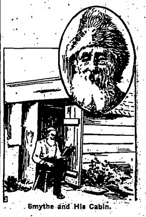
Lovable Old Naturalist Who Lived Thirty Years in a Cabin Near Terre Haute—Befriended John Brown.

Terre Haute, Ind.—From a cabin hermitage on the banks of the Wabash to Paris, France, is the transition now being made by a recluse, known as Captain Roland B. Smythe, who for thirty years had lived the life of a hermit, though loving his fellow-men and welcoming them to the solitude of his cabin when they chose to come.

Well educated, graduate of the University of Virginia, said to have been on the staff of General Lee, a colonel at the close of the civil war, a confidant of John Brown in the last days of the man from Osawatomie while serving as an officer in the Virginia guards on duty at Charlestown, the old man has preferred the isolation and life of a naturalist. He never became a misanthrope, nor disliked companionship.

Once only did he leave his small home, twenty miles below Terre Haute, pre-empted when he arrived there thirty years ago, and that was when he came to the city to witness a theatrical performance, his son being a member of the company. Until ten years ago his children did not know where he was. Then a woman of evident refinement arriving at Merom, the nearest town, asked for a man named "Russell" living as Smythe did. That night he said to a friend: "My children have found me out, and want me to come back, but I want to live out my life here."

Though a ready talker, he never grew reminiscent to the extent of disclosing his early life, except possibly to two or three men to whom he could trust his secret. One story is that his name is Caskey. Whatever it is he has finally yielded to the appeals of a son and daughter, who live in Paris to come to them. There is enough authentic information current in regard to him to furnish a few facts concerning his life. Besides there is his own story of his intimate connection with John Brown after the latter was condemned to die for the raid on Harpers Ferry.



Smythe and His Cabin.

At the end of the war, in 1865, Smythe, who had been rich, was poor and broken in health. He wished to get away from all that reminded him of his former life, and, always a nature student, he chose a life of solitude in the middle west. For some years he was on the Mississippi river, but there is no definite information as to what he did.

Thirty years ago his houseboat put in at the banks of the Wabash. Some men on shore asked, "What his name might be." He replied that it "might be Smythe."

"Captain?" they asked, half in jest, and he soberly replied that it was. "Captain Roland B. Smythe," and so he was known for the thirty years. He is now more than eighty years old, but has the appearance of a man of fifty. He has still the military bearing first acquired in the Virginia militia and later in the Confederate army.

Smythe's health improved steadily after he came to the banks of the river, notwithstanding he squatted in a place where the pioneers suffered with chills and fever, widely known in the early days as "the Wabash shakes." He has not been ill a day.

He did not like publicity or notoriety, especially in the pose of a hermit, but he welcomed visitors, especially those with whom he could talk on matters worth while. Asked to write as a naturalist, if not of his reminiscences, he replied: "That would be a petty satisfaction of vanity, and if I became a successful writer it would defeat my purpose of living out my years as I am doing."

This was a few years ago, and, commenting on vanity, he said: "I have not seen my own face in any kind of mirror for eight years, except the disturbed reflection of the water." He preferred to live his song rather than to sing it.

Long will the lovable old man be remembered by those who visited him. His gentle voice, sweet temperament, dignified and gracious bearing. He loved children and showed them photographs of his own, now grown to manhood and womanhood.

Hens in Deady Duel.

Hayton, Wis.—Two hens belonging to Samuel Vincent of this village fought a duel to the death over the possession of a nest. Both became imbued with the egg-laying instinct at the same moment and both wanted the same nest. They fought, with the result that both succumbed to injuries.

State's Convict Farms.

In Mississippi all the state prisoners are employed on four farms owned by the state. One contains 13,000 acres. The prisoners clear and improve the land and grow crops. Cotton is the chief product. All the white prisoners are on one farm of 2,200 acres.

HAMPTON'S RETRACTS CHARGE MADE AGAINST STANDARD OIL COMPANY.

DID NOT SELL IMPURE CANDY

Magazine Publisher and Writer of Alleged Libelous Article, Because of Which Corporation Brought Suit, Declare They Were Mistaken.

New York.—In the matter of the libel suits brought by the Standard Oil company for $250,000 damages against Hampton's Magazine and for $100,000 damages against Cleveland Moffett, the former the publisher, and the latter the writer, of an article in the February issue of the magazine which defamed the company in connection with the sale of glucose and candy in Philadelphia, the following retractions have been signed in the office of Shearman & Sterling, the Standard Oil company's lawyers in the case, and have been issued from the company's offices at No. 26 Broadway:

"Jan. 31, 1911.

"Standard Oil Company, 26 Broadway, New York.

"Dear Sirs: In the February issue of Hampton's Magazine there was published an article written by me, entitled, 'Cassidy and the Food Poisoners.' In that article I referred to the investigation of Mr. Cassidy, with respect to the manufacture and sale of impure candies in Philadelphia, and made the statement that your company manufactured and sold impure material which went into these candies and that, when the various dealers were arrested and fined, at the instance of Mr. Cassidy, your company paid the fines.

"Upon investigation, I have ascertained that your company was in no way connected with the transactions referred to and I hasten to retract in the fullest manner all charges made against your company and to express my sincere regret that I should have fallen into this serious error. Yours truly, Cleveland Moffett."

"Jan. 31, 1911.

"Standard Oil Company, New York City.

"Dear Sirs: Referring to foregoing letter of Mr. Cleveland Moffett to you, we beg to state that we are convinced that Mr. Moffett was in error in his statements with reference to your company. We greatly regret that these errors should have been made. It is the desire of Hampton's Magazine to be accurate and fair in all things. In our March number we will publish this letter and the foregoing letter of Mr. Moffett. Yours truly, Benj. B. Hampton, President Broadway Magazine, Inc."

LORIMER LASHED BY BROWN

Nebraskan Threatens to Hold Up Appropriation Bills If Vote on Scandal Is Not Ordered.

Washington.—Senator Norris Brown of Nebraska in a speech before the senate charged that Senator William Lorimer of Illinois must have known that his election to the senate by the Illinois legislature was accomplished by corrupt practice. He held that Senators Holstlaw and Broderick and Representatives Lee O'Neil Browne, White, Link, Beckemeyer and Wilson had been bought to elect Lorimer senator; that Browne and Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff of the Illinois house of representatives were the political agents of Mr. Lorimer in accomplishing his election, and that it was not possible for the election to have been brought about under the conditions then existing except by corrupt practices. Mr. Brown devoted most of his remarks to an analysis of the testimony which involved directly the relations of Lorimer, Shurtleff and Browne and the relations of Browne with his thirty minority followers. Mr. Brown issued a challenge to obstructionists that he would hold up appropriation bills unless the senate votes at this session on the Lorimer case, the resolution pertaining to the election of senators by the people, the bill to create a permanent tariff board and a general service pension bill.

WARREN IS SHOWN LENIENCY

Socialistic Editor Convicted of Misusing the Mails Has Sentence Commuted by President.

Washington.—President Taft Wednesday commuted the sentence of Fred D. Warren, the Socialistic editor who was recently sentenced to six months' imprisonment and $1,500 fine, by striking out the imprisonment and reducing the fine to $100, to be collected by civil process only. Warren was convicted in the federal court of a technical misuse of the mails.

Increased Tariffs Are Held Up.

Washington.—Increases in freight rates on fruits and vegetables from Chicago and Milwaukee to various destinations in other states, filed with the interstate commerce commission and made effective Wednesday, were suspended by the commission until June 1, 1911. The tariffs were filed by the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railways. The commission is of the opinion that the advances are too radical and will make an investigation of their reasonableness.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—

Reapportionment was turned down in the senate by a vote of 31 to 25. The resolution to limit the number of senators to 63 and the number of representatives to 126 was indefinately postponed. This is the same resolution that passed the house last week by an overwhelming vote. The vote, following a crimonious debate in which it was freely charged that those voted to indefinately postpone, voted against reapportionment.

Charges of dilatory tactics and unfair play flew thickly about the ears of the senators. Senator Works objected to the passage of the resolution on the ground that no bill had been presented and it was unfair to tie the senate's hands by a previous limitation.

Hackney defended the resolution, saying the bill could be amended when presented on the floor. J. D. Sullivan explained his vote against the resolution when it came up for passage under suspended rules by saying there was no necessity for hurry at that time, but he would vote for it now. Cheadle asked that the resolution be passed.

Vote in Detail.

The roll call was as follows:

Yeas—Ahman, Boyle, Cheadle, Denegre, Dunn, Dwinnell, Elwell, Fosseen, Froshaug, Gunderson, Gunn, Hackney, Hanson, Johnson, C. D., Johnson V. L., Johnston, Lende, L'Herault, Marden, Pauly, Pugh, Rustad, Sageng, Saugstad, Sullivan, J. D., Sundberg, Swanson, Wallace, Wilson—29.

Nays—Anderson, Bedford, Benson, Carpenter, Cashman, Clague, Coller, Cook, C.F., Cooke, L.O., Dale, Donaldson, Duea, Duxbury, Glotzbach, Handlan, Haycraft, Klein, McGrath, Moonan, Murray, Nelson, Odell, Olson, Peterson, Putnam, Schaller, Stebins, Thoe, Van Hoeven, Weis, Works—21.

Absent—Poahler, Rockne, G. H. Sullivan.

On the motion to adopt the report indefinately postponing the bill, another rollcall was demanded with the same result 31 to 29.

The R. C. Dunn good roads bills passed the house. The bill providing for an annual appropriation of $150,000 for the supervision of good roads building to be placed at the disposal of the state highway commission passed by a vote of 106 to 2. Representatives Campbell and Lundeen of Minneapolis were the only members who opposed this bill.

On the bill providing or a constitutional amendment allowing an annual tax of one mill for constructing good roads, the vote was 109 to 1. Campbell was the only member to oppose this bill.

The workingmen's compensation code was introduced in the senate. Senators Fosseen, Wilson, Schaller and Moonan were the authors. It was referred to committee without any speeches.

Department of agriculture, manual training and domestic economy in state graded and high schools are provided in a bill introduced by Senator Putnam. Practical subjects, such as questions relating to soils, crops, stock breeding, stock judging, stock disease and kindred things are to be taught.

The house committee appointed by Speaker Dunn to investigate the R. C. Dunn bill, which provides for an appropriation of $28,100 to pay 281 state newspapers for printing the proposed constitutional amendments in October, 1910, will make its report next Tuesday. The report will censure Julius Schmahl, secretary of state, for overstepping his authority in selecting newspapers to print the amendments. The bill passed two years ago provided for the publication of the amendments in not more than three papers in any county. The report will say that Mr. Schmahl had the amendments printed in 19 more papers than allowed by law, at a cost of $1,900. Chairman Moriarity, of the investigating committee, does not favor compelling the secretary of state to pay the $1,900 overexpenditure, but suggests that in the future state officials stay within the law.

Representative W. F. Kunze introduced his educational bill in the house, providing for a state board of education and reorganizing the state educational system in every way. It eliminates the state normal board, the high school board, state literary board, state public school library commission, board of managers of the state public school at Owatonna and the board of directors of the Minnesota schools for the deaf and blind.

The Moonen primary bill, providing for the direct nomination of state officers, has been reported favorably. This is the first big primary bill of the session. It states that voters in the primaries shall state their party affiliations.

Beautifying the capitol grounds by commission is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Denegre of St. Paul. It provides for the appointment of three commissioners by the governor to buy lands adjoining or near the capitol grounds and beautify them.

Senator Dale introduced a bill which provides that on complaint that any school building is unsanitary or unsafe, the state board of health shall investigate and if the building is found so it shall order it closed.

Senator Nelson introduced and had passed under suspended rules a bill directing that $500,000 of state surplus money be devoted to the redeeming of school certificates.

St. Paul, Feb. 7.—

Only five new bills were introduced in the house. The most important bill was that of Representative Congdon, authorizing the board of control to purchase a site for a fourth state hospital for the insane. The Mattson bill specifying the classes of public schools and fixing the amount of state aid available, was passed. The house acting as a committee of the whole, considered twenty minor bills.

Free Rein Asked for Mayors.

Representative Fuchs of St. Paul introduced a bill allowing mayors of cities of the first class governed by home rule charters to remove any of their appointees at any time without cause. The bill does not affect Minneapolis, but is intended to allow Mayor Keller of St. Paul to remove certain members of board appointed under the Lawler administration.

House Votes for Parcels Post.

The house went on record in favor of parcels post by a vote of 48 to 32. The vote was taken on a resolution introduced by Representative Hopkins memorializing congress to favor such a bill.

C. H. Warner introduced a bill appropriating $900 to defray the expense of a term of court held in Cass county in April, 1909.

State Fair Law Is Drawn.

The house committee on state fair is preparing a bill which will make the fair a semi-state organization. The committee is satisfied to allow the State Agricultural society to elect its own officers, but it wants the state to fix salaries and to supervise improvement and construction work. The proposed law fixes the representation in the State Agricultural society along the lines of the Spooner resolution adopted a week ago, that every county maintaining a county fair shall have three representatives and those not maintaining county fairs shall have one representative, selected by the board of county commissioners. The committee proposes that state fair buildings be placed under the supervision of the state board of control.

The bill will not reach the house for two weeks. It was delayed because of the absence of several members of the state fair board who attended the corn show at Columbus.

Garnishment Bill Is Framed.

Representative Andrew Davis of Elk River introduced a bill amending the state garnishment law. He would exempt 90 per cent of the wages of any workingman from garnishment proceedings. Under the present law only the wages over $25 can be garnisheed. This practically eliminates the collection of a judgment or debt from a man who is paid weekly. The new bill would make it impossible to garnish a workingman's wages if he has only $1 coming to him.

St. Paul, Feb. 8.—County option is a dead issue in the present session of the Minnesota legislature. By a vote of 60 to 50 the lower house of the state law making body defeated the bill prepared by Representative Rines of Mora and the Anti-Saloon league.

The vote was taken after a three-hours discussion which was marked by a flood of oratory favoring and opposing the bill and the plaudits of several hundred people who crowded the galleries and corridors of the house chamber.

The Vote.

Yeas—Anderson A. V., Anderson J. J., Burnquist, Campbell, Conley, Crane, Davies, Davis, Dunn R. C., Ferguson, Frankson, Harding, Holmberg, Holten, Johnson C. E., Johnson J. N., Johnson J. T., Klemer, Knutson, Kneeland, Kunze, Lee I. J., Lee J. F., Lindberg, McMartin, Mattson, Morton, Nelson A., Nolan, O'Neill, Orr, Palmer, Peterson A. J., Peterson J. E., Pittman, Rines, Robertson, Rustad, Sampson, Skartum, Spooner, Stone W. T., Sulerud, Voxland, Warner C. H., Warner E., Washburn, Webb, Whiting; total, 50.

Nays—Aker, Anderson Andrew, Boothroyd, Borgen, Bouck, Brown G. W., Brown L. D., Christie, Clarke, Congdon, Converse, Denzer, Diessner, Edwards, Farley, Fowler, Fuchs, Greene, Hafften, Hauge, Healy, Henion, Herzberg, Hoffman, Hopkins, Hurley, Jelinek, Just, Keefe, Kelly, Knapp, Lee S. N., Lennon, Libera, Lundeen, Lydiard, McDonald, MacKenzie, McNeill, Mettling, Minnette, Moriarity, Nash, Nelson H., Nye, Nygren, O'Brien, Papke, Perry, Peters, Peterson G., Pfaender, Reed, Ribenack, Rice, Robinson, Saggau, Schuler, Schwartz, Stone, C. E., Sullivan, Thielen, Utecht, Untiedt, Virtue, Wescott, White, Wisniewski, Speaker H. H. Dunn; total, 60; absent, W. A. Fisher.

By a vote of 33 to 28 A. D. Stephens of Crookston lost in his contest to unseat John Saugstad, senator from Polk county.

ATHLETE KILLS HIMSELF.

Milwaukee Suicide Was Well Known Referee.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Charles F. Davies, one of the best known basketball referees and team managers in the Northwest, who refereed the Wisconsin-Minnesota game Saturday last, fatally shot himself in the head at his home. He was attended by Dr. William Jobst at his home and taken to Trinity hospital, where he died.

Would Raise Indian Fund.

Washington, D. C.—Senator Owen of Oklahoma called on President Taft to urge him to send to congress a special message urging legislation providing for the immediate sale of 480,000 acres of coal and asphalt lands in Oklahoma belonging to the Choctaw Indians. For eight years efforts have been made, the senator said, to secure for the Indians the money which should come to them from the sale of these lands. The president told him he would consider the matter.

SENATE PLANS TO ADJOURN APRIL 1

TWENTY DAYS EARLIER THAN THE DATE SET BY THE CONSTITUTION.

RECIPROCITY TREATY APPROVED

Anderson Introduces State-Wide Prohibition Bill and House Committee Favors Prohibitinfi Drinking on Trains.

St. Paul, Feb. 9.—The senate will adjourn April 1, 20 days prior to the constitutional date set for adjournment, unless a resolution which passed 53 to 8 is rescinded later. Senator Moonan, of Waseca, introduced the resolution.

The Fosseen resolution was discussed at length. The Fosseen resolution calls for the head of state institutions to present detailed statements of all new buildings when asking for appropriations and was finally passed by a vote of 38 to 11.

Cold Storage Bill in Committee.

The Fosseen cold storage bill was before the pure food committee of the senate. The bill provides that no person may sell cold storage food without advertising the fact.

Civic Commission to Have Backing.

Senator Elwell introduced a bill to make possible the plans of the Minneapolis Civic commission for the beautifying of Minneapolis. He said, however, the bill was not suggested by the commission.

The bill provides that by a majority vote of both the council and the board of park commissioners, each body acting separately, the city may proceed to condemn any land it sees fit for the purpose of parks, parkways or streets.

Representative C. A. Congdon of Duluth introduced a bill in the house repealing the anti-cigaret law passed by the legislature two years ago. Representative Congdon is opposed to dead letter laws on principle and for this reason favors the repeal.

Representative A. B. Anderson's state-wide prohibition bill, introduced in the house, is the first of a probable avalanche of liquor regulatory measures.

Representative Robinson introduced a bill to investigate the state central committees of both major parties.

Clinton Robinson introduced a bill providing that only American citizens shall be counted in the reapportionment of Minnesota on a population basis.

Representative Spooner and Harding presented a bill providing for the teaching of agriculture and domestic economy in the schools of the state and also providing for the consolidation of rural schools.

County School Board Given Quietus.

The Converse bill providing for the creation of a county board of education and giving it authority to name the county superintenednts of schools was recommended for indefinite postponement by the house committee on education.

The Mattson-Nelson bill amending the compulsory education law was recommended for passage. The proposed bill changes the ages of children coming under this law from 8 to 17, to 8 to 16 years. It allows pupils to remain out of school because of poverty or because they are needed to work at home. This section is to allow farmer's children to remain out of school during the harvest season. The bill also proposes to allow children to remain out of schools on church days.

The proposed reciprocity treaty with Candada did not meet with much favor at the meeting of the house committee on agriculture when the S. N. Lee resolution asking the Minnesota members in congress to oppose the agreement was passed. There were only two dissenting votes. W. A. Just and W. L. Farley. It is expected that the report of the committee will cause a stir on the floor of the house, as a large number favor President Taft's program.

New Registry Tax Proposed.

Representative Spooner of Morris has prepared a mortgage registry tax bill, which he will submit to the subcommittee on taxes and tax laws Tuesday. It provides for a tax of 15 cents per $100 on every mortgage expiring within five years, and 25 cents for mortgages continuing for a longer period. Many of the legislators favor a nominal tax of 10 cents.

Drinking on Trains May Be Stopped.

The house committee on temperance recommended for passage the bill giving conductors on railway trains and street cars police powers over intoxicated person and making it unlawful to drink liquor on trains.

R. C. Dunn of Princeton opposed the Dwinnell resolution calling for an investigation of certain irregularities in the conduct of the state agricultural society, on the ground that the auditing committee appointed by the governor made a full and complete report on the state fair. Chairman Davis of the state fair committee insisted on the investigation, so the Dwinnell resolution was adopted.

A bill licensing branch offices of breweries was introduced by Representative Henry A. Hoffman of Rochester. The bill proposes a license of $150 a year. There are, said to be 400 branch offices in Minnesota, which would mean an annual revenue of $60,000. The bill includes foreign breweries doing business in this state.

EXCELLENT GRAIN FIELDS IN WESTERN CANADA

YIELDS OF WHEAT AS HIGH AS 54 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

Now that we have entered upon the making of a new year, it is natural to look back over the past one, for the purpose of ascertaining what has been done. The business man and the farmer, have taken stock, and both, if they are keen in business detail and interest, know exactly their financial position. The farmer of Western Canada is generally a business man, and in his stock-taking he will have found that he has had a successful year. On looking over a number of reports sent from various quarters, the writer finds that in spite of the visitation of drouth in a small portion of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, many farmers are able to report splendid crops. And these reports come from different sections, covering an area of about 25,000 square miles. As, for instance, at Laird, Saskatchewan, the crop returns showed that J. B. Peters had 12,800 bushels from 320 acres, or nearly 40 bushels to the acre. In the Blaine Lake district the fields ranged from 15 to 50 bushels per acre, Ben Crews having 1,150 bushels from 24 acres; Edmond Trotter 1,200 bushels off 30 acres, while fields of 30 bushels were common. On poorly cultivated fields but 15 bushels were reported.

In Foam Lake (Sask.) district 100 bushels of oats to the acre were secured by Angus Robertson, D. McRae and C. H. Hart, while the average was 85. In wheat 30 bushels to the acre were quite common on the newer land, but off 15 acres of land cultivated for the past three years George E. Wood secured 495 bushels. Mr. James Traynor, near Regina (Sask.), is still on the shady side of thirty. He had 50,000 bushels of grain last year, half of which was wheat. Its market value was $25,000. He says he is well satisfied.

Arthur Somers of Strathclair threshed 100 acres, averaging 25 bushels to the acre. Thomas Foreman, of Milestone, threshed 11,000 bushels of wheat, and 3,000 bushels of flax off 600 acres of land. W. Weatherstone, of Strathclair, threshed 5,000 bushels of oats from 96 acres. John Gonzilla, of Gillies, about twenty-five miles west of Rosthern, Sask., had 180 bushels from 3 acres of wheat. Mr. Gonzilla's general average of crop was over 40 bushels to the acre. Ben Cruise, a neighbor, averaged 45 bushels to the acre from 23 acres. W. A. Rose, of the Walderheim district, threshed 6,000 bushels of wheat from 240 acres, an average of 25 bushels. 100 acres was on summer fallow and averaged 33 bushels. He had also an average of 60 bushels of oats to the acre on a 50-acre field. Wm. Lehman, who has a farm close to Rosthern, had an average of 27 bushels to the acre on 60 acres of summer fallow. Mr. Midsky, of Rapid City (Man.) threshed 1,000 bushels of oats from 7 acres.

The yield of the different varieties of wheat per acre at the Experimental Farm, Brandon, was: Red Fife, 28 bushels; White Fife, 34 bushels; Preston, 32 bushels; early Red Fife, 27 bushels.

The crops at the C. P. R. demonstration farms at Strathmore (Alberta) proved up to expectations, the Swedish variety oats yielding 110 bushels to the acre. At the farm two rowed barley went 48½ bushels to the acre. Yields of from 50 bushels to 100 bushels of oats to the acre were quite common in the Sturgeon River Settlement near Edmonton (Alberta). But last year was uncommonly good and the hundred mark was passed. Wm. Craig had a yield of oats from a measured plot, which gave 107 bushels and 20 lbs. per acre.

Albert Teskey, of Olds (Alberta) threshed a 100-acre field which yielded 101 bushels of oats per acre, and Joseph McCartney had a large field equally good. At Cupar (Sask.) oats threshed 80 bushels to the acre. On the Traquairs farm at Cupar, a five-acre plot of Marquis wheat yielded 54 bushels to the acre, while Laurence Barknel had 37 bushels of Red Fife to the acre. At Wordsworth, Reeder Bros.' wheat averaged 33¼ bushels to the acre, and W. McMillan's 32. William Krafft of Alix (Alberta) threshed 1,042 bushels of winter wheat off 19¾ acres, or about 53 bushels to the acre. John Laycroft of Dinton, near High River, Alberta, had over 1,100 bushels of spring wheat from 50 acres.

E. F. Knipe, near Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, had 800 bushels of wheat from 20 acres. W. Metcalf had over 31 bushels to the acre, while S. Henderson, who was hailed badly, had an average return of 32 bushels of wheat to the acre.

McWhirter Bros. and John McBain, of Redvers, Saskatchewan, had 25 bushels of wheat to the acre. John Kennedy, east of the Horse Mills district near Edmonton, from 40 acres of spring wheat got 1,767 bushels, or 44 bushels to the acre.

J. E. Vanderburgh, near Dayslow, Alberta, threshed four thousand bushels of wheat from 120 acres. Mr. D'Arcy, near there, threshed ten thousand and fifty-eight bushels (machine measure) of wheat from five hundred acres, and out of this only sixty acres was new land.

At Fleming, Sask., A. Winter's wheat averaged 39 bushels to the acre and several others report heavy yields. Mr. Winter's crop was not on summer fallow, but on a piece of land broken in 1882 and said to be the first broken in the Fleming district.

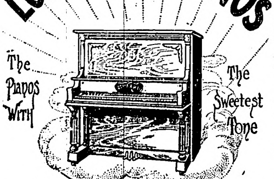
LOMBARD PIANOS



Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our college work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Lawrence, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard certainly is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

Saturday, February 11, 1911.

Now that we have divided the county we have to divide the state.

It will occasion no great surprise that the state senators took the first opportunity to knock out a reapportionment bill. If the people want reapportionment at this session of the legislature it will be necessary to hold public meetings in every city, village, and hamlet, and make the demand so insistent and warm that the members who vote against it will be down and out hereafter.

After four hours of fervid debate the Minnesota house of representatives on Tuesday voted against the county option bill by a vote of 69 to 50. We imagine a number of members who voted no will have a hard time explaining to their constituents, and no doubt some have ended their political careers. The bill is still to be voted on in the senate, but the only object is to put the senators on record.

The state senate has decided, by a decisive vote of 55 to 6, that John Saugstad of Climax is entitled to hold his seat as senator despite the contest inaugurated by Mr. Stephens, the former senator from Crookston and at one time one of the greatest political powers in the state. It may be thought to clarify the atmosphere a little to have such a man as Mr. Stephens eliminated from politics, but as a matter of principle we do not think that votes for a candidate once defeated at the primaries should be recognized or allowed at the general election; and we believe a bad precedent has been established—one that may prove the entering wedge to destroy the wwole primary law.

Whatever may be the fate of the policy for which the president and W. S. Fielding of the Canadian cabinet are jointly responsible, the fact that the majority of the people on both sides of the border indorse and welcome it cannot be obscured. Narrow and sectional politicians may succeed in beating both administrations on the reciprocity issue, but the future reputation of the man who deliberately makes himself an obstacle to the expansion of a trade now aggregating more than $100,000,000 a year is not going to be very high in the estimation of his countrymen. The president is entirely correct in his assumption that he is interpreting a popular wish. Sections of the United States may object to a tightening of the bonds, but they do not speak for the American people as a whole.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Water Transportation and Power in Minnesota

Whatever the stake of the cities in the proper conservation and development of the state's water wealth, through the construction of canals for drainage, transportation, and waterpower, the stake of the farmer is larger yet. Cheap water transportation, which shall deliver the grain and produce of the Red River valley and intervening regions at the Twin cities for one-fourth the cost of railroad freight, would alone add a large percentage to the value of every farm. When to this is added the development, on the same canals, of waterpower sufficient, when electrically transmitted, to operate trolley lines and manufactories and farm machinery in a good part of Minnesota, the farmer's concern in the matter is doubled.

The "Merchon waterway and waterpower development scheme," now before the legislature, promises all these things. Its canals will stretch, twelve feet deep, from the Lake of the Woods to Traverse lake; and from Granite Falls, on the Minnesota, twenty feet deep, to Lake Superior, with a branch to the Twin cities. Another system connects Vermillion lake, via Red lake, with the first named canal. The amount of power to be secured in connection with these canals is variously estimated at from 500,000 to 1,000,000 horsepower. This estimate is "backed" by several of the most famous engineers in the country. Large areas of swamps would also be drained by the canals, and floods prevented. And the enticing thing about the project is the claim that the rentals of the waterpower will, in a very few years, pay the entire cost of all the works; so that the state will then possess the whole system, yielding a great annual revenue, without the permanent investment of a dollar. What is asked of the legislature by the projectors at present, is that the scheme shall be investigated by an engineering commission to determine on its feasibility and its commercial value if carried out. A bill appropriating $40,000 for such investigation introduced by Representative L. C. Spooner of Morris, is now pending.—C. R. Barns, University Farm.

HEARING ON DITCH PETITION

CLERK OF COURTS' NOTICE ON PETITION, ENGINEERS AND VIEWERS' REPORTS IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS.

State of Minnesota, } ss. District Court,
County of Marshall, } 14th Judicial District.

In the matter of the petition of Ole O. Steen and others for a public drainage ditch in the counties of Marshall, Red Lake, and Pennington, state of Minnesota, designated and numbered as Judicial Ditch No. 14.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota, praying for the construction of a public drainage ditch, designated and numbered by the clerk of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota, as Judicial Ditch No. 14, and that the preliminary hearing provided by law before the judge of the district court has been had thereon, and that the said judge has appointed a civil engineer to make a survey of the route of the said ditch and to perform such other duties in relation thereto as are provided by law, and that the said engineer duly made his report thereon and filed the same in the office of the clerk of the district court and that the said judge of the district court duly appointed viewers to assess damages and benefits in the matter of said ditch and to perform all other duties in relation thereto as are required by law, and that on the 7th day of May, 1910, at 10 o'clock a. m., a final hearing was had before the said judge of the district court upon said petition, engineers' and viewers' reports, the said hearing being had pursuant to due notice given by the said clerk of the district court, and that after hearing all parties interested, the court found that the course of the said ditch could be improved upon, and made his order, dated May 7, 1910, rereferring and resubmitting the whole matter to the engineer duly appointed in said ditch matter and to the viewers therein, authorizing and instructing them to reexamine the course of said proposed ditch and branches and to make all necessary changes, and further authorizing and instructing the said viewers to review and assess all of the said property that may be affected by such drainage ditch and notice is hereby given that the said engineer has completed his work and has made an amended report thereon and has filed the same in the office of the said clerk of the district court, and that the said viewers have completed their work and have filed their amended report in the office of said clerk, and that as appears by the amended report of the engineer hereinbefore mentioned, the starting point, route, and termini of the main ditch and branches of Judicial Ditch Number Fourteen (14), including a description of the lands over which the same passes is as follows viz:

Main Ditch. At the last meeting of the council the question of the current reports of "blind pigging" in town was brought up and the advisability of taking steps to prosecute the offenders was discussed. The sticking point seems to be as to whether the necessary legal evidence can be secured, and no formal action has as yet been taken. Allowing liquor to be drank publicly in a public place or place of business, no matter by whom purchased or contributed, is claimed to be the same offense in law as selling over a bar or out of a "bootleg."

Fatherly Advice.

"Dad." said the country youth who had just graduated from the district school, "I have long cherished a desire to go on the stage and have at last decided, with your permission, to"—

"My boy," interrupted the old granger, "all the world's a stage. You hitch the mules to the big red plow and transfer the outfit to the ten acre lot behind the barn, where you can enact the star role in that beautiful drama entitled 'Down on the Farm.'"—Chicago News.

THE FARAWAY STARS

Their Color Serves as an Index to Their Age.

WHAT MAKES THEM TWINKLE?

Two Theories That Deal With This Astronomical Enigma—The Intervention of Fragments of Disrupted Worlds or the Effect of Air Currents.

This is a question that has exercised more than one gentleman of science. Of course it is known that only the stars twinkle, the planets giving out a steady light. That is the way we tell a star from a planet with the naked eye.

But why does the star twinkle at all? The answer to this seems to be on account of the greater distances of the stars, the nearest fixed star being several thousand times farther from us than the farthest planet. So around this as a starting point have been built two theories. One is that as the visual angle, or angle subtended by the star from the eye, is so very small that very small bodies in space coming between the star and the eye would give the effect of twinkling.

Now, as regards these small bodies actually being in space as hypothecated there is no doubt, for there are millions of fragments of disrupted worlds flying around in orbits about our sun. The only question is whether there are enough to cause the eternal twinkling

WANTED—A RIDER AGENT in each town and district to ride and exhibit a sample Latest Model "Ranger" bicycle furnished by us. Our agents everywhere are making money fast. Write for full particulars and special offer at once.
NO MONEY REQUIRED until you receive and approve of your bicycle. We ship to anyone, anywhere in the U. S. without a cent deposit in advance, prepay freight, and allow TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL during which time you may ride the bicycle and put it to any test you wish. If you are then not perfectly satisfied or do not wish to keep the bicycle ship it back to us at our expense and you will not be out one cent.
FACTORY PRICES We furnish the highest grade bicycles it is possible to make at one small profit above actual factory cost. You save $10 to $25 middlemen's profits by buying direct of us and have the manufacturer's guarantee behind your bicycle. DO NOT BUY a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone at any price until you receive our catalogues and learn our unheard of factory prices and remarkable special offers to rider agents.
YOU WILL BE ASTONISHED when you receive our beautiful catalogue and study our superb models at the wonderfully low prices we can make you this year. We sell the highest grade bicycles for less money than any other factory. We are satisfied with $1.00 profit above factory cost. BICYCLE DEALERS, you can sell our bicycles under your own name plate at double our prices. Orders filled the day received.
SECOND HAND BICYCLES. We do not regularly handle second hand bicycles, but usually have a number on hand taken in trade by our Chicago retail stores. These we clear out promptly at prices ranging from $3 to $8 or $10. Descriptive bargain lists mailed free. [illegible] single wheels, imported roller chains and pedals, parts, repairs and equipment of all kinds at half the usual retail prices.
$8.50 HEDGETHORN PUNCTURE-PROOF SELF-HEALING TIRES A SAMPLE PAIR TO INTRODUCE, ONLY $4.80
The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).
NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES
Nails, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.
DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented. We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.
Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.
IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.
DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

Careless and Cappy.

We have undertaken to blend in one the best of the two proberbial conditions—to be careless and happy, hairless and cappy. We are now happy and cappy, and frequently careless as well. A pretty figure may be conjured up—a figure in leaf-green satin veiled with rose and silver shot gauze.

The dark hair is covered by a sailor's cap, point and all, worn flatly over the whole head, the point falling at the back. Instead of being made of scarlet cashmere, it is of the gauze, over silver tissue, and studded with pink and yellow topaz, while it bordered with great gray pear-shaped pearls, these, of coarse, hanging around the back of the neck and over the soft hair in front.

We have taken to caps!

The Lord's Advertisement.

Willie had been to see his old nurse, and she had shown him her treasures, including some very strikingly colored scripture texts which graced her walls.

A few days afterward his aunt gave him a dime to spend at a bazaar. Seeing that he seemed unable to find what he wanted, she asked him what he was looking for.

"I am looking for one of the Lord's advertisements, like Mary has in her room," said Willie.

Afraid of Disfigurement.

She—Aren't you going to ask papa tonight, George?

He—No, dear. I think I'd better not. I want to have my picture taken tomorrow.—Yonkers Statesman.

"ON TO JUAREZ"

ATTACK ON MEXICAN CITY DEPENDS ON WHICH GETS THERE FIRST.

BLANCO'S FORCE IS LOST

Government Forces Number 1,000 Men—Insurrectos Awaiting Blanco Who Seems to be Lost.

El Paso, Texas. — By way of variation it is predicted that Juarez will not be attacked. Whether it is called upon to defend itself seemingly depends upon whether Navarro, at the head of 1,000 federals from Chihuahua or Jose de la Lez Blanco, with 350 insurrectos from Casas Grandes, arrives first.

A rumor reached here that Navarro had met with a reverse, but it was only a rumor. Wires being down, it could not be investigated. One story was that a train on which he was traveling had been blown up, and another had it that Gen. Blanco had met and defeated him.

If Navarro reaches Juarez first it would be folly to all appearances for Orozco to attack, even with the assistance of reinforcement from Alanis and Blanco.

Alanis was camped Tuesday night 12 miles east of here on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, at a hamlet called Sargosa. Ammunition was taken across the river at this point, and Alanis and his men disappeared. Five Mexicans who crossed to the Texas side from Sargosa estimated Alanis detachment at 300.

Blanco Practically Lost.

There is no word from Blanco. If he left Casas Grandes when ordered to do so for the second time he should reach this section by Friday night. This, at least, is the way Orozco calculates it. Orozco consolidated his force when 100 men, who had been on duty in the mountains joined the 320 men near the smelter.

United States soldiers and national guardsmen detained 27 Mexicans who were attempting to cross the river to the rebel camp. The troops here are numerically inadequate to the task of guarding the entire river front. It would require several regiments to accomplish the task. One wishing to cross with arms or ammunition has but to hunt a spot where the khaki men are not, and the rest is easy.

Rebels Put to Flight.

Mexico City, Feb. 9.—Specials to Mexican newspapers say the rebels who several days ago occupied and sacked the mining town of Nieves in Zacatecas near the Sonora line, were put to flight by rurales and gendarmes and that a garrison has been ordered to the town from the capital of the state. The rebels are said to have liberated the prisoners confined in the jail, robbed several business houses and public offices.

The revolting cotton factory employes in the vicinity of Puebla, after killing three rurales and wounding a fourth, are said to have gone to Metepre, where others joined them. The band is reported proceeding toward Pensacola with forces from Puebla and Tlaxacalab in pursuit.

Navarro was unofficially reported to be at or near Carrizal, two days journey from Juarez, repairing the disrupted telegraph line as he proceeded.

A telegam to El Diaro from Durango related that a small body of insurrectos crossed from Sinaloa and took possession of the town of Tamazula, state of Durango, and were threatening Topia. A corps of volunteers, recruited from various surrounding towns, were opposing the advance. No fighting is reported.

REBELS TAKE PUERTO CORTEZ

And Agree to an Armistice With Government Troops.

Puerto Cortez, Spanish Honduras.—The revolutionary army, under Gen. Lee Christmas, formally occupied Puerto Cortez. Several hundred revolutionists were landed from schooners and marched through the streets to the Cuartel, recently abandoned by the government forces. President Davila of Honduras and Gen. Bonila, his revolutionary opponent, have agreed to an armistice.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

A local ironworker who has been married a couple of years always declared that his first son should be named Mat, after one of his best friends.

Learning that the ironworker and his wife had recently been blessed with a charming baby, the friend smiled all over his face when he greeted the father on the street.

"Well," he beamed, "how is little Mat?"

"Mat, nothing," answered the father; "it's Mattress."—Youngstown Telegram.

Digging Spruce Gum.

There will be a crusade in spruce gum digging in the Maine woods this winter. About twenty men will leave Skowhegan within a short time to begin gum digging operations near Jackman. Gum has grown scarce in the last few years and the demand is so great that it has become a business to many Maine men. Last year James Carey, Frank Croning and Joe Cass dug 1,300 pounds and sold it all in Maine. It is estimated that from 50,000 to 100,000 pounds will be dug this season.—Kennebec (Me.) Journal.

Very Tortuous Indeed.

The late Hugh J. Grant of New York once talked at a political banquet, about a noted corporation lawyer.

"Oh, yes, he's a grand mind," he said. "A grand legal mind. He's got the most tortuous mind in America."

Mr. Grant shook his head.

"A tortuous mind indeed," he repeated. "Why, if he swallowed a nail, he'd bring up a screw."

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding others in their search for health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

GOPHER NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota Events of the Week in Condensed Form.

Duluth. — Mrs. Sarah Jane Hamilton, once a political and magazine writer, died here.

Fergus Falls.—A. S. Emery was fined $10 and costs in justice court for shooting partridges out of season. The complaint was preferred by Deputy Game Warden J. H. Jones.

Winona. — Michael McCoy, aged forty, was decapitated while at work in the Biezanz stone quarry at Minnesota City, where he was employed as a loader. He was tamping a charge of dynamite and was bending directly over it when it exploded.

Mankato.—The first robins have arrived. Two of them put in an appearance last week, and in the same yard where the earliest warm weather has always marked the appearance of a pair. It is thought that the same robins have returned year after year to the place.

Columbus.—Governor Eberhart of Minnesota and staff are here booming Minneapolis as the place for the next meeting of the National corn show. The Governor made an address before the Ohio Dairymen's convention which met in connection with the corn show. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, California, is scheduled to speak before the American Breeders' association which also meets in connection with the corn show.

Duluth.—Colonel Graham D. Fitch United States engineer in charge of Lake Superior, issued his report of the commerce of the Duluth-Superior harbor for the season of 1910. The freight tons were 36,684,578 and total value $284,049,072, an increase of 12.77 per cent over the season of 1909 and 213 per cent over 1900. Considering the mean monthly freight movement for 1910, Colonel Fitch says that the Duluth-Superior harbor stands practically next to New York.

St. Paul.—Typhoid fever cost the people of the state of Minnesota $32,159,080 during twenty-one years, from 1887 to 1908, according to Dr. H. M. Bracken of the state board of health. The figures do not reckon on the losses by death, but only on the loss of earnings through illness and the cost of medical and other attendance. Dr. Bracken says that records of the board show the diphtheria death rate has been reduced by the use of anti toxin to one-fourth of its former proportions.

St. Paul.—"Minnesota ought to do more advertising at the various exhibitions and shows which take place over the country," said John H. Mullen, assistant highway engineer. He has been at Omaha at the Western Land Products show with the Minnesota exhibit. "Colorado had fifteen men at the show," he said. "They gave stereopticon lectures, distributed literature and interested people in every way possible in their state. They came from the immigration department of the state, paid by Colorado."

Minneapolis, Minn.—The plans for the Minneapolis Civic Celebration, July 2 to 8, are already resulting in needed improvements. The old city hall on Bridge Square is to be torn down. The ornamental street lighting system is to be extended. Projecting street signs are to be removed. The illumination of the city hall tower is planned. Vacant lots are to be turned into flower gardens and a scheme for decorating is being worked out that will include flowers, fountains, statuary and courts of honors instead of the usual display of bunting, flags and arches.

Bemidji.—A fire which totally destroyed the stocks of the Lakeside bakery and of the Stechman saloon occurred at 1:45 o'clock in the morning. The building occupied by the bakery was a total loss, while the Stechman building may be repaired. The total loss of the two buildings is estimated at not less than $7,000, with insurance to about half that amount. The bakery building is owned by Wildman and Fred Meigeau, while the stock and fixtures were owned by Miles Burgett. Henry Stechman is the owner of the saloon building and stock. The cause of the fire, while not directly known, is supposed to have been an overheated stove in the rear room of the bakery building.

Sauk Center.—Among some yellow and time-worn county records found by County Auditor John P. Rau of Stearns county were discovered some important historical records of Sauk Center and St. Cloud in the time of the Civil war. One document, now much aged in appearance, and dated 1862, givess the information that the number of enlisted men for the union was 306 from Stearns county; St. Cloud supplied 103, and Sauk Center, 23. At that time there were only 15 towns in this county, which has now 46 towns and three cities, besides many villages and hamlets. According to another document found in the county vaults was one giving the number of men in Stearns county liable for military duty, of which St. Cloud had 249 and Sauk Center 54, and the whole county 1,081.

St. Cloud.—A branch of the Gordon & Ferguson Mutual Benefit association for the members of the St. Cloud factory has been organized in this city. Membership in this association is limited to employes only, and small assessments are made for sick benefits and the defraying of funeral expenses of members. It was founded ten years ago in the main factory in St. Paul, and is in a flourishing condition today.

Washington.—Captain Henry A. Castle of St. Paul and C. C. Whitney of Marshall are among the Minnesota people in the city.

Rochester.—Nearly 200 representative business men of Rochester gathered at a "get-together" banquet in Masonic temple which proved to be the biggest event in the history of the city. A movement was started to enlarge the Commercial club, to provide suitable quarters, for which purpose a committee of leading business men was appointed. A. C. Stevenson presided at the banquet.

Washington, D. C. — The postmaster general has designated the First and Northwestern National banks of Bemidji, Minn., as depositories of postal bank funds.

PAINFUL FINGER NAILS CURED

"I have suffered from the same trouble (painful finger nails) at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying home remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but it was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail. Sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail. I had sometimes as many as three fingers in this state at one time.

"Perhaps ten years later I began again to suffer from the same trouble. Again I tried various remedies, among them a prescription from a doctor of a friend of mine, who had suffered from a like trouble. This seemed to help somewhat for a time, but it was not a permanent cure; next tried a prescription from my own doctor, but this was so irritating to the sensitive, diseased skin that I could not use it. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had used the Cuticura Ointment previously on my children's scalps with good effect. I did not use the Soap exclusively, but I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment into the base of the nail every night thoroughly, and as often beside as I could. I had not used it but a few weeks before my nails were better, and in a short time they were apparently well. There was no more suppuration, nor inflammation, the nails grew out clean again. One box of Cuticura Ointment was all that I used in effecting a cure." (Signed) Mrs. I. J. Horton, Katonah, N. Y., Apr. 13, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton wrote: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails."

"Hullo, Binks!" said Wobbles. "I hear you've been in the chicken business."

"Yep," said Binks.

"Made anything out of it?" asked Wobbles.

"Yep," said Binks. "Ten thousand dollars."

"Ten thousand dolars in the chicken business?" demanded Wobbles.

"Nope. Out of it," said Binks.—Harper's Weekly.

Great Baseball Play.

"What was the greatest baseball play you ever saw?" asked a friend of Governor-elect John W. Tener.

"The greatest play I ever saw," said he, "took place in an amateur game on a town lot at Charleroi. The teams were playing on a wet field and an outfielder who wore a derby hat went after a high fly. He came to a little pond and taking his eye off the ball made a jump to cross it. As he was leaping the ball struck him on the head, went through the crown of his hat and lodged there. The base runner was out and the fielder had not touched the ball with his hands. Can you beat it?"—Washington Correspondence Pittsburg Dispatch.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

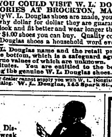
Aids Nature



The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

JUSTICE JAGGARD DIES IN BERMUDA

SUPREME COURT JUDGE PASSES AWAY WHILE ON HEALTH-SEEKING TRIP.

CABLEGRAM BRINGS SAD NEWS

State Officials Mourn Death—House Adjourns for Day in Memory of Distinguished Judge.

St. Paul, Feb. 15—Justice Edwin A. Jaggard, of the supreme court of Minnesota, died of heart disease in the Bermudas, where he has been since Jan. 12 to recuperate his health.

News of the sudden death of the justice was received through a cablegram to I. A. Caswell, clerk of the supreme court. It contained no details, except that death had been due to heart trouble. The news spread through the capitol at once, and the flag on the state-house at half-mast told that breavement had come to the state of Minnesota.

Chief Justice Start and the other members of the supreme court were grief stricken by the news. Justice Jaggard had been regarded as an able jurist, and his genial and many sided nature made him popular as [illegible] he was highly regarded as a lawyer.

Justice E. A. Jaggard.

Ill for Some Time.

Justice Jaggard had been ill for some time. There seemed to be a general breakdown of his rugged health and he thought that two months spent in the sunny climate of the Bermudas, away from work and worry, would place him on his feet again. He left St. Paul, Jan. 8., expecting to return about the middle of March. Since then little was heard from him, but it was generally believed he was recovering his health.

Justice Jaggard was a unique figure on the bench, a deep student of the law; he was a popular after-dinner speaker, a member of many fraternal orders and always in demand socially because of his loyal qualities. He took a deep interst in public matters and wrote several books on legal subjects.

He had been mentioned in the last two campaigns as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. His ability as a speaker and his splendid presence, it was thought, would have made him an irresistible candidate.

Funeral arrangements are not completed, but cable messages have been sent to Mrs. Jaggard, who was with her husband. It is expected the body will be brought to St. Paul for interment, the state of Minnesota paying its last respect to the man who has been on the supreme bench since 1904.

Judge Jaggard was born in Altoona, Pa., in 1859. He graduated from Dickinson college in Carlyle, Pa., in 1879. He came to St. Paul in 1882 and was elected to the district court by the Second district in 1898, and served continually until his death. He was the author of numerous pamphlets on taxation and legal questions, and his opinions were considered highly by lawyers throughout the country.

House Is Adjourned.

Representative Campbell of Minneapolis announced in the house that the house adjourn as a mark of respect to his memory. The action was taken.

TO DEPORT MURDERER.

Judge Hughes Orders Furiani Released From the Asylum.

Duluth, Feb. 15. — Judge Martin Hughes of the district court at Hibbing made an order for the release of Guizeppe Furiani from the insane hospital at Fergus Falls. Furiani is a murderer and he is released at the request of the federal authorities for deportation to Italy. Furiani killed Marino Farinini at Hibbing last Fourth of July.

MINNESOTA'S OFFICERS MISSING

Three of Them Leave U. S. Battleship ....in Cuba and Cannot Be Found.

Caimanera, Cuba, Feb. 15—Three officers of the American battleship Minnesota, who left the vessel in a power boat, failed to return when expected and are still missing. Tugs and torpedo boats have been dispatched in search of the party but had met with no success up to a late hour. The officers were last heard from at the town of Jatibonico.

BUNN FOR SUPREME BENCH

SUCCESSOR TO JUSTICE JAGGARD IS NAMED.

Many Considered Though No Man Was a Candidate—New Man a Democrat.

St. Paul, Feb. 16.—Judge G. L. Bunn of the Ramsey county district court, a Democrat, will be the successor to the late Edwin A. Jaggard, associate justice of the supreme court of Minnesota, who died in Bermuda.

The governor has felt a great deal of delicacy in naming a successor to Justice Jaggard so promptly, but left it necessary to do so on account of the condition of the court calendar, which is crowded at this time.

No man was a candidate, yet friends of several prominent lawyers advanced the claims of different men. Among those who were considered were former Justice O'Brien, former Attorney General Young, Attorney General Simpson, Judges Hallam and Brill of Ramsey, and others.

Mr. O'Brien stopped the consideration of his name by saying he could not accept the place. It was felt that the appointment should go to Ramsey, and Judge Bunn's appointment was finally decided upon.

Judge Bunn was first appointed to the district bench by Governor Clough and in the past two elections has been the non-partisan candidate for the bench. This largely decided Governor Eberhart in his appointment, in line with his desire to separate the judiciary from politics.

Judge Bunn's first appointment to the district bench came about through the death of Judge C. D. Kerr in 1897.

He was first elected for six years in 1898, after having served for about a year and five months in Judge Kerr's place. Twice after that he had no opposition on the Democratic ticket for renomination nor on the Republican ticket for election.

He was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law in St. Paul in 1888. Since 1904 he has been president and dean of the St. Paul college of law.

Native of Wisconsin.

Judge Bunn was born in Sparta, Wis., June 25, 1865. He comes from a family of lawyers, his father, Pomanzo Bunn, having been a United States district judge in Wisconsin. In the year of 1879 Judge Bunn entered the preparatory department of the University of Wisconsin and was graduated from the academic department of the school in 1885. Three years later he was graduated from the college of law.

Judge Bunn, during his service on the bench, has enjoyed the highest respect of the lawyers of the Twin Cities and of the state. The new justice is a lover of outdoor sports and is given to fly fishing and shooting. A brother, Charles A. Bunn, is general counsel for the Great Northern railway.

MAINE WRECK ANNIVERSARY.

Services Held at Havana to Mark Sinking Thirteen Years Ago.

Havana, Feb. 16.—Owing to the interest aroused by the work of raising the wreck of the battleship Maine, the Maine anniversary was more generally observed than ever before. The vessel was destroyed in an explosion thirteen years ago. Vice-President Sayas delivered the memorial orations in this city. The wreck of the Maine was surrounded with boats for the accommodation of the spectators. A marine guard was placed on the wreck and minute guns were fired from Cabanas fortress during the service. The Cuban army band furnished the music. Past Commander Gihon of the Spanish-American War Veterans is here to assist the local camp. The Cuban warship Hatney, with President Gomez, took part in the exercises.

WALSH SAID TO BE VERY ILL.

Wickersham Working on Application for Pardon.

Washington, Feb. 17. — Attorney General Wickersham is working on John R. Walsh's application for pardon and probably will be ready to send his recommendations to President Taft within the next few days. It is said the whole question of the former banker's release hinges upon the state of his health. He will be eligible to release on parole in September.

Taft Entertains Prominent Jews.

Washington, Feb. 16.—President Taft entertained at luncheon several prominent American representatives of the Jewish race. A discussion followed the luncheon concerning the best means to secure from the government of Russia the same rights for Americans of the Jewish race visiting that country which are accorded American citizens of other races.

Panama Canal the Big Topic.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The especial relationship of the Panama canal to the commerce of the world was the chief topic of discussion at Wednesday's session of the Pan-American commercial conference. Among the speakers were Charles M. Pepper, trade expert of the bureau of trade relations; Bernard Baker of Baltimore; Wilbur J. Carr, director of the consular service; F. W. Goding, United States consul in Montevideo, Uruguay, and Francis B. Loomis, formerly assistant secretary of state.

FARMERS FINISH

CLASS OF 1911 AT SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE RECEIVES CERTIFICATES.

OVER 200 IN THE CLASS

Graduation Program Arranged to Precede Presentation—List of Graduates of the Popular Course.

Minneapolis. — Graduation exercises were held at the School of Agriculture, when the 200 farmer students comprising the short course class of 1911 were given certificates by Dean Woods in recognition of their work. The conferring of certificates was preceded by a program.

Rev. Willard S. Richardson, the university pastor, opened the program with an invocation. Following this, an address was delivered by Dean Woods. Music was provided under the direction of Miss Mary L. Coffin. The class colors are green and gold.

The presentation of certificates marked the end of the farmers' short course, which is pronounced by Principal Mayne as a triumph in promoting agricultural education. The class was composed of sturdy sons and daughters of the soil throughout Minnesota and neighboring Northwest states, whose constant endeavor seemed to be to acquire a knowledge that would tend to produce better results in the farming world.

MARRIED COUPLE AS TRAMPS

Receive Reformatory Sentence at St. Cloud for Stealing a Gold Watch.

St. Cloud.—John and Maggie Young, 22 and 18 years old, respectively, claiming to be husband and wife, told a most remarkable story before Judge M. D. Taylor before receiving reformatory sentences for stealing a gold watch. Both say they have been tramps since childhood, the girl since she was 12 years of age and Young since the age of 9. They say they have no relatives living and nobody to take an interest in them. They claim to have been married in Bismarck, N. D., two years ago, but the records of that county fail to show a marriage license issued to the pair.

The crime for which they were arrested occurred recently near Long Prairie, in Todd county. They stopped at a farmer's house for something to eat and a night's lodging. After they left the next morning the farmer found that his gold watch was missing and, suspecting the pair, followed them up and caught them "with the goods." Both pleaded guilty before Judge Taylor and on account of their age were given reformatory sentences.

OPPOSE WOMAN'S REFORMATORY

St. Cloud Society Working to Bar Erection of Institution.

St. Cloud. — The St. Cloud Ladies' Reading Room society in session here entered a protest against locating the proposed women's reformatory in this city, claiming that it ought to be in a different location from the men's reform school. A committee has been appointed to confer with the legislators from this district and also the commercial club here in regard to the matter.

ANDERSON AT HOME.

Congressman-elect Speaks to His Fellow Townsmen.

Lanesboro.—Speaking for the first time in his home town since he became a national figure through his defeat of James A. Tawney, Congressman-elect Sydney Anderson delivered an address here on the subject: "What Progressive Republicanism Stands For."

He said in part:

"We have come to associate progressive Republicanism in our minds with certain principles and doctrines as the symbols around which we assemble our thoughts and ideas. Yet these principles and doctrines are not progressive Republicanism.

"Progressive Republicanism is not confined and limited to the direct election of United States senators, to the initiative and referendum, or the many other doctrines with which it has been associated. They are but the symbols, the evidences of subtle and underlying force and purpose which have existed in the people since the beginning of society.

If it be true that these doctrines are progressive Republicanism, what is to become of the cause of progress when these ideas have been made into laws or have proven infirm in theory or unpracticable in operation? If we accept that theory we will come very swiftly to the close of the progressive movement. So it seems to me that progressive Republicanism is perhaps less visible, but of infinitely greater force and purpose than primary reform.

Should Limit Profits.

"Taxation for the benefit of special interests exists and is exercised by practically every public service corporation. It is exercised in nearly every instance where the production, manufacture or sale of a commodity of general use or consumption is controlled by the few under conditions of a practical monopoly, for I am convinced that we must speedily come to the conclusion that where a condition of practical monopoly of a commodity exists, it should be possible to fix some limit to the profit of those who obtain the monopoly other than the ability of the people to pay the price or go without the article. I venture to assert that the net income of the average individual depends more upon law and taxation that it does upon labor and economy. Just as soon as the American people fully realize this fact, it will no longer be necessary to explain what progressive Republicanism stands for."

The speaker then briefly indicated the facts and conditions existing at the beginning of the extra session of the sixty-first congress, mentioning the disclosures in connection with the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, and said:

"I am not striking now at the doctrine of protection, but I do maintain that with practical uniformity every dollar levied in the shape of a tariff beyond the limit of difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, constitutes a tax upon the people of this nation for the benefit of special interests for which we can get no corresponding benefit."

INDIAN CASE ON IN DULUTH.

Minneapolis Attorney Takes Up Day With Argument.

Duluth. — The final arguments on demurrers to the government's bill of complaint in equity, seeking to correct the alleged illegal transfer of White Earth Indian allotment to private parties, came up for hearing before Judge Page Morris.

R. J. Powell of Minneapolis, one of the attorneys for the defendants, presented arguments and he will be succeeded either by United States District Attorney Houpt or M. C. Burch of Washington, assistant United States attorney general.

It is rather expected that Judge Morris will give his decision as soon as the arguments are concluded, as when the attorneys for both sides proposed that they be allowed to file briefs after the arguments are in, the judge said that it was good policy always to render a decision as soon as arguments are completed, if proper, and he suggested that they make their arguments as thorough as possible. C. M. Johnston of Detroit, Minn., also represents the defendants, but he has not yet participated in the argument. Mr. Powell discussed the Indian treaties of this section from the beginning and sought to show that the government in its dealings with the Indians plainly intended to give the Chippewa tribe full and complete ownership of the White Earth reservation.

RAILWAYS ASKED FOR DAMAGES.

Northern Pacific and Fargo Companies Sued at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls.—L. O. Snelling, a barber of Marshall, Minn., has begun suit against the Northern Pacific Railway Company in the United States court in this city, asking damages in the sum of $28,800 for injuries sustained in the derailment of a train at Glendive, Mont., on August 10, 1908. Mr. Snelling was a passenger on the train and claims to have been permanently disabled.

ELEVATOR MAN DISAPPEARS.

Said to be $1,000 Short in Accounts With His Company.

St. Cloud. — Amos Crossland, for fifteen years a resident of Royalton, 15 miles from this city, and during the past three years manager of the Powers elevator in that village, has disappeared and is said to be $1,000 short in his accounts. Although Crossland left Royalton last week, it has just been given out that he was found short in his accounts.

Story That Contains a Moral It Might Be Well to Keep in Memory.

A little King Charles dog, a pet in a family where he had been the playmate of a little boy, slipped through an open door some time ago and disappeared. Servants and the children of the house searched everywhere, asked questions at all places where it was thought possible the dog might be in hiding, but to no avail, and the animal was finally given up for lost and there was deep mourning in the nursery. One day recently the woman who owned the dog met a neighbor at a florist's shop, who had on a leash a dog strangely like the lost pet, and asked where he came from. "Why, he ran into our house a few days ago and we don't know where he belongs." The dog knew his old mistress and was quickly surrendered. "You might have had him sooner, had you advertised," said one woman. "And you could have found the owner sooner had you advertised," said the other —and the newspaper man who heard the story added the moral.

Whether you will ever be free depends on the use you will make of your freedom.

HEREDITY

Can Be Overcome in Cases.

The influence of heredity cannot, of course, be successfully disputed, but it can be minimized or entirely overcome in some cases by correct food and drink. A Conn. lady says:

"For years while I was a coffee drinker I suffered from bilious attacks of great severity, from which I used to emerge as white as a ghost and very weak. Our family physician gave me various prescriptions for improving the digestion and stimulating the liver, which I tried faithfully, but without perceptible result.

"He was acquainted with my family history for several generations back, and once when I visited him he said: 'If you have inherited one of those torpid livers you may always suffer more or less from its inaction. We can't dodge our inheritance, you know.'

"I was not so strong a believer in heredity as he was, however, and, beginning to think for myself, I concluded to stop drinking coffee, and see what effect that would have. I feared it would be a severe trial to give it up, but when I took Postum and had it well made, it completely filled my need for a hot beverage and I grew very fond of it.

"I have used Postum for three years, using no medicine. During all that time I have had absolutely none of the bilious attacks that I used to suffer from, and I have been entirely free from the pain and debilitating effects that used to result from them.

"The change is surely very great, and I am compelled to give Postum the exclusive credit for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

$8.50 HEDGETHORN PUNCTURE-PROOF SELF-HEALING TIRES A SAMPLE PAIR TO INTRODUCE, ONLY $4.80

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

Reapportionment has at last reached a stage where a date—next Tuesday—is set for a vote on the proposition. Red Lake and Pennington counties are to be joined in one representative district.

The matter of the proposed quo warranto proceedings was argued before Attorney General Simspon at his office in St. Paul Monday and by him taken under advisement. However pleasing and profitable the prolonging of the division "scrap" may be to the attorneys on both sides, the long suffering public is tired os the whole thing and wants a rest.

HEARING ON DITCH PETITION

CLERK OF COURTS' NOTICE ON PETITION, ENGINEERS AND VIEWERS' REPORTS IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS,

State of Minnesota } ss District Court.
County of Marshall } 14th Judicial District.

In the matter of the petition of Ole O. Steen and others for a public drainage ditch in the counties of Marshall, Red Lake, and Pennington, state of Minnesota, designated and numbered as Judicial Ditch No. 14.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota, praying for the construction of a public drainage ditch, designated and numbered by the clerk of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota, as Judicial Ditch No. 14, and that the preliminary hearing provided by law before the judge of the district court has been had thereon, and that the said judge has appointed a civil engineer to make a survey of the route of the said ditch and to perform such other duties in relation thereto as are provided by law, and that the said engineer duly made his report thereon and filed the same in the office of the clerk of the district court and that the said judge of the district court duly appointed viewers to assess damages and benefits in the matter of said ditch and to perform all other duties in relation thereto as are required by law, and that on the 7th day of May, 1910, at 10 o'clock a. m., a final hearing was had before the said judge of the district court upon said petition, engineers' and viewers' reports, the said hearing being had pursuant to due notice given by the said clerk of the district court, and that after hearing all parties interested, the court found that the course of the said ditch could be improved upon, and made his order, dated May 7, 1910, rereferring and resubmitting the whole matter to the engineer duly appointed in said ditch matter and to the viewers therein, authorizing and instructing them to reexamine the course of said proposed ditch and branches and to make all necessary changes, and further authorizing and instructing the said viewers to review and assess all of the said property that may be affected by such drainage ditch, and notice is hereby given that the said engineer has completed his work and has made an amended report thereon, and has filed the same in the office of the said clerk of the district court, and that the said viewers have completed their work and have filed their amended report in the office of said clerk, and that as appears by the amended report of the engineer hereinbefore mentioned, the starting point, route, and terminal of the main ditch and branches of Judicial Ditch Number Fourteen (14), including a description of the lands over which the same passes is as follows, viz:

Money for County Fair

The following letter explains itself:

St. Paul, Minn., Feb, 10, 1911.

Friend Gigstad:—Yours of 7th with petition received. Have sent it up. I heartily agree with the sentiment, and will do what I can to secure more money for the county fair instead of the state fair.

The house has passed the good roads bill, also the consolidated rural school bill.

With kind regards to all friends, I remain respectfully,

D. P. O'NEILL.

LOMBARD PIANOS

The Pianos With The Sweetest Tone

Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairdy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

CALUMET
BAKING POWDER

The wonder of baking powders—Calumet. Wonderful in its raising powers—its uniformity, its never failing results, its purity.

Wonderful in its economy. It costs less than the high-price trust brands, but it is worth as much. It costs a trifle more than the cheap and big can kinds—it is worth more. But proves its real economy in the baking.

A man recently visited the art museum in Chicago and wandered about, looking at the paintings with more or less interest. He finally stopped in front of a portrait which showed a man sitting in a high-backed chair. There was a small white card on the picture, reading:

"A portrait of E. H. Smith, by himself."

The man read the card and then chuckled to himself.

"What fools these city folks are!" he said. "Anybody who looks at that picture would know Smith's by himself. There ain't any one else in the picture."—Chicago Tribune.

Always Worrying.

The late John H. Barker, of Michigan City, who left a fortune of over $30,000,000 to his 11-year-old daughter, was strongly opposed to speculation.

"Do not speculate," Mr. Baker once said in an address to young men. "Speculators stand on shaky ground. They know no peace."

Mr. Baker smiled.

"In fact," he said, "a speculator is always worrying about the money market, while his wife is always worrying about the market money."

CURED HER BABY OF ECZEMA

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another, but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years she was never without the terrible eruption, but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910.

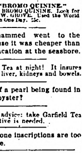
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription



Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Feb. 9.—The senate will adjourn April 1, 20 days prior to the constitutional date set for adjournment, unless a resolution which passed 53 to 8 is rescinded later. Senator Moonan, of Waseca, introduced the resolution.

Representative C. A. Congdon of Duluth introduced a bill in the house repealing the anti-cigaret law passed by the legislature two years ago. Representative Congdon is opposed to dead letter laws on principle and for this reason favors the repeal.

Representative A. B. Anderson's state-wide prohibition bill, introduced in the house, is the first of a probable avalanche of liquor regulatory measures.

Representative Robinson introduced a bill to investigate the state central committees of both major parties.

Representative Spooner and Harding presented a bill providing for the teaching of agriculture and domestic economy in the schools of the state and also providing for the consolidation of rural schools.

The Mattson-Nelson bill amending the compulsory education law was recommended for passage. The proposed bill changes the ages of children coming under this law from 8 to 17, to 8 to 16 years. It allows pupils to remain out of school because of poverty or because they are needed to work at home. This section is to allow farmer's children to remain out of school during the harvest season. The bill also proposes to allow children to remain out of schools on church days.

St. Paul, Feb. 10.—A bill is to be introduced into the state legislature raising the salaries of several state officers. The salary of the governor is not affected by the bill. The salaries that would be raised are those of the state auditor, state treasurer and secretary of state. The movement first started through an effort to raise the salary of Treasurer Smith, who now draws only $3,500 a year. After consultation it was decided to put in a general bill which equalizes the salaries of all the state officers. For example, the state insurance commissioner draws $4,500 a year, while the state auditor, one of the most important state officers, draws a similar amount. The secretary of state, an elective officer, draws only $3,500.

A bill giving city councils absolute control over saloons is to be introduced in the lower house. It is a substitute for the proposed 12 o'clock closing bill. Representatives who favor the extension of saloon hours believe a bill of this kind will pass. It proposes that city council shall fix the hour of closing, providing it is not later than midnight. The argument is that this bill will place the authority over saloons where it belongs and that the principle of county option will be carried out. It is asserted that if the saloons are not orderly they can be closed at 8 p. m.

Aims at Express Companies.

Senator Lende of Lyon county is author of a bill to put express companies in Minnesota under the control of the railroad and warehouse commission, exactly as railroads are now. The bill probably will be made a committee bill backed by the railroad committee.

Marriage of Cousins Attacked.

First cousins cannot marry in Minnesota if a bill by Senator Anderson is passed. This bill has been introduced at many previous legislative sessions, but always has failed to pass. Senator Anderson says he expects favorable action in this legislature.

Sibley house will receive $2,500 for repairs and improvements, and $65 a month for repairs, if a bill introduced by Senators Denegre and Schaller is passed. The Sibley House association and the Daughters of the American Revolution shall have charge of the money.

Seizure of Autos Provided.

A new and novel way to discourage reckless automobile driving on country roads was suggested in a bill by Senator Nelson. His plan is to have the county confiscate any automobile by which a person on the public highway is injured and to sell it at public auction and put the proceeds in the county treasury. Senator Van Hoven introduced a bill forbidding anyone from driving an auto without a state license, and that no license should be issued to anyone under 18 years of age.

The long-expected tonnage tax bill was introduced in the lower house of the Minnesota legislature by Representatives Frankson, Moriarity and J. N. Johnson. It provides for a tax of 2 cents a ton on ore testing less than 49 per cent, 3 cents on ore testing from 49 to 54 per cent, 4 cents on ore testing from 54 to 59 per cent and 5 cents a ton on ore testing more than 59 per cent.

St. Paul, Feb. 11.—

A bill extending the terms of members of the railroad and warehouse commission from four to six years and increasing salaries to $4,500 was introduced by Representative Dunn.

Representative Hillman introduced a bill changing the method of amending the constitution by allowing a majority of the votes cast for the amendment sufficient to carry. The present law provides that a majority of all votes cast at the election is necessary to pass a constitutional amendment.

The house passed a concurrent resolution inviting George E. Vincent, president-elect of the state university, to speak before the legislature Feb. 12.

Boosters Slam Fair Aid.

A petition from the Olivia Commercial Club against making any more appropriations for the state fair was read. It read: "Millions of dollars has already been appropriated to make the state fair self-supporting and the only people benefited were certain classes in the Twin Cities."

The house committe on judiciary and the senate committee on general legislation will hold an open session on Feb. 15 to discuss the proposed workingmen's compensation bill.

Miss Josephine Schain, secretary of the committee on billboards of the Minneapolis Woman's Club appeared before the delegation and asked for the passage of an enabling act giving city councils authority to regulate billboards. She deplored the present appearance of the billboards and declared that many of the posters were immoral.

A bill to provide $25,000 for grass seed for the burned regions of upper Minnesota, introduced by Senator Clague, was passed.

Action on the McNeil bill allowing counties to issue bonds for good roads to the extent of one-half per cent of their total valuation was deferred. This bill is intended to provide for the million dollar bond issue for Hennepin county, which was declared unconstitutional two years ago on the theory that it was class legislation. The proposed bill includes every county in the state, to remove the unconstitutional feature.

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—The legislative sub-committee on the state fair has completed a tentative bill governing the fair, which will be put in final form this week. The bill is based upon Iowa's state fair law, changed to suit Minnesota conditions.

The principal feature of the proposed bill is the basis of representation in the state agricultural society, which elects the members of the state fair board. The bill allows each county which maintains a county fair three representatives and those not maintaining county fairs one representative each, to be appointed by the board of county commissioners. The membership of independent organizations, such as the cattle breeders and wool growers' associations, is reduced from 40 to 15. All subsidiary organizations of the leading independent societies are denied representation.

Honorary Members Limited.

It was the understanding of the committee that there were only twenty honorary members. An investigation of the books, however, showed there are fifty-nine honorary members entitled to vote. The bill provides that only one new honorary member shall be appointed each year and he shall be the retiring president. The committee believes the number of the honorary members will be materially reduced by death during the next fifteen years and that the number will finally be reduced to not more than twenty-five.

The bill provides that all state fair moneys shall be deposited with the state treasury. Owing to the objection that it takes too much time to secure money from the state treasury to pay the bills, a revolving fund is allowed the board to carry on its business. A report of the condition of this revolving fund must be made every month.

The committee also favors a provision taking away from members of the state fair board the power to fix their own salaries and giving it to the legislature.

The bill gives the supervision of the state fair buildings to the state board of control. This board would have charge of these buildings, as it has over all other state buildings. It would provide for repairs and supervise the letting of contracts and the construction of all new buildings.

Agricultural Building Boosted.

The legislature joint committee on state fair recommended an appropriation of $350,000 for the construction of an agricultural building at the state fair grounds. The proposition met with opposition on the part of the senator and members of the committee.

FIRE DOES $500,000 DAMAGES.

Standard Oil Sulphuric Acid Plant Destroyed.

Point Richmond, California.—Fire, caused by blazing soot from a chimney falling on the roof of the sulphuric acid plant of the Standard Oil company, destroyed that plant, a tank containing 500,000 gallons of crude oil and damaged the $1,000,000 acid plant. One man was terribly burned. Three men were injured. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

HOXSEY HEIGHT RECORD VOID.

Barograph Smashed in Fatal Plunge Was Not Officially Tested.

Los Angeles, Calif. — Because the barograph which Arch Hoxsey wore around his neck when he made his plunge to death during the recent Los Angeles aviation meet was smashed to pieces, its accuracy remained untested, and the altitude record of more than 11,000 feet which Hoxsey had made a few days before the fatal accident is declared unverified and unofficial.

Huge Building For Seattle.

Seattle, Wash. — The last obstacle in the way of the erection of a forty-one story building in this city by the estate of the late L. C. Smith of Syracuse, N. Y., was removed when the council committee that has been going over the plans voted to grant the permit. The local agent for the Smith estate informed the committee that the skyscraper, which will be the highest office building in the world outside of New York, will be begun within the next six weeks.

Trading Stamp Law Invalid.

Annapolis, Md. — The Maryland court of appeals has declared unconstitutional a legislative enactment regulating the conduct of the trading stamp business in this state. The companies contended that the requirements and conditions imposed by the act practically prohibited the issue of stamps. The opinion holds broadly that the present manner of conducting the trading stamp business does not involve such chance and uncertainty as to arouse the gaming or gambling spirit.

CANADA GETS $1,500 TROPHY.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AWARDS TROPHY FOR PECK OF OATS GROWN IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Again Canada is to the fore, and has secured at the National Corn Exposition just closed at Columbus, Ohio, the magnificent Colorado silver trophy valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats. These oats were grown by Messrs. Hill & Son, of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, and, as may readily be understood, were of splendid quality to have been so successful in a contest open to the world, and in which competition was keen. At the same Exposition there were exhibits of wheat and barley, and in all these competitions, the grain shown by Canada secured a wonderful amount of attention, and also a number of awards. During recent exhibitions at which grain from Western Canada was given permission for entry, it always took first place. At the Spokane Interstate Fair, last fall, where the entries were very large, and the competition keen, the Province of Alberta carried off the silver cup, given by Governor Hay, for the best state or province display, and a score of prizes was awarded Canadian exhibitors for different exhibits of wheat, oats and barley threshed and in the sheaf. Vegetables also received high awards. A pleasing feature of these exhibits was they were mostly made by farmers who had at one time been American Citizens and were now farming in Canada. The Department of the Interior is just in receipt of a magnificent diploma given by the Tri-State Board of Examiners at the Fair held in Cincinnati last fall for agricultural display by Canada.

The Surveyor-General of Canada has just completed a map showing that a large area of land was surveyed last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. It is understood surveys covering several hundreds of thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

A return just issued by the Dominion Lands Branch shows that 48,257 homestead entries were made last year as compared with 37,061 in 1909; of this 48,257, 14,704 were made by Americans. North Dakota coming first on the list with 4,810, Minnesota gives 2,526, South Dakota 1,133, Wisconsin 745, Washington 730, Michigan 706, Iowa 645, while other states show less, but with the exception of Delaware, District of Columbia and the Indian Territory, every state and territory contributed.

The prospects for an abundant crop in all parts of Western Canada for 1911 are said to be excellent. In the districts that required it there was an ample rainfall last autumn, and the snowfall during the present winter is greater than in many previous years. Both are essential factors to the farmers, who look upon the moisture that these will produce as being highly beneficial.

A large immigration from the United States is expected, and the demand for literature and information from the various Government Agencies located at different points in the States is the greatest it has ever been.

Since the above was written word has been received that in addition to honors won at Columbus, Ohio, Canada won first and second on wheat and first and second on oats, as well as diplomas.

Norman Cherry of Davis, Saskatchewan, who was in the reserve for first on wheat, secured the award, with G. H. Hutton of Lacombe, Alberta, second. J. C. Hill & Sons got first on oats besides the silver trophy. G. H. Hutton took second in oats.

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time

—not a year from now when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 50 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

Washington.

At this writing it looks as if there is no escape from an extra session of congress.

The senate passed the bill appropriating $2,000,000 a year for the purchase of land for forest reserves in eastern states and especially in the White mountains and southern Appalachians.

Statehood for Arizona is impossible at this session of congress, for the reason that returns of the election held February 9 cannot be canvassed and certified under the law in time to reach Washington for action by congress.

Only one-quarter of the cargo of supplies to be sent to China on the army transport Bufford, for the relief of the famine sufferers, has been received, and the Red Cross has issued an urgent appeal for provisions and money to complete the cargo.

The president sent to the senate the nomination of Cadet Taylor for collector of customs at Omaha upon recommendation of the secretary of the treasury after careful examination into the charges against him by Victor Rosewater of Omaha. The senate may not confirm.

Personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln were related by Speaker Cannon at a gathering in memory of the martyred president. He refuted the charge that Lincoln was not a Christian or a God-fearing man. "The religion of Lincoln," said Mr. Cannon, "was not affiliated with any church, but nevertheless he was a religious man, doing all that he did for his country in preserving the union in the truth and fear of God."

General.

Senator Terrell of Georgia is reported as showing continued improvement.

Glenn Curtiss, in an areoplane, descended and ascended from the ocean at San Diego, Cal.

Col. John S. Harper, civil war veteran and newspaper publisher, died at Bloomington, Ill.

By a vote of 107 to 10 the Kansas house passed the Don Carlos initiative and referendum bill.

The contract for a loan of $10,000,000 to Honduras by American bankers was signed in New York, according to announcement by the state department.

A resolution instructing Kansas representatives and senators in favor of the Canadian reciprocity treaty was passed by the lower house of the state legislature.

President Taft appointed Victor M. Locke of Antlers, Okla., to be principal chief of the Choctaw nation in Oklahoma in the place of the late Green McCurtain.

TAFT ACTS IN INDIAN LIQUOR CASES

SENDS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS BEARING ON MINNESOTA IMBROGLIO.

THREE EXECUTIVE ORDERS

Asks Repeal of Laws Prohibiting Liquor in Certain Territory—Old Pacts Outgrown, He Says.

Washington, D. C. — The long delayed message to congress and the orders of the executive, together with recommendations to congress for legislation, which are to bring to an end the prohibition of liquor in the sections of Minnesota not now occupied by Indians, were issued by President Taft. In the message the president gives a full history of all the treaties and legislation bearing upon the Indian liquor question and formally makes recommendations that congress extend the laws of the United States prohibiting the sale of liquor in certain described territory. Bills to carry into effect these recommendations of the president will be introduced by Representative Miller and other members of the Minnesota delegation.

"In the years which have elapsed since making these treaties," the president says in the message, "conditions have largely changed, the Indian population being reduced, large white settlements have been made and great cities like St. Paul and Minneapolis have come to occupy a portion what, at the date of the treaties, was denominated Indian country. Notwithstanding these facts, this territory still remains subject to the regulation respecting the traffic in liquor originally imposed for the protection of the Indians.

"Such an anomalous condition of affairs," he continues, "should no longer continue, and the regulation of traffic in liquors in those areas, now almost exclusively occupied by white people, should be left to them. In those instances where the treaty authorized the president to repeal or modify the provisions I have exercised that right. Some of the treaties, however, provide that the provisions referred to shall continue and be in force until otherwise provided by congress."

The essential features of President Taft's message recommending certain dry zones, which are described in detail, are as follows:

First, referring to the treaty of 1855: "By the treaty of Feb. 27, 1855, with the Winnebago tribe of Indians, that tribe ceded to the United States a tract of land granted to them by the treaty made Oct. 13, 1846, within the territory, now the state of Minnesota, lying north of St. Peter's river and west of the Mississippi river, estimated to contain about 897,900 acres, and, in part consideration for the cession, the United States agreed to grant to the said Indians as their permanent home a certain tract to be selected as therein provided.

"As there are but few, if any, Indians residing within said area, and the Indian office reports that there is no occasion for the continuance in force and effect of the treaty provision above referred to, I recommend that legislation be enacted declaring the treaty provision to be of no further force or effect.

Would Extend Laws.

"I therefore recommend that appropriate legislation be enacted, extending the laws of the United States prohibiting the introduction and sale of spirituous liquors in the Indian country through that portion of the territory ceded by said treaty, particularly described as follows:

"Beginning at a point where the line between Townships 45 and 46 north intersects the line between Ranges 15 and 16 west of the Fourth principal meridian, thence north along said line to the northeast corner of Township 53 north, Range 16 west, thence west along the line between Townships 53 and 54 north to the point where it intersects the western boundary established by said treaty of Sept. 30, 1854; thence following the said treaty line in a southwesterly direction to the point where it intersects the line between Townships 45 and 46 north, thence due east along the said line to the point of beginning, and all that portion of the state of Minnesota which lies east of the Fourth principal meridian.

"By the treaty of Feb. 22, 1855, with the Mississippi bands of Chippewa Indians, an area extending almost entirely across the northern part of the state of Minnesota and from its northerly boundary practically to its center, was ceded to the United States.

Can Protect Indians.

"The records of the Indian bureau show that there are within said area, under the jurisdiction of the superintendents of the White Earth and Leech Lake reservations, 7,196 Indians, who can be amply protected by limiting the territory as to which in force and effect to the area within and contiguous to said reservations, particularly described as follows:

"Beginning at the mouth of the Wild Rice river, thence in a northeasterly direction along the line established by said treaty of Feb. 22, 1855, to the point where it intersects the line between Townships 32 and 33 west of the Fifth principal meridian, thence south along said line to the northeast corner of Township 146 north, Range 3 west of the Fifth principal meridian, thence east along said line to the northeast corner of Township 146 north, Range 25 west of the Fifth principal meridian, thence north along the Third guide meridian to the northwest corner of fractional Township 58 north, Range 27 west of the Fourth principal meridian, thence east to the northeast corner of said township, thence south along the line between Ranges 26 and 27 west of the Fourth principal meridian, to the southeast corner of Township 53 north, Range 27 west of the Fourth principal meridian, thence west to the southwest corner of said township, thence south along the Third guide meridian to the point where it crosses the Mississippi river thence down the said river to the mouth of Crow Wing river, thence in a westerly direction following the southern boundary of said treaty to the point where it intersects the line between Townships 35 and 36 west of the Fifth principal meridian, thence north along said line to the northeast corner of Township 136 north, Range 6 west, thence west along the line between Townships 136 and 137 north to the point where it intersects the boundary line established by said treaty, thence along said boundary to the point of beginning.

"I therefore recommend, that congress modify the article of said treaty so as to exclude from the operations of its provisions all of the territory ceded by said treaty to the United States except that immediately above described."

The executive orders exempting the operations of the old Indian treaties are three in number. They cover the treaties of 1831, 1851 and 1863. These treaties, so far as they relate to the selling of liquor, are abrogated by the order of the executive. The order as to the 1831 treaty makes that instrument apply only in the following described territory:

"Beginning at a point where the line between Township 45 and 46 north intersects the line between Ranges 15 and 16 west of the Fourth principal meridian, thence north along said line to the northeast corner of Township 53 north, Range 16 west, thence west along the line between Townships 53 and 54 north to the point where it intersects the western boundary established by said treaty of Sept. 30, 1854, thence folowing the said treaty line in a southwesterly direction to the point where it intersects the line between Townships 45 and 46 north, thence due east along said line to the point of beginning, and all that portion of the state of Minnesota which lies east of the Fourth principal meridian.

"And the provisions of said Article 7 of said treaty shall continue to be in full force and effect within the territory excepted from operation of this order until otherwise ordered by the president. The treaty of 1851 is made not to apply in the future except to the following territory:

"Beginning at a point where the line between Townships 129 and 130 north crosses the Boise de Sioux river, thence east along said line to the northeast corner of Township 129 north, Range 45 west, thence south along the said range line to the northeast corner of Township 122 north, Range 45 west, thence east to the northeast corner of Township 122 north, range 44 west, thence south along said range line to the point where it intersects the line established by said treaty of July 23, 1851, thence in a northwesterly direction along the said treaty line to the point where it touches Lake Traverse, thence north along said lake to the mouth of the Boise de Sioux river, thence up said river to the point of beginning."

Speaking of the treaties of 1863 and 1847, the president said the territory covered by the latter treaty shall no longer be held as Indian land.

His order as to the 1863 treaty is as follows:

"By virtue of the power vested in me by the provisions of Article 7 of the treaty of Oct. 2, 1863 (13 Stat. L. 667), it is hereby ordered that the provisions of said Article 7 of said treaty shall not hereafter apply to or be of any force or effect throughout the territory ceded to the United States by said treaty, except in that portion lying east of the Sixth guide meridian, and said Article 7 of said treaty shall continue to be in full force and effect throughout the territory excepted from the operations of this order until otherwise directed by congress or the president of the United States."

MANKATO TO HAVE RESTROOM.

Women's Clubs Considerate of Comfort of Farmers' Wives and Children.

Mankato.—A committee representing the various women's clubs of the city appeared before the council and requested that it pay the rent of a room that could be used as a restroom for farmers' wives and children, the clubs to furnish, maintain and look after it. The council appointed a committee to act with the ladies in selecting a suitable room.

SHOPLIFTERS AT WORK.

Silks Stolen From Stillwater Store—Suspects Traced to St. Paul.

Stillwater.—Shoplifters robbed the dry goods store of Murphy & Co. of thirty yards of valuable silks. Two men and a woman, all strangers, are suspected and were traced to St. Paul, where the clue was lost. The woman and one of the men engaged a clerk in conversation and the second man is then supposed to have placed the goods under his overcoat.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—The joint committee of the legislature completed its state fair bill which will be introduced in the house early next week. It makes the state fair a quasi-state organization and places its finances under the supervision of state officers. The proposed bill reduces in membership the number of agricultural societies entitled to delegates.

County fair associations which shall maintain an active existence, hold annual fairs and shall have paid out at the preceding fair the sum of $400 in premiums and have a membership of 55 are entitled to three delegates each. Two of these are to be elceted and the third is to be the president of the fair society. In cases where more than one county agricultural society exists the senior society shall be entitled to choose such delegates. Such seniority shall be determined by the state auditor; no delegates are to be seated until they have certificates from the state auditor.

One delegate is allowed from every county in which no county fair society exists and he is to be appointed by the county board of commissioners. No one is allowed a vote unless he is a resident of the state. This section was put in the bill to eliminate several honorary members who reside outside the state. The bill provides that honorary members may be chosen by a vote.

Societies Allowed Delegates.

Two delegates are allowed each of the following societies: State Horticultural society, State Dairymen's association, State Beekeepers' association, Minnesota Livestock Breeders' association; Minnesota Field Breeders' association; Minnesota Swine Breeders' association, Minnesota Horse Breeders' association, Minnesota Veterinary association, Minnesota Cattle Breeders' association, Minnesota Sheep Breeders' association, State Poultry association, Minnesota State Implement association, Minnesota State Florists' association, Minnesota County Exhibitors' association, Minnesota Federation of County Fairs and the State Foresters' association. All subsidiary organizations are eliminated from representation.

The members of the governing board of the State Agricultural society by virtue of their offices are entitled to one vote each.

The annual compensation of the members of the governing board of the state fair is fixed at $600 and the president, under this bill, would receive $1,000 a year. The board fixes the salaries of the secretary and treasurer.

County Option Is Defeated.

County option was given its quietus in the senate by a vote of 37 to 24. It was the Rines county option bill defeated in the house, and introduced in the senate by Senator V. L. Johnson.

Senator Johnson opened the debate. He said the county option bill was the most important measure before the legislature. More people were interested in it, he said, than in reapportionment, railroad legislation or workingmen's compensation bills. He described the harm done by "that monstrosity of modern civilization, the American saloon." Also, "the farce comedy recently enacted in the so-called 'Indian lid' territory" came in for its share of excoriation.

Roll Call Results.

The roll call was as follows:

For county option, Republican—Bedford, Dale, Dwinnell, Elwell, Fosseen, Gunderson, Hackney, Hanson, Haycraft, V. L. Johnson, Lende, Nelson, Putnam, Rustad, Saugstad, Sundberg, Thoe, Wallace, Wilson; Democrat—Cashman, Odell, Peterson; Prohibitionist—Froshaug; Populist—Sageng.

Against county option, Republican—Anderson, Benson, Boyle, Carpenter, Clague, L. O. Cook, Denegre, Duea, Duxbury, Gunn, Johnston, Klein, Marden, Murray, Olson, Pugh, Rockne, Stebbins, G. H. Sullivan, Swanson; Democrat—Ahman, Cheadle, Coller, C. F. Cook, Glotzbach, Handlan, C. D. Johnson, L'Herault, McGrath, Pauly, Poehler, Schaller, J. D. Sullivan, Van Hoven, Weis, Works.

Representative Robertson has introduced a bill in the house making it a misdemeanor for a company to make false and misleading statements concerning its products through newspaper advertisements.

Representative Henry Rines presented a bill relieving upper Minnesota farmers from paying taxes on mineral rights reserved by the person from whom they purchased the property.

John G. Lennon introduced a bill fixing a tax of one mill on every bushel of wheat or flax handled by elevators or warehouses and one-half mill on all other grains. The present law provides for a tax of one-fourth of a mill on wheat and flax and one-eighth of a mill on all other grains.

St. Paul, Feb. 23.—Reapportionment on a population basis has neared its goal. By a vote of 85 to 31, the Minnesota house passed the Congdon bill, putting the measure up to the senate where is said the friends of reapportionment have enough votes to pass the bill. The passage of what is probable the most important measure of the session, came after a notable debate.

The final vote was as follows:

Yeas—Aker, Anderson, Andrew; Anderson, A. V.; Anderson, J. J.; Boothroyd, Borgen, Bouck, Brown, L. D.; Burnquist, Campbell, Congdon, Converse, Davis, Dunn, R. C.; Edwards, Ferguson, Fowler, Fuchs, Greene, Hafften, Hauge, Healy, Henlon, Herzberg, Hillman, Holmberg, Holten, Jelinek, Johnson, C. E.; Johnson, J. N.; Johnson, J. T.; Just, Keefe, Kelly, Knapp, Kneeland, Knutson, Kunze, Lee, I. J.; Lee, J. F.; Lee, S. N.; Lennon, Lindberg, Lundeen, Lydiard, McKenzie, McNeil, Mattson, Mattling, Minette, Morton, Nash, Nelson, A. Nolan, Nye, O'Neil, Orr, Palmer, Perry, Peterson, A. J.; Peterson, O.; Pfaender, Putnam, Ribenack, Rice, Rines, Robertson, Saggau, Sampson, Skartum, Spooner, C. R. Stone, W. T. Stone, Sulerud, Sullivan, Untiedt, Utecht, Virtue, Voxland, C. H. Warner, Washburn, Webb, White, Wisniewski, Mr. Speaker.

Nayes—G. W. Brown, Christie, Clarke, Conley, Crane, Davies, Denzer, Farley, Frankson, Harding, Hoffman, Hopkins, Hurley, Klemer, Liberh, McDonald, McMartin, Moriarty, Nelson, H. Nygren, Papke, Peters, Peterson, J. E.; Reed, Robinson, Rustad, Schuler, Schwartz, Thielen, E. Warner, Wescott.

Bank Guaranty Law Urged.

State guaranty of bank deposits is planned in a bill introduced in the house by Representatives Kelly and Robinson. It provides for a state banking board to be composed of the governor, auditor of public accounts and attorney general which is to be given control over the banking business in the state and be at the head of a corps of bank examiners. The bill proposes that an assessment of one-fourth of a mill on the average daily deposits of any bank be levied to create a fund to re-imburse depositors in case of failures.

A new feature of the bill is the limiting of banks in the state. It provides that no bank can be organized with a capital of less than $10,000 in towns of not more than 500 people, a minimum capital of $15,000 in towns of not more than 1,000 people; $20,000 in towns of not more than 2,000 people; $25,000 in cities of not more than 5,000 people; $35,000 in cities of not more than 25,000 population; $50,000 in cities of not more than 100,000 people, and $100,000 in cities between 100,000 and 200,000 inhabitants.

Telegraph Rate Regulation.

Regulation of telegraph rates within the state of Minnesota is provided or in a bill introduced in the house by J. T. Johnson. It fixes a maximum charge of 25 cents for 10 words and 2 cents each for additional words. The present schedule of charges ranges from 25 to 40 cents for 10 words and from 2 to 3 cents for additional words.

Representative W. T. Stone introduced a bill providing a severe penalty for the carrying on of white slave traffic in Minnesota.

It was proposed to make more trust companies possible by reducing the capital stock required from $200,000 to $50,000 in case of small towns, and to increase the amount of capital stock required according to the size of the town. It was pointed out that there were only six trust companies in Minnesota at the present time.

Four-Year Terms for County Jobs.

R. C. Dunn has introduced a bill in the house extending the terms of county auditors, treasurers, registers of deeds, sheriffs, coroners, county attorneys, county surveyors and superintendents of schools from two to four years. The bill proposes that the present terms shall be lengthened two years and that thereafter they shall be four years.

The reciprocity pact received a body blow by a vote of 36 to 26. The Rockne resolution recommending postponement, was adopted.

The Nash-Moriarity bill, making Columbus day, Oct. 12, a legal holiday in Minnesota, passed the house by a vote of 71 to 25.

Trouble at Outset.

Trouble arose at the outset of the debate over the proposed amendment changing districts in the southern part of the state. This change involved districts No. 9 and No. 10, Watonwan and Martin counties composed of district No. 9 in the original bill and Jackson, Cottonwood and Murray counties made up district No. 10. By the amendment, Martin and Jackson are joined and Watonwan goes to the tenth.

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT OF PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

A speedy and economical treatment for disfiguring pimples is the following: Gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment, but do not rub. Wash off the ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat morning and evening. At other times use hot water and Cuticura Soap for bathing the face as often as agreeable. Cuticura soap and ointment are equally successful for itching, burning, scaly and crusted humors of the skin and scalp, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, usually affording instant relief, when all else fails. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for the latest Cuticura book on the care and treatment of the skin and scalp.

Probably Got Off.

Apropos of certain unfounded charges of drunkenness among the naval cadets at Annapolis, Admiral Dewey, at a dinner in Washington, told a story about a young sailor.

"The sailor, after a long voyage," he said, "went ashore in the tropics, and, it being a hot day, he drank, in certain tropical bars, too much beer.

"As the sailor lurched under his heavy load along a palm-bordered avenue, his captain hailed him indignantly.

"'Look here,' the captain said, 'suppose you were my commander, and you met me in such a condition as you're in now, what would you do to me?'

"'Why, sir,' said the sailor, 'I wouldn't condescend to take no notice of you at all, sir.'"

All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

The Boy Scouts

"The whole object of our scheme is to seize the boy's character in its red hot stage of enthusiasm and to weld it into the right shape and encourage and develop its individuality so that the boy may become a good man and a valuable citizen."

This is the object of the boy scout movement as expressed by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, "father" of the boy scout idea and chief scout in England.

But it is the way this object is accomplished that appeals to boys, There is a certain amount of energy in a boy that he's got to get rid of. If he does n't do something good he'll do something bad. Scouting gives him something good to do—something that appeals to his imagination, fires his spirit of chivalry and strengthens his sense of honor. It takes him out into the open and teaches him the lore of the woods, the handicraft of the pioneer, and absolute self reliance, at the same time that it builds him up physically. It is a practical, common sense education presented in such a form that no healthy, red blooded boy can resist its allurements,

Six or eight boys form a patrol, named after some animal, and headed by a patrol leader who is himself a boy. Two or more patrols form a troop, which is in charge of a scoutmaster, who must be a man, and should be one who remembers how life appeared to him when he was a boy—a clean, energetic man, with imagination enough to enter into the scout work with the same enthusiasm as the boys themselves. It is not hard to persuade such men to take up the work, for it is just such men that the work appeals to—the opportunity for doing good attracts them

Weekly meetings are held, at which the boys practice such features of the work as knot tying, first aid and bandaging, signaling, memory work, compass reading, and a score of other things, while they make plans for their scouting excursions into the country. On these excursions they track, judge distances and direction, observe animals and trees, cook meals, build shelter camps, and do other things that may be suggested by a resourceful scoutmaster

There are three degrees of scouts and the scout advances from one degree to another only on passing a set examination on the most practical subjects

To attempt to go into the details of the work is futile, for they would fill volumes. But there are two things that stand out very clearly. One is the boy scout motto, "Be Prepared." The other is a part of the boy scout law—oh, yes, they have laws, not so stringent as to scare a boy out, just enough to hold him in check without infringing on his liberty. In this law, which a scout pledges on his honor he will obey, the scout promises to do "a good turn" every day. It's the golden rule again, practically applied.

Subh is the movement which has spread over the United States in less than a year, which has enlisted boys by hundreds of thousands, and which has been taken up by clubs, societies, individuals, and churches.

The men behind the movement are proof enough of its character. President Taft is the honorary president, Theodore Roosevelt is the vice president of the national committee, Ernest Thompson Seton is chief scout, and Admiral George Dewey, Gifford Pinchot, David Starr Jordan, Dan Beard, and Jacob Riis are among the fifty prominent men who are members of the national council.

In dozens of towns in the northwest boy scout patrols and troops have been organized, and scores of other towns are preparing to introduce the movement, Most of these will be assisted by L. S. Dale, the northwest organizer, whose work is endorsed by Ramey Council No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, at St. Paul, and by the officials of the national council in New York. Mr. Dale will come here and explain the movement and assist in organizing patrols, without charge, if his services are desired. It would be well for citizens who are interested in the movement to communicate with Mr. Dale, whose address is Room 316, Dispatch Building, St. Paul.

Murder at Crookston

Crookston has a murder sensation. The body of Theodore Nelson, employed by the Singer Sewing Machine company, was found early last Tuesday morning at the home of Sivert Simpson.

Simpson, Nelson, anh two others had been drinking and went to the Simpson home late in the evening. Simpson went to sleep on the couch where the body of Nelson was later found. Nelson in his drunken stupor went up stairs and into the room occupied by Mrs. Simuson and the children, threw himself on the children's bed and went to sleep. Later Simdson, still under influence of liquor, went up stairs, found the man in the room, and shot him.

WAKING UP WILLIAM

His Wily Wife Finally Got What She Was After.

IT WAS A WELL PLAYED GAME

William Was a Little Slow, but When the Lady's Trump Card Was Played He Said Just What She Wanted Him to Say From the Very Start.

"William," said Mrs. Gilmartin, bending over the sewing in her lap, "what do you think we'd better have Thursday night when the Pritchards come?"

Mr. Gilmartin lowered his paper an instant and stared across the table at her.

"Have?" he said. "Why, I suppose we'll have a couple of games of cinch and a lot of foolish talk, as usual."

"I mean what will we have to eat—stupid!" explained his wife. "You know they always have a little lunch when we go over to their place."

"Oh, to eat!" echoed Gilmartin, resuming his newspaper. "Why, have whatever you like. I don't care."

Mrs. Gilmartin sighed and patted the sewing on her knee after taking a furtive glance at her engrossed husband.

"That's easy enough to say," she observed, "but I want to talk to you about it. This is important. Do help me out, Will," she added. "I've thought until I'm dizzy, and nothing seems quite the thing."

"H-m-m!" said Gilmartin, frowning at the wall paper and trying to think. "Why, I should think—er—almost anything would do that's—er—nice—whatever they usually have, you know," he added rather helplessly. "Go ahead and get up a nice little supper. You know how." And he calmly resumed his newspaper.

"But this is different, dear," persisted Mrs. Gilmartin, puckering her brows and her sewing in her agitation. "This is Mrs. Pritchard's birthday, and we invited them to celebrate it with us weeks and weeks ago. You know she's such a stickler for having everything just right. I'm worried sick."

"What is there to worry about?" demanded her husband, looking over the top of the paper in surprise. "I suppose the Pritchards eat about the same sort of things the rest of us do. I never saw much difference the few times we had a bite with them. They aren't any better than we are, as far as I can see. I guess what's good enough for us is good enough for Al Pritchard and his wife."

Mrs. Gilmartin heaved another rather pathetic sigh and said: "It isn't the actual food I'm worrying about and whether it will be, as you say, good enough for them. That's silly. But it's the selection of a little menu for a birthday party and the table decorations and the lights and—and everything," she added. "Mrs. Pritchard says it's the little things that show the clever housekeeper."

There was silence for a few moments, and then Mrs. Gilmartin ventured a suggestion:

"Creamed oysters are nice," she said.

"Um-hum," breathed the head of the house absently. "What was that?" he demanded, turning suddenly. "I didn't hear."

"I said creamed oysters are nice," repeated Mrs. Gilmartin.

"Sure! Of course they are!" he declared with enthusiasm. "All right. Let's have creamed oysters," and he dived into the stock market reports.

"Well, you don't imagine we can make a whole birthday supper off creamed oysters, do you?" demanded Mrs. Gilmartin indignantly. "There must be a lot of other things thought of. Mrs. Pritchard says it's just these little affairs that bring out real tact and good taste."

"Oh, bother Mrs. Pritchard!" snapped Gilmartin.

"Why, Will!" said his wife mildly. "I'm afraid you're out of sorts this evening, and I did want to have a nice long talk about this little supper, because so much depends on it."

"I beg your pardon," said her husband contritely, laying down his paper. "I didn't mean to be cross. Now, what will we have after the creamed oysters?"

"I suppose a chicken salad or something like that would be all right," said Mrs. Gilmartin rather doubtfully, "and we ought to have a stuffed tomato, although that seems awfully common and ordinary for a birthday party. You know the Pritchards always turn the whole thing over to Robbem, who has that caterer's place near them, whenever they have anything sort of formal—a birthday or a holiday party like this, you know."

"What do we want of a caterer to get up supper for four people?" demanded Mr. Gilmartin. "You can get away with it in great shape with Hilda to help you out."

"Oh, I didn't mean for us to get Robbem," she said, glancing at him from beneath her lashes. "I was just telling you how easy it is for them. Mrs. Pritchard says it's absurd for people to go to the expense of hiring a caterer for a small affair unless they have plenty of money."

Mr. Gilmartin stood up and took a turn across the floor.

"Oh, she does, does she?" he said defiantly. "Is that so? Well, you just go over to Robbem's tomorrow and put the whole thing in his hands and quit worrying. I guess we can stand for it about as easily as Al Pritchard can."

Mrs. Gilmartin dropped her sewing to the floor with a delightful little squeal, ran around the table and threw both arms around his neck.

"Oh, you old dear," she cooed, "that's just what I wanted you to say all along!"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WHAT A LAWSUIT BROUGHT ABOUT.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.]

Farmer Jepson, widower, lived four miles from Akron on the country road, and Jane Schofield, widow and farmer, lived three miles west of him on the Red Bridge road. They had lived thus for five years and only knew each other by name. The five years might have become twenty had not an old lop horned cow stepped in to give the parties an introduction.

The cow was owned by the widow. Besides being lop horned she was bobtailed, wild eyed and had various bad habits, one of which was jumping six rail fences and wandering about nights. These promenades sometimes led her miles away and into strange pastures. The first time Farmer Jepson saw her she was in the midst of his cornfield and had cleared about half an acre of the juicy stalks. He was a good man, but he swore at her and called her names. He also tried his best to kill her on the spot. A week later the cow called again to see how the corn was coming on, and after half killing her the farmer sent word that if she was not kept at home he would sue her owner for damages.

"And who is Farmer Jepson that talks so big, I'd like to know!" exclaimed the widow as she got the message by a hired man. "If he thinks he's the biggest toad in the puddle let him go right ahead and sue. Two can play at that game. I'm not allowing my live stock to bother my neighbors, but I'm not going to sit up every night in the week to see that that old cow don't get out. You go back and tell him that I'm not afraid of any ten men like him."

"Oh, she ain't, hey!" exclaimed the farmer when the hired man had returned with the word. "Waal, we'll see about that. I'm no hand to complain of my neighbors, but I'm not going to have their cows in my corn and then take sass to boot. If that old critter of a cow steps hoof on my land again there'll be a lawsuit to make things rumble."

The cow didn't hurry matters any. She waited until Mr. Jepson had transplanted his cabbage plants and they had got fairly growing, and then she called one night and helped herself to 250 of them, and two days later the widow learned that suit had been commenced by Farmer Jepson to recover $250 damages.

"So he's sued me, has he?" observed the widow, as she doubled up her fists and fire came to her eyes. "Well, we'll see who comes out ahead!"

Plaintiff and defendant each secured a lawyer, and of course each attorney assured his client that he had the best kind of a case and was sure to win. After two or three adjournments the case came to trial, and it was in the courtroom that plaintiff and defendant first saw each other. Both were surprised, and both said something to themselves. What the farmer said was:

"Waal, by thunder! I expected to see a fat and homely old two fisted widder, and I find her a good looking little bit of a female who ought to be sitting on a husband's knee. Wish I'd seen her before I begun this suit."

"Lands o' massy, but he hain't no mean looking man!" exclaimed the widow after a look at the farmer. "Why, they said he was a big boss and bluffer and wanted to bulldoze me 'cause I'm all alone in the world. Say, now, but they are all wrong. He hain't the kind to bluff and pitch in. Wish he'd have come to see me about the old cow. If he had I'd have chained her up. Wonder how hard he'll swear agin me!"

She was soon to know. The plaintiff's lawyer in opening the case said it was an aggravated case of trespass and damage and that the sum mentioned wasn't really half what they should have sued for. Then he went on to tell of what a defiant woman the defendant was and wound up by stating his hopes that the jury would render a verdict without leaving the box. Then the plaintiff was called to the witness chair, and, to the surprise of the widow and the disgust of his lawyer, he said he had forgotten the message the woman returned to him. He followed that up by declaring that his feelings had simply been shocked and that he had fully recovered from the shock in a minute and a half. As to the corn and cabbage, perhaps $10 would pay the bill.

"You jackass, but you have lost your case!" hissed his lawyer as the witness stepped down with a smile in the direction of the widow, whose lawyer was whispering to her:

"Now, you get up there and give us some hot talk and your case is won."

There was no hot talk from the widow. On the contrary, she cooed like a dove. She admitted to the ownership of the jumping, predatory cow, but was quite willing to pay reasonable damages. She didn't doubt the plaintiff's shocked feelings and was sorry for them and wished he had hit the old cow with the ax. One of the results of the suit was a verdict for 6 cents' damages, and another was that Farmer Jepson said he would call at her home for the money. He kept his word. A week later he drove up to the door and after an hour's interview was asked to call again. Three months later his disgusted lawyer was heard to exclaim:

"Prettiest case I ever had and dead sure of a verdict, and Jepson knocks it all in the head by falling in love with the defendant. Yes, they were married yesterday."

My Secret.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

I was awakened by quick words and hurried footsteps outside my window. I arose and looked out. Evidently something had happened, for I saw people moving about, nearly all of them with horror depicted in their expressions.

My colored man, Sam, was coming, carrying my heavy shoes. He had taken them from my door, opening on to the porch, for the purpose of blackening them.

"What's up, Sam?" I asked as he put down the shoes.

"Why, haben't yo' heered, Marse Tom? Yo' uncle done been murdered in de night."

"My uncle! Heavens!"

I lost no time in putting on my clothes. Nathan Clingham, my uncle, had made a will, I knew, leaving his plantation and what other property he possessed to me. As soon as I was dressed I went to his house and found the neighbors in charge. At my appearance all fell back, giving place to me. My uncle had been killed with an ax, and several hundred dollars which he had with him were missing. There was no clew to the mystery.

My first act was to summon a doctor to learn how long my uncle had been dead. He gave it as his opinion that the period was not less than two hours nor more than three. I saw at once the importance of quick pursuit. I organized a party at once and sent them in every direction. I, with several men and boys, took the road running past the plantation and, sending a part of my force southward, led the balance northward.

Coming to a place in the road coincident with the northwest corner of the plantation, I saw fresh tracks that had evidently been made by some one who had left the plantation at that point. I stooped to examine them. Long I looked at them, bending my face down over them rather to conceal the terror that was in me than to get a close view. Then I arose and, staggering to the side of the road, leaned against the fence.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Steve Burton, one of the party. "You're white as a ghost."

"I'm sick. I must go home. You fellows go on."

"All right," said Burton. "Better take one of the boys with you."

"I don't want any one. I'll be all right presently."

They insisted, but I wouldn't have any one with me. They helped me over the fence, and I made a bee line for home. When I saw them turn around the base of a hill, where they couldn't see me, I ran, never stopping till I reached the house and had gained my room. Then I sank into a chair with a "Thank God!"

And what was it that so suddenly threw me into such a condition?

I had on the shoes that Sam had blacked. From the heel of the right shoe the lowest layer of leather was gone, leaving six protruding nails. The forward part of the sole of the left shoe I had cut with an ax while chopping wood. The moment I had caught sight of the tracks in the road I knew they had been made by my shoes. There were the indentations of the six nails, and the cut in the toe had left its mark. If this discovery were made by those tracking the murderer, it would be proved that I had killed my uncle doubtless to gain possession of the property he had willed me. I took off the shoes, hid them and put on another pair. Then I began to think.

First, the murderer had seen my shoes on the porch, and it had occurred to him that, since he must leave his tracks, it would be safer to leave the tracks of my shoes than of his own; second, he had either come back after using them and was probably now on the plantation or he had a partner; third, he was not Sam. It was more sensible to believe that Sam had taken the boots to black after the murderer had used them than to believe that he had committed the murder himself, for he had been owned by our family in the days of slavery and was very much attached both to my uncle and to me.

The question with me was what should I do. To make known that my shoes had been used by the murderer would be equivalent to putting my neck in a halter. And the shoes—should I destroy them? If I did and it was discovered that I had done so, I would be in danger. If the shoes remained intact, were found and compared with the tracks, I would swing for murder.

I took the shoes from their hiding and placed them with my other pairs. A committee hunted all over the plantation for the shoes that had made the tracks and sent diagrams of them everywhere. I waited, in terror every moment, fearing that my shoes would be examined. In a week the excitement died down, and I breathed easier.

Nevertheless for years I lived, burdened by my secret. In time I sent the shoes off in a box of clothing for a poor minister's family in a far distant state. It was a comfort to get rid of them, but I could not get rid of the fear that the person who had worn them on that fatal night might some day accuse me.

At last, four years after the murder, the murderer, before being hanged for another crime, confessed, telling how he had thrown his followers off his track by wearing my shoes. He had brought them back after using them and remained on the plantation for several weeks.

He was jogging merrily along the road with his mail when one of the horses stumbled over a piece of board and a rein became unsnapped, leaving him at the team's mercy. They ran at their pleasure, and when the snow was too deep, they kicked. Biskey sheltered his face behind his overcoat from the flying feet and bits of broken glass, and in some wonderful way managed to escape, practically unharmed, from his perilous position in his box. The team cleared themselves from the rig, and he spent the day gathing them in. The sled kept its upright position, and not one piece o mail was lost.

A horse belonging to Ole Meland created no little diversion Tuesday by running down through the streets Monday with harness on and whiffletrees attached by one tug, and ran around the block four times before tiring out and coming to a stop. He with his mate had been left hitched by one tug and took a notion to have a sprint. He had run half way to Thief River before coming here.

A number of school girls and their lady teachers gave a dancing party at the Imperial hall Monday evening. Dancing and games were the order of the evening until about 11:30, when all wended their way homeward. Some of the young bloods of the town, to ingratiate themselves with their lady friends within, obtained access to a rear window of the hall and threw inside a couple of cats tied together, one alive and the other dead. Notwithstanding this untoward incident, a good time is reported.

DIED

Lavina, wife of Lorents Sandvig, died Thursday morning at her home in St. Hilaire, aged 57 years. She had been confined to her bed for the last four months.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandvig sold a farm near Viking in Marshall county, and came to live with S. Mork, an old friend of theirs. They came to live in St. Hilaire early last fall.

Funeral services will be held next Monday at 2 p. m. from the home, by Rev. S. T. Palm.

Equally Ignorant.

The author of "Reminiscences of a Country Politician" once asked a laborer in an English village how old he was.

"I be just the same age as the queen," he said. "It be either a fortnight older or a fortnight younger. I don't rightly know which, and I don't suppose her knows either."

A Witty Forlornity.

A forlorn looking man said, "I've tried everything that I could turn my hand to, but couldn't make anything answer, and now I have decided to go up among the hills, where they say there's a wonderful echo, to see if I can make that answer."

A Queer Question.

Small Harold (at the zoo)—What is that funny looking bird, papa? Papa—That is a bald eagle, Harold. Small Harold—How long does an eagle have to be married before he gets bald, papa?—Chicago News.

Usually Has To.

"Say, paw, what is a genius?"

MONEY OF THE RICH.

Of More Use Foolishly Spent Than Hoarded or Lying Idle.

A great reservoir of water undistributed leaves men and women to perish of thirst and growing crops to parch and die. So also vaults bulging with stagnant money leave men and women to perish in abject poverty and ripened crops to rot within the fields and orchards that grew them. Therefore what happens to the dollars of the millionaire is a question of the first importance.

Those of us who believe in praying for material blessings will do well to pray long and earnestly that rich women will never cease to buy $100 hats and $1,000 gowns, with diamonds and other jewels to match; that they will continue to give balls and teas and entertainments of the most expensive kind; that they will be recklessly extravagant in gewgaws and folderols of every description, because it will be good for us who depend upon an income drawn from the multitude of operations involved in producing, merchandising and transporting all those gewgaws and other gimcracks that go to keep extravagance at a high pitch.

Let us hope that rich men's sons will continue to spend their fathers' money as foolishly as they are reputed to do—not because it will be good for them, but because it will be good to have the money poured into the wage earner's money channels.

Let us doubly hope that the rich men may be prospered in their money getting, because they will not let it lie idle. Whatever their wives and children do not spend they put into stocks and bonds and thereby turn it into the wage earner's money channels. Let us be thankful, too, that neither the dollars of the rich nor the dollars of the poor are of any value save as they go into the wage channels of active circulation.—F. W. Hewes in Harper's Weekly.

His Shrewd Idea.

"Who is that sour looking girl with the heavy underjaw?"

"That is the only daughter of old De Milyuns."

"And who is the dainty bit of sweetness with the blue eyes and golden hair?"

"That's the chaperon."

"What's the explanation?"

"Why, it's old De Milyun's clever idea. He thinks his Jane will be perfectly safe as long as Miss Blossom is around."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Train and Track.

Belgium has been offering reduced rates under certain conditions for travel on its passenger trains, and the change has resulted in enormously increased business and revenues.

The new subway through the heart of Boston's shopping district is the most expensive mile of underground railroad in the world, having cost, with equipment, about $10,000,000 to build.

Upon their completion, in the near future, the New York Central railroad's freight yards near Buffalo will, it is claimed, be the largest in the country, with a capacity for handling 26,500 cars a day.

Oddity of Dreams.

"Nobody ever feels pain in a dream," said a psychologist. "Rage, terror, joy, grief—these emotions stab us as poignantly in dream as in reality. But physical pain, no. I have interrogated 2,000 persons, and none of them ever suffered dream pains. Yet they have dreamed of dreadful motor accidents, tortures, death. One young girl, indeed, dreamed time and again of being eaten alive by cannibals, yet even in that horrible nightmare she felt no pain."

Nothing but the Truth.

Attorney (much baffled by the answers of an Irish witness)—Well, you're a nice sort of fellow, you are!

Korea.

Korea is about 600 miles long and 135 wide. It is very mountainous, and the climate is one of the finest in the world. Nine months in the year the skies are bright, and the winter is superb, with its extreme dryness, clear skies and crisp, frosty nights. From September to June there are no extremes of heat or cold.

BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairny County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Chafter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

Admirer of Musician Must Have Felt Truth of the Answer He Received.

Signor Puccini, although celebrated all over the world for his operas, is still a young man. On the subject of his early success the Italian composer said recently in New York:

"I have been very lucky. Recognition for artistic work comes so often after one is too old to enjoy it.

"I remember one of my countrymen, a centenarian, who, had he died before seventy, would never have seen any of his operas produced. Luckily he lived to so great an age that he received for many years the admiration he deserved. Naturally enough, though, this splendid artist regretted his years of obscurity and neglect, and he frequently spoke bitterly of his bad fortune.

"Once, at the very end of his long life, an Englishman entered his box at the opera in Rome, and said respectfully:

"'I have traveled all the way from London to see the author of my favorite opera.'

"The veteran composer, with a malicious smile, replied:

"'Well, my friend, I have given you plenty of time to get here.'"

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Queen Mary's Trousseau.

Queen Mary is following the example set by her mother, the duchess of Teck, who at the time of her daughter's wedding with the present king declared that for the trousseau "not a yard of cambric or linen, of flannel or tweed, of lace or ribbon should be bought outside the kingdom," and who kept to her word. Queen Mary is having her coronation robes and gowns for court functions as well as the opening of parliament gown made by a British firm of all British material. She has ordered eight dresses so far, and work on them has commenced.—London correspondence New York Sun.

There was a dealer who tried to sell a horse to the late Senator Daniel of Virginia. He exhibits the merits of the horse, and said, "This horse is a reproduction of the horse that General Washington rode at the battle of Trenton. "Yes, so much so," said Senator Daniel, "that I am inclined to believe it is the same horse."

"Well, you see," answered Wendell, "I had to learn."—Success Magazine.

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the action of which the blood stream is kept sweeping round and round through the body at the rate of seven miles an hour. "Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil." After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Redwood.—The school board has reelected Professor Hermann superintendent and raised his salary $100 a year.

Winnebago.—There is a plan on foot to form a stock company to rebuild the flour mill. It is proposed to capitalize for $50,000 and put up a modern equipped mill.

Litchfield.—Miss Laura Weiss, who was struck by a Great Northern engine last fall in this city, has brought suit against the company for $15,000 for personal injuries. The case will come up for trial at the June term of court.

Gencoe. — Joseph Herzon, who was indicted for murder in the second degree for killing Mrs. Joseph Firman, on December 4th, pleaded guilty and was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Morrison.

St. Paul. — Joseph L. Mitchell, of Mower county, has been appointed by the governor to the board of managers at the state public school at Owatonna. He will continue in office until the first Monday in January, 1913.

Litchfield.—Miss Laura Weiss, who was struck by a Great Northern engine here last fall, has brought suit against the company for $15,000 for personal injuries sustained. The case will be put up for trial at the June term of the district court.

Cannon Falls. — The Goodhue county rural route mail carriers assembled in convention here. There were about sixty members in attendance. Matters pertaining to the betterment of the men were discussed. A banquet wound up the program.

Minneapolis.—Commencing Thursday, Feb. 26th, "The Wolf," which was received with great enthusiasm in New York, and during a long run in Chicago, will be presented by the Messrs. Stair & Havlin at the Bijou, Minneapolis, with an all star cast of players.

Fergus Falls.—The Norwegian Grove congregation, of Which Rev. Theodore Rosholt was pastor for nearly forty years, has decided to tender a call to his son, Rev. Jacob Rosholt, who is now completing his course in a theological seminary. Rec. Mr. Rosholt's death occurred a few weeks ago.

St. Paul.—Because J. W. Lucas proposed marriage to her, was accepted, and then failed to become her husband, Miss Jennie O'Day, wants $15,000. A breach of promise suit has been brought gainst him by the young woman. She alleges he asked her to become his wife last June. On or about November 21, according to the complaint, Mr. Lucas changed his mind and since has made no efforts to arrange for the ceremony.

Winona.—Peter Gludt and his son, Elmer Gludt, were electrocuted in Lake City. Young Gludt, who is a telephone lineman, attempted to remove a 2,200 voltage light wire that had fallen over the telephone wire in front of their home and started the bell ringing. He received a shock that felled him. His father who went to his aid, also was knocked senseless. Mrs. Gludt succeeded in pulling them both free from the wire and escaping injury herself. Both men died in two hours without recovering consciousness.

Minneapolis.—The first "good seed" train, to start the 1911 campaign for seed selection and better farming, will pull out of Minneapolis Monday, Feb. 27, on the Omaha road for a run to southern Minnesota and into the southwestern corner of the state. A. N. Trenholm, general manager, and A. M. Fenton, assistant general freight agent, are arranging the itinerary. Professors A. D. Wilson and Andrew Boss will go on the train, with probably two other members of the staff of the school of agriculture. Officials of the traffic and operating departments of the Omaha will also go. As a result of the recent "good seed" dinner in Minneapolis, Chamber of Commerce directors are at work on plans for other trains to operate on the Minneapolis & St. Louis, Milwaukee, Great Northern or Northern Pacific, Soo Line and possibly the Rock Island. On the Omaha train there will be grain representatives of the Chamber of Commerce who are familiar with the country to be traversed who will suggest to the professors who are to lecture to the farmers the desirability of talking of certain crops in which localities are known to be most interested.

Winona.—Nearly two hundred motor boat owners in Winona have launched a movement looking to the organization of a motor boat club here to be known as the Winona Launch club. At a meeting the preliminary plans were discussed, and there is little question all of the launches in this city will fly their own flag the coming summer. It is proposed to build on the levee front here a clubhouse, which will afford excellent landing for launches, the housing of the boats when not in use and room to carry on social functions. The men back of the movement give assurance of its success.

Tradegy is Fatal to Saloon Mah.

Winona.—Al Childs, aged forty-nine, died at the Winona General Hospital and the closing chapter has been written to the tragedy enacted in his Bluff Siding, Wis., barroom, January 22, when he shot and killed Henry Dinfielder during a quarrel. In the struggle following the shooting his shotgun was wrenched from his hands and he was struck several times over the head with the weapon. He was taken to the local hospital, paralysis having set in. A wife three small children survive.

Returns Stolen Valuables.

Duluth. — The unknown man who robbed Dr. George Kaufhold of this city while he lay fatally injured on London road beside his overturned automobile last July has suffered from a guilty conscience and has returned the valuables to the hospital where the doctor died a few hours after the accident. The articles stolen included a gold watch and the thief had pawned that, so he returned the pawn ticket. A friend of the late Dr. Kaufhold redeemed the watch and sent it to the latter's mother in Pennsylvania.

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA, THE GREATEST WHEAT MARKET ON THE CONTINENT

REMARKABLE YIELDS OF WHEAT, OATS, BARLEY AND FLAX IN WESTERN CANADA LAST YEAR.

Figures recently issued show that the wheat receipts at Winnipeg last year were 88,269,330 bushels, as compared with the Minneapolis receipts of 81,111,410 bushels, this placing Winnipeg at the head of the wheat receiving markets of the continent. Following up this information it is found that the yields throughout the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as given the writer by agents of the Canadian Government stationed in different parts of the States, have been splendid. A few of the instances are given:

Near Redvers, Sask., Jens Hortness threshed about 50 acres of wheat, averaging 29 bushels to the acre. Near Elphinstone, Sask., many of the crops of oats would run to nearly 100 bushels to the acre. A Mr. Muir had about 200 acres of this grain and he estimates the yield at about 60 bushels per acre. Wheat went 35 bushels to the acre on the farm of Mr. A. Loucks, near Wymyard, Sask., in the fall of 1910. K. Erickson had 27 and P. Solvason 17. In the Dempster (Man.) district last year, wheat went from 25 to 30 bushels per acre. Fifteen acres on the Mackenzie & Mann farm today went forty-three bushels to the acre. In the Wainwright and Battleriver districts yields of wheat averaged for the district 26 bushels to the acre. M. B. Ness, of the Tofield, Alberta, district, got 98 bushels and 28 lbs. of oats to the acre, while near Montrose, over 94 bushels of oats to the acre was threshed by J. Leonie, notwithstanding the dry weather of June. Further reports from the Edmonton district give Frank McLay of the Horse Falls 100 bushels of oats to the acre. They weighed 45 lbs. to the bushel. A 22-acre field of spring wheat on Johnson Bros.' farm near Agricola yielded 40½ bushels to the acre. Manitoba's record crop for 1910 was grown on McMillan Bros.' farm near Westbourne, who have a total crop of 70,000 bushels, netting $40,000 off 2,200 acres. G. W. Buchanan of Pincher Creek, Alberta, had 25½ bushels of No. 1 spring wheat to the acre. Mr. A. Hatton of Macleod district had wheat which averaged 21 bushels to the acre. B. F. Holden, near Indian Head, Sask., threshed 950 bushels of wheat from 20 acres.

On the Experimental Farm at Indian Head, wheat has gone below 40 bushels, while several, such as the Marquis and the Preston, have gone as high as 54 bushels to the acre. At Elstow, Sask., the quantity of wheat to the acre ran, on the average, from 26 right up to 40 bushels per acre, while oats in some cases yielded a return of 70 to 80 bushels per acre, with flax giving 13 to 14 bushels per acre.

W. C. Carnell had a yield of 42 bushels per acre from six acres of breaking. Neil Callahan, two miles northwest of Strome, had a yield of 42 bushels of wheat per acre. Wm. Lindsay, two miles east of Strome, had 1,104 bushels of Regenerated Abundance oats from ten acres. Joseph Scheelar, 11 miles south of Strome, had 12,000 bushels of wheat and oats from 180 acres. Part of the oats yielded 85 bushels to the acre, and the wheat averaged about 40 bushels. Spohn Bros., four miles southwest of Strome, had a splendid grain yield of excellent quality wheat, grading No. 2. A. S. McCulloch, one mile northwest of Strome, had some wheat that went 40 bushels to the acre. J. Blaser, a few miles southwest of Strome, threshed 353 bushels of wheat from 7 acres. Among the good grain yields at Macklin, Alberta, reported are: D. N. Tweedle, 22 bushels to the acre; John Currin, 24 bushels wheat to the acre; Sam Fletcher, 20 bushels to the acre.

At Craven, Sask, Albert Clark threshed from 60 acres of stubble 1,890 bushels; from 20 acres of fallow 900 bushels of red fife wheat that weighed 65 pounds to the bushel. Charles Keith threshed 40 bushels to the acre from 40 acres. Albert Young, of Stony Beach, southwest of Lumsden, threshed 52 bushels per acre from summer fallow, and George Young 5,000 bushels from 130 acres of stubble and fallow, or an average of 38 1-2 bushels to the acre. Arch Morton got 5,600 bushels of red fife from 150 acres. James Russell got 8,700 bushels from stubble and late breaking, an average of 23½ bushels.

At Rosthern Jacob Friesen had 27 bushels per acre from 80 acres on new land and an average over his whole farm of 21½ bushels of wheat. John Schultz threshed 4,400 bushels from 100 acres, or 44 bushels to the acre. John Lepp had 37 bushels per acre from 200 acres. A. B. Dirk had 42 bushels per acre from 25 acres. Robert Roe of Grand Coulee threshed 45 bushels to the acre from 420 acres.

Sedley, Sask., is still another district that has cause to be proud of the yields of both wheat and flax. J. Cleveland got 30 bushels of wheat per acre on 100 acres and 18 bushels of flax on 140 acres. T. Dundas, southeast of Sedley, 40 bushels per acre on 30 acres; M. E. Miller, 34 bushels per acre on 170 acres of stubble, and 35 bushels per acre on 250 acres fallow; W. A. Day had 32 bushels per acre on 200 acres of stubble, and 35 bushels on 250 acres of fallow; J. O. Scott had 30 bushels of wheat per acre on 200 acres, and 18 bushels of flax per acre on 300 acres; James Bullick averaged 29 bushels of wheat; A. Allen 30 bushels; Jos. Runions, 40; Alex Ferguson, 38; W. R. Thompson, 35, all on large acreages. The flax crop of J. Cleveland is rather a wonder, as his land has yielded him $60 per acre in two years with one ploughing. Russell, Man., farmers threshed 30 bushels of wheat and 60 to 80 bushels of oats. A. D. Stenhouse, near Melfort, Sask., had an average yield of 18½ acres of new land, 63½ bushels of Preston wheat to the acre. Hector W. Swanston, a farmer near Welwyn, Sask., had 5,150 bushels of wheat from one quarter section of land. John McLean, who owns two sections, threshed 12,860 bushels of wheat.

Practical Joker Meant to Astonish His Wife, and Doubtless He Did.

When the first shipment of frozen eggs arrived from Australia their extreme hardness astonished the brokers.

One man calling at a broker's office, was amazed to see him taking aim at the wall with an egg.

"What the dickens are you at?" he said.

But the broker let drive, the only result being a slight dent in the wall.

The thing being explained, the man took a couple of the eggs, put them in his pocket, and left to startle his wife. Arriving home, he waited till the family was assembled for dinner, and then banged an egg at the new dado.

But the smile quickly faded from his face. The egg had thawed.—London Tit-Bits.

The popular idea of the .22 calibre rifle is that it is a sparrow gun—a plaything for the little boy.

Not so the REMINGTON .22 Repeater. Hammerless, Solid Breech, built to exactly the same high standard of quality as the big game REMINGTON Repeaters, this rifle is a man's rifle, and for the boy who has the making of a man. No rifle to compare with it for target shooting, for crows, hawks, squirrels and other small game of the keener sort.

Whether you are shooting in the field or at the target, never forget that UMC .22 cartridges are essential to the surest results. Straight shooting, hard hitting, sure fire. INTERESTING AND UNUSUAL CASE TO BE TRIED AT FERGUS FALLS.

DRUNKEN INDIAN LIABLE?

Chippewa Wants to Recover $7,000 which He Says Was Gotten From Him While In State of Intoxication.

Fergus Falls.—The question whether the giving of liquor to an Indian legally invalidates his acts while intoxicated, will be brought to direct issue in a suit that was filed in the United States court in this city yesterday. More than 600 cases to annul deeds given by Indians are now pending in this court, and it is claimed that in a great many of these, the parties procuring the land used liquor freely in inducing the Indians to sign; but the government is asking that the deeds be annulled on the ground that those giving them are full-blooded Indians and had no right to transfer their lands, and not because the deeds were obtained fraudulently.

In the case just filed, however, the person making the complaint is Arthur C. Beaulieu, a mixed-blood Chippewa, and the right of mixed bloods to make transfers is unquestioned. Mr. Beaulieu sues M. J. Kolb for the recovery of $7,000, which he claims was obtained from him while he was intoxicated.

Not Versed in Business Affairs.

In his complaint he alleges that he is a young man of mixed Indian blood and that he retained his tribal relations with his band on the White Earth reservation until about Jan. 11, 1911. Until about Sept. 4, 1907, he was the owner of a tract of eighty acres of land which had been allotted him by the government, and that this land contained valuable timber. He arranged to sell this to the Park Rapids Lumber Company and was to have $4,000 for it.

He alleges further that he was, and is, unversed in busines affairs, and that the facts above set forth were known to the defendant. He claims further that the defendant, knowing that the money was due him from the lumber company, "conspired with certain other persons," and that on Sept. 6 he "gave and caused to be given him intoxicating liquors, and that when the defendant and his associates had caused the plaintiff to become irresponsible by reason of the drinking of liquor so furnished him, and while he was still under the influence thereof did procure from the plaintiff an order upon the Park Rapids Lumber Company for the paymelt of the defendant of the said sum of $6,000, which said sum the defendant received shortly afterward from the said corporation."

The complaint then goes on to give further particulars regarding the transaction, claiming that the defendant claimed to be the owner of a valuable hotel in Bagley, and represented to him that it was worth more than $8,000, but that he wanted to be fair and liberal with him and, therefore, let him have it for this amount. The plaintiff alleges further that the hotel is in reality worth only $1,000 and that the title is defective and not marketable.

Stories of deals of this sort have been coming down from the reservation for a long time, but in most instances the Indians do not appear to have fared as well as Mr Beaulieu. Should the courts hold that they are not responsible for deeds given or deals made while they were under the influence of liquor, other suits are likely to follow in rapid succession.

LA FOLLETTE ON PROGRAM.

Senator Will Address Teachers at St. Cloud in April.

St Cloud.—Robert M. La Follette, senator from Wisconsin, is to address the teachers who are to be in the city April 5, 6, and 7, attracted by the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Education Association. The meeting will be attended by about six hundred teachers. Mrs. Holmes of Illinois will have charge of model class work. Senator La Follette will speak at the opera house on the evening of April 7.

OPERATIONS ON THE CAYUNA.

Several More Cement Shafts to be Stared at Early Date.

Deerwood.—The Interstate mine has attained a depth of ninety-eight feet and the contract for the cement shaft has been about completed. R. Jackson, the superintendent, will soon commence work on two additional cement shafts in the immediate neighborhood.

On the forty acres of the Inland Steel Company, of Chicago, the Foundation Company will sink a seventy-ft. cement shaft. On the forty acres of the Weyerhaeuser or Pine Tree Lumber Co. tract the Foundation Company will sink for the Rogers-Brown Ore Company a 69-foot cement shaft. The Inland Steel Company's shaft is on ground known as the Crosby lease. All these shafts are in Section 11, 46, 29.

THOMPSON WILL RUN AGAIN.

Rochester Mayor Seeks Re-election on Republican Ticket.

Rochester.—Mayor James C. Thompson, mayor of Rochester for two years, has declared himself for re-election on the republican ticket. But for his efforts to pave Broadway, the $60,000 contract given to the Kettle River Company, of Minneapolis, would not have been let. Some $25,000 worth of improvements have been made on the electric light plant in his administration.

Moorhead Election.

Moorhead. — Honorable W. H. Davy was re-elected mayor of Moorhead by a majority of 78 votes. President Lew A. Huntoon of the First National Bank was his opponent.

SHOPLIFTERS AT WORK.

Silks Stolen From Stillwater Store—Suspects Traced to St. Paul.

Stillwater. — Shoplifters robbed the dry goods store of Murphy & Co. of thirty yards of valuable silks. Two men and a woman, all strangers, are suspected and were traced to St. Paul, where the clue was lost. The woman and one of the men engaged a clerk in conversation and the second man is then supposed to have placed the goods under his overcoat.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, Feb. 25.—A semi-monthly payday bill for public service corporations, a bill to limit the working hours of women to 10 hours a day in all lines of employment, and an anti-loan shark bill occupied the attention of labor committee of the senate. All were recommended for passage.

Representatives of labor unions appeared before the committee to advocate the semi-monthly payday. Individual employes from the shops, and railroad lawyers, spoke against it. When the committee went into executive session Senators Pauly and L'Herault of Minneapolis took up the cudgels for the bill. Senator Duxbury of Houston opposed it.

The bill was recommended to pass with one dissenting vote.

Mrs. Peary Starkweather of the state labor department, asked that a bill making it unlawful for women to work more than 10 hours a day in any mercantile, manufacturing or industrial establishment be made a committee measure and recommended for passage. This was done.

Senator Pauly's anti-loan shark bill provided that no man could assign his wages without the consent of the employer and the recording of the assignment with the city clerk. It also provided that if a man were married, he could not assign his wages without the written consent of his wife.

Drainage Probers are Named.

Speaker Dunn appointed the house committee to investigate the conduct of George Ralph, state engineer, relative to the letting of contracts and the construction of dainage ditches in upper Minnesota. The committee is headed by Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm. The other members are Donald Robertson of Argyle, J. J. Moriarity of Belle Plaine, C. R. Fowler of Minneapolis and Ralph E. Crane of Grand Meadow.

State Drainage Commission Hit.

"The state drainage commission should be abolished," said Senator Swanson before the senate committee on public accounts, referring to the charges made by State Examiner Schaefer against the commission. The committee appointed three of its members,—Senators Works, Murry and Swenson, a special committee to investigate the state drainage commission. It was decided to work in conjuntion with the house committee for the same purpose if the house committee would accept their co-operation. If not they will work independently.

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—For the third time in its history, a proposal for a distance tariff, the "Iowa Idea," with which the name of Senator Cashman has become associated, was defeated in the Minnesota senate.

The final vote on the measure was 29 for and 32 against. Two years ago, the measure received 29 votes for and four years ago it received 22 votes.

The vote came after a spirited debate in which such men as Senators Cashman, Clague, Putnam and Dwinnell took a leading part.

Campbell Bill Advanced.

Initiative and referendum won a point in the lower house of the legislature. By a close vote of 57 to 50, its advocates succeeded in taking the bill from general orders and made a special order for Thursday morning, March 9. Many of the members who opposed placing the bill on a special order a week ago, changed their stand. Moyle Edwards of Breckenridge, who is opposed to the Campbell bill, but will favor a conservative initiative and referendum measure, brought the issue before the house by a motion to have the action of a week ago reconsidered.

There were two absentees in the senate roll call, Duxbury and Nelson. Both had been excused. Before leaving, Senator Duxbury had announced he would vote against the bill.

Representative C. R. Fowler led the opposition. Representative Campbell took the position that the bill was one of the most important measures before the legislature. R. C. Dunn objected to further discussion.

The long-expected 12 o'clock saloon closing bill was introduced in the house by J. D. O'Brien of St. Paul. It affects only the three cities of the first class. The proposed measure is expected to excite even more discussion than the county option bill.

The Elwell deficiency appropriation bill for the university was passed. It provides about $600,000 for construction and equipment of buildings.

Senator Elwell's new bill, giving the park board right to acquire property outside the city limits, also was passed.

The report of the house committee on university and university lands, recommending indefinite postponement of the bill providing for a homeopathic building at the state university, was defeated. The bill will be placed in general orders.

St. Paul, March 1. — The Minnesota senate went on record in favor or Sunday baseball. It killed Senator Sageng's bill repealing the law permitting the exercise of the great American sport on the Sabbath. On the final vote there were 20 senators opposed to Sunday baseball and 27 for it.

The bill came up in the committee of the whole where Senator Stebbins of Rochested moved its indefinite postponement. Senator Stebbins said his constituents were in favor of Sunday baseball.

Senator Sageng, the lone Populist from Otter Tail, objected. He said that no bill passed in the 1905 session had caused so much criticism as the Sunday baseball measure. On a rising vote Senator Stebbins' motion prevailed 27 to 17.

When the committee made its report Senator Sageng moved the report be rejected and the bill placed on the calendar. He demanded a roll call and on this motion there were 20 yeas and 27 nays, reflecting the attitude on Sunday baseball.

Senator Dwinnell's bill to give citizens of Minneapolis the power to build a union depot and force the railroads to use it, Senator Wilson's bill to make possible a home rule charter for Minneapolis, and Senator Pauly's bill for uniform weights and measures were among the most important.

The union depot bill, when passed by the house, will enable Minneapolis to realize one of its most cherished ambitions—an adequate union depot. It provides that 15 citizens of any city of more than 50,000 may organize a "union depot company" with power to condemn land and erect a depot.

Senator Haycraft of the elections committee is drafting a direct primary bill to be presented to the legislature as a committee measure and to supersede all other direct primary bills so far introduced.

The bill will provide for the nomination of all state officers by primaries instead of conventions, including governor and lieutenant-governor. It will not include direct election for United States senators. Any such bill will have to take its chances as an individual bill.

Senator Moonan's direct primary bill, providing for the party platforms being made by the party candidates after the primaries, will be reported out for indefinite postponement, as will also Senator Gunderson's bill drafted and backed by the progressive Republican organizations of Minneapolis and St. Paul. This move Senator Moonan may be expected to fight.

Temperance Measures Recommended.

The senate temperance committee, Senator V. L. Johnson chairman, recommended for passage two temperance bills and for indefinite postponement a third.

Senator Sageng's bill to give cities of the fourth class, under 10,000, a right to vote "wet or dry" was recommended for passage, but only after a threat by Senator Coller to fight the bill on the floor of the senate unless an amendment was added exempting such cities as had a home rule charter of their own from its provisions. This is the same bill that is fathered by J. N. Johnson in the house, with the exception that he has consented to amend it so as to exempt cities with home rule charters.

Senator Hanson's bill to prohibit the sale of malt in any place except licensed saloons and in drug stores for medicinal purposes was unanimously recommended for passage.

School Bonds May be Cut.

That the legislature will be cut down the bond issue of $1,000,000 asked by the school board for the graded schools to $900,000 is almost a certainty, in view of the selection made by the Hennepin senatorial delegation of the subcommittee to confer with the house subcommittee on this subject.

Senators Dwinnell, Fosseen and Wallace were appointed as the senatorial subcommittee. They will attempt to show the house subcommittee that, in view of the fact that the school board has already $250,000 of undisposed bonds, that $900,000 more will be enough for them.

The Spooner resolution calling for afternoon sessions of the house was passed. The afternoon session will be tried as an experiment with the idea of expediting the work. The idea will be to meet daily at 1 o'clock. The committee meetings will be held in the morning.

The house standing committee on drainage, appointed a subcommittee, consisting of C. H. Warner, Albert Pfaender and G. W. Brown to formulate and present the charges against George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, to the special investigating committee. The charges will be formally presented at a meeting to be held Wednesday morning.

CROWD SHOUTS AT HAREM SKIRT

Then the Wearer at Mount Vernon Place Hails a Taxicab.

Baltimore, Feb. 28.—A comedy woman wearing a "harem skirt" created a stir on fashionable Mount Vernon place, near the Washington monument. A crowd followed the wearer of the skirt and her escort for several blocks, when the couple hailed a taxicab and were hurried away from the shouting spectators.

Duluth Hockey Team Loses.

Duluth, March 1.—The Fort William hockey team defeated the Duluth seven here 14 to 0. A crowd that packed the big rink saw the contest. The game was fast, but the Canadians outclassed their opponents throughout.

WESTERN CANADA COUNTING ITS GOLD

THE GRAIN CROP OF 1910 WAS A GOOD PAYING ONE.

Crop conditions throughout the west of Canada were not ideal, but notwithstanding there were excellent crops. Reports come from different parts to the agents of the Canadian government, whose literature tells a good part of the story, that the crops in most places were splendid.

At Castor, Alta., F. Galloway's oat crop threshed 35 bushels to the acre, machine measure, and 44 bushels by weight. Alex Robertson of Delisle, Alta., had 20 bushels to the acre on 875 acres. W. & H. Clark, 17 bushels to the acre on 77 acres. Sheldon Ramsey, 20 bushels on 160 acres. J. Lane threshed 3,500 bushels off 200 acres; J. Hamilton, 5,200 bushels off 264 acres. Mrs. Headley had an average of 25 bushels per acre on 160 acres. Chambers Bros. got 13,270 bushels off 650 acres.

Fertile Valley district, G. Rollo, had an average of 25 bushels to the acre on a total crop of 10,000 bushels. E. Brown of Pincher Creek had a yield of 33 bushels on his winter wheat; W. Walker, Miss Walker and John Goberts all had an average yield of 25 bushels; Mr. Fitzpatrick, 23, and Mr. Freebairn, 20. Charles Nelson of Bon Accord, Alberta, had threshed his crop of 5,000 bushels of grain, wheat, oats and barley, from 210 acres of old ground.

Wm. Logan of Bon Accord is reported to have threshed 400 bushels of wheat from 9 acres of new breaking. His oats it is said yielding over 100 bushels to the acre. Robert Martin of Belbeck, Sask., from 100 acres got 3,740 bushels of wheat. Geo. A. Campbell of Caron, Sask., from 130 acres summer fallow got 40 bushels per acre, and from 50 acres stubble got 24 bushels per acre. One of the farmers of Colonsay threshed out 36 bushels of wheat per acre from 150 acres summer fallow, and another 33 bushels per acre. James Glen of Drinkwater, Sask., had 36½ bushels per acre; 40 acres summer fallow, 31 bushels per acre; 40 acres stubble, 27 bushels per acre; total, 6,680 bushels off 200 acres. Abe Winters of Fleming has 39 bushels of wheat per acre. At Govan, Benjamin Armstrong had 33 bushels to the acre. John Glumlin, 34 bushels. Charles Latta, 35 bushels. J. K. Taylor, 35 bushels. W. Small, 2,060 bushels on 90 acres. J. F. Moore, 6,500 bushels on 215 acres. J. MacLean, 1,500 bushels on 63 acres. W. Hopwood, 1,750 bushels on 60 acres. W. Gray, 950 bushels on 30 acres. W. Curtin, 850 bushels on 30 acres. John Meyers, Jr., of Grand Coulee, reports 34¾ bushels to the acre. P. P. Epp of Langham, Sask., has 35 1-3 bushels per acre. J. J. Thiessen, 31 bushels per acre. Chris Dear, 25 bushels per acre from 90 acres. Wm. Thiessen, 18½ bushels from 100 acres. P. P. Schultz, 18 bushels per acre from 100 acres. Robt. H. Wiggins of Manor, Sask., had 39 bushels wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Fred Cobb, 30 bushels of wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Jack Robinson, 39 bushels of wheat per acre. Wm. Kindel of Milestone, Sask., had 38 bushels of wheat per acre. R. J. Moore, 40 bushels of wheat per acre. Martin Roddy, 38 bushels of wheat per acre. J. D. Sifton of Moose Jaw had 37 bushels wheat per acre; oats, 50 bushels per acre; flax, 11 bushels to the acre. John L. Smith of New Warren had 35 bushels of wheat per acre. At Regina H. W. Laird had 35 bushels to the acre; W. H. Duncan, wheat, 22 bushels to the acre, flax, 16 bushels; G. M. Bell, wheat, 35 bushels to the acre, oats, 70 bushels; O. E. Rothwell, 25 bushels to the acre; J. McKinnis, wheat, 35 bushels summer fallow; 20 bushels stubble; oats, 80 bushels; J. S. Mooney, 31 bushels of wheat; 80 bushels oats on stubble. At Tessies, Wm. Nesbitt had 44 bushels wheat to the acre. Sep. Latrace, 34 bushels. Thos. Miller, 31 bushels. These were all on summer fallow. Major Bros.' stubble went 14. At Tuxford, Sask., C. B. Dunning had 37 bushels. James Bain, 41 bushels summer fallow. At Yellow Grass, Wm. Robson, off one half section, had 45 bushels wheat to the acre, and 40 bushels off another averaged 37 bushels to the acre. Geo. Steer, off a twenty-acre field, threshed half. M. A. Wilkinson, off 160 acres, 53 bushels wheat to the acre. His whole crop averaged over 40. Jas. A. R. Cameron's half section averaged over 36 bushels to the acre. D. McNevan, who has two farms, averaged about 40 bushels. W. A. Cooper got 47 bushels to the acre off 71 acres; his whole crop went about 40. John Murray, 35 per acre off 160 acres. Hockley Bros., 35 per acre off a half section. W. Ransom, 35 per acre of the Cathcert farm. N. Dunne, 39 to the acre. S. C. Hart, 38 per acre. T. Murray, Jr., 36 to the acre. A. E. McEwan, 38 to the acre. Mayor Taylor, 32 to the acre.

NO MORE HANGING

BILL TO ABOLISH THE DEATH PENALTY PASSES BY VOTE OF 95 TO 19.

BY MINN. LEGISLATURE

Life Imprisonment May Be Severest Sentence—Fate of Martin O'Malley Has Bearing on Action of Lower Body.

St. Paul, Minn. — Though his name was not mentioned, the fate of Martin O'Malley of Le Sueur county hung in the balance in the Minnesota house of representatives. By a vote of 95 to 19 the house passed the MacKenzie bill abolishing capital punishment in Minnesota.

It was because of this pending bill that Governor Eberhart refused to fix the date of the execution of O'Malley who had been given the death sentence for the murder of his two step-children. Because of the governor's refusal to act the grand jury of Le Sueur county had asked the legislature to investigate the governor because of his failure to act.

The fact that a human life was at stake made the debate relative to the discontinuation of legal execution in the state more pointed than it would have been otherwise.

Some Opposition Raised.

As few voices were raised in defense of the old time system but the argument was in favor of its abolishment. When the vote was finally taken only 19 representatives went on record in favor of legal execution and the bill received 95 votes against it.

If the bill passes the senate it will leave life imprisonment as the only punishment for murder in the first degree. Some objection has been raised to abolishing capital punishment, as the convicted murder can be paroled by the state board of pardons. This objection will be eliminated by the Keene bill taking away from the state board the power to pardon men sent to prison for life.

2,000 DYING DAILY.

Plague Rages in Cities of Manchuria—Martial Law Declared.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Pei-Chaunlintze, about fifty miles north of Harbin, is being ravaged by the plague. The deaths there are reported to number 2,000 daily.

The disease is raging at Kirin, Hulanchen, opposite Harbin, and at Bodune, 100 miles southeast of the Manchurian capital.

Bread riots have occurred throughout the stricken district. The foreign consuls are preparing to leave. Troops have refused to march into the plague places and martial law has been established.

The Chinese emperor has reprimanded the Manchurian authorities for not having dealt more energetically with the situation. The far eastern press is filled with apprehensions of a recrudescence of Boxerism.

$10,000 FOR PROMISE BREACH.

S. Dakota Girl Wins Suit Against Wealthy New Yorker.

New York, N. Y. — Henrietta French, a South Dakota girl, was awarded a verdict of $10,000 by a jury in the supreme court for the alleged breach of David H. Decker, Jr., promise to marry her. Decker is a wealthy young civil engineer of this city. On motion of his counsel that the verdict be set aside, Justice Erlanger agreed that it appeared to be a "sympathetic verdict" without justification.

"Not a dollar of damage has been shown," said the court, "except that naturally arising from the alleged breach. I will take briefs on the question of a reduction of the verdict, which I regard as entirely disproportionate."

RUEF IS DOOMED TO PRISON.

Frisco Political Boss Denied Rehearing by Supreme Court.

San Francisco, Calif. — What appears to be the last hope of Abraham Ruef, political boss of San Francisco during the regime of Mayor E. Schmitz, of escaping his sentence of 14 years in San Quentin, was dissipated when the state supreme court vacated its recent order granting Ruef a rehearing.

It was this order which resulted in the introduction in the state legislature at Sacramento of a resolution providing for an investigation of the methods of the supreme court in granting rehearings.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

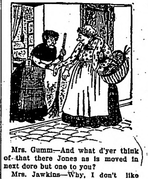
Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-269 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

WHAT SHE THOUGHT.



Mrs. Gumm—And what d'yer think of that there Jones as is moved in next dore but one to you?

Mrs. Jawkins—Why, I don't like talking about my neighbors; but as to Mr. Jones, sometimes I think, and then again I don't know, but, after all, I rather guess he'll turn out to be a good deal such a sort of man as I take him to be.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS.

Are Often Responsible for Untold Suffering.

Mrs. W. H. Kaiser, Whitney, Nebr., says: "Many times during the night I was obliged to arise because of too frequent passages of kidney secretions. Again they became scanty, were very thick and attended by burning and scalding. Soon a dropsical condition became manifest and I began to worry. My feet and ankles were bloated and I was in a bad way when I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. I used four boxes and was entirely cured."

The dedication of the new high school building at Thief River Falls Monday was a big event.

Thief River Falls is to have another newspaper, to be known as the Times, to be published by H. E. Mussey, an old time newspaper man of that city, and his son Homer. The first issue will appear next Friday.

In a decision reached last Monday Attorney General Simpson gives a flat refusal to J. A. Duffy and others to make application to the supreme court for a writ of quo warranto to test the legality of the organization of Pennington county. This no doubt settles the "squabble," which will be a great relief to all concerned.

Everybody Invited

In view of the general interest that is taken in the license question the Spectator invites a full discussion, to be published in our next issue, under the following restrictions:

The contributions must be written in civil language and contain no personalities or abuse. Errors in spelling or grammar we will correct. Abusive language we cannot.

Each article will be limited to one-half column of our space, and be published over the signature of the writer.

Commissioners' Proceedings

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Feb. 23, 1911.

Pursuant to call the county board met in extra session in the auditor's office in the auditorium building in the city of Thief River Falls, Minn., at 1 o'clock p. m:

Members present, Aubol, Shaw, Hedeen, Wold, Larson.

Members absent, none.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Hedeen, who moved its adoption, duly seconded by Commissioner Larson:

Whereas, after due consideration this board has estimated the neccessary expenses of the county for the current year to be as follows:

County purposes	$11,000
Road and bridge purposes	4,400
Interest and principal on bonds	2,200

Therefore be it resolved that to meet such expenses the following sums be levied on the taxable property of Pennington county as a basis of taxation for the current year:

County Revenue fund	$11,000
County Road and Bridge	4,400
County Bond and Interest	2,200

Resolution prevailed unanimously.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Shaw, duly seconded by Commissioner Wold:

Resolved, That the sum of $500.00 be and is hereby appropriated from the county revenue fund and placed in the county attorney's contingent fund of this county. Resolution prevailed unanimously.

On motion duly carried the surety bond of the St. Hilaire Spectator in the sum of $500.00 be accepted in lieu of the $1,000.00 personal bond.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the sum of $150.00 be and the same is hereby appropriated from the county road and bridge fund to the city of Thief River Falls for repairing bridge at the junction of the Thief and Red Lake rivers.

On motion made by Commissioner Hedeen, duly seconded by Commissioner Wold, that a committee consisting of the chairman of the board, the vice chairman, and Commissioner Shaw be named to meet with the county board of Red Lake county in regard to dividing the county property. Motion carried.

On motion duly carried the county board adjourned sine die.

ED A. AUBOL,
Chairman. Board of County Commissioners.

Attest.
A. H. FASEL, County Auditor and Ex-Officio Clerk of Board.

How to Enter the Office

Advance to the inner door and give three raps. The devil will attend to the alarm. You will give your name, postoffice address, and number of years you owe for the paper. You will be admitted into the sanctum and will advance to the center of the room, where you will address the editor with the following countersign: Hold the right hand about two feet from the body with the thumb and fingers clasping a $10 bill, which you will drop into the editor's hand, saying: "Were you waiting for me?" The editor will grasp your hand and the bill, pressing it, and will say, "You bet!"

Not in Harmony

This is the part of the church year that the Christian church has named the Lent season, in which we as Christians should remember and meditate upon the sufferings and death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

How can you harmonize it, to work and vote for the saloon and at the same time celebrate Lent. I know full well that the drink evil and the saloon is not the only evil we have or may have, but this fact no one with knowledge and common sense will deny. It is an enemy of liberty and society, a destroyer of peace and happiness, a cause of crime and untold sufferings.

Yours for the good of St. Hilaire,
M. S. GJERDE.

Paris' Secondhand Market.

There is a curious old market near Paris in which everything is sold at second hand. Working girls can fit themselves out there from head to foot. As a writer says, "Mimi can sell her old felt hat and buy a straw one, exchange her old dress for a new one and, if she likes, buy a steak and a salad for her dinner, a paper bag of fried potatoes, sweets and some flowers for her window. Democracy is king here, and no more attention is paid to the millionaire who is looking for something marvelous which he may pick up cheap than to the man with the wooden leg who wants a new left boot in exchange for a dozen sardine tins, five gloves and a stocking."

MAGIC MIRRORS.

Peculiar Effects In Some of the Polished Bronze Reflectors.

Now and then mirrors of a curious kind are seen in Europe. They are called "magic mirrors" and are of Japanese origin, made not of glass silvered, but of cast bronze, polished on the face and bearing on the back raised patterns, inscriptions, symbolical designs, crests or pictures. When exposed to a bright beam of light from the sun or from an electric lamp they reflect in the light from their polished face the image of the pattern on their backs.

This is a purely optical property and has of course nothing in common with the fortune telling magic crystals of the astrologer or the alleged magic mirrors of necromancy, yet it long puzzled the scientific optician and even now is little known or believed. The researches of various scientific men have established the fact that the phenomenon is due to very minute differences of curvature in the polished face, differences so minute that they do not affect the ordinary use of the mirror as a looking glass and that can be detected only by delicate optical tests

The only remaining mystery has been as to how these delicate differences of curvature were produced in exact correspondence to the pattern on the back. The makers themselves are often in ignorance of the magic property and do not know which of their mirrors possess it and which do not. The mirrors are cast in molds and afterward polished by hand, and it is held by scientific men that the difference of curvature is caused by the metal's yielding unequally under that pressure of the tools used in scraping and polishing, the thin parts naturally bending more than the thick. This accounts for the mirrors' becoming magic.—Chicago News.

SHOE SIZES.

How the Standard of Measurement Was Established.

It is most difficult for many persons to remember the sizes of their different articles of wearing apparel. Collars, shirts and gloves are easy enough, because in the case of these it is a matter of actual inches. But the hat and shoe numbers are what puzzle most people, to say nothing of the mystery why a No. 11 stocking goes with a No. 8 shoe.

This last puzzle is, however, easily explained. Stockings have always been measured by the inch from heel to toe, but the numbering of shoes was fixed a long time ago by a Frenchman.

The Frenchman permanently fixed the numbers of shoes for all Europe and America. He arbitrarily decided that no human foot could possibly be smaller than three and seven-eighth inches. So, calling this point zero, he allowed one-third of an inch to a size and accordingly built up his scale. It follows therefrom that a man cannot find out the number of his own shoe unless he be an expert arithmetician. Even then he is likely to go wrong, because all the shoe experts allow for the weight of the individual and the build of his foot before they try to determine what size shoe he ought to wear.

As far as women's shoes are concerned the problem is still more difficult, because many of the manufacturers instead of keeping to the regular scale have marked down their numbers one or two sizes in order to capture easily flattered customers. For this reason most dealers ask out of town customers to send an old shoe with their orders.

The system of measuring hats is much simpler. Any man can tell what size he wears simply by adding the width and length of the inner brim and then dividing by two. Orders can also be sent to the shopkeeper by stating the circumference of the be- —Boston Glo

Her Opinion.

"Mr. Footprint, you are the most graceful dancer in the room," said the sweet young girl to the awkward guy who was falling all over her.

"A fine compliment, I am sure."

"No; just a knock on the other dancers."

Imperialism involves a departure from principles which were universally accepted in this country until within two years. To know that all men are created equal one needs not the wisdom of a sage or the learning of the schools. It was declared to be a self evident truth; it was evident to those who pledged their lives to the maintenance of the Declaration of Independence, and it is evident still to those who are not blinded by the glamour of wealth and the glittering promises of a colonial system. If all men are created equal and endowed with inalienable rights, it follows as a logical and necessary sequence that governments were instituted for the welfare of all and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. On the preservation of this doctrine our hopes depend. If it is abandoned, there is no foundation upon which a government like ours can be constructed.—W. J. Bryan.

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

HIGH WATER TOWER

Encased in the World's Largest Corinthian Column.

Ancient Triumph of Architecture Which for Forty Years Has Evoked the Admiration of Visitors to St. Louis.

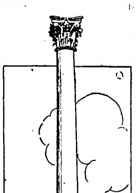
St. Louis.—The old water tower, the first and original, has gone out of service. Its usefulness as well as need in the magnificent water system of St. Louis is a thing of the very recent past. In the ancient water tower the city of St. Louis possesses the finest and tallest Corinthian column in the world.

There are not 100 persons in St. Louis, even those who have knowledge of the finer and artistic elements—those that mark for grandeur and perfection in symmetry—who ever realized the value of the tower as a work of utility and beauty. Few, indeed, are aware that the western metropolis, for a period of nearly forty years, possessed a triumph in architecture which has again and again evoked the admiration of visitors from Europe and other parts of our own country.

Some forty years ago, when the waterworks system was limited and in its incipiency, it was deemed imperative that a means of relief for the service pumps and the class of engines in use be established.

About that time Joseph P. Kirkwood, a noted eastern engineer, became the chief engineer of the St. Louis waterworks. Mr. Kirkwood was an expert in waterworks mechanism and engineering. He went to Europe in that period to make a study of the best waterworks systems in the big capitals, and came back with much information as to high standpipes. It was along in 1868 that the water board decided to erect a high standpipe at Grand avenue. At first it was planned to hold the pipe in place by means of guy ropes, but Mr. Barnett, the architect of the department, suggested inclosing the pipe in a column of brick. The idea was adopted by the engineers and the commissioners.

The work of building the pipe and the Corinthian column was by contract. It was started in the fall of 1869 and completed in July, 1871, when the first gallon of water was pumped into the big standpipe. The height of the pipe from the ground to the top of the tower—the bottom of the capitol, where the observation platform is—is 164 feet. The column proper, encasing the pipe, is 155 feet 4 inches. The base of the column is masonry, Joliet stone, 8 feet thick. From the top of the masonry the column was constructed of brick, beginning with a thickness of 2 feet 3 inches at the base and gradually reducing, by successive steps, to 1 foot 1 inch at the bottom of the capitol, the ornate cap of the tower, where stands the observation platform. The diameter of the base of the column—the masonry work—is 41 feet.



The St. Louis Water Tower.

Between the standpipe and the column on the inside is a space of 2 feet 8 inches, and in this space was built a spiral stairway, winding around the pipe and leading to the observation platform on the capitol. The height of the capitol is 19 feet 8 inches. From this point thousands of persons who were willing to brave the fatigue of climbing the narrow spiral stairway have had a fine view of the city and the surrounding country. The total cost of the old water tower was $45,644. And the city considered it a good investment.

When the tower was completed the citizens of St. Louis regarded it as a monument of civic enterprise to be proud of, but few realized the real merit of the structure as a splendid example of good engineering and architectural beauty.

The Electric Clock.

Cincinnati, O.—The electric clock is self winding and will remain in accurate operation for a period of at least one year. The winding operation is performed by a dry battery, and if this is of good quality there is no reason why the clock should not run much longer than one year. The movement of this clock is greatly simplified as compared with the spring-driven clock. The winding arm consists of a lever with a weight on the end and as this winding arm drops to a certain point it closes an electric circuit and energizes an electro-magnet. This magnet, by attracting its armature, pulls the "winding arm" up ready gradually to fall again, applying its weight to running the clock. This "winding" occurs at regular intervals of seven or eight minutes and on this account an electric clock keeps better time than a spring clock

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Uncle Joe's Check.

Col. Henry Casson, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, has the original check given by Speaker Joseph G. Cannon a few years ago to a book agent, and about which an interesting story has been told.

An agent visited the speaker and interested him in an elaborate edition of something which Uncle Joe didn't want, but bought. When the books arrived Uncle Joe examined them and decided at once that something had been put over on him. When the agent came for his money the speaker determined to make him indorse a terse sentiment on books, so he wrote out a check for $73, the amount due, and on the back of it he inscribed:

"Pay to the order of Mr. Blank, in full payment for an edition which was not worth a d—, and dear at that price, but for the ease and grace with which he put it over your Uncle Joe it was well worth the money."—Human Life.

Nine or Ten Deposits.

"It is expensive to learn to fly," said Clifford Harmon at Mineola. "Your aeroplane costs more than $5,000. You must pay a fee of $500 for tuition, and you must deposit, too, about $500 more for damages. All the damage you do to the machine you learn on must be paid for, and your deposit may easily be eaten up.

"I was talking one day at Nice to an English flyer.

"'I learned to fly in a week,' I said. 'How long did it take you to learn?'

"'Oh, nine or ten—'

"'What!' I interrupted. 'Not nine or ten weeks?'

"'No, aeroplanes,' said he."

Critics.

"Only competent critics can give competent criticisms," said Admiral Mahan, at the Immortals' recent reception in New York. "The ignobler the critic the ignobler the criticism—even of the very finest things—that he will pronounce.

"A man in a bar was praising a famous American journalist, a justly famous journalist, a journalist who gets out a really fine paper.

"'Yes,' the bartender, agreed, 'his paper is a good one. It picked two winners last week.'"

CHILDREN AFFECTED

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk, I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So, I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Winona.—F. M. Bowman, of Olmsted county, will try the experiment of growing peanuts. He will sow several acres to peanuts this year and give them the most approved cultivation.

Aitkin.—The game wardens of Aitkin and Crow Wing counties had H. B. Martin, George Compton and Mat Day before the courts for illegal shooting of venison. Each was fined $25 and costs.

Faribault. — Fire completely destroyed the B. F. Orr elevator here, causing a loss estimated at $15,000, fully covered by insurance. Lack of water pressure made the efforts of the department futile.

Mankato.—President C. H. Cooper, of the state normal school, left for Mobile, Ala., to attend a meeting of the department of superintendents of the National Educational Association. He will return March 2.

Mankato.—The postoffice department has sent an order, abolishing the star route from this city to St. Claire, which has been in operation many years. The order is effective at once and the service has ceased.

Litchfield.—Miss Laura Weiss, who was struck by a Great Northern engine last fall in this city, has brought suit against the company for $15,000 for personal injuries. The case will come up for trial at the June term of court.

Warren.—L. M. Mithun, former superintendent or schools of Marshall county, has purchased the Elmore Eye, a newspaper published at Elmore, Faribault county, and will leave with his family for that place the latter part of this week.

Mankato.—The men who have a license to seine rough fish from Madison lake, pulled out nearly 50,000 pounds of carp and buffalo a day or so ago. There were a few crappies and pickerel in the seine, but not a single bass. The game fish were put back into the lake unharmed.

Little Falls.—The new census figures show a healthy growth for all seven villages in Morrison county. Many settlers have come into the county in the past few years to take up diversified farming and dairying. The healthy growth in farmer population has caused a corresponding growth in the villages.

Fairmont.—The farmers' institute here was a success in a way, but the attendance was much smaller than such a corps of instructors deserved. Nearly all branches of farm industry were ably discussed, including the propagation of fruit trees and the construction of farm buildings, and no farmer who was there failed to receive benefit.

Winona.—The Southeastern Minnesota and Western Wisconsin Beekeepers' Association closed its two days' convention here by the election of the following officers: President, W. K. Bates, Stockton; vice-presidents, L. A. Stickney, Minnesota City, and P. Howe, Kellogg; secretary, Otro Holland, Winona; treasurer, Mrs. E. Monette, Jr., Chatfield.

Minneapolis.—Minneapolis' city council passed an ordinance prohibiting the serving of malt or any liquor in pool rooms. Saloonkeepers, licensed and lawful, who keep pool or billiard tables in their establishments, were included in the law. There has been a scurry by the aldermen who upheld the ordinance to have the matter held up.

Albert Lea.—The certificate of incorporation of the First State Bank of Oakland, this county, has been filed with the secretary of state. The incorporators are: W. L. Palmer, R. B. Skinner, Ben H. Clement, H. E. Skinner and Alfred Christopherson, all of this city. Mr. Clement, formerly with the First National Bank of this city, will be in charge of the new institution.

St. Paul.—Because J. W. Lucas proposed marriage to her, was accepted, and then failed to become her husband, Miss Jennie O'Day, wants $15,000. A breach of promise suit has been brought gainst him by the young woman. She alleges he asked her to become his wife last June. On or about November 21, according to the complaint, Mr. Lucas changed his mind and since has made no efforts to arrange for the ceremony.

Moorhead. — Moorhead's business district escaped destruction by fire, when, with the wind blowing thirty miles an hour, fire broke out in the picture framing and notion shop of J. N. Leved. The building is of wood and is in the heart of the business section. It is owned by Mrs. B. Smith Russell of Fargo, and the lower portion is a total loss. It is estimated that the loss on the stock and building amounts to $10,000. When he saw the fire Leved fainted, recovered and fainted successively three times. He is in a serious condition.

Brainerd.—Brainerd's charter commission met to discuss amendments to be proposed to the city charter. At least fifteen will be offered to the voters at the next election. Alderman Henning, under instructions from the Trades and Labor assembly, offered the recall, initiative and referendum amendments.

St. Paul. — Joseph L. Mitchell, of Mower county, has been appointed by the governor to the board of managers at the state public school at Owatonna. He will continue in office until the first Monday in January, 1913.

Returns Stolen Valuables.

Duluth. — The unknown man who robbed Dr. George Kaufhold of this city while he lay fatally injured on London road beside his overturned automobile last July has suffered from a guilty conscience and has returned the valuables to the hospital where the doctor died a few hours after the accident. The articles stolen included a gold watch and the thief had pawned that, so he returned the pawn ticket. A friend of the late Dr. Kaufhold redeemed the watch and sent it to the latter's mother in Pennsylvania.

WAS JUST COPYING MAMMA

Child's Actions That at First Mystified Father Were Easily Explained.

The little six-year-old daughter of a well-known club woman was found in her playroom the other day doing all kinds of acrobatic stunts and gesticulating wildly and weirdly.

"What are you doing?" asked the child's father.

"I'm playing I'm mamma," she answered. Then she made more unique movements with her little arms and said, "There, father, you accept them. That's what they do when mamma makes them."

"Why," she said, "I'm playing that I am mamma at her club. Whenever mamma goes to her club she makes motions and the others accept them. I heard her say so over the telephone to Mrs. Smith this morning."—Illustrated Magazine.

COULD NOT STAND SUFFERING FROM SKIN ERUPTION

"I have been using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for the past three months and I am glad to say that they cured me of a most annoying skin eruption. It began by my noticing red blotches appearing on my face and scalp. Although they were rather disfiguring, I did not think anything of them until they began to get scaly and dry and to itch and burn until I could not stand the suffering. Then I began to use a different soap, thinking that my old kind might be hurting me, but that didn't seem to do any good. I went to two different doctors but neither seemed to relieve me any. I lost many nights' sleep in continual scratching, sometimes scratching till I drew the blood on my face and head. Then I started in to use the Cuticura Remedies and in two months I was entirely relieved of that awful pest. I am so delighted over my cure by Cuticura Remedies that I shall be glad to tell anybody about it." (Signed) G. M. Macfarland, 221 West 115th St., New York City, Oct. 5, 1910.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on skin and scalp diseases and their treatment.

A Frequent Speaker.

A member from a northern constituency, who was one day reproached by a disappointed supporter for never opening his mouth in the house, repudiated the accusation with indignation. Not a day passed, he declared, but that he said something; and it was reported in the papers, too. In confirmation of his statement he produced the report of the last debate, and pointed triumphantly to the "Hear, hears," with which certain speeches were punctuated. "That's me," he said.—Tit-Bits.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time. Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS FREE

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immediately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. N. H. Mead of Freeport, Kans., whose granddaughter has been taking it successfully and of Mrs. J. R. Whiting of Lena, Wis., who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold in fifty cent and one dollar bottles at every drug store, but if you want to test it in your family before you buy it send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward a supply free of charge.

SNELLING TROOPS ORDERED TO FRONT

SOLDIERS OVERJOYED AT ORDER SENDING THEM TO THE MEXICAN BORDER.

TAKING THEIR FULL EQUIPPMENT

For the First Time Since the Last Clash With the Indians, the Bugle Sounded the Call "to Arms" at Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, March 8.—Ordered to move at once to the Mexican frontier, where, the orders say, they will be required to do patrol duty and to protect the interests of the border citizens of the United States from encroachments on the part of Mexican revolutionary or federal troops, the entire garrison of Fort Snelling, consisting of twelve companies of infantry and four troops of cavalry, together with a machine gun corps, will leave Fort Snelling for the front. The post will be left in charge of a detail of two men from each of the cavalry troops and a battery of field artillery.

Overjoyed at the prospect of active service and a chance to view the revolution, the members of the various companies are busily preparing for the trip.

Equipped for a 60-day campaign, with full rations, tentage, wagons and all of the mounts, the soldiers will leave behind them all of their personal belongings and baggage, which was boxed up and stored away at the post, where it will be left in charge of the guard detail. Many of the buildings at Fort Snelling will be closed and allowed to go cold until the quarters are again required for the troops.

More than 1,000 men and 25 officers of the Twentieth infantry and Fourth cavalry regiments constitute the detail. Together with the wagon and stock cars this force will require four trains of two sections each. Lieutenant Colonel Plummer, commandant at the past, will be in command. His orders are to leave at once.

"I understood this order comes direct from President Taft," declared the commandant, " and he is summoning us to the front to see how quickly the standing army can be mobilized. We expect to be inspected and reviewed frequently, but they have not caught us unprepared. We are ready to fight if necessary and will leave as fast as we can load cars.

"Some time ago we began preparing for a possible call, as we are second on the roster for foreign service. Therefore the troops were given light clothing and all of the necessary supplies. They looked for an order either to the Philippines or Panama. As a matter of fact, we may yet go to Panama, or maybe we will be sent from Kansas City to some other place."

There was the greatest enthusiasm among the troopers when, shortly after 10 a. m., the bugle sounded the muster call and the men were ordered to prepare to move at a moment's notice. Among the infantrymen the announcement was received with a shout and the tossing of hats. Within a very short time the barracks were transformed from the orderly quarters of morning inspection to the turmoil of a general house clearing day. There was nailing and locking of boxes and trunks and polishing of weapons and accoutrements.

Washington, March 9.—Telegrams are pouring into the headquarters of the army showing that the movement of troops to the Southern frontier of the country is proceeding with the smoothness and regularity of clockwork. More than 100 telegrams already have been received and the celerity with which the orders have been carried out, it is said, in military quarters, would give the impression that the movement was an every-day occurence. Not a hitch has been encountered and practically the entire force of 20,000 men is now en route to the lower part of Texas and California.

Ammunition Looks Warlike.

The troops are equipped with ball cartridges, although it is the practice to supply troops with blank ammunition for practice exercises or peaceful maneuvers. Notwithstanding this however, official Washington still maintains that the movement is merely a plan of practice to determine the efficiency of the fighting arms of the country in mobilizing and concentrating on short notice.

While this is held to be true, technically, the general impression prevails that the sudden and extensive military activity has a vital and direct relation to the revolutionary movement in Mexico. The reticence of officials of the state, war and navy departments is accentuating this impression. The idea which is generally accepted is that the government of the United States is preparing for an eventuality that may develop with the progress of the revolt against President Diaz.

Navy Department Is Busy.

The navy department continued its preparations for the dispatch of the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet and the large detachment of marines to Guantanamo, Cuba. The marines are being assembled in Philadelphia for transportation on the Dixie and Prairie. The men, with their accoutrements and supplies, are reaching the Pennsylvania post in perfect order and smoothness.

The four armoured cruisers of the fifth division, under Rear Admiral Staunton, are being supplied with their full complement of blue jackets. There were some vacancies in the personnel of the division when the orders were issued to the vessels 48 hours ago. These are being filled promptly from the enlisted force of the navy and the complements of the ships will be complete before the ship sail, which probably will be in a few days.

ROOSEVELT STARTS ON TOUR.

Former President Will Travel Across Country to Pacific Coast.

New York, March 9.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt started on his six weeks' swing across the country to the Pacific coast and back again. It is the first tour the colonel has made since the recent political campaign.

"I have nothing to say about anything," said Col. Roosevelt as he boarded his train on the Pennsylvania railroad, which left at 10:16 o'clock for the South. The colonel said he had not heard of the mobilization of the United States troops and the navy near Mexico until this morning's paper was shown him.

ELLIOTT WIRES REFUSAL.

Turns Down Presidency of Missouri Pacific to Stay With N. P.

St. Louis, March 9.—Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific railroad, wired his refusal to accept the presidency of the Missouri Pacific railroad to a committee of New York men representing the controlling interests in the road.

He delayed the announcement until a few minutes before stepping aboard a train at the union station for the twin cities. Since Sunday night he had been in consultation with leading St. Louis financiers, all of whom importuned him to avail himself of the new position.

"Oleo Moonshiner" Sent to Prison.

Chicago, March 9.—Judge Landis today fined Frank Goll, who was convicted of "olemargerine 'moonshining'" $5,000 and sentenced him to serve five years in Fort Leavenworth prison.

SEATTLE WOMEN VOTERS SCORE

They Carry Street Car Municipal Ownership Proposition.

Seattle, Wash., March 9.—Returns from the municipal election counted up indicate that the proposition to issue $800,000 bonds to construct and operate a municipally-owned street railway carried by an overwhelming majority.

It is certain that a reform council has been elected. Women voters took an active interest in the election.

TAFT TO DECIDE FATE OF TWO

WILL STUDY CASES OF MORSE AND WALSH DURING TRIP.

Chances of Parole for Both Men Are Now Said to be Excellent.

Washington, March 9. — President Taft left for the South. He took with him for final consideration the appeals for pardon which have been made by John R. Walsh and Charles W. Morse. The president will study the cases in the quiet of his short vacation and before he returns to Washington both men probably will know whether they are to be free or to stay in federal penitentiaries.

Attorney General Wickersham, after several weeks of investigation on both cases turned over all the papers to the president with his recommendation.

Walsh, now in the Leavenworth, Kan., prison, will be eligible for release on parole under the new law next September. He then will have served one-third of his five-year sentence. His attorneys, however, have represented in the plea for pardon that if the aged banker is not released before that time he may never live to enjoy his liberty. It is understood that official investigation seems to substantiate that claim.

Morse, in the Atlanta prison, has served a little more than one year of a 15-year sentence and could not be paroled until 1915. Great influence has been brought to bear at least to secure a commutation of his sentence to five years, which would permit his discharge after two years and eight months more of imprisonment, making allowances for good behavior. Former Senator Hale, of Maine, has taken an active interest in Morse's behalf and he presented to President Taft Mrs. Morse's petition for the release of her husband.

The contention in his case is that the sentence of 15 years was excessive. Although the first court found him guilty and sentenced him on three counts, the higher courts cleared him of two charges, but the sentence of all three was allowed to stand.

Attorney General Wickersham's recommendations are confidential to the president, but it is understood the attitude of the department of justice is in favor of granting clemency.

Train Holdup Suspects Arrested.

Detroit, Mich., March 9.—The Southern Pacific holdup near Ogden, Utah, on the night of Jan. 2, is said to be closely connected with the arrest of Victor Clore and Bryan O'Hara, of Palms, Mich. The arrests were made by representatives of a private detective agency. The holdup resulted in the death of a porter and the taking of $1,400 cash and $1,600 in jewelry from the passengers of the train.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, March 4.—

The establishment of a special corps of investigators to work direct from the office of the county attorney of Hennepin county, in the gathering of evidence and the investigation of all complaints presented by citizens for the purpose of being brought before the grand jury, is the object of a bill of Senator Wilson, which was introduced in the state legislature.

"I want men whom I can rely upon to investigate matters in the way I want them to and return reports direct to me." said County Attorney Robertson, who had a hand in the draughting of the bill. "The police department and the sheriff's office are capable of investigating some cases, but in a number of instances, the county attorney's office is in need of men capable of investigating a complaint in any class of society or business.

Tax For Bachelors Urged.

A bill providing for the taxation of bachelors over 30 years, unless they could prove they were not of "good moral character, or some other good reason against marriage existed, the proceeds to go toward the relief of needy spinsters, has been introduced in the senate.

Senate Contest Is Costly.

Legislative contests have cost the state of Minnesota something like $21,000. The three senatorial contests which were before the senate this winter are just beginning to show a financial aspect.

Acting upon precedent, the contestants, successful and unsuccessful, are putting in bills of expense. There is no known law for the allowance of these bills, but precedent has allowed them in the past. The salaries of the three senators, plus the expenses of the contest, make up the $21,000. The expense bills in detail are as follows:

John Saugstad, for defending contest instituted by A. D. Stephens	$2,818.26
A. D. Stephens, for prosecuting contest against John Saugstad	2,770.41
S. J. Froshang, for defending contest instituted by Ray Farrington	3,844.56
Ray Farrington, for prosecuting contest against S. J. Froshang	1,370.42
S. D. Works, for defending contest instituted by Benjamin Taylor	2,617.65
Benjamin Taylor, for prosecuting contest against S. D. Works	1,254.81
J. J. Ahulann, for defending suit instituted by H. J. Emmel	775.00
Total	$15,451.01

St. Paul, March 6.—Bills extending the Minneapolis patrol limits to allow the sale of liquor in the dining and guest rooms of the Hotel Radison and Hotel Dyckman and extending the saloon closing hour to midnight were reported without recommendation by the tri-county committee of the house.

An effort was made to send both bills back to the house with a favorable recommendation, but it lost in each case by a vote of 11 to 11. It was finally decided to allow the bills to be placed on general orders as the fight will be on the floor of the house, anyhow. Several members who voted for this announced that they would oppose both measures.

The Hennepin delegation met early in the day and decided that it would favor this procedure. W. I. Nolan, F. L. Palmer, and W. A. Campbell were the only members dissenting, but they agreed not to send in a minority report. When the hotel license bill was brought up, John G. Lennon moved that it be reported out without recommendation. The motion was put to a roll call without discussion. L. A. Lydiard, F. L. Palmer, J. A. A. Burnquist, W. A. Campbell, W. F. Kunze and W. I. Nolan vote no.

The midnight closing bill brought on the liveliest discussion. T. J. Greene moved that it be recommended to pass. Several members were absent and the motion won by a vote of 11 to 9, the only Minneapolis members favoring it being John P. Nash and P. J. Thielen. M. J. Sullivan, W. D. Washburn, Jr., Lennon, Campbell, Nye, Palmer, Lydiard and Nolan opposed the motion. Mr. Nolan then asked the privilege to make minority report.

New Referendum Measure.

A new initiative and referendum bill was introduced by Albert Pfaender as a substitute for the measure submitted several weeks ago. The house made the bill a special order for next Thursday morning to be considered with the bill fathered by Representative Spooner, W. T. Stone, Campbell, Kelly, Hillman and J. N. Johnson.

Investigation Is Asked.

Excessive and unlawful expenditures of state money to the amount of nearly $100,000 in the state insurance department during the administration of John A. Hartigan, former commissioner, covering a period of four years, is charged by Representative Campbell in a resolution which he introduced in the house, calling for a legislative investigation.

He professes to have conducted a personal examination of the books of the department and charges that the former commissioner spent money illegally in sending experts through the country examining books of insurance companies and in personal trips he made himself while attending the national convention of insurance commissioners.

"U" Plumbing Criticised.

"Fifteen-cent lodging houses in Minneapolis have better and more sanitary plumbing than the University of Minnesota, and the plumbing in the new university building is no better than in the old ones," declared former Plumbing Inspector Mullane, of Minneapolis, before the senate committee on public health and pure food. He called on Senator Froshaug to confirm all his statements regarding unsanitary plumbing at the university, and Senator Froshaug agreed with him.

The senate, in committee of the whole, recommended for passage the Ruchs bill, permitting street car companies to grant free transportation to policemen and firemen. The bill was recommended by a vote of 31 to 24.

Senate Debates Primary.

Senate Moonan's statewide primary bill stirred up as lively an impromptu debate as the senate had seen this session. The bill was made a special order two weeks ago, but was sent back to the elections committee on its request. Senator Moonan at the time charged the committee with doing this in order to present a like measure of its own. Senator Haycroft has since drafted such a measure, which will be presented to the senate Tuesday.

St. Paul, March 8.—Defending corporal punishment as the most humane method of discipline, expatiating on its good qualities, and explaining the work of the state industrial school at Red Wing, Superintendent Whittier went on the stand before the legislature to defend the charges that have been brought against the school.

The investigation was conducted, as before, in the house chamber, all of the members of the committee being present, with the exception of R. C. Dunn.

The scene was intensely interesting. Grouped about the little table in front of the desk of the lieutenant governor, were the members of the investigating committee, Senator Sullivan of St. Cloud conducting the investigation of the witnesses.

The house chamber, including the gallaries, were filled with spectators, who had come to listen to the exposure of flogging and whipping brought about through the statement made at Crookston, a short time ago, by former Senator Stephens.

Several boys took the stand and repeated stories of brutal whippings, of being kicked and knocked down with fists, and whipped with thongs on the back, and finally Superintendent Whittier took the stand.

There was a hushed silence as the superintendent of the school arose and took his place. He indulged in a long narrative, telling of the work of the school, explaining how he had succeeded former Superintendent Brown and had found discipline gone, the school in an uproar and of the necessity of using strenuous methods to bring order out of the chaos that existed.

Admits Corporal Punishment.

Superintendent Whittier admitted that corporal punishment exists in the school, denied the existence of the electric flogging machine, but told of the means that are used, of the barrel over which the boys are strapped, of the contrivance utilized for the purpose of administering a flogging, in the manner most calculated to bring about the kind of punishment that mother used to administer.

"We talk to the boy before he is spanked," said Mr. Whittier. "We talk to him while it is going on and we talk to him after it is over."

The superintendent of the school neglected to describe the nature of the conversation carried on under these unique conversational circumstances.

"A boy will think of more virtue and forget more sins in a few minutes under this treatment," he sententiously remarked, "than any other kind of treatment that I know of."

Spooner Bill Recommended.

The Spooner bill, providing $40,000 for investigation of the feasibility of a canal system from Lake of the Woods to Mankato, thence to Duluth, through Minneapolis and St. Paul, taking advantage of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers, and contemplating the building of immense dams for water power purposes, as well as a 12-foot barge channel, was unanimously recommended for passage by the senate committee on drainage. The bill will be referred to the finance committee immediately, and the members of the drainage committee pledged themselves to make the bill a special order of business as soon as possible.

Minnesota Club Formed.

Minneapolis, March 7.—Minnesota men at the University of Pennsylvania have organized a Minnesota Club. Sibel Harris, Duluth, has been elected president. There are 15 members of the organization.

Two Women Lose Lives.

Lake View, North Carolina. — Two women lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the new Loch Crystal hotel, a tourist resort just opened this season.

"Night Riders" Land Grabbers.

Boise, Idaho, March 7.—The federal grand jury meeting here March 20 will investigate alleged illegal land entries and alleged intimidations of contestants and their witnesses by methods somewhat similar to those of the Southern "night riders." There has been one murder growing out of these land disputes, D. V. Emmons having been killed by Joseph K. Vaughn. Various contestants tell weird stories of visits from these threatening "night riders."

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

For sale by all leading druggists. Price 50 cents per bottle.

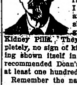
SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

Kidney Trouble Caused Terrible Misery.



D. C. Taylor, 705 E. Central Ave., Wichita, Kan., says: "For years I suffered from kidney trouble and was often confined to bed. On one occasion while working the pain was so severe I was helpless and had to be carried into the house. I found no relief and was in terrible shape when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me completely, no sign of kidney trouble having shown itself in years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to at least one hundred people."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Cauticus Answer.

"Now, Johnny," said the geography teacher, "what is the capital of Portugal?"

"I dun'no' Miss Flanders," said Johnny, "but from what I hearn tell of the extravagance of the late king they ain't much left."—Harper's Weekly.

Consumption Spreads In Syria.

Consumptives in Syria are treated today much in the same way as the lepers have been for the last 2,000 years. Tuberculosis is a comparatively recent disease among the Arabs and Syrians, but so rapidly has it spread that the natives are in great fear of it. Consequently when a member of a family is known to have the disease, he is frequently cast out and compelled to die of exposure and want. A small hospital for consumptives has been opened at Beyrout under the direction of Dr. Mary P. Eddy.

HONEST CONFESSION

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Saturday, March 11, 1911.

The Thief River Falls Times is the new paper just launched by H. E. Mursey & Son. The Spectator wishes it all the success possible.

Just to know who plays fair and just who don't, the friends of reapportionment should furnish every newspaper in the state with a list of all those state senators who have gone back on their election pledges seek to knock out something which northern Minnesota not alone has coming to it upon its merits but should be given to it as a matter of law.—Pine River Sentinel.

A Bill has been introduced in the senate that should pass by a unanimous vote. It is the Willard bill, and does away with the technicalities in criminal cases, so that they will be tried on the facts and the omission of a dot over an "i" or the cross on a "t" will not be an excuse for an appeal. It will insure speedy trial and thus save time and expense. Justice is insured and technicality given a back seat. A law of that kind should have been passed years ago.

Richard A. Ballinger's resignation as secretary of the interior, dated Jan. 19 last, has been accepted by President Taft and Walter L. Fisher of Chicago appointed as his successor, his commission being signed immediately by the president. It now remains to be seen how much of an improvement the change has made. Mr. Fisher is known as an ardent advocate of real conservation, and his appointment seems to indicate that the president has a better feeling toward the policies and conduct of Gifford Pinchot than his persistent friendship for Ballinger has indicated.

Notice to the Public

Notice is hereby given that the county commissioners of Pennington county, Minnesota, will meet in the office of the county auditor in the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 24th day of March, 1910, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of considering applications for free grass seed for lands burnt burned over by the fires of 1910, as provided for by H. F. No. 157, a bill passed by the present legislature.

All applications shall be filed with the county auditor on or before March 23, A. D. 1911.

County Auditor.

DIED

Mrs. Matilda Johnson, the wife of Nils Johnson of Polk Centre, died Thursday evening at the home of her son, Rev. H. P. Johnson, at Minneapolis. She went to Minneapolis before Christmas to visit her son and at the same time obtain medical treatment, having been in poor health for many years, but she failed to improve and it became impossible for her to return home.

She and her husband were among the first settlers of the Black River country and prominent members of the Black River church. She leaves besides her husband four children, Henry, Hjalma, Anna, and Edward, several brothers and sisters, among the latter Mrs. Charles Moren of Black River. She was nearly 59 years of age.

The funeral will be held at the Black River church Monday forenoon at 11 o'clock, Rev. Alex Sand officiating.

The snow has been going down fast this week.

D. Lazar was a Thief River visitor on Tuesday.

J. E. Draeger visited the county seat on Thursday.

Mrs. Ina Johnson was a Crookston visitor last Sunday.

FOR SALE.—Two three year old mares. SWEN BENSON, Box 8.

Farmers, bring your produce to Mike Anderson. He pays the highest prices.

Mrs. Leonard Holmes returned Monday from a visit with friends in Minneapolis.

There will be Mission church services in the Eastside school house tomorrow morning at 10:30.

Elliott will have an office at St. Hilaire soon. List your farm.

Andrew Miller of Wylie called Monday and jogged his subscription a notch with a great round wheel.

Mr. Roseland, traveling agent for Skandinaven, was in town last Monday in the interest of that paper.

P. McAndress of Minneapolis came up Wednesday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin McAndress, and other friends.

Henry Peterson and family, who have been residing at Hillsboro, N. D., arrived here last Tuesday and will make this place their future home.

Have you a farm to sell? List it with Elliott.

Mrs. Carrie Kolstad, who has for some time been a guest at the home of her brother, K. O. Gigstad, left Tuesday for Rice Lake, Wis., to visit a sister.

Oscar Eastman, whose home is three miles east of town but who is attending school here, called Thursday to notify us that had seen the first crow of the season.

Lazar & Lazar will have a new bargain counter displayed next Monday. The prices are such that you will be interested. Everybody come. LAZAR & LAZAR.

We understand that Mrs. Ina Johnson, who keeps boarders out in the north part of town, has been looking over the Ferguson building with a view to opening it as a hotel. If she makes the deal she will be open for general hotel business about the first of next month.

Elliott does business on the square. List your farm.

If any one contemplates sending beginners to school this spring, they should endeavor to do so by March 13. A class may be arranged for these, provided they all start soon enough to make it worth while to begin a class this spring.
A. J. BARSNESS.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Daiuard came over from Crookston Thursday morning. With their two children, who have been visiting with their grandmother, Mrs. Avleson, they left the same day for Rainy River via Bemidji, where the family will make their new home. Mr. Daiuard is the manager of the new saw mill which is being erected there and which he says will be ready for operation about June 1. The construction work is going on rapidly, but he is badly in need of more men.

Elliott lives at Og, Iowa at present. Write him there.

Defense of Cameron Dam

This is the first drama of distinction that his visited St. Hiliare for some time.

The management wishes to warn the people that "The Defense of Cameron Dam" is a play, not moving pictures.

The object of the play, "The Defense of Cameron Dam," is to put the human character in such a light as will serve as a lesson to increase the percentage of good men and women.

The demand for justice and the argument against injustice are some of the thoughts which give so much moral tone to "The Defense of Cameron Dam." A play of sensational dramatic interest, with a story that reaches the heart, and is the right kind to attract the masses.

A scenic background of great beauty, and a cast of excellent actors and actresses, have been secured, who can be fully trusted to present the characters in their true lights.

The Minueapolis Symphony Company

Must Decide

To whom it may and does concern; All good people interested in the welfare of society—this means you—are called upon from time to time to decide for themselves between right and wrong. Such decision will be required of the voters of the beautiful village of St. Hilaire at our annual election, to be held this year on March 14. Every person should so exert himself that such decision shall be a righteous one, and every voter feel proud that he voted according to a conscience free from the glamour of worldly dollars and cents—free from the dullness brought on by incipient indulgence—free to vote as his mother would have voted.

There are countless reasons advanced by as many different people, but none can say aught against the basic principle of right and wrong.

During the greater part of my life I have been brought face to face with the evils of the liquor traffic. Have spent considerable time studying it from a scientific standpoint, and can see none of good in it. There are, on the other hand, the volumes of books written, every one of which stands as a monument to testify against the liquor business; The old stories of homes wrecked, children starving, wives driven to the slums, cold blooded murder committed—all too common and all on account of booze. Can any man in his right mind so far forget himself that he shall strive to bring the vulture to our fair village to devour the bodies of men, to say nothing of their souls, and to be a blot upon the fair name of our community? Who shall say? These are vital questions and ones that every person of this town will be held answerable for.

They scoff and ridicule and mislead, and otherwise make light of these questions, yet whether they know it or not they will be held accountable. How dare men who would desire the respect of their fellow men so far violate the will of the all wise Father as to come out in the open and disobey the law They dare not expose their ideas to the light of day, therefore they come out for darkness and ignorance. They say that taxes will be lower if the license money be paid into the treasury to meet the expenses of the town. "What shall it profit a man though he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" or "What shall a man receive in exchange for his soul?"

Men! vote for your wives, vote for your daughters, vote for your sons, vote for yourselves, and forget not to vote for your God, whose loving patience we all so often try.

We shall then have no need for fear of a right decision and will all feel glad that we had the opportunity to help in arriving at so grand a verdict.

This from one who knows his own weaknesses and shortcomings and who holds those that refer to it sneeringly in profound contempt.

DR. J. E. OWENS,

Dr. Spofford will be at the Markham hotel, St. Hilaire, April 7.

Gold In Barnato's Body.

A German paper is responsible for the announcement that Barney Barnato, still more than the legendary king of Peru, who was wont to have his body gilded afresh every morning, deserved the title of El Dorado—the "Man of Gold"—not because of his wealth or of his connection with gold mines, but because his system actually secreted gold. He was, says this credible authority, the victim of a disease called metallitis, his blood being permeated with a powdery gold, as were his eyes, nose, ears and all of his mucous membrane. The pain caused by this condition was so intolerable that it is believed to have been the cause of his suicide.

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listoner. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

INFLAMMATION AND PAIN

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I was troubled for a long time with inflammation, pains in my side, sick headaches and nervousness. I had taken so many medicines that I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. A friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to health. I have no more pain, my nerves are stronger and I can do my own work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after everything else had failed, and I recommend it to other suffering women." —Mrs. Wm. Seals 605 W. Howard St., Creston, Iowa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

THE YOUNG BRIDE'S FIRST DISCOVERY

Their wedding tour had ended, and they entered their new home to settle down to what they hoped to be one long uninterrupted blissful honeymoon.

But, alas! the young bride's troubles soon begin, when she tried to reduce the cost of living with cheap big can baking powders.

She soon discovered that all she got was a lot for her money, and it was not all baking powder, for the bulk of it was cheap materials which had no leavening power. Such powders will not make light, wholesome food. And because of the absence of leavening gas, it requires from two or three times as much to raise cakes or biscuits as it does of Calumet Baking Powder.

Thus, eventually, the actual cost to you, of cheap baking powders, is more than Calumet would be.

Cheap baking powders often leave the bread bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are not always of uniform strength and quality.

Now the bride buys Calumet—the perfectly wholesome baking powder, moderate in price, and always uniform and reliable. Calumet keeps indefinitely, makes cooking easy, and is certainly the most economical after all.

Reason Enough.

A negro near Xenia, O., had been arrested for chicken stealing. He had stolen so many that his crime had become grand larceny.

He was tried and convicted, and brought in for sentence.

"Have you any reason to offer why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon you?" he was asked.

"Well, jedge," he replied, "I cain't go to jail now, nohow. I'm buildin' a shack out yonder, an' I jus' cain't go till I git it done. You-all kin sholy see dat."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Give a Woman a Chance.

Compulsory military service for men, urges a German female advocate of women's right, should be offset by compulsory domestic service for women. On the theory that life in barrack and drill in the manual of arms have benefitted German manhood, she asks, why will not life in the kitchen and exercise in the use of pots and pans similarly raise German womanhood?

If Germany ever organizes a standing army of cooks it may force all Europe to follow its lead. Culinary conscription is a severe measure, but when enforced in Germany other nations might be expected to adopt it. There would be more reason in doing so than in following Germany's lead in militarism. There is more real need of cooks the world over than of soldiers. It is possible to get along without fighting, but not without eating.

INDIAN LID APPEAL DENIED.

M. A. Spooner Says Bemidji Saloon Men to Fight Case on Merits.

Minneapolis. — Reply of the complaints in the Bemidji saloon cases to the answer filed for the government by United States District Attorney Houpt ten days ago probably will be filed with the clerk of the circuit court in Minneapolis, March 21.

The time given the complainants for the filing of their reply does not expire until the first Monday in April, but the brief probably will be filed some days before that time. Judge M. A. Spooner of Bemidji, who represented the Bemidji liquor dealers, came to Minneapolis in connection with the rumored appeal that might be taken from Judge Willard's decision.

"People have conceived an erroneous impression of the status of the cases," said Mr. Spooner. "No appeal has been taken from Judge Willard's decision, yet everyone not directly interested in the cases believes an appeal has been taken. There was talk of an appeal, but so far none has been filed. We have until the first Monday in April to file our reply to the government's answer, and then the taking of testimony probably will proceed and the case be tried on its merits."

BLOCK TO BE RESTORED.

Huge Sky-Scraper May be Erected on Site.

Minneapolis, Minn. — No time will be lost in obliterating the traces of the Sunday fire which swept the Syndicate block, Nicollet avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets, wrecking the entire south half of the big five-story structure, wiping out three big mercantile establishments and upwards of 30 offices in that section of the building, dealing heavy losses to two other important retail stores and causing an estimated damage of $1,200,000.

Coincident with the announcement that it had been definitely established that no lives were lost in the conflagration, workmen began erecting scaffolds to start the work of raising the menacing walls of the south portion of the structure, the supports of which had been devoured by the flames. It also was announced that the work of repairing the north wing of the damaged building would begin immediately with the view of completely restoring the quarters of the Young-Quinlan and the Minneapolis Dry Goods companies within 10 days.

St. Cloud.—M. Weldert of Rice, aged 64 years, arrived in the city to take treatment at the hospital here. Just after entering the door he dropped dead from heart failure.

Faribault.—The slot machines in the village of Morristown have been removed. Many complaints have been made that the young boys were playing them, so the authorities ordered them removed.

Austin.—Rev. W. L. Riley, of Detroit, Mich., formerly pastor of the Chicago Avenue Baptist Church of Minneapolis, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist church here and will begin his labors April 1.

Albert Lea.—The total deposits of the four banks in this city foot up $1,826,923.87, and those of other banks in the county total $1,122,455.92, or $2,949,379.19 for the county. The amount will pass the $3,000,000 mark in a short time.

Duluth.—Detamus McElwain, a Minnesota pioneer, died at Fond du Lac, Minn., at the age of 85. He came to Minnesota from Illinois in 1851, and settled on a homestead, which is now the site of Northfield. He hauled the lumber used in building the first school house in St. Paul.

Minneapolis. — Dr. George Edgar Vincent, president-elect of the State University, who is to assume the office April 1, will address the members of the superintendents' section of the Minnesota Educational Association at its annual convention at the university, March 31 and April 1.

Albert Lea.—The county auditor has awarded the contract for ditch No. 23 to George Conn of Royal Center, Ind., and the work will be pushed. While this is the twenty-third county ditch one judicial ditch has been constructed in Freeborn county and over a hundred miles of ditch have been laid at an expense of fully a third of a million dollars, while thousands of acres have been reclaimed.

East Grand Forks.—Women of the Adams presbytery, embracing the counties in northwestern Minnesota, will hold their annual meeting in East Grand Forks March 29 and 30, on the occasion of the annual conference of the Women's Home Missionary Society. The program that will be carried out has not been completed up to the present time, but it is being arranged and will be announced within the next week.

St. Paul.—Isaac Quinn, an Indian boy from the Sisseton reservation, who was arrested on January 28 for passing worthless checks to the amount of $150 on various saloonkeepers, was discharged from custody. His alleged victims refused to swear out a complaint.

Faribault.—The hennery belonging to Paul Fuerstenau of this place was destroyed by fire, together with a buggy shed, a large number of chickens and farm machinery, causing a loss of $3,000, with insurance to the amount of $1,200. It is supposed the building was set on fire.

St. Paul. — J. G. Winkler, state dairy and food commissioner, has returned from a tour of inspection of creameries in upper Minnesota, having visited Sauk Center, Rothsay, Crookston and other points. At Rothsay, Mr. Winkler found his pet policy of paying for cream according to quality has been adopted.

Faribault.—Jacob Jelum, a farmer living east of this city, was seriously injured while working around a gasolene engine. His trousers were caught in the belting, whirling him around the shafting. His legs were broken and he was otherwise badly injured.

A Generous Gift

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Absent-Minded.

"There was $105 in the left trousers pocket," panted a white-faced man as he all but fell into the little tailor's pressing and cleaning shop.

The tailor glanced at the excited citizen and went on pushing the goose.

After a minute the new arrival got his breath, but lost his temper. "I say there was $105 in the left trousers pocket," he repeated, shaking his fist.

"Vell, didt I sedt dere vasn't?" the little tailor asked. "Dere iss de pants. Mebby he iss dere yedt," pointing to a pair of trousers on a nail.

The left pocket gave up a roll of bills and a cigarette case, the right pocket a bunch of keys, penknife and a pound of other junk; the right back pocket a magazine pistol and a handkerchief, the left back pocket a big memorandum book and the fob pocket a watch with fob and charm attached and some bills tightly folded.

After the absent-minded one had given the tailor $5 for his "honesty" the knight of the goose soliloquized: "Some day dot feller fergit his bants."

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

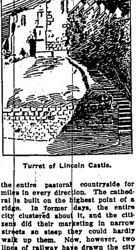
CATHEDIAL TOWN'S SENTINEL

Historic Structure Is Built on a Ridge High Above City of Lincoln, England.

Lincoln, England.—"The most imposing sight about European cities is that of a whole district dominated by one great building," said a tourist recently.

If this be true, then Lincoln might be classed as among the most imposing of cities, for her superb cathedral dominates not only the city spreading down the hillside in a pretty pattern of red-tile roofs and green foliage, but the entire pastoral countryside for miles in every direction. The cathedral is built on the highest point of a ridge. In former days, the entire city clustered about it, and the citizens did their marketing in narrow streets so steep they could hardly walk up them. Now, however, two lines of railway have drawn the city toward the lower levels. But from whatever point a look is cast toward the upper city, the great towers of the cathedral are to be seen, pointing skyward with their gothic pinnacles.



Turret of Lincoln Castle.

Its interesting history and its fame for beauty attract thousands of tourists every year. There are always a few Americans to be seen, guide book in hand, peering about the ornate old facades, whose stones are now stained beautiful shades of yellow and cream by the weather of centuries. It used to be a favorite delight of the town boys to pay a sixpence to climb the central tower, and stand inside the monster bell, called "Great Tom," when the 12 strokes of noon were sent vibrating over the city, but this diversion is not much indulged in by tourists.

WOMEN NOW ON AMBULANCES

New York One of the Few Cities in the World Which Engages Them.

New York.—This is one of the few cities in the world where women are allowed to act as ambulance surgeons and only one hospital in the city allows the practice. This hospital graduated Dr. Mary Crawford into housework and now Dr. Elizabeth Bruyn is serving her novitiate on the back step of an ambulance. Dr. Bruyn began her antics as ambulance surgeon quite recently and had the opportunity to set a broken leg during her first day at work. She did the job neatly and promises to be a success in her field of work.

Dr. Bruyn the other day responded to a call from a saloon in Kent avenue. She found a policeman holding three Polish prisoners in a corner at the point of a pistol, while a wounded man was stretched out on the floor.

Dr. Bruyn got down on her knees to repair a long slash in the side of the man on the floor. He tried to edge away, but Dr. Bruyn got the bartender to hold his legs while she put some stitches in his side. She never winked an eye or paused a moment in her work when the prisoners made a demonstration and the policeman waved a pistol and told them to be still. They protested that they did not want any woman doctor to sew up the wounded man, but subsided in response to a suggestive movement of the revolver.

England's Navy.

London.—It would require a column of space in small type to give merely a catalogue of the vessels of all kinds for the British navy which are now in hand. Much shorter but tremendously impressive is the list of heavy armored fighting vessels—battleships and those armored cruisers which are the most formidable of battleships under another name. At this moment there are no fewer than 17 of those vessels building or authorized, including two for colonial service.

HEAD SOLID MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass; a running sore. It was awful, the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910. Send to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for free Cuticura Book on the treatment of skin and scalp troubles.

A Woman's Letter.

Women, it is generally admitted, write better letters than men.

M. Marcel Prevost has discovered the reason for this superiority. "The obvious meaning is never the one we should read into a woman's letter. There is always a veiled meaning. Woman makes use of a letter just as she employs a glance or a smile, in a way that is carefully thought out, and with an eye to effect. And, after all, does a woman's hat serve to cover her head? Does a woman's parasol keep off the sun? Why, then, should a woman's letter serve to convey her real thoughts to the person addressed, just like the letters of some honest grocer, who writes, 'I send you five pounds of coffee,' because he really does send you five pounds of coffee."

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

Washington.

Representative Campbell of Kansas announced as he was leaving the White House that he was going to Canada to study the reciprocity situation at first hands. He will spend three weeks there traveling from place to place comparing prices received by Canadian and American farmers for their products.

There is no abatement in the crying needs of the starving people of China as indicated by advices received by the state department. As a further measure of relief the national Red Cross cabled $2,000 to the American consul general at Shanghai for distribution to the famine sufferers.

Sitting in the unusual capacity of a board of auditors, the supreme court of the United States computed that the state of West Virginia was under obligation to pay over $7,000,000 of the $33,000,000 debt of Virginia which existed when the new state was formed. It was the biggest problem in arithmetic the supreme court has had to handle in many years.

Official announcement was made at the white house that Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes, of the United States supreme court, has been designated as head of the commission to investigate second class postage rates, especially with reference to magazines. Former Solicitor General Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati has been designated as one of the members of the commission.

Suggestions for the design of the new 3 per cent Panama bonds are now being prepared, and will come before Secretary MacVeagh in a few days. It is the intention of the treasury department to follow the ideas of artistic simplicity which are embodied in the postal savings bonds and the tentative savings for the new paper money. Secretary MacVeagh's plans are practically unchanged and an issue of probably $50,000,000 is assured before June 1.

RANGE DISASTER

TWENTY TRACK-LAYERS CAUGHT IN PIT BY CAVE-IN—ONLY A FEW ESCAPE.

BURIED IN AN AVALANCHE

Sobbing Women and Children Watch Efforts of Rescue Party—Second Disaster at Gilbert.

Virginia. — Death in the form of five hundred thousand tons of iron ore, rock, earth, ice and snow shot down upon 20 track layers working in the Norman open-pit mine here. Only 14 escaped the avalanche and three of these are in a hospital suffering from injuries that are likely to prove fatal.

Ole Johnson, foreman of one of the three changes of men that were caught by the vast mass, is the only one of the 14 whose injuries are not dangerous. He was taken to the hospital suffering from severe concussions of the head.

An army of men with shovels set to work desperately to recover the bodies. The work was pursued under extreme difficulties. The men prayed for the daylight to aid them, while many of the crowd on the embankment overlooking the site of the catastrophe dreaded to have the dawn come, for it would show them broken and maimed bodies the sight of which would change their stolid grief to hysterical lamentations.

Wives and children of the buried men watched the work of the rescuers, sobbing and wringing their hands.

Only Four Had Chance.

Only the four men near the outer edge had a chance to run. So far as can be ascertained all the men caught in the slide were Finns and Austrians. There is much confusion and the mine officials are maintaining so strict a silence that the name of but one could be learned—Paul Paulson, a widower, who leaves seven children. His wife died a month ago.

The pit was 125 feet deep and 75 feet wide and the rock and ore and earth filled this bowl to the depth of 50 feet and shot out its rim 150 feet. The Norman employs about 1,000 men when running to capacity. Just at this time, however, several hundred are employed working in night and day shifts.

Buried Miners Reached by Pipe.

Gilbert, Minn., March [illegible]. — Captain Benny and three miners were entombed 150 feet down in the Elba mine at Elba location, just outside of the village. Through an iron pipe three inches in diameter air was transmitted to them and continued wrappings upon this pipe encouraged the rescuing parties to believe that the four might to reached.

Benny and his companions were caught on the first level by a cave-in of ore and rock. The mass piled up many feet high. There was a fifth man in the party and he just missed being walled up. Although he escaped, it was not without painful injuries. He reached the shaft almost in a state of collapse and told what had happened.

In remarkably short time scores of miners were crowded about eager to help in the work of rescue. The very first move was the driving through of the big iron pipe, which gave air to the prisoners.

Almost instantly they began to tap on the pipe. There were answering taps from the mouth of the level and as rescuing parties of eight to ten men shoveled away hour after hour the tapping from the four men was kept up incessantly.

The rescue work was necessarily slow but confidence was expressed that the men would hold out. The Elba mine employs about 200 men when running full capacity. It is in charge of Superintendent Chinn and is owned by Pickands, Mather & Company of Cleveland.

Capt. Benny Rescued; May Die.

Captain Benny was rescued alive and taken to his home.

The two miners, however, met what must have been instant death as their bodies were bruised and crushed in a horrible shape. That Captain Benny is still alive is considered a marvel after receiving the injuries which he did and undergoing the terrible ordeal in the death trap for so many hours. His condition is reported as extremely critical and it would occasion no surprise should he succumb.

William J. Stone, an Englishman, and Joseph Bovich, an Austrian, are the men who lost their lives. Stone was a single man, aged 23 years. He was a native of Cornwall, England, and had been in America only about a year. Bovich was about 35 years old. He leaves a wife and five children.

YOUNG SEARS IN COURT.

Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Causing Death of Stepfather.

Stillwater.—George Sears, the boy accused of shooting and killing his stepfather, William Elias, was arraigned in district court on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree and pleaded not guilty. He was held to the grand jury in bail of $3,000, which in all likelihood he will not be able to give.

TWIN CITY CARS CAREFUL.

No Passengers Were Killed Last Year —147,000,000 Carried.

St. Paul.—Nearly 147,000,000 passengers were carried on Twin City street cars in 1910 and not a one was killed. Furthermore, on the 383 miles of the Twin City Rapid Transit Company's lines in four counties with a population of about 600,000, only seven persons were killed.

It is claimed at the general offices of the company that this is a record for street car lines and the following figures obtained from coroners in the cities named seem to justify the claim:

City.	Population.	Deaths by Cars.

BALLOT FIGHT ON CUYUNA.

Ironton and Crosby Towns Vote on Changing A School Site.

Brainerd.—Ironton and Crosby, rival towns on the Cuyuna iron range, had a battle royal over a school board election and the changing of a school site.

Under the law, only freehold voters are entitled to vote and everything was proceeding quietly at the polls until the Ironton voters began to troop in. Then, it is asserted, the Crosbyites started a free-for-all vote, and after that no lines were drawn and no questions asked. The women became interested and many of them voted.

In the afternoon the fever reached the farmers of the neighborhood, and they brought in their wives and eligible daughters to vote. There were no challenges, but each side is crying fraud and threatening injunction proceedings. At last accounts, the final outcome of the election was still in doubt.

MICHIGAN SALONS HEAR CLAPP.

Minnesota Senator Addresses Both Houses on Direct Legislation.

Lansing, Mich.—Both houses of the state legislature held brief sessions to listen to United States Senator Moses Clapp of Minnesota who addressed them on the subject of direct legislation.

He declared the recorded history of six thousand years shows that progress has only been made as a result of protest and that the protest has always been made by the "Common People." He also took the view that the government could be so laid out in advance as to take care of changing conditions and times.

Senator Clapp favors the direct election of United States senators and also the initiative, referendum and recall, and he devoted a considerable portion of his speech to this phase of the subject.

FAIR SOCIETY ORGANIZED.

Wilkin County Preparing for an Exhibition in the Fall.

Breckenridge.—The Wilkin County Agricultural Society was organized in this city and the following officers elected: President, E. M. Granger; vice-president, Robert J. Wells; secretary-treasurer, E. Balentine.

The society is composed of one representative from each school district in the county. The purpose of the organization is to hold fairs and exhibitions of an agricultural and industrial nature and for the promotion of industrial and agricultural education. Several hundred dollars will be offered by the society as prizes for best yields of corn and other products, and in the fall a county fair will be held under the auspices of the society.

Educator Resigns.

Sauk Center. — Professor William Angus, after five years of efficient service, has resigned as superintendent of the Sauk Center public schools. He was re-elected at the last board meeting, and his resignation was keenly regretted. The school has progressed and prospered under his guidance. At present Angus has no definite plans for the future, although he expects to continue in educational matters.

Dealers Plan Trade Boost.

Winona. — A "made in Winona" campaign, designed to instill a feeling of loyalty to local manufactured goods, will be launched by the Winona Merchants' and Business Men's Association. They propose to acquaint the citizens with the brand of goods made here by conducting excursions periodically into the factory district.

Boy Scouts Give Entertainment.

Detroit.—Patrols 1 and 2 of Troop 1 of the Detroit Boy Scouts of America gave an entertainment in the Congregational Annex. Various features of boy scout life were illustrated by shadows thrown on a curtain by the boys. Many of these were decidedly amusing. The first aid drill won hearty applause. The boys were trained by Scoutmaster Walter D. Bird, who devised the clever shadow effects. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used in the purchase of suits for the patrols.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, March 10.—

Senator Elwell introduced a university appropriation bill asking a total of $2,987,200. For the university proofing old chemistry building, $102,- chemistry building and laboratory, $405,000; new pathology building, $200,000; dormitory for women, $100,000; biology building, $350,000; fireproofing old chemistry building, $102,000; alteration of medical science building, $25,000; change of Millard hall to college of pharmacy, $75,000; equipment of Folwell hall, $5,000; maintenance of Elliott hospital, $159,200; law library, $10,000; care of campus, $6,000.

Wednesday night was labor night before the house and senate committees on workingmen's compensation bills.

T. D. O'Brien, former judge of the supreme court, prefaced his defense of his bill, drawn for the Federation of Labor, by attacking the present legal system for gaining compensation for industrial injuries as "a relic of barbarism, an economic waste and tending to give the lawyers more than their share of whatever was recovered."

F. G. Winston, millionaire employer of labor, characterized the O Brien bill as "worse than the Mercer bill," and as deserving to be labelled as "an invitation to all who wished to end their lives to come to Minnesota, get a job and end all, in the assurance that their aunts, second cousins or sweethearts would profit financially by their death." Mr. Winston also indulged in a free-for-all debate with labor representatives present.

But even while he was bitterly attacking the O'Brien bill, he surprised his auditors by nominating, possibly facetiously, Judge O'Brien for the next governor of Minnesota, saying: "Judge O'Brien is the best citizen I know and I should be glad to vote for him for governor."

Ten o'clock closing for saloons except in the cities of the first and second class, including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and Winona, is provided in a bill introduced in the house by Representatives J. F. Lee and Putnam. Another bill is said to be coming providing for 8 o'clock closing.

St. Paul, March 11.—

The senate committees ground out recommendations for a good deal of important legislation.

The committee on university and university lands, Senator Elwell, of Minneapolis, chairman, recommended for passage both the general appropriations bill for the university and the girls' gymnasium bill, appropriating $150,000 for a new girls' gymnasium.

The good roads amendment to the Minnesota state constitution, drawn by Representative R. C. Dunn, providing a one-mill tax for roads and bridges throughout the state, passed the senate by a unanimous vote.

An amendment by Senator Sageng, taking away from the state highway commission control over the disposition of the funds was adopted. It leaves with the legislature the right to name a body to exercise the money dispensing powers.

By a vote of 61 to 31 the lower house refused to investigate the state central committees of the Republican and Democrat parties of this state. Several members voting against the bill said there was no evidence of any irregularities in the handling of campaign funds.

The committee on general legislation recommended for passage the John P. Nash bill which creates a state department of weights and measures and the Fowler bill regulating automobile traffic.

A bill to define what constitutes an "intoxicating beverage" was introduced by Senator Rustad. It provides that any beverage containing one-half of one per cent alcohol by volume at a temperature of 60 degrees above zero fahrenheit, shall be classed as an intoxicating beverage.

St. Paul, March 13.—Initiative and referendum on an ultra-conservative basis, the Democratic idea as set forth in the bill introduced by Albert Pfaender of New Ulm, passed the lower house of the Minnesota legislature by a vote of 63 to 50. It grants to the people the right to vote on legislation by popular ballot but contains restrictions which purport to safeguard the interests of the state against the apathy of the voters on questions of law.

It received the vote of 17 of the 24 Democratic members of the house and those opposing it explained that they did so at the request of the people of their own districts. It received the vote of all the conservative Republicans and enough of the radicals to permit its passage. Many of those who voted the radical Campbell bill explained that although they did not favor the Pfaender measure they believed it to be better than nothing. Others pronounced it worthless. G. W. Brown, in opposing the bill, said it was a disgrace to the state of Minnesota and that he did not propose to be held responsible for its passage. J. N. Johnson, P. N. Converse, R. L. Palmer and Rufus P. Morton, in opposing the measure, said it was not worth the paper it was written on and that it had been so complicated by amendments that they were not sure of its contents.

The Campbell bill, which was defeated Thursday, only provided petitions signed by 10 and 7 per cent of the voters to bring about the initiative and referendum. It required only a majority of the votes cast on any measure to carry it and it allowed the people to initiate a vote on constitutional amendments.

Brewery interests were said to favor a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Klein, who indignantly denied the charge and stated his reasons for thinking his bill a good one.

Senator Putnam, a county optionist, was the man who brought the charge. It was a bill to give 100 people a right to incorporate as a village. The present law requires at least 200. Senator Putnam charged the bill was framed to permit small bodies of men to incorporate and establish a saloon, against the wishes of a majority of those in contiguous territory. It developed, on the spur of moment, one of the hottest fights of the session.

The bill was voted on and lost, 31 to 29.

An institution to reform "tramps, vagrants and wife-deserters by humane and scientific course of teaching and instruction," was provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Boyle of Duluth. The cost of the institution is to be $100,000.

A companion bill provides that any one who "deserts his wife in need and necessitous circumstances, or his children, shall be liable to a workhouse sentence." The second bill provides for methods of teaching them to love their own wives and to return to them and to live happily ever after.

Good Roads Bills Passed.

R. C. Dunn's good roads bills, as amended by the senate passed the house by a unanimous vote. They need only the signature of Governor Eberhart to become laws. The bills contemplate state aid and supervision for the building of good roads through Minnesota. One bill authorizes a vote to be taken on a constitutional amendment which would levy an annual tax of one mill for the building of good roads. The other bill appropriates $150,000 a year for the maintenance of the state highway commission. This bill contemplates the placing of a large force of competent road engineers in the county districts to superintend all road building.

St. Paul, March 14.—George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, who is under investigation by the state legislature, was on the witness stand before the house committee. He was called by C. H. Warner of Aitkin to explain his conduct relative to ditches Nos. 66 and 86 in Aitkin county.

Mr. Warner asked the witness to explain particularly the charges that there were irregularities in the location of the ditches, the letting of the contracts and the payment of the state money before any work had been completed.

Representative Pfaender, chairman of the committee of public accounts and expenditures verbally recommended the passage of a bill compelling the secretary of state to submit bids for automobile tags. Mr. Pfaender referred to the sub-committee a whitewash report which exonerated the secretary for paying 35 cents for tags on the grounds that there was no evidence submitted that the tags could be obtained more cheaply.

Congressman W. S. Hammond of the Second District was a guest of the house recommended the creation of sentative Spooner was asked to make a brief address.

Representative Vorland introduced two bills designed to do away with a monopoly in the lumber business and in the sale of grain seeds in Minnesota. It makes it a misdemeanor for a lumber or seed company to charge more for its product in one part of the state than another, allowing the natural difference in price caused by the distance of the market from the place of manufacture or production.

The Mattson bill raising the salaries of the members of the state board of control from $3,500 to $4,500 was reported out without recommendation by the house committee on appropriation. Similar action was taken on the Spooner bill appropriating $14,000 to take care of a deficit in the state dairy and food department. The committee killed the Hauge bill appropriating $5,000 a year for the support of the state naval militia.

HARVARD PAPER SUPPRESSED.

Caricature of Rev. Lyman Abbott and Eva Tanguay Starts Trouble.

Cambridge, Mass.—A comic drawing showing Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, and Eva Tanguay, the cyclonic comedienne, linked arm in arm and labeled "Human Affinities," has caused the suppression by the Harvard authorities of this week's issue of the Lampoon, the famous Harvard comic weekly.

ANOTHER POISON MYSTERY.

Florida Educator and Wife Victims of Drug.

Pensacola, Florida. — The mysterious death by strychnine of Mrs. M. C. How or when the poison was administered has not been ascertained.

Rheumatism Advice

Gives Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription—Is Easily Mixed.

"Get one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound and one ounce of Toris compound. Then get half a pint of good whisky and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a tablespoonful of this mixture before each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle before using." This is not new in this city as many of the worse cases of rheumatism and back-ache have been cured by it. Good results come the first day. Any druggist has these ingredients on hand or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. Any one can mix them.

CHECK IT IN TIME.

Few people realize the grave danger of neglecting the kidneys. The slightest kidney trouble may be Nature's warning of dropsy, diabetes or dreaded Bright's disease. If you have any kidney symptom, begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once. Mrs. Sarah A. Black, 304 S. Douty St., Hanford, Cal., says: "Picture me lying crippled with inflammatory rheumatism and stricken with dropsy, not able to move even with crutches. Such was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Folks in Hanford know how bad off I was and I must give Doan's Kidney Pills full credit for my wonderful recovery."

WOULD LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT. WITH ITCHING ECZEMA.

"Ever since I can remember I was a terrible sufferer of eczema and other irritating skin diseases. I would lie awake all night, and my suffering was intolerable. A scaly humor settled on my back, and being a child, I naturally scratched it. It was a burning, itching sensation, and utterly intolerable, in fact, it was so that I could not possibly forget about it. It did not take long before it spread to my shoulders and arms, and I was almost covered with a mass of raw flesh on account of my scratching it. I was in such a condition that my hands were tied.

"A number of physicians were called, but it seemed beyond their medical power and knowledge to cure me. Having tried numerous treatments without deriving any benefit from them, I had given myself up to the mercy of my dreadful malady, but I thought I would take the Cuticura treatment as a last resort. Words cannot express my gratitude to the one who created 'The Cuticura Miracles,' as I have named them, for now I feel as if I never suffered from even a pimple. My disease was routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I shall never cease praising the wonderful merits they contain. I will never be without them, in fact, I can almost dare any skin diseases to attack me so long as I have Cuticura Remedies in the house. I hope that this letter will give other sufferers an idea of how I suffered, and also hope that they will not pass the 'Cuticura Life Saving Station.'" (Signed) C. Louis Green, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29, 1910.

Seven Pensioners in One Family.

Seven brothers and seven sisters living in Foulsham, England, and the adjacent parishes are receiving old age pensions. The oldest of the seven is eighty and the youngest is seventy-one. Their united ages total 530 years. Their father was Philip Lambert, a carrier between Foulsham and Norwich, who had a family of 16, all born in Foulsham and of whom 11 are now alive.

$8.50 HEDGETHORN PUNCTURE-PROOF SELF-HEALING TIRES A SAMPLE PAIR TO INTRODUCE, ONLY $4.80

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for $4.80 (cash with order $4.55).

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

Now that the voters of our little city have indicated by an overwhelming vote their desire that this should be a "dry" town, it is "up to" the officials selected by the people to see that is made dry and kept dry, and all attempted violations of the law should be promptly and effectually squelched. There is now no excuse that the law officers have not the backing of the people.

The Village Election

The village election passed off very smoothly and a good vote was cast. The caucus ticket was elected throughout, the only opposition being that a ticket was out replacing the name of A. R. Jones as councilman with C. E. Steen.

Jean Valjean

Rev. W. C. Hodgson of Crookston will deliver a lecture here March 28, taking for his subject, "Jean Valjean." Those who have read that wonderful book—which, by the way, is an object of special admiration by the writer of these lines—will be sure to want to hear the lecture. Rev. Hodgson spoke here last week on the temperance question.

This is the first of a series of lectures to be given under the auspices of the Epworth league for the sidewalk benefit.

Which Leg?

In a small town in the west of Scotland the town clerk, who was a bit of a "character," had the misfortune to lose his leg in a railway accident. As a mark of appreciation and esteem for his long services the council unanimously agreed to replace his loss with an artificial limb, which they did as soon as he was sufficiently recovered. A few months afterward the town clerk, who was generally known by his Christian name, Paul, was unfortunate enough to have his other leg fractured in an accident. Naturally the mishap became food for town gossip, and one old wife in discussing the matter with a neighbor was overheard saying:

"It's a gey bad business for Paul, puir man, but is't his ain leg or the leg that belangs to the toon that's broken?"

Life of the Red Deer.

According to an old Gaelic legend, a red deer might live for 210 years, an eagle for 630 and an oak tree for nearly nineteen centuries. Nowadays, however, hundred-year-old deer would be difficult to find. From twenty-five to thirty-five years apparently may be about the range of their existence.—London Country Gentleman.

Teaching a Feathered Pet to Trust You Is Not Difficult.

No creature is more jealous or sensitive than a bird. It is easy, however, to win the heart of almost any bird, and that without starving him or making him think he has mastered you. Simply talk to him a good deal.

Place his cage near you on your desk or work table, and retain his choicest dainty to give to him with your own fingers. Let him know that he can never have that particular thing unless he takes it from you, and he will soon learn, if you are patient and do not disconcert him by fixing your eyes upon him.

After this he will more readily take it from your lips, and then when you let him out of his cage, after the first excitement is over, he will come to you, especially if you have a call to which you have accustomed him, and accept the dainty from you while free.

As soon as he becomes really convinced that you will not hurt him or try to catch him or interfere in any way with his liberty he will give way to his boundless curiosity about you. He will pull your hair, pick at your eyes and take you as much of his company as you desire.—New York Press.

Shakespeare's Last Illness.

According to a tradition handed down by Ward, the vicar of Stratford, Shakespeare's last illness was a fever brought on by a "merry meeting" with Drayton and Ben Jonson. Another authority, Halliwell-Phillips, says that the great poet died of typhoid, caused by the filth and bad drainage about New Place. Like nearly everything else about Shakespeare, the question of the character of his last illness can be answered only conjecturally.

At the Wind's Mercy.

"Scroggins is always boasting about his new balloon."

"That's all it's good for."

"What's all it's good for?"

"To blow about."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Uncanny.

"Did that lady think she would like the flat?" asked the landlord.

"Yes," replied his assistant, "but there's one thing rather strange about her case."

"Her references appear to be all right. What's the matter with her?"

"She didn't say anything about the horrible taste the woman had who lived there before or hint that the place would have to be entirely repapered and redecorated before she would take it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Didn't Teach Him That Trick.

"That's a werry knowing animal o' yours," said a cockney gentleman to the keeper of an elephant.

"Very," was the cool rejoinder.

"He performs strange tricks and hantics, does he?" inquired the cockney, eying the animal through his glass.

"Surprisin'!" retorted the keeper. "We've learned him to put money in that box you see up there. Try him with half a crown."

The cockney handed the elephant half a crown, and, sure enough, he took it in his trunk and placed it in a box high up out of reach.

"Well, that is very hextraordinary—hastonishing, truly," said the green one, opening his eyes. "Now let's see him take it out and 'and it back."

"We never learned him that trick," retorted the keeper and then turned away to stir up the monkeys and punch the hyenas.—London Tit-Bits.

Easy.

"What can a doctor do when he gets a patient who neither drinks nor smokes?"

"Tell him to stop eating certain things. Everybody eats."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Audience Enraptured

Last night the lovers of first class reproductions were given the treat of their lives at the opera house when the Sanford Dodge company opened a three nights' engagement with "Nero, the Gladiator." People living in cities the size of Montrose owe a great debt of gratitude for having a company made up of first class artists who will bring the best of talent and highest character of dramas to them.—Press, Montrose, Col.

At the Auditorium, Thief River Falls, Tuesday evening, March 21.

Mr. Lawhead—Why do you treat me so coldly? Why didn't you answer the note I wrote you last Thursday? Miss Brushley—Sir, I don't wish to have anything more to say to you. You began your note by saying you "thought you would drop me a line." I want you to understand that I'm no a fish

FOR A SPECIAL TRAIN

Quick Action Is Necessary When One Is Ordered.

WORK OF THE DISPATCHER.

This Official Has a Complicated Task in Putting the Special Through Without Interfering With the Running Time of Other Fast Trains.

Suppose you wished to take a special trip to any place on the map and the hour of your sudden resolution was 2 a. m. The chances are against knowing how to make this masterly move at such an unearthly hour, to say nothing of knowing how to go about it during the hours of business. It is easier than the uninitiated possibly may believe. Of course the principal thing is money, the thing that makes both the mare and the special train go.

The train dispatcher is the official who can start the train while his superiors are asleep and when a wild eyed man who has a race against death to make halfway across the continent dashes into the station looking for a train that will make the distance on its own schedule. What the chief dispatcher wants to be sure about is the identity of the applicant for the unusual privilege and in this connection whether he is able to pay for a special.

Five thousand dollars in bills will make the dispatcher feel very much like ordering out the train. A deposit of that amount in his hands will undoubtedly bring the train out in a few minutes after the order is given. Sometimes a call on the telephone to the residence of a well known citizen who says he will be responsible for the cost of the train will answer the requirements of the dispatcher, or the check of the applicant, if he is a well known citizen, is a sufficient guarantee. It can be made large enough to cover the bill for the special.

In the case of a wealthy man who will let nothing stand in the way of accomplishing his purpose the cost of the train is not a previous consideration. He simply wants to get to a certain point at a certain time. Getting there on time is the uppermost thought in his mind. He paces restlessly up and down the platform until the train backs into the station or out to the siding where he is notified it may be waiting for him. Unless he stipulates that a private car be used in the train he will get a Pullman all by himself or those who accompany him. The use of a private car costs more, but is preferred by the wealthy patron. When everything is ready for embarking the work of the dispatcher has just begun.

This official must put the special through without interrupting seriously the running time of other fast trains. It takes some ticklish work, for the other trains must be "cut out" on side tracks just before the special is to pass. In this way the schedules of the other trains are not broken more than a few minutes. The special dashes past on the right of way, and the regular fast train follows it. Freight trains using the same track are apt to lie on the sidings longer than the passengers because they cannot make distances between sidings quick enough to cut out in time to give the special a clear track.

The man who has paid his good money for the right to the track does not expect to be stopped en route, and it becomes the business of the railway or railways over which he is racing against time to afford him all the facilities. Usually in case of such an extraordinary emergency the railway takes great pride in making a record run and landing its patron at his destination in time to accomplish his purpose. The best engineers obtainable and a trustworthy conductor are placed in charge of the equipment of one engine and one car, for the running is at a rate of speed not undertaken in the passenger service.

Usually the extraordinary passenger is required to give the railway company some form of release from responsibility for loss of life or injury from accident due to what might be regarded under ordinary circumstances as a reckless speed, but the man who is racing to see a loved wife or daughter or son is always willing to take a greater risk than at any other time in his existence. But not only is his own life, but the lives of the train crew, in jeopardy during a wild race over the rails. However, on such an occasion the whole crew is imbued with the excitement and heroic nature of the fast mission and contribute in every way to the fulfillment of the errand.

Thousands of dollars have been paid by private citizens for just such races with death and sometimes where great financial crisis is at stake. The railway companies, despite the large honorarium received for undertaking such journeys, are loath to accept a passenger on these conditions. The crisis must be one that involves remarkable stress of mind and money. Usually their acceptance of such responsibility both to the single passenger as well as thousands of others who may be using the tracks at the same time is governed by a great deal of sentiment.—St. Louis Republic.

NOTICE OF SALE IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS

SALE OF DITCH JOB.

Notice is hereby given that on the 8th day of April, A. D. 1911, at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, at the office of the county auditor of Marshall county, Minnesota, in the court house in the city of Warren in said county, the county auditors of Marshall and Pennington counties will meet for that purpose and sell the job of digging and constructing Judicial Ditch No. 14 of Marshall and Pennington counties, together with branches thereof, shown in the engineer's report, all as established by order of the judge of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota.

Sealed bids will be received at the said time and place for the work as one job, or for one or more linear sections of one hundred feet thereof, as shown by the engineer's stakes, or for any portion of the said main ditch or branches, said work to be completed within the time required therefor and in the manner specified in the said engineer's report.

No bid will be entertained which exceeds by thirty (30) per cent the estimated cost of the construction of the part of said work covered by said bid, and no bid will be entertained unless accompanied by a certified check on a state or national bank of Minnesota for not less than ten (10) per cent of the amount of each bid, payable to A. G. Lundgren, auditor of Marshall county, Minnesota, and A. H. F[illegible]sel, auditor of Pennington county, Minnesota, said certified check of successful bidder to be forfeited to the said counties in case successful bidder fails to enter into contract and execute a bond as provided by law.

The estimates, profiles, blue-prints and specifications, and plats or maps of the said ditch are on file in the office of the clerk of district court of said Marshall county, Minnesota, in the city of Warren in said county.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the matter of the construction of such ditch is as follows:

Estimated number of cubic yards of excavation of main ditch and branches is 285,783 cubic yards of earth.

Estimated cost of the work is the sum of $37,363.10.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

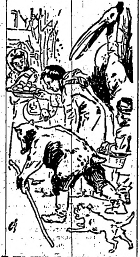
XMAS BIRDS AND BEASTS.

Picturesque Method of Celebrating Yuletide by the Poles.

The legend that the birds and beasts came to worship the infant Jesus has brought about a peculiar and picturesque method of celebrating Christmas among the Poles and other kindred peoples of eastern Europe.

Here men mask in the guise of storks, bears and other animals or birds and go about from house to house singing carols. To carry out the idea these wild birds and savage beasts are led about by keepers.

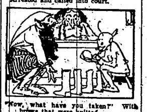


IN THE GUISE OF STORKS, BEARS AND OTHER ANIMALS.

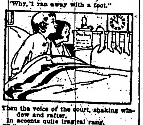
After the traditional carols are sung the inmates of the house thus honored reward the singers by gifts of cakes, sausages and other dainties. The procession then moves to another house, where the performance is repeated.

A Christmas Eve Sentence.

THERE were four little stockings of four little sizes,
According to common report,
That couldn't escape being (spite of disguises)
Arrested and called into court.



"Now, what have you taken?" With brows that were knitted
This question the magistrate put,
And each little stocking quite boldly admitted,
"Why, I ran away with a foot."



Then the voice of the court, shaking window and rafter,
In accents quite tragical rang,
While the children in bed also shook, though with laughter,
"I sentence each stocking to hang!"
T. SAPP, JR.

MY KINGDOM.

DOWN by a shining water well
I found a very little dell,
No higher than my head.
The heather and the gorse about
In summer bloom were coming out,
Some yellow and some red.

I CALLED the little pool a sea;
The little hills were big to me,
For I am very small.
I made a boat, I made a town,
I searched the caverns up and down
And named them one and all.

AND all about was mine, I said,
The little sparrows overhead,
The little minnows too.
This was the world and I was king.
For me the bees came by to sing;
For me the swallows flew.

I played there were no deeper seas
Nor any wider plains than these
Nor other kings than me.
At last I heard my mother call
Out from the house at evenfall,
To call me home to tea.

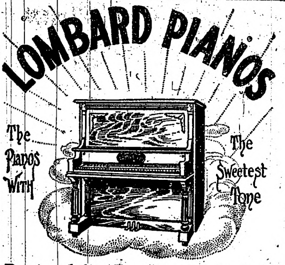
HOMEMADE ICE CREAM.

Freeze It at Least a Day Before It Is to Be Used.

"The best ice cream is stale ice cream," said the ice cream manufacturer. "You never hear of colic from ice cream among children who have never met the homemade article. It is a queer thing that it would ruin a manufacturer to sell fresh goods, whereas if you know it is homemade and just out of the freezer you will praise it to the skies as being the superior of anything manufactured anywhere.

"If you want your homemade cream to be really good and healthy make it at least a day before you use it. Churn it hard, but not too hard, and then pack it away in salted ice until you are ready to serve it. In this way all the little particles of ice which make homemade cream so gritty and really harmful will have disappeared. The cream will sort of absorb the water that forms the ice, so to speak; consequently your cream will be frozen, not frapped. It is a daring manufacturer who risks his trade by shipping cream less than a week old. Sometimes I store my goods in ice as much as two weeks. That isn't a bit too long, either, although it takes a heap of ice."—New York Press.



LOMBARD PIANOS
The Pianos With The Sweetest Tone

Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize, after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

Warned.

A serious-minded New Yorker, who, because of his dignified outlook on life, has sent his son, aged twelve, to a particularly strict and proper boarding school in New England, unexpectedly visited the school last week. Ascertaining the location of his young hopeful's room, he climbed the four flights of stairs necessary to reach it —and entered. On a mammoth placard suspended from a steel engraving of "Washington and Generals" (presented to the youth as a Christmas gift by his admiring parent) was the cheerful sentiment:

"Don't spit on the ceiling. We have lost our ladder."

A Matter of Size.

Wife—I want a cap, please, for my husband.

Shopkeeper — Yes, madam. What size does he wear?

Wife—Well, I really forget. His collars are size 16, though I expect he'd want about size 18 or 20 for a cap, wouldn't he?

The Discoverer.

Of faults a seeker he would be.
Of recompense he found a dearth,
Save in the truthful claim that he
Had picked the easiest job on earth.

SENATE COMBINE

PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRATS, LED BY STONE, MAKE OVERTURES TO THE REPUBLICANS.

TO CONTROL THE TARIFF

If Good Combination Was Effected Democrat-Insurgent Alliance Could Control By Two Majority.

Washington, D. C. — There are signs of an attempted alliance in the senate during the sixty-second congress between the radical democrats and the republican progressives, the former led by Senator Stone of Missouri, with the purpose, primarily, of strengthening the radical membership of the senate finance committee, which will have jurisdiction over all tariff bills, the Canadian reciprocity agreement, and various other important questions with which the next congress will have to deal. Overtures have already been made by Senator Stone to several leading progressives, and the understanding is that they are now being considered.

There are six vacancies on the finance committee, due to the retirement from public life on March 4 of Senators Aldrich, Hale, Burrows and Flint on the republican side and of Senators Money and Taliaferro on the democratic side. The desire of the progressives is to increase their strength in that committee; or, rather, to get some strength, for, at present, they are unrepresented there.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, through the operation of the law of seniority, is to be the next chairman of the committee, should he care for the place. Next would come Senator Cullom, who does not desire to assume the responsibilities of this important chairmanship, and after Cullom comes Lodge. But if Penrose wants the place, it will be his, and thus far there has been no sign that he will say nay. This chairmanship carries the titular leadership of the senate. Senator Bailey is the ranking democrat on the committee.

Tariff Revision Planned.

Several democratic senators have cordially indorsed the Stone suggestion since the adjournment of the recent session, and there seems to be some likelihood that an effort will be made to work it out. The main purpose of democratic senators will be, of course, to facilitate tariff revision in the next congress. They feel this can be done by placing on the finance committee such men as La Follette and Cummins and by filling the places of Money and Taliaferro with thorough-going revisionists. Those who advocate the Stone plan believe it would result in the control by the combined forces of all senate questions. If the combination can be made strong enough to force such a makeup of the finance committee, it could also control the filling of vacancies on other committees, of which there is a large number, particularly interstate commerce, appropriations and foreign relations.

The difficulty in carrying out the scheme lies in getting enough votes to put it through. There will be forty-two democratic votes in the next senate, counting another senator from New York. There will be six out-and-out progressives. Combine these forces and there would be forty-eight votes, or one more than a senate majority. In addition, Senator Borah might be counted upon, for he acts more frequently with the progressives than with the regulars.

Committee places in the senate are filled by a committee on committees, representing both political parties, and this committee always accepts the recommendations of party caucuses. The filling of the finance committee vacancies will come up at the opening of the special session, and it ought then to be known whether the Stone plan is to carry. But whether it does or not it is quite certain that the republican progressive will have at least one representative on the finance committee, presumably Senator Cummins.

"Oleo" Evidence Is Damaging.

Chicago, Ill. — During the trial of Joseph F. Wirth, Antony Wirth and Patrick Raidy on the charge of coloring oleomargarine illegally, documentary evidence was introduced to show that the W. J. Moxley company had furnished coloring matter and tub liners to oleomargarine "moonshiners." More than six thousand pounds of oleomargarine, alleged to have been colored illegally was brought before the jury in the United States district court and introduced as evidence.

FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA
FREE

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time

—not a year from now when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 60 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Kind but Careless.

John P. Irish, the San Francisco orator and officeholder, was entertaining Joaquin Miller, the poet, one night. Upon hearing a particularly funny story by the host the poet fell off his chair in a paroxysm of mirth.

Irish thought the poet had a seizure of some kind and he rushed to the sideboard, took a bottle of whisky and stuck the top of it into Miller's mouth, hoping to revive him.

"What is it?" asked Irish solicitously.

"Remove the cork!" whispered the poet, hoarsely. "Remove the cork!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Cause and Effect.

"I see from the papers," said Dawson, "that there is a great scarcity of chorus girls this year."

"I was afraid there would be," said Wiggles. "It's only another case of cause and effect. The French champagne crop has practically failed, and lobsters are scarcer than hens' teeth this season."—Harper's Weekly.

EDITOR BROWNE

Of The Rockford Morning Star.

"About seven years ago I ceased drinking coffee to give your Postum a trial.

"I had suffered acutely from various forms of indigestion and my stomach had become so disordered as to repel almost every sort of substantial food. My general health was bad. At close intervals I would suffer severe attacks which confined me in bed for a week or more. Soon after changing from coffee to Postum the indigestion abated, and in a short time ceased entirely. I have continued the daily use of your excellent Food Drink and assure you most cordially that I am indebted to you for the relief it has brought me.

"Wishing you a continued success, I am

Yours very truly,
J. Stanley Browne,
Managing Editor."

Of course, when a man's health shows he can stand coffee without trouble, let him drink it, but most highly organized brain-workers simply cannot.

The drugs natural to the coffee berry affect the stomach and other organs and thence to the complex nervous system, throwing it out of balance and producing disorders in various parts of the body. Keep up this daily poisoning and serious disease generally supervenes. So when man or woman finds that coffee is a smooth but deadly enemy and health is of any value at all, there is but one road—quit.

It is easy to find out if coffee be the cause of the troubles, for if left off 10 days and Postum be used in its place and the sick and diseased conditions begin to disappear, the proof is unanswerable.

Postum is not good if made by short boiling. It must be boiled full 15 minutes after boiling begins, when the crisp flavor and the food elements are brought out of the grains and the beverage is ready to fulfill its mission of palatable comfort and renewing the cells and nerve centers broken down by coffee.

In Minnesota.

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Lake City.—At a meeting of the board of education, O. W. Brown of Granite Falls, was elected superintendent of the city schools.

Bemidji.—The jury in the case of Charles Stebbins, accused of having abused his 13-year-old niece, brought in a verdict of guilty. The law provides that he may be imprisoned from seven to thirty years.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 16.—A cold wave reached this city accompanied by the most disagreeable dust storm in years. The snow is entirely gone and clouds of dust obscured the sun all of the afternoon.

Thief River Falls.—The socialist local is making arrangements for the appearance of Alexander Irvine of New York City in this city some time in May. Mr. Irvine is traveling under the Appeal to Reason bureau and is a noted speaker.

Albert Lea.—Peter Nelson, a farmer living north of this city, sustained the loss of a large barn and all its contents by a fire. Thirty-five head of cattle were burned. The loss is several thousand dollars and there was but $1,000 insurance.

Fergus Falls.—Coroner Vigen was notified that Alfred Peppling of the town of Felden had been killed in a runaway. Peppling had started for Henning during the forenoon, and his body was found in the road by neighbors. His skull was fractured. He leaves a family.

Pipestone.—Pipestone citizens are planning on celebrating St. Patrick's Day at Flandreau this year. The members of the A. O. H. of that place are arranging a big celebration and among the speakers will be George W. Egan, of Sioux Falls, president of the South Dakota state A. O. H. society.

Moorhead.—The second meeting of the Clay County Potato Growers' and Shippers' Association will be held in this city March 25. The visitors will be entertained at a luncheon by the Commercial Club. A trademark has been designed and will be adopted and a plan for uniformity of grading all potatoes shipped for domestic purposes, or seed, will be considered.

Moorhead.—Several changes have been made in the faculty of Concordia Lutheran college for 1911-1912. Professor A. T. Tonning of the University of Michigan, will head the department of German, and Miss Evelyn Anderson of the same institution, will teach mathematics. Professor Elden of St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minn., will teach sciences, Vice Professor J. P. Hertsgaard, resigned.

Red Wing.—The Republican city convention will be held on Thursday, April 15, at 2 p. m. There will be placed in nomination candidates for mayor, city treasurer, two justices of the peace, two constables, one alderman at large and an alderman from each of the four wards, one member of the board of education from the Second ward and one member at large. The primaries will be held April 12.

Austin.—Colonel A. W. Wright, in accordance with orders issued from the war department at Washington, has named Major N. Nicholsen of Austin, Major W. T. Mollison of Faribault, and Captain O. J. Quan of St. Peter, and Captain William P. Townsend of Faribault, four officers of the Second regiment, M. N. G., to attend the army maneuvers in the Mexican frontier, the government to pay all expenses.

Red Wing.—The following commission has been appointed by the district court to prepare amendments to the city charter covering electrical railway franchises and other matters connected therewith: J. H. Croff, John H. Rich, C. A. Rasmussen, H. L. Hjermstad, A. P. Pierce, E. C. Erb, W. H. Putnam, J. F. Swanson, Ben Gerlach, E. H. Foot, C. E. Fridrich, C. H. Tiedeman, C. H. Meyer, L. C. Stromberg, A. B. Crandall.

Cass Lake.—One of the most interesting land sales in this vicinity was made by M. N. Koll to John Marks of Regina, Canada. Marks purchased a quarter section of land from Mr. Koll for $3,200. Great interest attaches to this sale on account of the fact that Marks after several years in Canada, where he owned a farm, decided that land in Northern Minnesota was preferable to Canadian land and acted upon his belief by bringing his money back from Canada and investing here.

Breckenridge.—The annual meeting of school officers and teachers of Wilkin county was attended by several hundred and the large auditorium of the high school was crowded to its capacity. The program included addresses by President Weld of the Moorhead Normal school, President Smith of the North Dakota State School of Science, H. T. McAnulty of Red Lake Falls and Professor Howard of the Agricultural College of this state. A feature was an old-fashioned spell down, in which about fifty grade pupils participated.

Moorhead.—Directors of the Commercial club of this city have called a second meeting of the Clay County Potato Shippers and Growers' association which will be the most important meeting of those interested in agriculture ever held in this county. At this meeting, which is called for March 25, articles of incorporation will be submitted by the committee appointed at the first meeting to draft them, and an organization will be perfected. A trademark signifying as to the genuineness of the potatoes shipper will be submitted and it is probable will be adopted.

Brainerd.—Due in part to agitation resulting from the publication of former Public Examiner Schaefer's report on the condition of affairs at the Crow Wing county poor farm, where the county paid $600 in one year to keep a single pauper, the county commissioners have adopted a new plan and have leased the farm to the superintendent, Carl E. Wheeler, for a term of two years. The county and the superintendent are to share equally in the crops and increase and the county is to furnish the seed. Paupers are to be boarded at $20 a month.

A Helpless Invalid

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo.—"When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it had all been taken I was as well and strong as ever,—my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change."—Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:—

Jonesboro, Texas.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial."—Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

☛ If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

MILD, GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN GIVEN FREE

So many of the ills of women are due to habitual constipation, probably because of their false modesty on the subject, that their attention cannot be too strongly called to the importance of keeping the bowels open. It is always important to do that, regardless of the sex, but it is especially important in women.

From the time the girl begins to menstruate until menstruation ceases she has always vastly better prospects of coming through healthy if she watches her bowel movements. If you find yourself constipated, with bad breath, pimply complexion, headaches, belching gas and other symptoms of indigestion and constipation, take a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a woman's favorite laxative. You will find that you can do away with salts, strong cathartics, etc., which are entirely unsuited to woman's requirements.

Mrs. Katherine Haberstroh of McKees Rocks, Pa., and Mrs. A. E. Herrick of Wheeler, Mich., who was almost paralysed in her stomach and bowels, are now cured by the use of this remedy. A free sample bottle can be obtained by addressing Dr. Caldwell, and after you are convinced of its merits buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

a of the senate.

The lieutenant-governor's room, bad-
y damaged but not wrecked.

The senate and assembly chambers, both flushed with water that has ruined their rich furnishing and the papier mache ceiling of the latter is hanging in straggling shreds of half dissolved paper. This ceiling, with its handsome adornment, is said to have cost a great sum and was one of the show sights of the capitol.

On the fourth floor in the west wing the wrecked offices are: The court of claims, in which many important legal documents were on file; the bill drafting department; the bureau of weights and measures; the state regent's rooms; the state prison commission; the state educational department, containing many valuable books of scientific and historical interest.

On the second floor the damaged rooms are: The attorney general's office; the state excise department, probably swept by flames.

On the first floor the damaged departments include the offices of the state treasurer and state tax commissioner; the state board of charities and the state commission of lunacy; the lower office of the state educational department.

Practically all the offices below the third floor, including the executive chamber, were damaged by smoke and water.

The departments which escaped the ravage of fire and the deluge of water include the court of appeals; secretary of state's office; department of public works; the state superintendent of prisons' office; the state civil service commission; the forest, fish and game department.

The restaurant, telegraph offices and press bureaus along the "midway" on the third floor also escaped damage.

Night Watchman Missing.

While the fire was at its height four men were reported missing. One of them, Samuel Abbott, of Syracuse, is still missing, and is believed to have been burned to death. His body probably is buried beneath the mass of debris.

Governor Dix was aroused shortly after 4 a. m. and remained in close touch with the firemen by telephone until the fire was declared to be under control. Practically all the state officials and many of the city officers were also on the ground.

Fire Discovered in Library.

The caucus last night did not adjourn until nearly 1 a. m. and a few stragglers remained in the building when the fire broke out.

An attache of the assembly library, returning for some overlooked papers, discovered a tiny blaze near his desk. There had been a complaint filed during the day that an electric switch was out of order, and this is supposed to have started the fire.

Running out of the corridor the clerk summoned a night watchman and, with the assistance of two newspaper men, efforts were made to put out the fire, which probably could have been done had a fire extinguisher or bucket of water been available. Lacking these the flames spread until the room with its inflammable furnishings and paper was all ablaze. It was some time before the firemen arrived, and before

rary proper to the safe in his on the first floor the original mancipation proclamation, the origi-
al of Washington's farewell address, the original manuscript of the state constitution and fifteen or twenty of the other priceless manuscripts, as well as all the Washington relics. These all have been removed from the building to a place of safety since the fire started.

Commissioner Draper said that most of the manuscripts that have been lost were original documents and cannot be replaced. The early Dutch records were lost. Of the books on the state library shelves which can be duplicated in the open market today, such duplication would cost, according to Commissioner Draper, $1,500,000, but he says the value of the other books and manuscripts, because of their being rarities, is priceless. Commissioner Draper estimated that the loss of documents and equipment of the state library which could be replaced was in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. He has arranged to carry on the work of his department in the state normal school.

Next to the financial loss the chief effect of the fire will be inevitable delay in the machinery of state government. Although the senate chamber stands practically untouched and a few thousand dollars can restore the meeting place of the lower house, a week, or longer may intervene before legislative business can proceed in its accustomed channels.

Both houses met in the city hall across a short stretch of park from the capitol building, the senate in the council chamber and the assembly in the county court room, where the joint session also was held. The burned out department forces found temporary quarters where the could.

No Insurance Carried.

The state carried no insurance, as the capitol building had been regarded as fireproof. It was, in fact, not the building that burned, but its contents. The fourth floor space in the west end did nearly four times the service it was originally intended for.

Most precious, from the historian's standpoint, of the fuel the flames found in their path were the 23 manuscript folios of the famous official records of the governors of the City of New Amsterdam, covering a period from 1630 to 1674. These were in course of translation. The translations were burned with the original Dutch documents.

In addition to these the state lost the correspondence of Governor Geo. Clinton, 5,000 pieces in all, and the original letters of Sir William Johnson and Governor Daniel D. Tompkins.

ALBANY CAUCUS TAKES NO VOTE.

Regular Democrats Hope to Make Bargain With Insurgents.

Albany, N. Y., March 30.—The third session of the reconvened Democratic senatorial causus lasted just long enough to permit Senator Cullen to move for an adjournment.

The expectation of many that an overnight agreement would be reached whereby the insurgents would be made to feel their way clear to attending in a body was not realized. None of the insurgents attended.

An interesting factor in the situation appears to be a division among the Republicans regarding the expediency of helping the insurgents to name a man. This lack of Republican harmony is understood to have encouraged the regular Democrats to procrastinate in the hope of an emergency arising by which they can make a better bargain with the insurgents.

KENYON IS REPUBLICAN CHOICE.

Nominated for Senator by 60 Out of 104 Members of Party.

Des Moines, March 30.—At a caucus of 60 out of 104 Republican members of the Iowa legislature Judge W. S. Kenyon was nominated as the Republican party candidate for United States senator, to succeed Senator Dolliver.

Of the 44 absentees 15 have voted for Kenyon hitherto. Sixty-four members signed the caucus call, but the Republicans who have been voting for Judge H. E. Deemer did not sign or participate in the caucus.

On the only ballot taken Judge Kenyon received 53 votes, a majority of all Republican members in the legislature and Judge Deemer received 6. One vote was cast for Speaker Stillman.

Iowa Court House Burns.

Fort Madison, Ia., March 30.—Fire which consumed the county court house threatened the entire business section. All of the county records were destroyed.

GOVERNOR GUEST

EBERHART GIVES CROOKSTON CLASS '11 ADVICE ON APPLYING KNOWLEDGE.

FARM SCHOOL CLASS DAY

Dean Woods Gives Diplomas—State Executive Sees Work at School Demonstrated, As Part of Program.

Crookston.—In the auditorium building at the Crookston School of Agriculture, the class day exercises were held, Superintendent C. G. Selvig presiding.

The graduating class includes Elsie May Barrett, Julia Brunn, Helen Harriet Coulter, Hildur Louise Erlandson, Carl Gustaf Eklund, Mae Gunness, Harry Hedin, Victor Eugene Johnson, Olga Claudia Lindfors, Winifred Cecil McDonald, Vesta Louise Misner, Angeline Mueller, Peter Nelson, Nottof Senum, John Thorkelson, Silas Benjamin Torvend.

Essays On Practical Topics.

The papers and essays were as follows: Class essay, "Prepared, Yet Just Begun," Winifred McDonald; "The Drainage Problem," John Thorkelson; "For What Have I My Education?" Elsie Barrett; "The Dairy Cow," Silas Torvend; "The Four-Course Dinner," Hildur Erlandson; "Milk Testing," Vesta Misner and Peter Nelson; "Co-operation Among Farmers," Carl Eklund; Class Song, written by Harriet Coulter; "Crop Rotation," Otto Senum; class history, read by Angeline Mueller; class prophecy, by Harry Hedin and the class will by Mae Gunness.

The comemncement exercises were held next afternoon. The morning was of great practical value as illustrating the nature of the work being done by the school, through regular class demonstration. Governor Eberhart and Dean Woods were among the spectators.

The afternoon exercises opened at 2 o'clock and following music and the invocation, Victor Johnson read an able paper on "Farming in Northwestern Minnesota," following which there was a demonstration of skirt draughting by Julia Brunn and Olga Lindfors.

Governor Eberhart, in address, complimented the students upon the evidences of the excellent work done, and impressed them with the great bearing on the future of the school their future success would have. He urged them to give their best efforts following the lines of instruction they had received.

The presentation of diplomas by Dean Albert F. Woods followed an address in which he gave the graduating class and the student body in general some practical advice. The alumni reunion takes place on Friday evening in Stephens hall.

East Grand Forks Is Defendant.

East Grand Forks.—East Grand Forks' city public utilities commission, which has been involved in legal squabbles almost since the day of its birth, is again in court. This time Martin O'Brien, a well known Crookston lawyer, enters suit against the city for services performed as counsel for the public utilities commission. The city council refused to allow such claim, contending that the city was not liable for expenses created by a board of that nature. The outcome of the case will be of interest to public utility commission cities throughout the state of Minnesota, dtermining, as it will, the powers of such commissions along this line of action.

Detroit Judge Is Dead.

Rochester.—Judge Morse H. Rohnert, of Detroit, Mich., who underwent an operation at the Mayo hospital here ten days ago and was thought to be convalescent, died at his rooms at the Hotel Kahler, where he had been taken several days ago. Mrs. Rohnert was with him when the unexpected and sudden end came. Death was so sudden and so unexpected that no physicians were at his bedside, according to statements made by officials of the hotel tonight. The body will be taken back to Detroit tomorrow morning.

Minneapolis.—The greatest melodrama of the age comes to the Bijou, Minneapolis, the week of April 5th. It is called "The White Captive," and the scenes are laid in the far West. It is the greatest success and the most sensational melodrama ever produced on the American stage.

Perishes in Muskeg.

Duluth.—A miner whose name has not been ascertained met with a terrible fate near Hibbing during the winter. He was caught in the muskeg in a swamp near the Albany mine and was frozen to death. His body was just found submerged to the hips. It is supposed that he was taking a short cut to the mine, at night, and sank to a depth that held him fast, where he died from cold. The man was an Italian and had tried to write a few lines before he died, but they are not decipherable.

GUARDSMEN GOING TO TEXAS.

Five Minnesota Officers Chosen to Report at San Antonio, April 5.

Minneapolis. — Five officers attend the maneuvers of the regular army in Texas. They have been directed to report on or before April 5 to the commanding general at San Antonio, Texas.

Those selected are: Lieutenant Bert M. Lennon, adjutant of the Minneapolis battalion; Captain George E. Leach of the local artillery battery; Major Thomas C. Clark, medical corps, Stillwater; Captain O. J. Quame of Company K, Second regiment, St. Peter, and Captain Caswell, commanding Company B of the Third at Anoka.

The orders to appoint these officers were received from the war department. General Wood was instructed to appoint two company commanders of the infantry, one regimental or battalion adjutant, one battery officer and one officer of the medical corps.

Their tour of duty will last 14 days exclusive of the time occupied in travel.

INCORPORATE POWER COMPANY.

Winona Capitalists Finance Plant to Distribute Electricity.

Winona.—The Minnesota-Wisconsin Power Company, financed by Winona capital, filed articles of incorporation here. The incorporators are all wealthy men.

The company, it is announced, will distribute electricity for light and power to the cities of Wabasha, Lake City, Red Wing, Hastings, South St. Paul and possibly Winona. The current will be furnished from the plant at Eau Claire, Wis., to the towns named.

It is said the company plans the building of interurban lines in this section.

The incorporators are: W. B. Parsons, C. A. Boalt, S. H. Somsen, Frank Horton and H. S. Youmans, all residents of this city.

ST. PAUL FIGHTS SMOKE LID.

Association of Commerce Fears Switchyards Will Move Away.

St. Paul. — The newly organized St. Paul Association of Commerce at a special meeting decided to use every possible means to prevent the passage of the proposed ordinance prohibiting the use of soft coal for fuel in switch engines within the city limits.

H. E. Kemp, locomotive engineer, declared if the measure became a law, railroads centering in St. Paul would move their switch terminals beyond the corporate limits of the city. He requested that something be done to fight the passage of the ordinance, which would compel several thousand families now owning St. Paul homes to move.

17,315 VISIT TRAIN.

Figures On Seed Trips Compiled by Agricultural Expert.

Minneapolis.—Statistics given out by A. D. Wilson, head of the extension division of the college of agriculture, show that the special seed train in its twenty days of operation over different lines made 166 stops and was visited by 17,315 persons.

The train ran on the Omaha rails for four days, made forty stops, and received 4,445 visitors; on the Milwaukee three days, made thirty stops, for 2,680 visitors; on the St. Louis, three days, made twenty-seven stops, for 2,700 visitors; on the Soo line four days, with thirty-six stops, for 3,365 visitors, and in six days on the Northern Pacific lines, made thirty-three stops, and received 4,125 visitors.

FIRE AT KASOTA.

Grain Cleaning House Damaged and Loaded Grain Cars Burned.

Kasota.—The Kasota Elevator Company's cleaning house was damaged by fire, and four box cars loaded with grain and three empty box cars were destroyed. The cleaning house is owned by Chicago men and the loss is estimated at $10,000 to $15,000, mostly on grain. It has a capacity of 250,000 bushels, and is used mostly for cleaning barley. The fire was caused by sparks from a locomotive igniting a pile of grain doors. The company has its own fire protection, and by hard work the building was saved. Mankato was asked for help, but it being such a windy and dry day the authorities there did not dare reduce its own fire protection.

Another Minneapolis Fire.

Minneapolis. — Fanned by a strong south wind, a small bonfire started by children at play in an alley set fire to buildings and houses around it, swept the neighborhood between Fifteenth and Eighteen streets and Park and Portland avenues and caused a loss estimated at $30,000, leaving five families homeless.

An entire half block was devasted by the fire, the sparks carried by the wind igniting eight houses and barns four and five blocks away. In all 16 houses and barns were burned and the four-story frame warehouse of the Tyler Lumber company.

LINCOLN CAR DESTROYED.

Historic Relic Burned in Prairie Fire at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis. — The old and historic private traveling carriage of Abraham Lincoln and the car that carried his dead body from Washington to Springfield, Ill., for burial in 1865, was totally destroyed by a prairie fire that swept Columbia Heights, burning every bit of dry grass in the northeast part of the city and setting fire to the shed in which the car had been stored for several years.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, March 25.—The senate passed by a vote of 49 to 7 the Haycraft direct primary bill to apply to all state officers, including governor and lieutenant governor.

But in the course of the discussion, the senators placed themselves in the peculiar position of voting to have the party platforms made in convention composed exclusively of nominees for the legislature and senators holding over, while a few minutes later they voted 37 to 18 that the platforms so made should not be binding upon any nominee and that he could go back to his district, or stump the state, as the candidate of his party, at the same time disavowing the platform which he had helped to make and running on any old plank that happened to suit his fancy or be good politics.

The final roll call on the passage of the bill was as follows: aye, Ahmann, Anderson, Bedford, Benson, Boyle, Carpenter, Cashman, Cheadle, Clague, C. F. Cook, Dale, Denegre, Donaldson, Duxbury, Dwinnell, Elwell, Fosseen, Froshaug, Glotzbach, Gunderson, Hackney, Hanson, Haycraft, Johnson, V. L. Johnston, Klean, Lende, L'Herault, McGrath, Marden, Moonan, Murray, Nelson, Odell, Olson, Peterson, Pugh, Putnam, Rockne, Rustad, Sageng, Saugstad, Schaller, Stebbins, Sullivan, J. D. Sundberg, Swanson, Thoe, Wallace, Weis, Wilson.

Those voting no were: Coller, L. C. Cooke, Dunn, Gunn, Johnson, C. D., G. H. Sullivan, VanHoven.

Arguments for and against the Rochne public utilities bill were heard before the house committee on telephones and telegraphs. The hearing was public and the public took advantage of it to express its views at length.

The bill provides that all telephone and telegraph companies operating within the state shall be under the supervision of the state tax commission. The two main features of the bill are that the tax commission is authorized to compell all telephone companies to allow other companies to use their lines when necessary to complete long distance calls and taking the power of granting franchises away from the towns and vesting it in the tax commission.

The Spooner waterways bill, placing all water powers on navigable streams under the control and regulation of the state, passed the lower house of the legislature by a vote of 84 to 28. Its advocates declare that it is a decided step towards the conservation of the resources of Minnesota.

St. Paul, March 29.—Turning the tables on the attackers of the dignity of the house, friends of Speaker Dunn overturned their enemies and won a notable victory in the house.

Seeing the way things were turning against them, friends of Representative Klemer, who had charged that the committee of the house were "packed in the interest of the special interests," attempted to turn the tide by inducing Representative Klemer to apologize. He did so, but in his apology he retracted nothing relative to the charges he had made and his apology was refused by the friends of the speaker.

Just at the moment when the house insurgents thought they had scored a parliamentary victory by putting across the apology of the offending member, Speaker Dunn, sitting in the chair of a member in the rear of the house, arose in his seat. Pointing a finger at the offending member, he moved that Representative Klemer, and Representative W. T. Stone who had joined in the charges of Representative Klemer, be brought to the bar of the house.

Vote of Censure Passed.

After considerable jockeying in a session which lasted all day, the vote of censure, accompanied by an amendment offered by Representative Pfaender, house leader of the Democrats, criticizing Representative Klemer and declaring his charges false, was adopted.

The adoption of the motion to censure did not occur until the afternoon, and not until Representative Dunn had lost his temper and Representative Clinton Robinson, of Winona, had declared that "he had had an idea for a long time that even the representatives of the press were packed" and several other things had occurred.

After many parliamentary moves designed to protect the representatives from the wrath of the house, Speaker Dunn's motin was finally adopted.

Representatives Stone and Klemer were accordingly brought before the bar of the house.

Standing there they were questioned as to the reasons which had caused them to make the charges accredited to them. Mr. Klemer declined to answer and was excused.

Stone More Aggressive.

In his own statement, Representative Stone was a little more aggressive than the dazed and helpless Representative Klemer, but he acknowledged that he had no charges to make. He took refuge on the ground that he had not had time in which to make his charges complete.

After admitting he had no definite charges to make, Representative Stone was finally excused, and the house settled down to the ordinary run of existence and adjourned.

The Day in the Senate.

Senator J. D. Sullivan's bill prohibiting the use of any but Minnesota building materials in public buildings was referred back to its author at his own request. He explained that the board of control had assured him a resolution to the same effect passed early in the session would have the same effect morally as a law.

Senator Gletzbach's bill to tax every professor of healing, not a graduate of a medical college, $500 a head, was recommended for indefinite postponement.

St. Paul, March 30.—O. F. Doyle of St. Cloud told the house drainage investigating committee that George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, attempted to cancel ditch contracts with him and to give them to the Standard Dredging company, of which D. A. Stuart, his attorney, is part owner. Mr. Doyle is a ditch contractor and was called to tell what he knew about the contract for ditch No. 61 in Polk county, which was taken away from him.

The committee held an executive meeting to confer with Examiner O'Hearn of the public examiner's office who just returned from northern Minnesota where he investigated the Polk county records relative to the indictment of Mr. Ralph some years ago. At that time the state drainage engineer was indicted for alleged irregularities in the construction of a judicial ditch, but the case was later dropped. An attempt was made to inject evidence relative to this ditch in the present investigation, but Attorney Stewart objected on the ground that it had already been disproved of by the grand jury. C. H. Warner of Aitkin declared that the case was dismissed on a technicality. Mr. O'Hearn recently investigated the records in Polk county to ascertain whether or not there was sufficient reason for an indictment.

B. A. Stuart headed off an attempt to pry into the Wawina Land company by the special committee of the house investigating the state drainage engineer. O. S. Doyle was on the stand at the hearing when Chairman Knapp asked him who was benefited by the construction of the ditch through Wawina lake. Mr. Stuart objected and was sustained.

Mr. Knapp sustained the objection.

A. W. Rieck, a former ditch inspector, was brought prominently into the investigation when four letters of his to Mr. Doyle were read. They hinted directly of some understanding between the inspector and Doyle, and spoke of confidential matters. Mr. Doyle said he did not know what the confidential matters were. In one letter Rieck wrote, "there is something doing with the bunch." There is no explanation of what constituted "the bunch."

The spirit of economy is permeating the house committee on rules. Plans are under way to save the state $100 a day by releasing a dozen clerks, stenographers and sergeants whose services they believe the lower branch of the legislature can forego for the rest of the session. Two clerks of the reapportionment committee who have been drawing $10 a day since the beginning of the session and who have had nothing to do since the reapportionment bill was reported out six weeks ago will be among the unfortunate ones. A stenographer for this committee at $5 a day and also a draftsman at $10 a day will come under the ax.

W. E. McEwen, former labor commissioner, defended before the senate finance committee a bill appropriating to him $1,500 for expenses on an European trip with the Minnesota Workmen's Compensation commission. He said that, aside from the code now before the legislature with his name attached, the state of Minnesota was benefited by the ideas of safety devices he had brought back, many of which were already adopted by employers here.

Senator Moonan's recall bill passed the senate by a vote of 48 to 10. The bill was declared for in the platforms of both the Democratic and Republican parties. It was introduced in the senate by Senator Moonan, a Democrat, and in the house by Representative Kneeland, a Republican. The Moonan bill that passed the senate, will probably be substituted in the house for the Kneeland bill, which is now on general orders.

$20,000 FINES FOR ART FRAUD.

Duveen Brothers Plead Guilty and Judge Martin Assesses Maximum.

New York, N. Y.—Louis J. Duveen and Joseph Duveen, members of the art importing firm of Duveen Brothers, pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to defraud the federal government by making under-valuations of imports. Judge Martin, of the United States circuit court, fined the importers $10,000 each, the maximum fine which was paid.

WON'T PARDON BANKERS.

President Will Follow Recommendation of the Attorney-General.

Washington, D. C.—From sources close to the president it was learned that the pardon appeals of the two convicted bankers, Charles W. Morse, of New York, and John R. Walsh, of Chicago, undoubtedly will be denied. It is stated that the attorney general's recommendation in both cases is adverse and that the president will follow its findings.

CHARITY AND CHEWING GUM

Disparity That Hardly Seems Creditable to the Generous Instincts of the Race.

According to a statement before a meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Presbytery of Washington an interesting statement regarding the money spent for chewing gum and that given to charity was made. The speaker was Miss Mary W. Kerr of Harrisburg, Pa., in connection with the topic of "Frenzied Finance in Missions." In urging the society to be more liberal in its contributions to charitable work, she said: "For every $3,000 contributed to charity, $17,000 is spent for chewing gum."

The statement passed almost unnoticed except by a few, who saw the pertinence and logic of the remark.

The house has passed the resolution ratifying the income tax amendment to the federal constitution.

The senate has passed the bill to prohibit the sale of "malt" except in licensed saloons.

Ceded Chippewa Indian lands to the extent of 43,000 acres, lying in Red Lake, Marshall, Polk, and Pennington counties, will be opened for settlement April 15 and to entry May 15. The price to settlers is $4.00 an acre, one-fifth to be paid down, balance in five equal annual payments.

Two weeks from next Wednesday the Minnesota legislature by constitutional limitation must take final adjournment. Of more than 2,000 bills introduced less than half a hundred have been enacted into law and a majority of these are not of general interest. The few most important measures—those in which the people are most interested—either have been or probably will be killed.

NOTICE OF SALE IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS

SALE OF DITCH JOB.

Notice is hereby given that on the 5th day of April, A. D. 1911, at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, at the office of the county auditor of Marshall county, Minnesota, in the court house in the city of Warren in said county, the county auditors of Marshall and Pennington counties will meet for that purpose and sell the job of digging and constructing Judicial Ditch No. 14 of Marshall and Pennington counties, together with branches thereof, shown in the engineer's report, all as established by order of the judge of the district court of Marshall county, Minnesota.

Sealed bids will be received at the said time and place for the work as one job, or for one or more linear sections of one hundred feet thereof, as shown by the engineer's stakes or for any portion of the said main ditch or branches, said work to be completed within the time required therefor and in the manner specified in the said engineer's report.

No bid will be entertained which exceeds by thirty (30) per cent the estimated cost of the construction of the part of said work covered by said bid, and no bid will be entertained unless accompanied by a certified check on a state or national bank of Minnesota for not less than ten (10) per cent of the amount of each bid, payable to A. G. Lundgren, auditor of Marshall county, Minnesota, and A. H. Fasel, auditor of Pennington county, Minnesota, said certified check of successful bidder to be forfeited to the said counties in case successful bidder fails to enter into contract and execute a bond as provided by law.

The estimates, profiles, blue-prints, and specifications, and plats or maps of the said ditch are on file in the office of the clerk of district court of said Marshall county, Minnesota, in the city of Warren in said county.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the matter of the construction of such ditch is as follows:

Estimated number of cubic yards of excavation of main ditch and branches is 296,783 cubic yards of earth.

Estimated cost of the work is the sum of $50,365.19.

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Parvlance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

WHEN IT REALLY WAS WARM

Incident Related by Mr. Bings Put an End to the Hot Weather Stories.

"Hot in Brazil!" said the young man who had just returned from a trip to South America, according to the Chicago Daily News. "Well, I should say so. Do you know, for days at a time we couldn't take our after dinner siesta on account of the peculiar noises." "What noises?" asked the blonde stenographer, innocently. "Why, the coffee popping on the trees. You see, the sun was so hot the grains just roasted before they were picked." The old traveler yawned. "Rather warm down there, bub," he rejoined, laconically, "but when I was down there you couldn't sleep at night. Every once in a while there would sound the most extraordinary crackling noise that ever fell upon the human ear." "What were the sounds, Mr. Bings?" And Mr. Bings yawned again and replied: "The rubber trees stretching themselves."

A Dramatic Critic.

"And what is your father's business, my little man?" asked Rev. Fourthly, as he made his morning call on the infant class.

"He's a dam-at-it kick-it," said the little chap, whose father wrote dramatic criticism for a newspaper.—Harper's Weekly.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910.

Keep Watch on the Tuberculous.

The Italian government, on account of the number of tuberculosis cases among the Italian emigrants sent back from America, has appointed boards of examiners in the seaports, whose duty it is to report the arrival of tuberculous persons. These are then kept under observation in those places where they settle, to prevent further spread of the disease. The erection of new sanitoria and other tuberculosis institutions is being urged in Italy, and the number of beds for consumptives has been considerably increased in different places.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

GOPHER NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota Events of the Week in Condensed Form.

Pipestone.—Rev. W. F. Jones, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, has received a call to the First Presbyterian church at Kewanee, Ill.

St. Cloud.—The low stage of Lake George, in the heart of the city, has caused that body of water to give off an odor which can be detected for blocks. The council will investigate.

Little Falls.—Contracts were closed by the Duclos brick yards here for the shipment of 2,500,000 brick this summer 2,000,000 going to International Falls and 500,000 to the Watab Pulp and Paper Company at Sartell.

Hibbing.—The Swan River Logging company had a successful season, the cut amounting to 35,000,000 feet. In addition the company's logging road from Chisholm has been completed. The company will do some logging the coming summer.

Fergus Falls.—The Congregational and Presbyterian churches are about to unite and will hold joint services in the future if present plans materialize. The pastor of the Congregational church has resigned in order that there may be no impediment to the proposed union.

Faribault.—Captain William Milligan of this city has been retired from the Minnesota National Guard with the rank of captain after thirty-four years of continuous service. He is the ranking officer on the retired list. He is also a veteran of the civil war and is 70 years of age.

Warren.—John Watson, who was bound over to the grand jury by Justice Braggans for "blindpigging" and selling intoxicants to a drunkard on the black list, pleaded guilty and was fined $75 and thirty days in jail. The jail sentence will be suspended upon payment of the fine during good behavior.

St. Paul.—George T. Simpson, attorney general, announces the appointment of William J. Stevenson, of Duluth, and S. Louis Weeks, of Minneapolis, as assistants in his office. Mr. Weeks has been connected with the department for the last three years in the capacity of a clerk. The appointment is a promotion.

Hallock.—T. M. George has purchased the gun and relic collection owned by Nels Olander. The collection consists of about 200 guns, pistols, swords, spears, javelins, suits and pieces of armor. Many of the guns have no duplicates. Among them is a small derringer, an exact duplicate of the weapon that killed President Garfield.

Winona.—The petition of W. E. Hamilton, present reform mayor, who was elected two years ago on the Democratic ticket, was filed, carrying 419 names. He was qualified to have his name placed on the ballots for the coming city election as an "independent" condidate. A three-cornered fight will be the result. The election takes place April 3.

East Grands Forks.—About $10,000 damage was done in a fire in this city, which gutted the Jarvis storage building and two adjoining structures. In the Jarvis building there was a large quantity of hay, which made the fire a hard one to fight. This morning the department was called out again to the same building, the fire having gained a new start.

St Peter.—A fight to have the saloonkeepers live up to the law, which, it is claimed, some of them have not been doing, has been begun here. Complaints have been filed against ten of them on the charge of selling liquor to minors, and when these cases have been disposed of it is said that complaints are to be filed charging selling liquor to students and operating slot machines illegally.

Albert Lea.—The Albert Lea debaters won in the contest with the team from the high school of Austin at the latter place, the question being, "Resolved, That Minnesota cities should adopt the commission form of government," the victors having the negative side. The debaters from this city were Josephine Suren, Helen Hobart and William Augur. There was a large crowd present, the judges being Superintendent Kunze, of Owatonna, Superintendent Young, of Wells, and Superintendent Montgomery, of Faribault.

Roseau. — The so-called Algoma ditches, which are being surveyed and which affect the towns of Algoma and 162-38 and 162-39, will be ordered constructed by the state drainage commission when the survey is completed. The construction of these ditches was objected to by Israel Sjoberg, of this city, because he was of the opinion that benefits could not be assessed against homestead lands and government lands. Upon investigation the state legal department held that the Volstead act covers the objection and makes the assessment of benefit to United States land for ditch purposes legal.

HIDE BOOTY IN CHURCH.

Valuables Stolen From Dilworth Postoffice Are Found In Altar.

Moorhead.—While cleaning the Presbyterian church at Dilworth preparatory to services Leslie Burr discovered the $1,000 draft and other booty stolen from the Dilworth postoffice. The registered draft, together with a number of stamp books, was found concealed in the altar. Nothing else found in the church, however, furnished a clue to the identity of the robbers.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

Willing to Tell It.

The check which the comely young German handed in at the window of a Walnut street savings fund bank the other day was made payable to Gretchen Schmidt, and she had endorsed it simply Gretchen Smith. The man at the receiving teller's window called her back just as she was turning away to rectify the mistake.

"You don't deposit this quite this way," he explained. "See, you have forgotten the H."

The young woman looked at her check and blushed a rosy red.

"Ach, so I haf," she murmured, and wrote hurriedly:

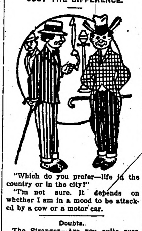
BOTH HAD KNOWN HAPPINESS

But the Circumstances Were Not Exactly Alike, That Was All the Difference.

They were riding into town in a subway train, these two married men, says the New York Times. One seemed occupied with his own thoughts, the other was engrossed in his copy of the Evening Piffle, from which he eventually glanced with a superior smile. "I always read what Betsy Bustuff has to say in her 'Twilight Twaddle' column," he said. "She generally hits us off pretty well, but she isn't always right. Now, this evening, she gets on the subject of elopements. She says elopements never turn out happily. I don't agree with her." "Neither do I," said the man who had been occupied with his own thoughts. "I am glad to hear you say it," exclaimed the Evening Piffleite. "I eloped with my wife, and I've been happy ever since." "So have I ever since some fellow eloped with mine," remarked the other. "Betsy Bumstuff is away off!"

JUST THE DIFFERENCE.



"Which do you prefer—life in the country or in the city?"

"I'm not sure. It depends on whether I am in a mood to be attacked by a cow or a motor car.

THE BACKACHE

Colds and Chills Bring Kidney Ills

February, March and April are the backache months, because they are months of colds, chills, grip and pneumonia, with their congesting, weakening influence on the kidneys. Colds, chills, or grip strain the kidneys and start backache, urinary disorders and uric acid troubles. You feel lame, weak and tired and have headache, dizzy feelings, achy muscles and joints; too frequent, painful urinary passages, sediment, etc. Chills hurt the kidneys. Likewise well kidneys often prevent taking cold, by helping to pass off the waste matters of cold congestion. Doan's Kidney Pills are very useful in the raw winter and spring months. They stop backache and urinary disorders, keep the kidneys well and prevent colds from settling on the kidneys. Strong testimony proves it. What better evidence could you ask?

CONVINCING PROOF FROM GRATEFUL USERS

IN HOSPITAL FOR NINE MONTHS.

Awful Tale of Suffering From Kidney Trouble.

Alfred J. O'Brien, No. 2nd St., Sterling Colo., says: "I was in the Baltimore Marine Hospital for nine months. I was emaciated from fever, had a persistent ache in my back and was completely worn out. The urine was in a terrible state, and some days I would pass half a gallon of blood. I left the hospital because they wanted to operate on me. I then went to St. Joseph's Hospital in Omaha and put in three months there without any gain. I was pretty well discouraged when I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills, but by the time I had used one box the pain in the back left me. I kept right on, and a perfect cure was the result. You may put anyone in communication with me and I will give them proof that this statement is correct."

THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

A Washington Woman's Remarkable Recovery.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew St., Centralia, Wash., with one kidney gone, the other badly diseased, and five doctors in consultation, was thought to be in a hopeless state. "My limbs were so swollen," said Mrs. Shearer, "that I could hardly get about. I rapidly grew worse until the doctor said one kidney was entirely gone and the other badly decayed. The end seemed near, and my friends gave me up to die. On my brother's advice I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and after the fourth day I was able to be propped up in bed. Through their use I rapidly improved until at the present time I am active and well, although 65 years old. I can do fully as much work as any woman in Centralia, and enjoy good health."

VOLUME XXX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1911. NUMBER 39.

Minnesota Legislat[illegible]

Proceedings at the Minnesota State Capitol for the Past Week.

St. Paul, March 30.—The women's suffrage bill was laid to rest in the senate by a vote of 32 to 30.

Senator Sageng made the only speech of the day. No one seconded him. No one argued against him. Without a word of explanation, 32 senators cast their ballots against allowing the people to decide on woman suffrage. But the vote contained one dramatic incident. The vote stood 30 to 30, with Glotzbach and McGrath still to vote. It takes 32 votes to pass a bill.

Senator Wilson of Minneapolis arose and informed the two senators that their votes would pass the bill. Senator McGrath was surrounded by suffragists. "Ladies," he said, "I don't believe in woman suffrage. I have told Miss McFadden so since the session started. But if Glotzbach votes "aye" and my vote will pass the bill, you can have it."

Senator Sageng, in his speech, quoted the words of Lincoln, Sumner, Roosevelt and McKinley, and the example and words of such women as Clara A. Barton of the Red Cross; Julia Ward Howe, author of 'the Battle Hymn of the Republic, and Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, to show the justice of the women's demand for votes.

The roll call was as follows: ayes, Bedford, Benson, Boyle, 'Cashman, Cheadle, C. F. Cook, Dale, Denegre, Duxbury, Elwell, Froshaug, Gunderson, Hanson, Haycraft, C. D. Johnson, V. L. Johnson, Lende, Moonan, Nelson, Odell, Olson, Peterson, Putnam, Rustad, Sageng, Saugstad, Schaller, Sundberg, Theo. Wilson. Total—30.

Nayes, Ahmann, Anderson, Carpenter, Clague, Coller, L. O. Cooke, Donaldson, Duea, Dunn, Dwinnell, Fosseen, Glotzbach, Gunn, Hackney, Handlan, Johnston, Klein, L'Herault, McGrath, Marden, Murray, Pauly, Poehler, Pugh, Rockne, J. D. Sullivan, G. H. Sullivan, Swanson, Van Hoven, Wallace, Weis, Works. Total—32.

The Day in the House.

Knute Knuteson's bill providing a board of conciliation to settle labor disputes was killed in the house. The measure was a copy of the Canadian law.

The house defeated the Kerry-Conley bill forbidding lumber companies to offer lumber for sale which is not up to grade. It would require the six-inch boards be six inches in width instead of 5⅝ inches.

The report of the special committee appointed to investigate the handling of livestock by the Northern Pacific railway was submitted to the house. It finds that livestock cars have been held up at the Minnesota transfer for five hours, causing the cattle to lose weight, thereby reducing the price received by the farmers. The committee recommended legislation which would compel the railroad companies to forward stock cars to the markets.

The house by a unanimous vote decided to pay to his widow the legislative salary of the late W. A. Fisher, former member of the legislature. The bill was introduced by F. L. Palmer. The appropriation is $750.

St. Paul, March 31.—The state of Minnesota will turn itself into a vast employes' insurance company if a constitutional amendment by Senator Putnam, recommended for passage by the judiciary committee of the senate, is adopted. The amendment provides that employers and employes shall be taxed a specific amount of the wages paid and received.

By a vote of 81 to 27 the house passed the Minnette-Schwartz bill placing telephone companies under the supervision and regulation of the state tax commission. Mutual rural companies and companies doing only a city business are excepted.

The house passed the Forestry committee bill reorganizing the state forestry department to bring about greater efficiency in the prevention of forest fires by unanimous vote. The original bill was amended to allow the state forester a salary of $3,000 a year instead of $5,000 and the clerk of the forestry board a salary of $1,800 instead of $3,400.

The bill as it now stands provides for a state forestry board made up of the dean of the state agricultural college, the director of the state forestry school, three members to be appointed on the recommendation of the board of regents of the state university, and four members to be suggested by the state agricultural society, horticultural society, state forestration association and the state game and fish commission. The state forester must be an expert in forestry. The bill allows a corps of assistants to patrol the forest regions during the dry seasons of the year.

The senate, as a committee of the whole, recommended for passage the bill introduced at the request of the game and fish commissions, requiring all non-residents of Minnesota to take out license to fish with hook and line when they come here in the summer. The measure has already passed the house. It requires payment of a $1 fee for license.

The senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, recommended for passage, the measure giving negroes the right to be served in ice cream and soda water parlors and prescribing penalties for proprietors who discriminate against them.

St. Paul, April 3.—The Minneapolis union depot bill was passed under a suspension of the rules by a unanimous vote. It passed the senate and is now up to the governor.

The measure authorizes the formation of a private company to build a depot within any city and to compel the railroads to run their trains into the depot. The company is placed under the regulation of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

The committee killed the Palmer bill, requiring railroads to pay for local improvements along their city property.

The finance committee decided not to allow the appropriation of $350,000 for an agricultural building at the state fair. The state fair people said they would rather not have the building than to share it with the farm school as was proposed. On this statement the committee disallowed the request.

Anti-organization members of the house will join in offering a resolution setting forth specific charges that the house committees are packed, and asking a thorough investigation, according to W. T. Stone of Park Rapids. He declared the resolutions will be signed by at least 25 members and will present arguments designed to show how the organization was formed, how the committees were packed and what members packed them. Dr. Stone will introduce a separate resolution making his own charges.

F. L. Klemer, the gentleman from Rice who threw a bombshell in the house a week ago by charging that the committees were packed many introduce a resolution calling for a reorganization of the house machinery. He would cut the number of committees in two. He declares that the Minnesota house with 120 members has 62 standing committees besides a half dozen special committees and points out that the Wisconsin house with 100 members has only 25 standing committees and 11 joint committees; the Vermont house with 247 members, 24 standing committees, and the Illinois house with 153 members, 62 committees.

St. Paul, April 4.—

A resolution of protest against the vote of censure given F. L. Klemer probably will also be introduced into the house. It is said the resolution will be signed by about 40 members. This resolution will be introduced in accordance with the provisions of Article IV, Section 16 of the state constitution, which reads: "Two or more members of either house shall have liberty to dissent and protest against any act or resolution which they may think injurious to the public or any individual and have the reason of their dissent entered on the journal."

Two important railroad bills were passed by the house under a suspension of the rules. One gives to the railroad and warehouse commission the right to make the railroads a party to the action to be brought against the express companies to force them to reduce their rates. The other allows the railroad and warehouse commission to initiate an investigation of rates without a complaint from any shipper.

George A. Ralph's efficiency as a drainage engineer was testified to by John T. Stewart, chief of the division of agricultural engineering at the state university, and John A. Johnson, Jr., a St. Paul civil engineer at the drainage hearing. They testified that they had come in contact with his drainage work and found it entirely satisfactory. Senator C. A. Johnson of St. Paul said St. Peter said that Mr. Ralph's work in the vicinity of St. Peter was very good.

The committee on appropriations killed a dozen bills carrying appropriations for monuments for several Minnesota statesmen and for the G. A. R. The principal bills turned down were for a monument for the late Alexander Ramsey and for a portrait of the late Edwin A. Jaggard.

Representative Rue introduced a bill providing for a single custodian of both the new and old capitol buildings.

Representative Lydiard introduced a bill to some extent reorganizing the fee system in the state insurance department. It provides that all fees for examinations of insurance companies' books must be paid to the state treasurer and then issued to the department for expenses on warrants.

SIX DEAD IN TORNADO.

Forty Others Injured and Town in Alabama Wiped Out.

Mobile, Ala. — A death list of six, and forty injured, sums up the result of a tornado that wiped out the town of Gainesville, Monroe county. More than 100 buildings were torn down and trees and crops were uprooted by the furious winds that cut a swath 200 feet wide across the county. The victims were killed in collapsing houses.

WOMEN TEACHERS WIN FIGHT.

Will Receive Same Pay as Men in New York Schools.

New York, N. Y. — Men teachers in the elementary schools of New York city appointed hereafter will receive the same pay as women. This will mean that the present salaries paid to men in those positions will be cut almost one-third in the cases of future appointees. The controversy over this question has been bitterly waged for several years.

TWELVE MEMBERS ARE SPECIFIED

REPRESENTATIVE STONE OFFERS RESOLUTION ATTACKING ORGANIZATION OF BODY.

APPROPRIATIONS ARE CUT DOWN

Tax Rate for the Next Two Years Set At 1.7 Mills—University Suffers From Legislative Pruning Knife.

St. Paul, April 5.—The Klemer case was reopened in the lower house of the legislature by Representative W. T. Stone, of Park Rapids, in the introduction of a resolution making specific charges against the house organization and asking for an investigation.

The resolution specifies the committees that Dr. Stone believes are packed and purports to prove his charges that they are packed by naming 12 prominent members of the house who are in a majority in each of the committees. Dr. Stone asks for an investigation not only of the house committees, but also of the members themselves, the method of their election and the nomination and election of Speaker H. H. Dunn. It charges that the special interests contributed large sums of money to the state central committee of the Republican party of which E. E. Smith is chairman.

The resolution, in part, follows:

"Whereas, on the 27th day of March, 1911, F. L. Klemer, a member of this house, was censured for using unparliamentary language and for making certain charges against the speaker and the organization of this house;

On "Bar of House" Incident.

"Whereas, F. L. Klemer and W. T. Stone before the bar of the house each requested additional time in which to formulate a proper statement of the basis of these charges, which request was preemptorily refused by the house; and

"Whereas, it appears from the journal of the house and the records of the proceedings of the present session that 12 members control the important committees and through them the less important, these 12 men holding 12 chairmanships and 35 of a total of 77 places on the five most important committees—on rules, 4; appropriations, 8; taxes, 9; general legislation, 9; election, 4. While these committees contain reactionaries, 60 to progressives 17, the committee on general election 16 to 1. The following are the names of these 'reactionary' standpat chairmen of the most important committees and the number of committees on which they are placed:

Names Are Given.

R. C. Dunn, L. Virtue, each six committees.

Pfaender, seven committees.

Brown (L. D.), Fowler, each eight committees.

Congdon, Spooner, Wescott, White, Washburn, each nine committees.

Stone (C. E.) and McKenzie, each ten committees.

"Whereas, said W. T. Stone proposed to show by the records and journal of this house and by other testimony:

"That the most important legislation that has come before this legislature, including the bills on the initiative, referendum, recall, corrupt practice act and direct primary, have been controlled and killed by the committees above named.

"That the committees in turn have been controlled by said twelve members; that twenty out of twenty-six Democrats in this house have been constantly and continually lined up against progressive measures by the two chairmen mentioned in this list of twelve men, who have used their influence to shape the legislation above mentioned in such a way as will be acceptable to the interests having special privileges within the state of Minnesota.

"That these committees are not only packed but jointly packed, there is no lack of proof. Members of this house have boasted that they are able to hold up any bill they see fit and are able to kill any legislation proposed. This has been time and time again, and,

Investigation Declared Necessary.

"Whereas, The charges for which F. L. Klemer and W. T. Stone were brought to the bar of this house cannot in fairness be pronounced untrue without the most ample investigation, for the reason that it is common knowledge through the state and country that there is a well defined political faction existing in both parties not only within the state of Minnesota but within every state in the union and the national government, known as 'standpatters,' or 'reactionaries;'

"That a considerable number of this faction have been elected through the influence of the corporations and individuals enjoying special privileges. That the position and aim of this faction in the government of the different states and in the national government is to prevent legislation that will increase and further government by the people or restrict special privileges.

"That in the state of Minnesota there is a well known combination of corporations of this character, including the railroads, the breweries and liquor interests, the street railway companies of the three large cities, the United States Steel corporation and the medical trust, with other combinations and interests, and

"Whereas, The mover of these resolutions sincerely believes that an impartial investigation will show that at the last election the corporations and interests above mentioned and known as the special interests, contributed large sums of money to the state central committee of the Republican party, of which ex-Senator E. E. Smith was chairman, for the purpose, an[illegible] other things of electing as many m[illegible]bers as possible of this house fa[illegible]able to the said special interests;

"Now, Therefore, Be it resolved by the house of representatives of the state of Minnesota, that a committee of seven be constituted from the members of this house, three of whom to be selected by the mover of this resolution, three to be selected by the speaker and the six so named to choose a seventh member for the purpose of investigating the matter herein set forth."

R. C. Dunn gave notice of debate and the resolution went over.

Appropriations Are Cut.

At the meeting of the general committee, consisting of the finance committee of the senate and the appropriations committee of the house the tax levy for Minnesota was fixed and the bill introduced in the house. The sum to be raised during the biennial period will approximate $15,000,000.

In making the appropriation bill the sary to cut down the appropriation general committee has felt it necesasked for by the state university. The sum asked for was $5,000,000 for the biennial period. For the first year the university will be granted $1,200,000. For the second year it will be given $600,000. Of this sum $405,000 is appropriated for the new chemistry building. Seventy-five thousand is appropriated for repairing Millard hall. Twenty-five thousand is appropriated for the purpose of repairing the medical building.

The chief item of interest is the appropriation of $325,000 for maintenance, an increase of over $100,000 for the past year.

The forestry department of the state gets an appropriation of $75,000.

The appropriation for the support of the county fairs of the state is fixed at from $60,000 to $75,000, an increase from $28,000.

As a backset to this item the appropriation asked for by the state agricultural society for a new agricultural building was absolutely denied.

In considering the general elements of expense the R. C. Dunn good roads measure received its fair measure of consideration. Under the provisions of this bill $150,000 is appropriated for good roads for the ensuing year in counter-distinction to $[illegible] appropriated for the same purpose last year.

Agricultural School Gets $180,000.

The agricultural school will receive about $160,000 for the new mechanic arts building. It already has $100,000 for the same purpose. It will receive an appropriation of $150,000 for a girl's dormitory.

Appropriations asked for the state capitol approaches are absolutely cut out.

Investigation in the work of the state drainage commission has had its result in the work of the appropriation committee. The appropriation will amount to only about $35,000, just enough to complete the ditches already contracted for.

The board of control will receive an appropriation of about $5,000,000, an increase of $800,000. This is largely for the erection of new buildings and for the care of delinquents. It is represented that 1,000 patients are now sleeping in the corridors of insane asylums and that 400 are uncared for in the home of the feeble-minded.

The Crookston agricultural school will receive for the first year $150,000. The average appropriation for that school will be $175,000 a year.

The common and graded schools will be given $500,000 a year for maintenance. This will be a large increase over what has been given in the past.

The St. Peter hospital draws $245,000 for maintenance. The school for the blind at Faribault only draws $32,000 for current expenses.

For the school for the deaf, at the same place, $60,000 is appropriated for a new girls' administration building and $120,000 for a dormitory and dining room.

The Anoka state asylum draws $170,000 for the completion of three cottages. The Hastings asylum draws $170,000 for the same purpose.

The Fergus Falls hospital draws the sum of $250,000 a year for maintenance, $210,000 is given the Rochester state hospital for maintenance.

The senate passed Senator J. A Coller's bill giving Mrs. J. A. Johnson, widow of the late governor, $7,000, the salary of the governor for the second year of his unexpired term.

Four reform bills were put to sleep by the lower house of the legislature. The Palmer-Hopkins measure prohibiting treating in drinking places lost by a vote of 54 to 50. Although receiving a majority of the votes the bill did not recieve the necessary 61 to secure its enactment.

The state tax commission bill providing for a system of county assessors was killed by a vote of 66 to 41. The measure was fathered by R. C Dunn. Country members objected on the grounds that it would be an added expense and no improvement over the present system of town and village assessors.

Thomas Kneeland's bill providing for a constitutional convention to revise the state constitution met a similar fate losing by a vote of 64 to 47. The same medicine was given Dr Diessner's bill providing an appropriation for a Homeopathic college at the state university. The bill lost by a vote of 24 to 69.

DEVELOPMENT OF NATURAL R[illegible] SOURCES AIM OF BIG CO-OPERATIVE [illegible]

AT HELENA BOOST[illegible]

States West of Lakes and South Boundary Boosted—Special Train to Carry Minnesota Party.

St. Paul.—It will require an entire special train to carry the Minnesota commercial and business men who will go as delegates to the Northwestern Development League meeting to be held at Helena, Mont., May 4-5. At a meeting held at the Minnesota Club, in St. Paul, Minneapolis and St. Paul joined hands and pledged their united support to the Helena meeting. Governor Eberhart set the official approval of the state upon the proceedings by naming 43 delegates at large to represent Minnesota at the Montana meeting.

The meeting at the Minnesota Club was charged with interest. It was called by Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern, to present the official call of Governor Edwin L. Norris, of Montana, to Minnesota and the six other northwestern states which are expected to participate in the Helena meeting; to discuss the emigration to Canada and the South and how best to divert it through the Twin City gateway and the northwestern land show, which it is proposed to hold in Minneapolis and St. Paul next December. Several were also present in the interest of the Minneapolis-St. Paul-Helena automobile tour.

The result of the meeting was the appointment of Minneapolis and St. Paul delegates to the Helena Development meeting and a joint committee of 24 to make arrangements for the Twin City land show.

FATHER WORKS TO SAVE SON.

Latter Is Now a Prisoner of War in Mexico.

Duluth.—James H. Jones, the Duluth man reported to be a prisoner of war in Mexico, is a son of Humphrey Jones, a car foreman for the Union depot. The son went to New Mexico last fall from Portland, Ore., to sell fruit trees and was expected to return to Portland some time ago. Humphrey Jones has taken his son's case up with Senator Knute Nelson and Congressman Miller.

The sophomore men came to the rescue, and the victorious freshmen likewise appeared to take a hand. Hatpins finally routed the sophomore men, and, when the excitement was over, a passing policeman rescued the prisoners. But the flag remained flying.

DEATH OF MINNESOTA PIONEER.

Joseph Schaaf, 83, Came to North Star State in "Fifties."

Joseph Schaaf, a veteran of the Civil war and a resident of Minnesota since the early fifties, died at St. Alexander's hospital, New Ulm, at the advanced age of 83. He is survived by a widow, who was with him at the time of death, and eight children, three sons and five daughters—Joseph, Jr., and Val, Murdock, Minn.; John, Rockford, Wash.; Mrs. William Emerson, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Michael Frank, Delano, Minn.; Mrs. E. T. Dana and Mrs. John Weber, Murdock, Minn., and Mrs. Louis Eberhart, St. Paul.

Mr. Schaaf was for many years a farmer, residing near Victoria. In St. Paul he was engaged in the fuel business, but retired several years ago. He was a member of Battery B. First Minnesota heavy artillery, and was mustered out with his company in 1864. He was a member of the German-American Veterans' Association.

CONGRESSMEN ARE BUSY.

Three Minnesota Members Introduce Bills On First Day.

Washington. — Three Minnesota members introduced bills of state interest on the opening day of congress. They were:

By Representative Miller—To restore the rights and annuities of the Metawakanton and Wahpakouta tribes of the Sioux Indians, declared forfeited by the act of Feb. 16, 1863; to provide an inheritance tax for the District of Columbia; to refund the tonnage taxes and light dues charged against boats built in America, which have passed into Canadian ownership and erroneously taxed when they returned to America.

By Representative Davis—To provide for federal agricultural high schools throughout the country.

By Representative Steenerson—For a public building at Bemidji, to cost $100,000.

DEAN PATTEE DEAD.

Head of Minnesota University College of Law.

Minneapolis. — William S. Pattee dean of the college of law, University of Minnesota, died in his home after an illness of many months.

William Sullivan Pattee was born at Jackson, Me., Sept. 19, 1846. He was graduated from Bowdoin college in 1871 with the degree of A. B., and in 1874 won his degree of A. M. He was admitted to the bar in 1878, when he came to Minnesota. For some years he lived in Northfield, and in 1884 he was elected to the Minnesota house of representatives.

He was appointed professor of equity and dean of the college of law of the state university in 1888 and came to Minneapolis to live. He married Julia E. Tuttle, of Plymouth, Me., in 1878. Besides his widow, he leaves two sons and a daughter.

Winona Democrats Win.

Winona. — Julius R. Schroth, Democrat, was elected mayor of Winona over William E. Hamilton, present incumbent and "reform" candidate by 600 to 700 plurality. Schroth carried all but two precincts in the city.

The vote was the largest polled in this city in years and the reform and conservative elements were lined up in a bitter battle.

Minneapolis. — "The Man of the Hour," which will be seen at the Bijou the week of April 9th, played in New York two years, to record-breaking business. The record of the Broadhurst play is no less remarkable than the play itself, which has been pronounced by the most eminent reviewers of dramatic subject to be by all odds one of the best plays of recent years.

Sven Oftedal Passes Away.

Minneapolis. — Prof. Sven Oftedal, professor emeritus of Augsburg seminary, one of the most prominent Scandinavians in the Northwest, died under the surgeon's knife in the Norwegian hospital. Death was caused by diabetes, a disease from which he had suffered for more than twenty years Professor Oftedal was a native of Norway. He was one of the organizers of Augsburg seminary and was a professor in that institution from the time at its inception, more than thirty years ago.

SCALES ALL OVER HER BODY

"About three years ago I was affected by white scales on my knees and elbows. I consulted a doctor who treated me for ringworm. I saw no change and consulted a specialist and he claimed I had psoriasis. I continued treatments under him for about six months until I saw scales breaking out all over my body save my face. My scalp was affected, and my hair began to fall. I then changed doctors to no avail. I went to two hospitals and each wanted to make a study of the case and seemed unable to cure it or assure me of a cure. I tried several patent medicines and was finally advised by a friend who has used Cuticura on her children since their birth, to purchase the Cuticura Remedies. I purchased a cake of Soap, the Ointment and the Resolvent. After the first application the itching was allayed.

"I am still using the Soap and Ointment and now feel that none other is good enough for my skin. The psoriasis has disappeared and I everywhere feel better. My hands were so disfigured before using the Cuticura Remedies that I had to wear gloves all the time. Now my body and hands are looking fine." (Signed) Miss Sara Burnett, 2135 Fitzwater St., Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30, 1910.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on affections of the skin and scalp.

Accounting for It.

Wedderly—They say that a man and his wife grow to look alike after they have been married a few years. Now, my wife and I have been married ten years; do you think we look alike?

Singleton—Yes, indeed! You both seem to have the same sad expression.—Stray Stories.

Congress convened in extra session to pass the tariff provisions of the president's reciprocity agreement with Canada. It looks now as if they intended to do anything except to act on the measure.

Last fall they told as that in order to pass a reapportionment measure it would be necessary to elect county option candidates, but how different the result of the vote makes it appear. Of the twenty-three senators who voted for the county option bill only three voted for reapportionment

Justice—Herman Barstad.
Constables—John Mortenson, John Hogquist.

Red Acre Farm

The senior class of the Thief River River Falls high school presented its play, "Red Acre Farm," at the Imperial hall Thursday evening to a full house.

The play is a most pleasing one, being based on early New England rural life and is full of captivating scenes and climaxes. It was done full justice to by the excellent acting of the young amateurs. To Raymond Pope as manager of the affair is due great credit for the manner in which it was handled. Andy Dahl did the bad young man to perfection.

Right of Way In New York.

Most people in New York think Uncle Sam's mail wagons are supreme. They are not. The hospital ambulance comes first. Life is more sacred than mail, and when the ambulance gong gongs clear the track. Next in importance is the fire engine. Property is more important than mail, and when the engine toots and the bells ring clear the way. Then the mail wagons, which have precedence over everything but the ambulance and fire engine. This is settled by city ordinance.—New York Press.

Lingering Superstitions.

"Will a lucky gentlewoman give an unlucky one a tiny mascot to bring luck?" runs an advertisement in an English paper. Here was a poor soul —for if there is a creature on the face of the earth whose fate calls for pity it is a gentlewoman who is down—keeping in her poverty some of that superstition or faith, whatever it may be called, which is the only thing that keeps misfortune from crushing the sufferer. If only she could get the right charm she might induce fate to look kindly on her! People call this a practical age, but evidences of superstition continue to appear. A lawsuit not long ago revealed the fact that an astrologer kept a motorcar and had a fine house, etc., all of which came out of the proceeds of a zodiacal magazine.

As Exemplified.

Having given his order twenty minutes before and seeing no indications that his dinner was ready, the man with the sparse whiskers beckoned to a waiter.

"My friend," he said, "perhaps I have made a mistake. Is this a pay as you enter restaurant?"

"No, sir," responded the young man in the white apron, yawning. "This is a dinner cooked while you wait restaurant."

Thereupon he resumed his dreamy, contemplative attitude, and the man with the sparse whiskers waited some more.—Chicago Tribune.

A Reply to Gladstone.

"Gladstone had no great scientific knowledge," said an English writer, "and at a dinner, when Faraday described an important new scientific discovery, the premier showed indifference.

"'After all,' he said, hiding a yawn behind his hand, 'what use will it ever be?'

"'Why,' said Faraday, 'there's every probability, sir, that some day you'll be able to tax it.'"

A Turn Down.

Stranger—Beg pardon, mister; I'm a stranger in dese parts. Farmer Hargis—Wall, I dunno of anybody that wants to git acquainted with ye. Turns away.—Boston Transcript.

Fog and Sound.

In a fog at sea the toll of a bell buoy is singularly grave and solemn, well matched by the weird note of a whistling buoy. Unfortunately the value of both is lessened in foggy weather from there being but little motion of the sea. Nothing, too, is more difficult than to distinguish in a fog the direction from which a sound comes. This is in part due doubtless to the interference offered to the straight course of the waves carrying the sound, but also probably to the absence of the normal, although unsuspected, co-ordination of eye and ear in locating the origin of sound. The assistance of the eye on sea and land is instinctively given to the ear in many different ways. In a fog the ear has only itself to trust to.—London Spectator.

Describing a Railroad.

The Pall Mall Gazette in 1890 asked its readers to name the worst railway in England. And one English kicker answered thus: "Sir—The Southeastern railway is the very worst railway in the world. The engines are asthmatic. Its lamps are trimmed by foolish virgins. Its fares are excessive. Its carriages let in the snow in winter and are furnaces in summer. Its motto is unpunctuality. Its principal station is approached through the neck of a bottle. It ruins the temper, destroys the digestion and enables one to realize the horrors of Dante's 'Inferno.' I am, sir, yours obediently, the Worm Who Turns."

He Earned the Hat.

Barty Hilliard, who many years ago lived in a small town in northern Vermont, was noted for his careless vagabond habits, ready wit and remarkable facility for extempore rhyming. While he was sitting one day in the village store of what is now a part of Montpelier among a group of idlers the genial merchant asked him why he wore such a shockingly bad hat. Barty replied that he could not afford a better one.

"Come now," said the merchant, "make me a rhyme on a bad hat, and I will give you the best I have in my store." Instantly Barty threw the old one on the floor and began:

Here lies my old hat,
And pray what of that?
It's as good as the rest of my raiment!
If I buy me a better
You'll make me your debtor
And send me to jail for the payment.

The new hat was voted to be fairly won, and Barty bore it off in triumph, saying, "It's a poor head that can't take care of itself."—Boston Herald.

Guns.

The Germans were the inventors of the first gun. About 1378 Schwartz, a German machinist, manufactured numerous crude guns which were brought into use by the Venetians in 1392. It is a strange fact that cannon were made before small firearms. At Amberg there is still a piece of ordnance marked with the date 1303. Cannon were first used in war at the battle of Crecy, in 1346. It was not until 1544, however, that they were made in England.

Well Turned.

"How old are you?" asked the insurance agent of the lady.

It was thoughtless of him, and her indignant "Sir!" brought him straightway to his senses.

"Of course, you will understand," he went on, "that we have to be careful about making contracts. I merely wished to assure myself that you are legally of age."

Made Him Sick.

A noted golfer one afternoon played rather badly. He turned to his caddie after he had foozled a drive and said in his genial way:

"This isn't a pleasant spectacle for you. I'm as bad as a Scotch laird at St. Andrews. The St. Andrews caddies are all old men, and one day when this laird was in especially bad form his caddie, after nine holes of missed shots and putts, shook his gray old head, surrendered the laird's bag of clubs to another caddie and said:

"'Ye'll no mind, laird? I made but a poor breakfast this mornin', and I'm no in a condition to stand any mair o't.'"

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairny County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proved to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

These are samples of hundreds of enthusiastic letters received in every mail.

BETTER TEETH FEWER DENTIST'S BILLS

Your teeth decay because particles of food get into crevices between and around the teeth and create germs of decay. Ordinary tooth powders and washes are entirely inadequate to prevent it.

Try Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic, a delicious, harmless germicide. Just a little in a glass of water, and rinse the mouth and brush the teeth thoroughly.

It will whiten the teeth, prevent and remove tartar, destroy all germs of decay and save you dentist's bills.

Paxtine thoroughly cleanses, deodorizes and keeps pure and odorless false teeth and bridgework. Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics and peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses. At Druggists 25 and 50c, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

Moisant's Comparison.

"The late John B. Moisant was a genial as well as a skillful airman," said a Chicago editor.

"I remember well a visit he once made me, with drawings of an aeroplane of his own invention under his arm. I joked him a little about the machine—it certainly had a heavy, awkward look. But he said with a laugh:

"'Oh, don't judge even an aeroplane by its outside. What if the man who discovered the oyster hadn't stopped to pry open the shell?'"

After a Big Haul.

"Binks used to be daft on the subject of buried treasure. What's he up to now?"

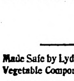
"He's got up an expedition to Asia Minor to try to find the place where Methuselah stored his birthday presents."

Better general health is sure to follow the use of the natural Herb laxative, Garfield Tea. It corrects constipation.

It is no use running; to set out betimes is the main point.—La Fontaine.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



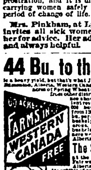
Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

44 Bu. to the Acre



60 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts. Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (36)

MESSAGE IS BRIEF

"A COMMERCIAL PROPOSITION"

Believes That General Sentiment of Both American and Canadian People Desire Mutual Increase in Trade.

Washington, April 5. — President Taft's message to the special session of Congress was read in both Houses. The message follows: "To the Senate and House of Representatives: "I transmitted to the Sixty-first Congress on January 6 last, the text of the reciprocity trade agreement which had been negotiated under my direction by the Secretary of State with the representatives of the Dominion of Canada. This agreement was the consummation of earnest efforts extending over a period of nearly a year, on the part of both Governments to effect a trade arrangement which supplementing as it did, the amicable settlement of various questions of a diplomatic and political character that had been reached would mutually promote commerce and would strengthen the friendly relations now existing.

The agreement in its intent and in its terms was purely economic and commercial. While the general subject was under discussion by the commissioners, I felt assured that the sentiment of the people of the United States was such that they would welcome a measure which would result in the increase of trade on both sides of the boundary line, would open up the reserve productive resources of Canada to the great mass of our own consumers on advantageous conditions and at the same time offer a broader outlet for the excess products of our farms and many of our industries.

Details regarding a negotiation of this kind necessarily could not be made public while the conferences were pending. However, the full text of the agreement with the accompanying correspondence and data explaining both its purpose and its scope became known to the people. Throughout the message transmitted to congress it was immediately apparent that the ripened fruits of the careful labors of the commissioners met with widespread approval.

This approval has been strengthened by further consideration of the terms of the agreement in all their particulars. The volume of support which has developed shows that its broadly national scope is fully appreciated and is responsive to the popular will. The House of Representatives of the Sixty-First Congress, after the failure of the arrangement with all the details in regard to the different provisions had been before it, as they were before the American people, passed a bill affirming the agreement as negotiated and as transmitted to congress. This measure failed of action in the Senate. In my transmitting message of the 26th of January, I fully set forth the character of the agreement and emphasized its appropriateness and necessity as a response to the mutual needs of the people of the two countries as well as its common advantages.

I now lay that message and the reciprocal trade agreement, as integrally a part of the present message, before the Sixty-Second Congress and again invite earnest attention to the considerations therein expressed. I am constrained in deference to popular sentiment and with a realizing sense of my duty to the great masses of our people whose welfare is involved to urge upon your consideration early action on this agreement.

In concluding the negotiations the representatives of the two countries bound themselves to use their utmost efforts to bring about the tariff changes provided for in the agreement by concurrent legislation at Washington and Ottawa. I have felt it my duty, therefore, not to acquiesce in relegation of action until the opening of the Congress in December, but to use my constitutional prerogative and convoke the Sixty-Second Congress in extra session in order that there shall be no break of continuity in considering and acting upon this most important subject.

(Signed) WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Middlesboro, Kentucky.—Damage estimated at over $1,000,000 was caused in Middlesboro and the Yellow Creek Valley by a cloudburst.

Kenyon's Vote Falling Off.

Des Moines, Iowa. — The new names were injected into the senatorial fight, three votes being cast for G. M. Curtis of Clinton, former congressman, and one for Paul E. Stillman, speaker of the house. The naming of Mr. Stillman was the signal for a burst of applause from the legislators. The three votes cast for Curtis were formerly for Funk, who is a great friend of Curtis. The vote was as follows: Kenyon 61, Deemer 35, Porter 51; Curtis 3, Stillman 1; total votes cast, 151; necessary to elect, 76.

O'MALLEY TO A NEW CELL.

Prisoner Taken to Chaska Because Jail in Own County Was Condemned.

Le Sueur Center.—Martin O'Malley, who has been held in jail here awaiting the fixing of the day of execution by the governor, was removed to the Carver county jail at Chaska. The grand jury of this county condemned the jail here as unsanitary and unsafe, and it was for this reason, and not for fear of a demonstration against the prisoner, that the application for the transfer was made.

IS EPILEPSY CONQUERED?

New York Physicians Have Many Cures to Their Credit.

New York, April 4.—Advices from every direction fully confirm previous reports that the remarkable treatment for epilepsy being administered by the consulting physicians of the Dr. Waterman Institute is achieving wonderful results. Old and stubborn cases have been greatly benefited and many patients claim to have been entirely cured.

Persons suffering from epilepsy should write at once to Dr. Waterman Institute, 123 East 25th st., Branch C8, New York, for a supply of the remedy, which is being distributed gratuitously.

His Interest.

"You are going to interest yourself in this reform enterprise?"

"Certainly," replied Senator Sorghum.

"But I thought it was unfavorable to your friends."

"It is. And I'm going to interest myself in it far enough to let me offer suggestions that will render it impractical."

COFFEE HEART

Very Plain in Some People.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee, (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years) but I found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial.

"My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble.

"Postum proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot beverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. The heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, has disappeared and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial proves an eye opener to many.

GOPHER NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota Events of the Week in Condensed Form.

Little Falls.—The big sawmill of the Pine Tree Mfg. Co. began operations and will run with full crew night and day during the season.

Minneapolis.—Dean William Sullivan Pattee, head of the college of law, University of Minnesota, since its inauguration, died after a protracted illness. He was 65 years old.

Minneapolis. — The Second Church of Christ Scientist, was badly damaged by fire which broke out in a storage room in the basement and spread up into the Sunday school room.

White Earth.—The maple sugar makers are busy with splendid prospects of a big yield from the sugar orchards. New settlers who purchase land on the reservation are coming in every day.

Minneapolis. — Reverend Nils Frykman, for many years a pastor in the Swedish Evangelical Covenant, died after an illness of two months, at his home. He was 68 years old and one of the best known ministers in the covenant.

Monticello.—Professor A. H. Dunton, for many years superintendent of schools at McIntosh, was chosen superintendent of the Monticello schools. Miss Bessie Lewis was re-elected superintendent of the domestic science department.

Faribault.—A mass meeting was held in this city for the purpose of organizing a civic league. The object of the league will be for the betterment of the city. All of the local literary clubs are interested in the movement and are back of it.

Litchfield.—The trial of Ole Nelson, a local saloonkeeper, charged with selling liquor to a minor, resulted in his conviction, and he has appealed the case to the district court. The liquor question will be the main issue at the coming city election.

Hibbing.—An important ordinance was passed at the meeting of the council, whereby in the future no license to sell intoxicating liquor shall be granted to any man who is not a citizen of the United States, and no transfer shall be granted to any man who is not a full citizen.

Washington. — The Minneapolis Threshing Machine Company has filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Milwaukee and St. Louis and San Francisco roads, alleging overcharge on a shipment of its products from Hopkins, Minn., to Memphis, Tenn.

Winona.—Company C of this city of the Second regiment of state militia underwent inspection by Captain P. Kobees of Fort Lincoln, the boys being in olive drab uniforms in heavy marching order, ready to take to the field. Captain Kobees expressed himself as pleased with the showing made.

Brainerd.—All parties, Republican, Democratic and Socialist, are bending their energies to win in the city election April 4. Ex-Congressman Eddy, of the Ninth district, spoke at a Republican rally last week. Eddy spoke on local issues, as well as giving the history of the men who sidetracked reapportionment.

Winona.—The new steamer Morning Star of the Northern Packet line will start running in the packet trade between Davenport and St. Paul about April 1. It will probably leave Davenport every Saturday afternoon for St. Paul and will reach Davenport on the return trip on Friday. The boat can accommodate 120 people.

Tracy.—Carl Bushman, 18, and Norman Nelson, 24 years old, were drowned in Lake Sarah while fishing. A farmer noticed the boat floating keel up and gathering a number of neighbors with boats the searched the bottom of the lake adjacent to the boat. Both bodies were recovered. Both boys are sons of widowed mothers.

Duluth.—The Two Harbors high school debating team defeated Moorhead at Two Harbors. Two Harbors had the negative side of "Resolved, that Minnesota cities should adopt the commission form of government." The winner of the debate between the Humboldt high school of St. Paul and the Houston high school will meet the Two Harbors team.

St. Paul.—One hundred and fifteen locomotives on the Great Northern line will have their grates taken out and oil-burning grates put in, that crude oil may be burned for fuel. The decision of the road to make the change is of great importance to lumbermen of Minneapolis, to whom the disastrous western forest fires of last year brought much concern and serious losses.

Eveleth. — A fire of unknown origin did damage to the amount of about $13,000 to the building which housed the Othello theater, the Eveleth Star, and Home Electric and Heating Co. The damage to the theater was $5,000. The newspaper suffered an equal loss on press and linotype. Theatrical people announce losses amounting to $2,000 in personal effects, and the heating company, $1,000. The heating company was protected by insurance. The building is owned by P. E. Dowling of Duluth.

"Dead" 29 Years, He Returns.

La Crosse, Wis. — Mourned for dead for 29 years, John H. Knothe appeared at the home of his son, John H. Knothe, Jr., here and introduced himself to his children, all of whom had forgotten him. Twenty-nine years ago Knothe and his wife separated and Knothe disappeared. He had not since been heard from and was presumed to be dead. He worked for years as a cigarmaker and finally accumulated money enough to enter the packing business at Galveston, where he is now wealthy.

Bishop Attacks Harem Skirt.

Havana, Cuba. — The Rt. Rev. Gonzales Estrada, bishop of Havana, has issued a pastoral letter condemning the so-called harem skirt as immoral and un-Christian and punishing its use by excommunication.

Choked, Victim of Robbers.

Chicago, Ill. — Levi A. Raven, proprietor of a stock food firm and reputed to be wealthy, was found dead in his office. He is believed to have been the victim of robbers who choked him to death and ransacked the place.

AID TO MARRIED HAPPINESS

Southerner Evolves the Panama Cocktail Which Makes Man Thoughtful of Wife.

Russell Hopkins, a southerner, who lives in the St. Regis, is responsible for the Panama cocktail. He and Charles Luther Burnham were talking over Hopkins' latest concoction, which had been placed in the little book kept by the bartender.

"You take half a pony of brandy, half a pony of curacao, a third of dry gin and French or Italian vermouth, and there you are—there's your drink before dinner," said Hopkins.

"Yes," interposed Burnham, "it's a cocktail all right. One of your friends came in here the other day with more than $300 in his wallet. He was initiated into the mysteries of the Panama cocktail. He seemed all right when he left, but he was found the following day in a ferry-house hugging a set of furs he had bought for his wife. From what could be gleaned from him he had, on a passably warm day, thought his wife ought to have new furs, and, with that idea, he went to a store and spent all the cash in his pocketbook for a set.—New York Press.

A NEW LIGHT.

Blaugas—A German Invention.

For many years it has been the endeavor of scientific men to produce an illuminating and fuel gas that could be easily transported, and at the same time give all the advantages of a city gas plant. No one had been able to accomplish this until Herman Blau, a chemist of Ausberg, Germany, invented the gas which has since been named after him. After extensive experiments a liquified gas was produced, that was not only easily transported, but had many advantages over other illuminating and cooking gases. It can be used with the piping of any gas system and with any kind of fixtures. As it is sent to the consumer in steel bottles, it is easily handled, all that is required is to attach bottle to the piping, there's no ashes to remove, nothing to clean, nothing to do but turn on gas and use it. It is absolutely the safest gas made, as it is non-poisonous, non-asphyxiating and the least explosive.

Another feature is the cheapness with which it can be produced, as it is made of a by-product of petroleum and the entire factory is run by this by-product.

A number of prominent business men of St. Paul, Minnesota, have incorporated the Northwestern Blaugas Company and obtained exclusive rights to manufacture and sell Blaugas in the States of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, the northern part of Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. They have already received numerous orders for gas and plants, showing the large demand that will come as soon as the factory is completed. A limited number of shares of preferred stock in the company are for sale and enough common stock will be given to make it extremely profitable to those who write promptly.

How He Averted a Duel.

The following is told of former Senator Joe Blackburn of Kentucky:

In the days of his youth the Kentuckian was asked by a friend to second him in a duel. He consented, and at sunrise the parties met at the appointed place. Now, it was this Kentuckian's duty to say the last words touching the terms of the duel. But, although he faithfully performed this duty, the duel never took place.

A murmur of "Why not?" invariably goes around whenever this story is told, whereupon the answer is as follows:

"For a very simple reason. When Joe finished speaking it was too dark for a duel."—Harper's Magazine.

FOR PUBLIC CONTROL

VAIL FOR REGULATION AS WELL AS PUBLICITY.

SAYS BOTH HERE TO STAY

Frank Recognition of Public Rights by the President of Western Union and Telephone Companies.

Public regulation of public service corporations has come to stay. It ought to have come and it ought to stay. That is the flat and unequivocal assertion of Theodore N. Vail, president of both the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Western Union Telegraph company. It came in the form of his annual report to the seventy thousand stockholders of the two great corporations. Although Mr. Vail's advocacy of full publicity in connection with the affairs of such concerns was well understood, nobody in financial circles had anticipated so frank an avowal of full public rights in the shaping of their general conduct. It came consequently as a surprise, not only because of its novelty and squareness, but also on account of the unqualified acquiescence of a board of directors comprising such eminent and conservative financiers as Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Henry L. Higginson of Boston, Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Senator W. Murray Crane, George F. Baer, T. Jefferson Coolidge Jr., Norman W. Harris, John I. Waterbury and others.

President Vail's declaration is heralded as the first recognition by those in high corporate authority of the justice of the demand that the public be regarded as virtual partners in all matters that pertain to the common welfare. He goes directly to the point.

"Public control or regulation of public service corporations by permanent commissions," he says, "has come and come to stay. Control, or regulation, to be effective means publicity; it means semi-public discussion and consideration before action; it means everything which is the opposite of and inconsistent with effective competition. Competition—aggressive, effective competition—means strife, industrial warfare; it means contention; it oftentimes means taking advantage of or resorting to any means that the conscience of the contestants or the degree of the enforcement of the laws will permit.

"Aggressive competition means duplication of plant and investment. The ultimate object of such competition is the possession of the field wholly or partially; therefore it means either ultimate combination on such basis and with such prices as will cover past losses, or it means loss of return on investment, and eventual loss of capital. However it results, all costs of aggressive, uncontrolled competition are eventually borne, directly or indirectly, by the public. Competition which is not aggressive, presupposes co-operative action, understandings, agreements, which result in general uniformity or harmony of action, which, in fact, is not competition but is combination, unstable, but for the time effective. When thoroughly understood it will be found that "control" will give more of the benefits and public advantages, which are expected to be obtained through such ownership, and will obtain them without the public burden of either the public officeholder or public debt or operating deficit.

"When through a wise and judicious state control and regulation all the advantages without any of the disadvantages of state ownership are secured, state ownership is doomed."

"If Mr. Vail is right," says Harper's Weekly, in a concise summing-up, "then it seems pretty plain that we are entered upon a new era in both economics and politics. And it is high time we did if evolution is to supplant revolution as an efficient force in the development of civilization."

Unreliable Physiognomy.

I am a profound disbeliever in physiognomy. Features are false witnesses. Stupidity frequently wears a mask of intelligence. I know business men who look like poets and poets who look like business men. Men of genius invariably look like idiots, and if you pick out the man who looks most eminent in a party you are sure to find he is a nobody. I always distrust men who look magnificent. Nature is a stingy creature. She seldom gives a man the double gift of being great and looking great. She took care to lame Byron and deform Pope and disfigure Johnson. But the crowning example of her jealous parsimony is Shakespeare. I have always been disappointed with Shakespeare's face. It does not live up to his poetry. It is dull, heavy and commonplace.—Adventures in London.

Vegetable Fancy Work.

Little Mrs. Bride had almost everything to learn about housekeeping, but she was so enthusiastic in her interest that every one was glad to help her.

"I have some particularly fine asparagus," the marketman told her one day, and he displayed a bunch for her admiration. "Picked not three hours ago," he added.

Mrs. Bride looked at it with unaffected amazement.

"Does it grow like that?" she asked. "I always supposed the cook braided the ends of it."—Youth's Companion.

THE DISTANCE TARIFF

WILL BE PRESSED IN THE SENATE

Spooner Waterways Bill Declared Unconstitutional—Attorney General's Office Gives Blow to Proposed Measures.

St. Paul, April 13.—Swept aboard the Cashman bandwagon by the recent Sanborn decision, which declared the reduction of Minnesota railway rates unconstitutional and confiscatory, the lower branch of the legislature passed the Crane distance tariff bill by a close vote of 62 to 56. The bill is now up to the senate, where Senator Cashman, its champion of many years' standing, will attempt to press it to a final vote. The bill which lost in the senate several weeks ago is now claimed by its advocates to have the support of a majority of the senators and is admitted by its opponents to have more than an even chance of becoming a law.

The bill which as introduced was an exact copy of the Cashman measure was amended extensively by its author. Amendments were adopted excepting passenger rates from its effect and making it become effective on Jan. 1, 1912. It was also changed so as to discriminate between the large and the small railroad companies. It allows the railroad and warehouse commission to agree upon the maximum rates which may be charged by the companies and provides that the railways should be divided into three classes, the companies netting the smaller amount of gross earnings being allowed a higher maximum rate than the larger companies.

With these exceptions, the bill is an exact copy of the Iowa distance tariff law. It simply means that there shall be no variance in railway rates in any part of the state. Railroads can charge no more for carrying a like quality and like quantity of product for a distance of one mile or one part of its line than another. In other words, if the company charges five cents to carry one ton of hay one mile out of Winona, it must charge the same rate out of Duluth or out of any other town in the state.

The speaker in a strong appeal for southern Minnesota declared that it was pretty nearly time that something was done to eliminate the unjust discrimination which exists in favor of the cities in railway rates. He pointed out that rates in which the large cities are interested are much lower than those given the country districts and that as a result the cities have shown an abnormal gain in population to the detriment of the country districts.

Mr. Dunn cited several rates which exist in the country districts of the state and compared them with the rates in Iowa, where a distance tariff bill exists, to show the unfairness of the present schedule.

City Against Country Cry.

Speaker Dunn in his speech sounded the city against the country cry which was evident during the debate which lasted for nearly three hours. When the final vote was taken the members representing Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, St. Cloud, Winona and Mankato lined up almost solidly against the bill, while the country members favored it. When the roll call was completed the vote stood 60 for the bill and 58 against, which was one short of passing. Before the vote had been announced by the chair, Andrew Anderson, of Stillwater, and Frank Kelly, of Madelia, changed their votes from nays, thereby passing the bill. Great excitement prevailed when Speaker Dunn moved that the vote be reconsidered and expressed the desire that the motion be lost. The ayes and nays were again demanded and the motion lost by a vote of 70 to 47.

The Final Vote.

The roll call was as follows:

Yeas—Aker, Anderson, Andrew, Anderson, A. V. Anderson, J. J., Bouck, Brown, G. W., Brown, L. D., Christie, Conley, Converse, Crane, Davies, Davis, Denzer, Diessner, Dunn, H. H. Waterways Bill Knocked Out.

The Davidson-Spooner water power bill, known as House File No. 76, received its deathblow through an opinion rendered to the senate by the office of the attorney general that it is unconstitutional. The bill provides for a public water supply commission of three members at salaries from $2,500 to $3,500 a year, with authority to employ engineers and to spend $25,000 a year in carrying out the objects of the bill. It provides for supervision of public water supplies, sewage systems, private and municipal, but these provisions are only incidental. The essence of the bill is found in the provisions in regard to water powers. The bill declares, in substance, that all water powers, developed and undeveloped, existing in Minnesota, belong to the state "for all purposes." It then provides that no water power owner can use any of the waters of a navigable stream or lake, either for water power or for wharfing out for commercial or other purposes, without obtaining a license from the commission, and accepting the same in writing, submitting to all its terms and to all the provisions of the act; and that then he must use and develop his water power under the control of the commission, and develop it as fast as the commission shall require, if it is not fully developed, and that the rates for his products may be controlled by the commission, and that for his products may be controlled by the commission, and that for the privilege of using the water power under the license which he is compelled to get, he must pay an annual rental or toll to the state for each horsepower which is "capable of being used" at his water power. The annual rental is provided to be fixed by the commission each May for the preceding calendar year, and by the terms of the bill may vary from 24 cents per horsepower to $4.80 per horsepower per year, according to the discretion of the commission, these limits being susceptible of change by any future legislation. Other restrictive provisions are also included.

The theory of the bill is, that owners of riparian land have no vested right of user in the use of flowing waters of a stream or in the shore waters of a lake, nor in the beds thereof, which is not subject to an appropriation by the state for "all purposes" including the purpose of raising revenue by charging rental and including such other restrictions as the state may see fit to make. The bill was introduced in the house by representative Spooner and was forced to passage in the house without any hearing from the riparian owners before the committee to which it was referred. When it came to the senate it was referred to the general legislation committee of that body, before which hearings were had by the opponets of the bill. The waterpower interests claimed that, by the settled law of this state, as established by the decisions of the supreme court, the riparian land carries with it, as a vested property right to the riparian owner, the privilege of the exclusive use and benefit of the waterpowers appurtenant to his riparian land and of the use of the shores of the lakes for wharfing and like purposes, subject only to the right of the state in its sovereign capacity to control the beds and waters of streams and lakes for navigation purposes, and they claimed that this bill is an attempt to take away their vested rights and is, therefore, unconstitutional. After several hearings before the senate committee the committee voted to refer the question of the constitutionality of the bill to the attorney general. Hearings were had before the attorney general's office on Monday and Tuesday, and in the opinion just rendered that office advises the senate that the bill cannot affect vested rights, and that under the law of this state the right of the riparian owner to the beneficial use of the waterpower opposite his land is such vested right, and that the senate has no power either to compel a license from the riparian owner, or to require from him a payment for using waterpower appurtenant to his land.

This settles the matter in favor of the contention of the riparian owners. The question was discussed before the attorney general's office as to whether any part of the bill could be held constitutional. It was claimed that it was, both in its title and all its essential provisions a revenue measure, and that, as the means of revenue provided were unconstitutional, and as the provision in the bill for a commission was manifestly for the only purpose of cresting a means of collecting such revenue, therefore the entire bill was unconstitutional. On this point the attorney general's office does not express an opinion, as the office was not agreed upon that point.

Ole Peterson's bill appropriating $5,000 for a monument over the grave of the late John A. Johnson passed the house by a vote of 70 to 22.

The Knuze-Hopkin-Johnson bill repealing the law making it a misdemeanor to attempt suicide passed by a vote of 69 to 9.

A Bill to make wills and last testaments void unless there was written evidence of the will, was passed by the senate. Senators Fosseen and Wilson of Minneapolis were the backers of the bill.

The house passed the Hennepin county delegation bill allowing the city of Minneapolis to issue bonds for the purpose of developing the waterpower by the city.

The blow at breweries which own or operate saloons was aimed in a joint resolution introduced by Senator Saugstad. It directs the attorney general to dissolve all brewing corporations owning saloons.

It is also stated that Pichucaco is surrounded by a large force of rebels. Pichucalo is near San Juan Baustiatia.

DOINGS OF THE SOLONS

Minnesota Legislative Affairs of the Past Week—Law Makers Hard at Work.

St. Paul, April 8.—After a stormy session the house friends of reapportionment failed to kill the Duxbury-Haycraft-Moonon-Weiss, senate bill providing for the submission of a constitutional amendment limiting the legislative representatives of any one county to six senators. A motion to indefinately postpone the bill lost by a vote of 55 to 56. It was then placed at the foot of general orders.

The bill had passed the senate by a vote of 36 to 24 and is considered a blow at Governor Eberhart's plan to secure the passage of a fair reapportionment bill. It is aimed at the cities and if passed would disfranchise thousands of people.

Election Bill Is Passed.

The senate passed one bill for direct election of United States senators. The bill was one providing for direct election but strictly within party lines. It simply pledged the candidates for the legislature to vote for the candidates for United States senator receiving the highest vote in the party primaries. That is, the majority party in the legislature would be pledged to vote for their party nominee.

The roll-call was as follows: Ayes—Anderson, Bedford, Benson, Boyle, Cashman, Clague, Coller, L. O. Cooke, Dale, Denegre, Dues, Dunn, Dwinnell, Elwell, Foseen, Froshaug, Gunderson, Gunn, Hackney, Hanson, Haycraft, V. L. Johnson, Johnston, Klein, Lende, Marden, Moonan, Murray, Nelson, Odell, Olson, Pauly, Peterson, Pugh, Putnam, Rockne, Saugstad, Stebbins, G. H. Sullivan, Sumberg, Swanson, Thoe, Wallace, Wilson. Total, 44.

Nays—Ahamun, Cheadle, C. F. Cook, Donaldson, Duxbury, Glotzbach, Handlan, C. D. Johnson, L'Herault, McGrath, Poehler, Sageng, Schaller, J. D. Sullivan, Van Hoven, Weis, Works.

No Direct Election in Minnesota.

St. Paul, April 12.—The lower house killed the Murray bill, providing for direct election of United Staes Senators.

St. Paul, April 12.—Superintendent Whittier of the Red Wing Training school was given a clean coat of whitewash by the lower branch of the legislature. By a vote of 53 to 30 the house cut out the heart of the majority report of the legislative investigating committee which severely censured the superintendent for his indiscriminate application of corporal punishment and recommended his removal. The report as later adopted simply contains the findings of the committee without any recommendation whatever.

With the adoption of the report as amended the house went on record as blaming the state board of control for the conditions which exist at the Red Wing Training school and also in favor of corporal punishment. L. A. Lydiard scathingly arraigned the board of control for its lack of interest in the state school in his opening address. He spoke as follows:

Mr. Lydiard's Speech.

"This report shows that the spirit of kindness and good will at Red Wing has been replaced by the rule of the cash. It shows that instead of recognizing the reform spirit of the institution and instead of recognizing the fact that modern thought has evolved a new method of dealing with delinquent children. Armed with a whip, the present superintendent of this institution has gone about among these unfortunates as the incarnation of the spirit of fear. Fastened to a machine or appliance, hands shackled, backs bared, these boys have received 10, 20, 30 and as many as 100 lashes.

"The superintendent is recommended for removal. His assistants must go, but fixing the blame upon these men alone is a mere subterfuge.

"Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the house, the shame of Red Wing is not the asset of a mere subordinate. The members of the state board of control are responsible for that condition, and the sentiment of this state should demand the resignation of the members of that board, save one."

Motion Is Made.

R. C. Dunn moved that the entire section D be stricken from the report and that it then be adopted. This was the bone of the contention. Section D declared superintendent's admission that he could not run the training school without corporal punishment and recommended that he should be removed as well as several subordinate officers. R. C. Dunn defended the superintendent.

"We have been hearing too much of this hysterical gush from kindhearted men and women of this state,'" declared the gentleman from Mille Lacs. "The conditions at Red Wing have been grossly exaggerated. Supt. Whittier in my estimate is a worthy man and a perfect gentleman. His methods may not have been absolutely correct, but he has been the victim of circumstances.

"Many people seem to think that the boys who go to Red Wing are angels. They are bad and that is the reason why they are sent there. Supt. Whittier has been critized for administering corparal punishment. I believe in corporal punisment when it come to dealing with boys of the class at Red Wing."

W. F. Kunze of Minneapolis in the strongest speech of the evening defended the superintendent of the Red Wing school declaring him to be a capable man. He upheld corporal punishment and produced telegrams and letters from other training schools through the country to show that corporal punishment has been successfully used. He charged that there was a political scheme behind the Red Wing investigation.

Millions Appropriated by Senate.

Just to show how easy it was to do business when they had their minds made up, the Minnesota legislature passer the omnibus appropriations bill, disposing of about $16,000,000 in the senate in less than one hour.

Only one argument was precipitated in the senate and that was over an item of $1,000. It wasn't the money involved that started that argument, but a desire to deal a crushing blow to Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state health department, that caused it. Through the entire session, many senators have expressed their disapproval of Dr. Bracken's methods, and this feeling culminated in the adoption of Senator Moonan's amendment to the appropriations bill cutting Dr. Bracken's salary from $5,000 a year to $4,000.

Senator Hackney said that many members had favored giving the state fair an agricultural building and the state university more buildings, but that perfect harmony had prevailed in committee and he commented on the wonderful unanimity that was shown by the senate in passing practically without an amendment an appropriations bill that necessarily failed to give many senators what they thought they were entitled to and what their districts were interested in.

Few Salary Cuts Made.

After a slight application of the pruning knift the house passed the omnibus bill. The bill provinding for state institutions under the board of control was left practically intact. A few cuts in salaries were made on the state department bill.

W. T. Stone of Park Rapids, posing as the watchdog of the state treasury, offered nearly 20 amendments, striking out sections where salary increases were allowed for state officials. He succeeded in only two instances. The house refused a $250 increase for the deputy state auditor and an increase of $1,000 for the actuary in the state insurance department.

Dr. Stone offered several amendments which would have practically cut off the appropriation for the state board of health. In each case the amendment was defeated.

Andrew Anderson of Stillwater succeeded in amending the section governing the $325,000 appropriation for the state university. The bill provided for an annual appropriation of this amount. The Anderson amendment provided for the appropriation only for the next two years. W. F. Kunze, W. D. Washburn and L. C. Spooner favored the standing appropriation on the ground that the board of regents in planning the future of the state university should know the amount of money that it will receive from year to year. Country members declared that it would be just as well to allow the legislature to make the appropriation every two years. The amendment was passed by a vote of 57 to 32.

Senator Hanson's malt bill prohibiting the sale of malt liquor except in saloons passed the house by a vote of 98 to 13 and now awaits the governor's signature to complete its enactment into a law.

R. C. Dunn's bill prohibiting the licensing of saloons outside of an incorporated city, village or hamlet, passed by a vote of 67 to 47.

The house passed the Lende bill giving a right of action for damages to people injured as the result of the unlawful sale of liquor, and the Hoffman bill placing a license of $150 a year on district and county agents of breweries.

Equal Tax Rate Bill Passes.

After a spirited debate the bill calling for an equal tax rate in every part of the state was passed by a vote of 38 to 11. As finally amended the bill called for the basis of taxation to be 33 1-3 per cent on the actual valuation. Senator Wallace, of Minneapolis, was the author of the bill.

REPUBLIC PROCLAIMED.

Spain's King Has Another Incipent Revolution.

Madrid, Spain. — A republic has been proclaimed at Canillas de Aceltune, in the province of Malaga. The populace of the town rebelled against the royal authority and attacked the barracks of the civil guard.

Several persons were wounded in the fihting that followed. Reinforcements of troops are being hurried to the scene.

SUICIDE IS VERDICT.

In the Case of the Death of Craige Lippincott

Philadelphia, Penn. — A coroner's jury, empaneled to inquire into the death on Thursday of Craige Lippincott, president of the J. B. Lippincott Company, publishers, rendered a verdict of suicide. The inquest was brief. Members of the family were not called as witnesses, instead their sworn depositions were read and accepted by the coroner.

POINT OUT FLAWS

FEAR POLITICAL ABUSES

Itasca Lawyer of Fifteenth District Cites Supreme Court Nominations as Endangered by Legislation.

Grand Rapids.—The lawyers of the Fifteenth judicial district are not pleased with the pending bill providing for the election of the delegates to district judicial conventions, and also for the selection of delegates at the district judicial conventions to the state judicial convention.

George Spear, well known in this district and formerly prosecuting attorney for Itasca county, points out two objections from the standpoint of the people of the larger districts. The Fifteenth district, in which Grand Rapids is located, is composed of eight counties and is over 150 miles long and a hundred miles wide. While the primaries might elect delegates to a convention in that district, Mr. Spear thinks that where there was no party organization and not the ordinary inducement to influence delegates in attending a convention, it would not be reasonable to expect many from remote parts of the district to attend a convention held, for instance, at Grand Rapids.

Few Likely to Attend.

The location of the convention, it will be remembered, is according to the terms of the bill to be determined by the secretary of state. If for any reason he should select International Falls on the northern boundary, it is safe to say that very few delegates from the southern part of the district would attend and pay their own expenses. The case would not be improved very much if the convention was located anywhere along the Great Northern railroad, so far as delegates from Crow Wing and Aitkin are concerned, or from Koochiching county.

The same difficulties occur in a large degree in the Seventh district, which extends from Clay county, of which Moorhead is the principal town on the northwest to Stearns county, west of the river, and Mille Lacs county, on the east. That would open the way for political manipulation through the payment of railroad fares for delegates or proxies, and, in Mr. Spear's opinion, involve the judiciary in politics more than it has been heretofore.

Other districts present problems pretty nearly as difficult to solve in respect to the distance to be traveled by delegates.

Political Manipulation Feared.

The bill provides, also, that the district convention shall select delegates to the state convention. Here again, Mr. Spear suggests the opportunity created for political manipulation, if, for instance, the district convention was not generally attended by delegates from all parts of the district, the delegates to the state convention would be left in the hands of a few who might seize the opportunity to pack the state convention with delegates in the interests of some particular candidate.

If it were desired, Mr. Spear holds, to create conditions under which nominations to the supreme court might be improperly influenced, the provisions of this bill would seem to provide them.

He concedes that the same conditions do not apply in the smaller districts, where delegates to a judicial convention could be gotten together more easily and a more general and fair representation expected, but the provisions are state wide and, in his judgment, are going to create exceedingly unsatisfactory conditions in many of the larger districts.

He recognizes the weaknesses of the primary system and concedes the evident good intent of the framers of the bill, but believes that they have not thoroughly considered all the conditions which must be met and have not realized the opportunities they create for the introduction of policies into the selection not only of judges of the district court, but members of the supreme court as well.

FREE DELIVERY OF MAIL.

Promised by P. O. Department For Two Harbors.

Washington. — Free postal delivery for Two Harbors, Minn., is promised by the postoffice department as soon as the postoffice of the city is moved into new and larger quarters. Two Harbors is entitled to free delivery on the volume of business done by the office. Representative Miller took the matter up with the department today and was assured that it would be granted.

Wife Sees Husband Drown.

Winona.—Leo Smith, 35 year old, was drowned in the Mississippi at Dresbach, a few miles below Winona. While fishing with a companion he attempted to row across a dam. The craft became grounded and in attempting to liberate it, the small boat filled with water and capsized.

Both men were thrown into the swift current. Charles Kramer, Smith's companion, managed to reach shore. Smith's wife, on the shore, witnessed the drowning. The drowned man lived at Wabasha.

TEACHERS IN ANNUAL MEET.

Fifteenth Convention of Northern Minnesota Association at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud.—Educators from all parts of the state poured into the city, and over 400 delegates and teachers were present to attend the fifteenth annual convention of the Northern Minnesota Educational Association, which was in session here Friday and Saturday.

An excellent program had been prepared by the executive committee, which had secured many prominent speakers.

The feature of the convention was the address by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the State University, who talked upon "The New Duty of the Schools." This is the first time that Dr. Vincent has spoken in the state outside of the Twin Cities since assuming his new duties and his address was the chief drawing card of the convention.

Reception for Vincent.

Following his address Dr. Vincent was given a reception in Lawrence hall. Other prominent speakers were: Dr. D. J. Dowling, president of Carleton College; Mrs. M. L. Starkweather, assistant labor commissioner; George B. Balton, state high school inspector, and Superintendent of Public Instruction C. G. Schulz. Superintendent A. N. Farmer, of St. Cloud, presided at the opening session.

There was an informal discussion on the topic, "Where Should We Limit the Teaching of Agriculture, Domestic Science and Manual Training?" The discussion was led by Superintendent E. E. Lockerby, of Paynesville; Superintendent E. C. Higbee, of the Morris Agricultural School, Dr. I. T. Johnsrud, of the St. Cloud Normal, and Superintendent W. P. Dyer, of Bemidji, also spoke. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that these are not taught enough in the schools as a whole at the present time, although there was a tendency to carry it to extremes in some instances.

MATTRESS PLANT WORKS STARTS

Oxford Company at Winona Will Soon Be in Operation.

Winona.—The Oxford Linen Mattress company of this city received three cars of structural steel, the consignment being received from a Chicago company. The first building will be started without delay and the plant will be ready for actual operations by the early part of the summer. Pending the completion of the other building, a complete mattress making plant with a capacity of ten per cent of the whole establishment when developed, will be installed. Ultimately, when the plans of the company have been matured, the first building will be used as the bat making house of the group. About 60,000 mattresses will be turned out annually when the plant is complete and will represent a concern able to receive the crude flax product and turn it out in the finished mattress.

FOUND HANGING TO A TREE.

Litchfield Who Escaped From Fergus Falls Asylum.

Litchfield. — Authorities here were notified that the body of John Palm, a wealthy merchant and member of the city council of this city, has been found hanging to a tree, two miles from the state insane hospital at Fergus Falls, from which institution he had been missing since April 2.

Mr. Palm was sent as a patient to the insane hospital at his own request. He was subject to periods of depression and feared that while so afflicted he might do himself injury. On Sunday, April 2, after he had been granted his parole, he did not return. Every effort was made to locate him, but without success, until his body was found by Deputy Sheriff Axel Nelson of this county.

He is survived by a widow and a large family.

BIG GRANDIN FARM SOLD.

$120,608 Involved in the Transfer of Clay County Property.

Moorhead.—One of the largest bona fide land deals ever made in this portion of the state took place here. The papers recorded are for the transfer of the entire Grandin farm, ten miles north of this city, comprising 1,855 acres, from J. L. Grandin and wife to the Brown-Daskin company of Hope, N. D., and from it to Daniel P. Wild of De Kalb, Ill., the consideration being $120,608.15, or approximately $65 an acre.

The Grandin farm is in the vicinity of Kragnes, north of this city, and is in one of the finest grain growing and potato districts in northwestern Minnesota.

Minneapolis.—One of the most successful of the Mort H. Singer output of musical comedies, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," which has to its credit the longest run ever made by any show in Chicago, 463 performances, comes to the Bijou for a week's engagement April 16th.

Gets Damages in Border Dispute.

Red Wing.—Judge Albert Johnson filed a decision in the case of Fred Koehn against Henry Kuhl in which a verdict of $35 is awarded to Koehn. The parties reside in the township of Florence. Both live on adjoining farms and the suit was the result of a dispute of the boundary line. The court found that the defendant, Henry Kuehl erected a wire fence, posts, etc., on Kuehn's property and awarded damages. The survey of the land made by J. M. Simmons, county surveyor was found to be correct.

$8.50 HEDGETHORN PUNCTURE-PROOF SELF-HEALING TIRES A SAMPLE PAIR TO INTRODUCE, ONLY $4.80

The regular retail price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but to introduce we will sell you a sample pair for [illegible]

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES

NAILS, Tacks or Glass will not let the air out. Sixty thousand pairs sold last year. Over two hundred thousand pairs now in use.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. You run no risk in [illegible] be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory [illegible] We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If [illegible] these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better [illegible] than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price [illegible] know that [illegible] pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of Hedgethorn Puncture-Proof tires on approval and trial at the special introductory price quoted above; or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

The annual outing of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association will be held at Itasca state park June 8-9-10-11.

We beg to ask that corrections of church notices be handed in early in the week. When handed to us as late as Friday, or on Saturday morning, as many times occurs, there is too much chance for errors in the hurry and bustle of getting ready for the press.

The house on Thursday passed Senator A. L. Hanson's malt bill. The bill went through without any amendments, the vote being 98 to 13, and is the first temperance measnre to be passed by both houses of the present legislature. It prohibits the sale of malt liqnors anywhere except in saloons or drug stores.

A great deal of farm land is changing hands, and the best feature of it is the large amount that is being bought by farmers, who have been here for years; men who a short time ago would have sold their holdings, are now increasing them, and it is certain that a period of great prosperity and development is coming. The farmer who diversifies, and this district permits that kind of farming, is working on a certainty. He cannot lose.—Thief River Falls News.

There are events occuring in every community which, if reported in a local paper, would create commotion little dreamed of. What to report and what not to report often perplexes the editor. He's often unjustly accused of cowardice and favoriteism, while all the time he is looking toward the good reputation of the town and vicinity where his lot is cast. The local editor, from necessity, almost constantly finds himself between two fires, and which ever way he turns he is sure to be unjustly treated. This is one of she pleasures of the newspaper business.—Bemidji Pioneer.

The Producers' Cooperative Market Association

PRESS BULLETIN NO. 88

The Producers' Cooperative Market association was organized to secure a market for the farmers of Northeastern Minnesota who had no home market; to enable farmers to ship their products where such products were most in demand.

This association was formed by a number of farmers' clubs, each club constituting a membership in the central organization and having a voice in its management.

The association has headquarters at Duluth where a manager is employed to look after the business.

Any local comunity of farmers in northern Minnesota can organize a club and join the association for a membership fee of ten dollars. Five or more farmers are required in each local club to secure a membership in the association.

Farmers desiring to organize and join the association should write to the secretary, Mr. John S. Pardee, Duluth, Minn.

BENEFITS OF THE ASSOCIATION

Farmers belonging to the association can ship vegetables, potatoes, veal poultry products, in fact everything raised on the farm, and secure the prevailing market price.

The purpose of the association is not to compete with merchants in the farmers' home towns, but rather to give farmers market where there is no loca market.

For a farmer to ship to the association and secure the market price, it is necessary for him to supply good products and have them put up in the way the trade wants them. Lettuce, radishes, and top onions will not sell in a gunnysack, but they will sell if put up in a certain kind of box that can be had from the association at the factory cost. In the same way, all products must be put up in the way the market calls for and a farmer will take far more satisfaction out of his work after he learns how to put up his products for the market.

The manager of the Producers' Cooperative Market association, Mr. H. A. Hopkins, has written an article of instructions on the kind of products the association wants and the way to put them up. The article is recommended as worthy of the study of every farmer who grows such products, whether he belongs to the Producers' Cooperative Market association or not.

The Producers' Cooperative Market association is an effort for cooperation among farmers. Its sucess will mean much in the develpment of agriculture in Northeastern Minnesota and every farmer should be acquainted with this association. It has been in operation just one year and during that time it has handled nearly fifty thousand dollars worth of farm products. This amount is small in comparison with what may be accomplished but considering the fact that the association started without capital, it must be considered good. The association begins its second year much better equipped and can be of much greater service to the farmers. Its motto is to grow the best and to put only the best on the market and to secure the best prices. Through quality, uniformity, and honesty, the Producers' Cooperative Market association aims to be of lasting good. Its work is educational as well as for greater profits, for it is only through knowing how that a greater market can be secured. The article by Mr. Hopkins will be found of value in that it teaches how.

Burned Much Hay

Destructive prairie fires which started near Kratka last week swept across the reservation from the south and before they were extinguished had burned up hundreds of tons of hay belonging to the settlers. The heavy snow the first of the week came as a Godsend and stopped further destruction of property. The fires started along the river, and fanned by high winds, raced madly along licking up whatever property lay in their path. Many farmers lost their hay and several local parties who had hay-baling outfits at work on the reservation suffered the loss of practically all of their product.

The lessons of last fall, when destructive fires wiped off the map so much valuable property, seemed not to have taken effect, and many farmers have started brush fires this spring without taking the proper precautions to prevent them from spreading. It is hoped that in time these farmers will learn the value of proprly constructed fire breaks, and thus prevent a repetition of the disasters for which 1910 was famous.—Thief River Falls Times.

Changes in Court Dates

The following changes have been made in the time for holding the general terms of district court in Fourteenth Judicial District, according to a recent act of legislature:

Marshall county: Fourth Monday in May and November.

Norman county: Second Monday in May and November.

Kittson county: No change. Second Monday in June and December.

Pennington county: Fourth Monday in January and June.

Mahnomen county: Fourth Monday in October.

Polk county: No change. First Tuesday in June and December.

Red Lake county: Fourth Monday in March and second Monday in November.

Roseau county. Third Monday in May and Fourth Monday in October.

Judge Grindeland, of Warren, will hold the terms of court in Marshall Kittson, Norman and Pennington counties and Judge William Watts of Crookston will preside at the terms held in Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Judge Grindeland has formerly had Roseau county, but it is now taken by Judge Watts, on account of railroad connections, as Crookston is in direct communication with Roseau the trip can be made in one day, while from Warren it requires two days coming and going.

Notice

PROPOSAL FOR REMODELING COURT HOUSE.

Sealed bids will be received by the board of county comissioners of Pennington county, at the office of the county auditor, in the auditorium building in the city of Thief River Falls, Minn. until eleven o'clock a. m. April 22, 1911, for remodeling court house, as per plans and specifications on file with county auditor of said county.

Certified check to the amount of 10 percent of bid, payable to A. H. Fasel, auditor of Pennington county, must accompany each bid.

The county board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

m8-3t A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor and Ex-Officio Clerk of Board.

Notice

Notice is hereby given that all County Revenue warrants against Pennington county, registered on or before March 28, 1911, are now payable. Interest will stop on such warrants thirty days after the date of this notice.

Thief River Falls, Minn. March 28, 1911.

a1-3t ANDREW TROVATON, County Treasurer.

Joint Meeting of Commissioners Postponed

Next Thursday, April 20, was the date set for the joint meeting of the county commissioners of Red Lake and Pennington counties, the meeting to be held at the Red Lake county court house in this city. However, the meeting has been postponed and will probably be held May 15 instead of the date first named.

The meeting is held for the purpose of determining the amount of the debtedness of old Red Lake county excess of the old county's credits being necessary to determine the amount of indebtedness the new county of Pennington must assume. It will also be the duty of the commissioners of the two counties in joint session to appraise the property of Red Lake county. Should the commissioners be unable to "get together" on this matter that condition would necessitate the appointment of appraisers to do the work.

The county buildings now being the property of reduced Red Lake county, their value, as determined by the commissioners or appraisers, will constitute a set off against an equal amount of the indebtedness to be assumed by Pennington county.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Jurors

Following is the list of grand and petit jurors as drawn up this week:

Robertson, Thief River Falls; O. O. Reiersgaard, Mayfield; E. K. Aasen, Thief River Falls.

The next term of district court will convene the first week in June.

Will Start in May

The large mill of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, which has been undergoing repairs during the past winter, will not start on the season's cut until the latter part of May. The lateness of the season and the scarcity of logs in the river are responsible for this decison. There is no danger now that the mill will be torn down and moved away. The supply of logs is still of sufficient proportions to allow of several years cutting here yet, and arrangements are being made with the Soo railroad by which the road will haul in logs by rail and dump them in the river on the old logging spur that was torn up a number of years ago.

The work of laying the track and hauling in logs will be commenced soon, and it is expected that the first trains of logs will be hauled in early in May.—Times.

DIED

Lester, son of A. E. Doble, of Polk Centre died at the Bethesda hospital, St. Paul, Wednesday evening the 12th inst, from brain fever resulting from catarrh. About ten days ago he went to the hospital to undergo treatment for swellings in his ears, but got no relief.

The deceased was 20 years of age at the time of death. He leaves besides his father and mother four brothers and one sister to mourn his loss. He will be buried at the former home of the family at Howard Lake, Wright county, where the funeral services will be held next Sunday.

Coldly Described.

Praised by Press and Pulpit

No Piano has ever been more enthusiastically endorsed. The Artistic Case, the Easy, Responsive Action, and above all the deep, sweet, rich Tone, captivates performer and listener. The united verdict is that ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

LOMBARD PIANOS ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD !!

Mrs. Helen M. Slaker, 244 Grand Ave., Aurora, Ill., says: "I cannot find words in the English language to express my appreciation to you for having sold me such a beautiful instrument. I really think it is the most beautiful case I ever saw, and the tone is simply grand. I shall be glad to give you any testimonial, as I think the Lombard should take the lead."

Rev. Geo. Doubleday, Pres. Corpus Christi College, Galesburg, Ill., says: "We are using the Lombard in our College work at Corpus Christi, and it is a pleasure to recommend it. It is a beautiful instrument with a deep, sweet, rich tone."

J. W. Purviance, Editor McNairy County Independent, Selmer, Tenn., says: "The instrument (Lombard Piano) fills our most sanguine expectations. It is not only a rare beauty in its outward finish, but the tone is round, full, rich and sweet. Your firm has proven to be prompt and reliable in its dealings with me."

J. Ernest Paxson, Editor Press, Parkersburg, Pa., says: "I must say that the Lombard sent me is a beautiful instrument, and a credit to a standard firm. We are more than satisfied."

R. S. Knapp, President Federal Charter Co., Washington, D. C., says: "We now realize after a careful and comprehensive trial of the Lombard by many musical artists of Washington, that it stands second to none, regardless of price or make. Every one who has tried this instrument is enthusiastic in its praise."

Spring Debility

Felt by so many upon the return of warm weather is due to the impure, impoverished, devitalized condition of the blood which causes that tired feeling and loss of appetite as well as the pimples, boils and other eruptions so common at this season.

It is cured by the great constitutional remedy

which effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than twenty different ingredients. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good," you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

PUT YOUTH ON HIS GUARD

Evidently Recital of Romances Long Passed Made No Appeal to His Feelings.

"Charles," said a sharp-voiced woman to her husband in a railway carriage "do you know that you and I once had a romance in a railway carriage?"

"Never heard of it," replied Charles in a subdued tone.

"I thought you hadn't; but don't you remember, it was that pair of slippers I presented to you the Christmas before we were married that led to our union? You remember how nicely they fitted, don't you? Well, Charles, one day when we were going to a picnic you had your feet upon a seat, and when you were not looking I took your measure. But for that pair of slippers I don't believe we'd have ever been married."

Truth a Trouble Maker.

A West Philadelphia man and his wife have separated. None of their friends know why, but one, being curious, asked the husband:

"What was the trouble between you and your wife?"

"O, nothing much. She bought a new hat for $20 and asked me what I thought of it. And I told her. That's all."

How Sea Birds Drink.

Under the headline, Where Do They Get Water? a writer in the Young Folks' Catholic Weekly says: "When I was a cabin boy I often used to wonder, seeing birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they did for fresh water when they were thirsty. One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glittering day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of empty space over a hundred sea birds came darting from every direction. They got under the rain cloud, and waited there for about ten minutes, circling round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill. In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinking water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off; they travel a hundred miles maybe to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them going."—New York Tribune.

TRAIN LOAD AFTER TRAIN LOAD OF SETTLERS

ARE GOING TO CENTRAL CANADA.

The question of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada has provoked considerable discussion and interest. Whatever else the discussion may have done, it has brought out the fact that on the Canadian side of the line the agricultural situation is one that forces attention, and it has also brought forth the fact which it is well to face, that on the American side of the border, there is a vastly increasing population to be fed with a somewhat decreasing proportion of food products. This article is intended to point out to those who may wish to become of those who can raise wheat, oats, barley, flax, cattle and hogs at the least cost that the opportunities in Central Canada are what they are seeking. During the past year the official figures show that upwards of 130,000 Americans located in Canada, and the greatest majority of these have settled on farms, and when the time comes, which it will within a few years, they will be ready to help serve their parent country with the food stuffs that its increasing population will require. The immigration for the spring has now set in in great earnest, and train load after train load of a splendid class of settlers leave weekly from Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul and other points. Most of these are destined through to points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The reports that come from the different farming districts there are that the spring is opening up well, and the prospects for a splendid crop this year are very good. In some districts good homesteads are yet available. The price of all farm lands has naturally had an increase, but it is still away below its earning capacity. The immigration branch of the Dominion Government has just published its 1911 illustrated pamphlet, which may be secured on application to the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, or any of the agents of the Dominion Government, whose advertisement may appear elsewhere in this paper.

An Ambassador's Nose.

An ambassador to Russia, formerly a leather merchant in this country, discovered certain secret processes regarding a special kind of leather manufactured there. He would have been looked on with suspicion had it been suspected that he could learn anything of these methods. But during his sojourn he got near enough to certain factories to register, through his sense of smell, some impressions with which he was able to work out the formulas when he returned home.—Atlantic Magazine.

Truly Wonderful Cat.

A wonderful cat is that owned by Mr. A. J. Gorringe, a tradesman of Ditching, England. Mr. Gorringe has a bantam which lays her eggs in different parts of the yard, but his cat never fails to find them. She takes the egg between her teeth, places it on the step, and rattles the door handle with her paws until her mistress arrives to take in the egg. Not one of the eggs has yet been broken.

REASONED IT OUT

And Found a Change in Food Put Him Right.

A man does not count as wasted the time he spends in thinking over his business, but he seems loth to give the same sort of careful attention to himself and to his health. And yet his business would be worth little without good health to care for it. A business man tells how he did himself good by carefully thinking over his physical condition, investigating to find out what was needed, and then changing to the right food.

"For some years I had been bothered a great deal after meals. My food seemed to lay like lead in my stomach, producing heaviness and dullness and sometimes positive pain. Of course this rendered me more or less unfit for business, and I made up my mind that something would have to be done.

"Reflection led me to the conclusion that over-eating, filling the stomach with indigestible food, was responsible for many of the ills that human flesh endures, and that I was punishing myself in that way—that was what was making me so dull, heavy and uncomfortable, and unfit for business after meals. I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food to see what it could do for me.

"I have been using it for some months now, and am glad to say that I do not suffer any longer after meals; my food seems to assimilate easily and perfectly, and to do the work for which it was intended.

"I have regained my normal weight, and find that business is a pleasure once more—can take more interest in it, and my mind is clearer and more alert."

ITCHED SO COULD NOT SLEEP

"I suffered from the early part of December until nearly the beginning of March with severe skin eruptions on my face and scalp. At first I treated it as a trivial matter. But after having used castile soap, medicated washrags, cold cream, vanishing cream, etc., I found no relief whatever. After that I diagnosed my case as eczema, because of its dry, scaly appearance. The itching and burning of my scalp became so intense that I thought I should go mad, having not slept regularly for months past, only at intervals, waking up now and then because of the burning and itching of my skin. Having read different testimonials of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, I decided to purchase a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. After using them for a few days I recognized a marked change in my condition. I bought about two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and five cakes of Cuticura Soap in all, and after a few days I was entirely free from the itching and burning. My eczema was entirely cured, all due to using Cuticura Soap and Ointment daily. Hereafter I will never be without a cake of Cuticura Soap on my washstand. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone suffering from similar skin eruptions and hope you will publish my letter so that others may learn of Cuticura Remedies and be cured." Grouch Still With Him.

When Brown died he left an old friend living, by the name of Jones, who always had a grouch. After Brown had been in heaven some time, he met Jones just coming through the gate, and as the newcomer did not look as happy and contented as he should, Brown asked him what was the matter. "Well," Jones said, "I got my feet wet coming across the river Styx and caught a nasty cold, broke my left wing and have to carry it in a sling, and my halo don't fit worth a darn."

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Winona.—At the Masonic temple here was held the annual reunion of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry of the Valley of Winona. The dates being April 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Redwood Falls.—William J. Bryan will open the Redwood Falls Chautauqua June 30. The local management expect this year to be the biggest and best Chautauqua ever held in this part of the state.

Duluth.—Joseph O'Clair and Miss Eva Arseneault, who recently eloped to a point in New York and were brought back on a warrant sworn out by the girls' father, by a deputy sheriff, were married.

St. James.—Postmaster Fuller reports that the receipts of the local postoffice have increased during the past year sufficiently to raise the office to the second class. The change will take place July 1.

Winona.—Thirty-two officials of the different departments along the Winona-Huron division of the North-Western road enjoyed a dinner at the North-Western hotel in Winona. These officials will meet hereafter in Winona every second Saturday of each month, the custom having been just inaugurated.

East Grand Forks.—The Women's Civic league of this city has instituted a pure food department and will set about an active campaign for the sale of only pure foods by East Grand Forks merchants. Miss Ethel Putnam, teacher of domestic science in the city schools, has been named chairman of that department.

Little Falls.—The school board has re-engaged all of the present teaching corps except the principal of the high school for another year. The board also purchased 25 acres of the best land in the county, situated just east of the city limits, and which will be used in connection with the agricultural department of the schools.

Fergus Falls.—The Woman's Club of this city held its annual meeting and decided to offer a number of prizes to the school children of the city who make the best clean-up showing during the summer. The club elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. R. E. Lincoln; vice-president, Mrs. H. M. Wheelock; secretary, Mrs. F. E. Hodgson; treasurer, Mrs. C. J. Wright.

Fergus Falls.—The spring term of the district court convened in this city on Monday with a civil calendar of forty-nine cases. Judge C. A. Nye, of Moorhead occupied the bench for the first time. The term promises to be one of the considerable interest, as the damage suits that have been brought against the city for losses sustained when the electric light dam washed out, a year and a half ago, are to come to trial.

Albert Lea.—Sheriff Subby is at Glenville, eight miles south of this city, investigating the work of a mob that tarred, feathered and rode on a rail J. P. Freeman, the physician at that place. Some difficulty arose between Mr. Freeman and his wife, and the people took the part of Mrs. Freeman, and severely punished her husband. Reports say there is another woman in the case, and the matter has been brewing for several months.

WANTS RIVER SHOAL REMOVED.

Representative Miller Tells Board of Engineers of Mississippi Ledge.

Washington.—Representative C. S. Miller of Duluth appeared before the board of engineers of the war department in regard to the proposed removal of the ledge or shoal on the Mississippi river at Pine Knoll. This obstruction is generally regarded as largely responsible for floods in the upper Mississippi and a preliminary survey looking for its removal has been made by Major Shunk of St. Paul.

Major Shunk, while favoring the proposition, does not recommend the removal of the ledge as a separate project, but as a part of the present project for the improvement of the river between Brainerd and Grand Rapids.

MOORHEAD BRIDE IS SAVED.

Moorhead.—Only the prompt arrival of a half dozen of the city's street department employes prevented the demolishment of the big reservoir dam in the Red river and the carrying out of the Island Park bridge just above the dam.

A telephone call from George Fuller, who resides near the dam and bridge, was quickly responded to by the city authorities, who directed men with pike poles to hasten to the scene of the ice jam. The ice was piling up at a terrific rate and the bridge already had begun to move, but hard work saved both structures. The dam recently was constructed at a cost of about $5,000.

FIRE LOSS IN DULUTH IS $75,000.

First National Bank and Mohr Hotel Razed—Narrow Escapes.

Duluth.—Seaman Martin's place, the Mohr hotel and the First National bank building were burned to the ground. Messrs. Taylor and H. Hinney and Dr. Chapman, occupying living quarters and offices above Seaman Martin's had narrow escapes from death. Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Chapman jumped from the second story window, receiving severe bruises.

FIFTY GIRLS ARE QUARANTINED.

One Case of Scarlet Fever Discovered at Barnard College.

New York, N. Y.—Fifty girls, students at Barnard college, are quarantined in Brooks Hall, one of the dormitories, because of a case of scarlet fever which has been discovered there. Miss May Bernstein of Paterson, N. J., the scarlet fever patient, has been removed to a hospital. The 50 girls will have to remain in the premises until after Easter Sunday, it is said.

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"There never was a worse case."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of woman's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Meredith, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Preventing a Disturbance.

Colonel Scotchem was weary. He had had a very arduous day retreating from the enemy, and he wished to recoup his strength in order that he might retreat still further on the morrow.

"MacPherson," he said to his new servant, "I'm going to snatch forty winks' sleep. Stay in my tent and see that I'm not disturbed."

Mac saluted. Five minutes later the snores of Colonel Scotchem were cut short by the loud report of a gun.

"Great Scott!" cried the colonel. "Are the enemy upon us?"

"Na, dinna fret," replied Mac, inserting his head reassuringly through the tent flap, "it was only a wee mousie. But as I thought he might wake you up I shot him."—Answers.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Now's the Time—not a year from now when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 50 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

FREE SAMPLE CURED OLD PERSON'S BOWEL TROUBLE

One of the most remarkable proofs of the unusual laxative merit contained in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is that it is effective not only in people in the prime of life but at the extremes of ages. As many letters are received from mothers regarding the cures of children, as from men and women of sixty, seventy and eighty years of age. It must be truly a wonderful laxative.

In the cure of constipation and bowel trouble in old people it has no equal. It corrects the constipation, dispels the headache, biliousness, gas, drowsiness after eating, etc. People advancing in years should see to it that their bowels move freely, and if they do not to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can prolong your life by healthy bowel action. Clogged bowels invite disease. Women about to pass the menstrual period cannot do better than use Syrup Pepsin several times a week until the system has settled to its future condition.

Among the strongest supporters of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are Mr. W. G. Zorn of New Decatur, Ala., and Mr. George S. Spaulding of the National Soldiers' Home, Kansas, both elderly men. The regular size bottles can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar, but a free sample bottle can be had by sending your address to the doctor.
